In connection with this matter, you call my attention to a letter from your correspondent, Mr. W. A. Langdon, in which he encloses ten 1-cent stamps with entire top margin, and ten 1-cent stamps with entire bottom margin, also a side margin on the lower 1-cent stamps for inspection, and calls attention to the fact that there is no Bureau imprint or letter or plate number on the top and bottom margin of the stamps, but on the lower pane will be found a plate number attached to the side margin. It is observed that the side margin contains plate number 5672, while the top and bottom margin on the row of ten 1-cent stamps each, as stated by Mr. Langdon, does not contain either the Bureau imprint, the star, or the number.

Assuming that these two rows of stamps with the margin attached were printed from plate number 5672, and as an examination of this plate shows the Bureau imprint, the star, and the number upon the bottom and top of that plate in eight places where they were usually put, these imprints should have appeared in the usual places upon the margins of all stamps printed from this plate. It is not possible, of course, to advise you definitely just how it happened that the imprints were left off of the margin of stamps as shown by the specimens enclosed by Mr. Langdon. It may be that the printer in inking the plate failed to get any ink in the Bureau imprint, the star, and the number 5672, and, therefore, no imprint of these characters appears on the printed sheet, although, there are other ways in printing sheets of stamps by which these imprints might fail to appear thereon.

I return herewith the letter of Mr. Langdon, with the twenty 1-cent stamps with margins, and the side margin containing plate number 5672, enclosed by him to you."

We are grateful to Mr. Ralph for his prompt and courteous reply to our letter asking for information. We might add that it would be interesting to know more about the "other ways" by which these interesting varieties could have been created.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

Oak Lane, Pa., April 27, 1912.

To the Editor:—

In your issue of April 20th you state that the French P. O. will, after June 1st, adopt the system of naming the hours from midnight to midnight from 1 to 24.

This system has been in use by the Belgian P. O. since 1897 and stamps are to be found cancelled 0–1, 1–2, 2–3 and so on until 23–24 and 24–1—24–1 that is midnight to one o'clock appears to have been in use until 1902 when it was changed to 0-1. 23 o'clock will therefore be quite scarce as it may always be accompanied by 22 or 24.

It speaks well for the assiduity of the Belgian P. O. department to be, so to speak, "on the job" day and night and on Sundays as well, though we may assume that the smaller Post Offices do not cancel so continuously, as I find stamps marked 1–4 and 4–7 etc., but rarely one without any hour whatever.

EDITORIAL.

Charity Stamp—Mr. Herman W. Boers, Detroit, Michigan, has sent for inspection, a pair of "near stamps" that reflect a by-gone period when the authorities did not impose the stringent measures in regard to stamp imitation or approximation that came with the later years. The label which is lithographed in dull carmine follows the outline of a shield, on which in bannerettes are the words: Sunday School Postage. Obliquely from the bottom to top is a label which in two lines presents the biblical verse: "I have written unto you with my own hand." St. Paul. The background of the shield is a dotted one and vertical lines fill in the ground outside the shield so as to make the rectangular effect of the stamp. At the base, outside of the design is: Copyright Secured. This label is of interest to those who attend to the sidelines of labels with postal suggestion because of the use of the word, postage, on the impression under notice. There is a dim recollection that this label appeared during the time of the Centennial held at Philadelphia, in 1876—the shield is a copy of that on the Centennial envelopes—and that the labels were sold or otherwise distributed there but definite information on the subject is lacking. Particulars as to the object of the issue of the label and the time and place of its appearance would be acceptable.

How it Grew—The Chicago Tribune paid cable tolls on the following item, which was given the dignity of a double head: "Stamp collectors are in dismay over the coming of the penny in the slot stamping machines which will kill off their hobby. They will hold a mass-meeting of protest at Margate in the first four days of May. Baron Leijonhurvud, the owner of the greatest Swedish collection in the world will preside. There are many wails in the London papers over the extinction of the philatelic science by the automatic machines." It is amazing how philatelic misinformation germinates. In this story, provided with a basis of truth, the non-philatelic reporter encouraged by the managing editor distorted the tale into a travesty on the facts. Yet philately is not isolated in receiving this treatment; any pursuit that is not a superficial one and seen through by the casual observer almost at a glance, is mistreated in a similar way. Probably, it was announced that on the agenda of the British philatelic congress at Margate there would be a discussion of the effect of slot machine stamps on philately; and on this skeleton of truth, the story was fabricated.

No Worry—About twenty years ago, there was much speculation about the effect that a proposed universal stamp would have on philately. It was claimed by some that the universal stamp would be a menace to the well-being of philately but one of the great authorities of the times said that it would be a good thing for philately if nothing further in stamp issues was made. Then every stamp would be appreciated and the knowledge that the supply of stamps even though practically inexhaustible was decreasing slightly from year to year would give an edge to collecting. The stamps of those countries that ceased their issues are highly popular. Collectors no longer fear the consequences of the possible "abolition of postage stamps" or the curtailment of collectible varieties by mutilation in the name of commercial progress or public convenience.

Of All Things—A reader favors us with the following communication: "For your edification and inspection, I am sending you a curious find which I made in going through some old correspondence. Inside of one of the envelopes just as it is yet, is a piece of another envelope, which, no doubt, accidentally got in there some way in the making. This, in itself, is not so remarkable but this piece happens to be a fragment of one of the gems of philately, Scott No. 1469, if I have correctly identified it." The revelation here is a most astounding one. First of all, the envelope, a three-cent green on white, die a, 1874 or Plimpton issue, is made note-worthy by its strange insert, a portion of another envelope on blue paper, that somehow became attached to the inside of the envelope but that this piece should show a quarter of that extreme rarity in envelopes, the three-cent green on blue, Plimpton, die a, is almost beyond the bounds of belief. Such is the case, however, and well may we say that wonders will never cease. Whether to congratulate the finder in the light of the axiom that a quarter of a stamp is better than no stamp at all or to condole with him that the great rarity has been so cruelly partitioned is open to argument.

Year of Jubilee—In view of the declaration that the year 1862 was that in which philately had its birth and the consequent acceptance of the present year, 1912, as marking the fiftieth anniversary of philately, a few words of explanation are to be allowed. In reality, stamp collecting in some vagrant form or other was known before 1862 but before that time, it had no organization or printed records, if an exception is made in favor of M. Oscar Berger-Levrault's catalogue, printed privately at Strassburg, the first edition of which appeared in September, 1861 and the second in December of the same year. In an essay on philately that we wrote many years ago, the following was the introductory paragraph: An authority says that the date of the earliest stamp collection presumably is not to be ascertained, but that the first "collection" that he saw was in 1854; the stamps were arranged on a chart. This was years after the famous Punch called attention in rhyme to the Knights of the Spit-Upon, as they who gathered up the current stamps in quantity were dubbed facetiously. During the fifties collecting was in an evolutionary stage, but in the earlier sixties, stamp collecting was quite general in Europe and stamp papers and albums were published. However, the selection of 1862 as the natal year of philately is a fair one as it was then that it became systematized and attained a popularity of sufficient degree to establish it as a factor. Fifty years of growth and progress have given philately a foundation of such firm and ample base that resting upon it, philately may view serenely the celebration of its jubilee by its enthusiastic followers. It is something almost sacred to know that there may be, must be, a few philatelists, living today, who followed the fortunes of the pursuit from the day of its birth; and their names should be enscribed on the golden scroll by the philatelists of the present generation.

Tough—A contemporary violates the constitution of philately by visiting cruel and unusual punishment on us in calling our paper MSKSEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS. No matter what the crime, the punishment is all too horrible.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

INTERNATIONAL STAMP EXHIBITION.

Jubilee Exhibit at Royal Horticultural Hall, London, Oct. 14-19, 1912.

Distinguished Vice-Patrons.—The Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Ward, Bart., has consented to become a Vice-Patron of the forthcoming Jubilee International Stamp Exhibition. The Rt. Hon. Sydney Buxton, M. P., President of the Board of Trade, has also consented to be Vice-Patron.

Notable Exhibits.—Sir Joseph Ward has kindly arranged that the Government of the Dominion of New Zealand shall be represented by a display at the Exhibition. The display will include specimens of the stamps of New Zealand and its dependencies, and other articles of philatelic interest to be sent from the Postal and Stamp Departments of the Dominion.

Arrangements are already being made for the establishment of a model stamp factory at the Exhibition with working machinery, which will be engaged in the various operations of stamp manufacture during the period the Exhibition is open. Already the Executive Committee has arranged for a number of machines never hitherto viewed by the philatelic public, to be shewn in operation.

The Stamp Bazaar.—The plan of the stalls for hire by dealers, publishers, etc., is now ready and a number of positions have already been allotted to leading stamp dealers. Particulars of terms and copies of the plan may be had by dealers etc. on application to the Hon. Secretary, H. F. Johnson, 44 Fleet St., E. C.

The Exhibits and Awards.—The Baron Erik Leijonhufvud has offered the Executive Committee a Great Gold Medal for the best specialised exhibit of a single issue of stamps of any country in the special class for collections of single issues.

The Art Contest.—The greatest interest has been aroused by the offer of prizes for suggested designs for new and improved postage stamps for Great Britain. The closing date for entries for this competition is August 1st. Particulars of the conditions of the contest may be had from the Hon. Secretary.

General Prospectus.—The draft prospectus has been prepared but is not yet finally approved. It is hoped, however, to have the complete prospectus in the hands of intending exhibitors in the course of a few weeks. Those who have not yet sent in their names and addresses for entry on the register of persons interested to receive all printed matter connected with the exhibition, should lose no time in doing so.

POST OFFICE BILL PERFECTED.

Measure Includes Compromise on Mailing of Parcels.

(Clipping from Hugo Kuenstler.)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The perfected Post Office Appropriation bill, contains several new features of legislation advocated by the majority. One was an abrogation of the rule, described by Democrats as a "gag" rule, which prevented Federal employes in the postal service from complaining to Congress of their treatment.

The bill also contains a provision which would compel newspapers, magazines and other periodicals to publish the names of their managing editors and stockholders who own stock valued at more than $550. This provision, championed by Representative Barnhart of Indiana, was amended by Representative Allen of Ohio so that the daily papers are required to publish this information only one issue a week. The Barnhart bill also provides that all editorial or reading matter for which money has been received must be labeled "advertisement."

A compromise on the parcel post and express provisions occupied most of the time of debate and was agreed to after many amendments were voted down. As the bill was perfected in the Committee of the Whole the parcel post and express questions are given to a committee of three Senators and three Representatives for study and report to the next session of Congress.

Meantime a rural route parcel service is provided. Its rates are five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound up to eleven pounds. All of this mail matter is confined to rural route service. A general parcel post service of twelve cents a pound for eleven pounds is contained in the bill.

A FEW RANDOM NOTES ON U. S.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

In looking over a few hundred copies of the 3 cent rose, imperforate, 1851-56, I found an unused copy of the stamp with watermark. As I had looked for this stamp for a long time the "find" came as a most welcome surprise. The watermark resembles a lot of curved lines like this—(((((((—running horizontally across the middle of the stamp. It is not unknown to specialists. I know of two other copies, one belonging to Dr. Chase of Brooklyn, the other to F. D. Collins of St. Louis. There are probably others in existence and known. But it is a rare stamp, I am certain. The copy I have, and that of Mr. Collins' are of the earliest print, in dark shade, plate practically unworn.

In looking for line varieties of the 3 cent 1857-60 I found a copy on true laid paper, vertical lines, very close together.

Will some one who has a copy of the 24 cent August, 1861, give a description of the color by which it can be recognized?

Specialists in U. S. will find a rich field for their researches in the different sized grills. The catalogs give but a few of the real sizes which can be found in a few hundred copies of the cheap stamps.

NEW IRISH STAMPS PROBABLE.

An interesting sidelight on the Home Rule Bill is the fact that Ireland will have her own postage stamps presumably of her own design.

This was confirmed by Mr. Herbert Samuel himself, who informed a Central News representative that Ireland would in all probability fall into line with the colonies in the matter of separate postage stamps.

Another interesting point, especially to philatelists, was submitted to the Postmaster-General, and this was whether until Ireland had installed her own stamp making machinery English stamps would be used with cancellation marks.

"Oh that's a very small point," observed Mr. Samuel.

Inquiries at the General Post Office showed that the time had not yet arrived when the officials could discuss the details of the subject, much less the actual design proposed.—London Evening Standard.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—L. Harald Kjellstedt, accompanied by wife and son, will sail for Copenhagen, Denmark, on May 16th and will visit a number of places in Sweden and Norway before his return to Scranton, Pa., Aug. 1.

—B. W. H. Poole, Altadena, Cal., has issued a twenty page price-list that he will send to any one who will request the same. The list is neatly printed and well edited.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from C. M. Breder (2), Elmer Topelman, W. A. Kain, Hugo Kuenstler (8), R. E. Jessup.

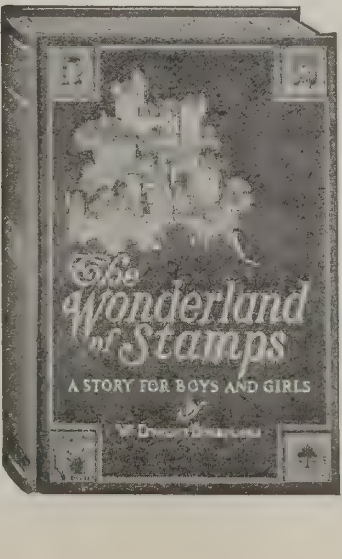
—Will W. R. Harrison please send his address to this office, as we have a letter awaiting his attention. In this connection we wish to remind our readers that our mail list is not arranged alphabetically but by states, mail routes, cities and towns. If perchance we mislay a communication, it is not an easy thing finding an address.

—Information is wanted as to the whereabouts of Otto Frank, formerly 349, 51 St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

—H. V. Blackburn, the enterprising secretary of the Canadian Philatelic Assn., is offering a subscription to MEKEEL'S WEEKLY to anyone who will send in ten applications for membership. We appreciate Mr. Blackburn's kindness in the matter and sincerely hope that as a result of his offer the Canadian society will grow by leaps and bounds.

—Two new cancellations have been received. One is from Sandusky, Ohio, and consists of the regulation postmark with "Perry's Victory Centennial, Put-in-Bay, Ohio, 1913." The inscription is in four lines, in the usual flag shaped cancellation. H. V. Blackburn sends us a Toronto cancellation, the inscription in four lines reading, "Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, Aug. 24—1912—Sept. 9."

—The English Government will shortly issue half-penny and penny stamps in coil form. We also note that an experimental apparatus for sorting letters has been installed in the new postal sorting office at Crewe railway station.



The Wonderland of Stamps

By W. Dwight Burroughs

FULLY ILLUSTRATED, CLOTH 12MO.

Post Free $1.50

It has often been said that postage-stamp collecting is one of the most educational of pastimes, because of the immense amount of information about history, geography, etc., connected with it. Yet few people understand how many and how varied are the interesting things told on the pictures of stamps.

In this book a good-natured uncle with a large stamp collection tells his nephews and nieces about the veritable wonderland it discloses. He describes the birds and animals from the antelope of Rhodesia to the zebra of Madagascar, the old Greek games, bits of United States and foreign history, curious islands, small records of big wars, a miniature edition of Don Quixote, the ancient myths, thumb-nail maps, Christmas stories, ships and locomotives of all descriptions—all pictured on postage stamps of various countries.

The book is fully illustrated with reproductions of the stamps described.

JOIN THE BOOSTER CLUB.

George W. Unger is certainly entitled to membership in the Booster Club. It is nine months before his subscription expires, yet he renews for two years and writes:—"I believe this makes the twentieth year that I have been a reader of MEKEEL'S and I would certainly feel lost without my stamp paper."

We have also initiated into the Club several subscribers who have sent in new subscriptions during the past week, for six months or a year.

By the way, we have no pátent on the Booster Club. Any other stamp paper is welcome to it. We have seen in the past our style of heading, first page arrangement and advertising features copied and still we are happy. Be a Booster!

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—George Story Chapman has shown us the new 2c stamp, imperforate vertically and perforated 8½ horizontally.

W. J. Stablir sends us a specimen of the recent postmarking done at the Chicago postoffice. This is an imperforate 2c stamp of the 1908 type, with what Mr. Stablir calls "the new paint brush cancellation." As he says, "They must employ an ex-house painter in the cancelling department."

We are indebted to J. Arthur Wainwright and Arthur L. Gleason for information regarding the varieties of stamps used over permits. We find we have opened up an apparently inexhaustible supply of freaks of this kind, a supply so large that we shall be unable to print further lists, unless the interest in them should prove to be greater than at present appears to be the fact.

BAVARIA.—According to Lemaire's Journal, the Bavarian Government has issued books of stamps, each book containing seven leaves, with 20 5pf stamps and 10 10pf stamps, and in addition 12 little advertisements. These books are sold at the face value of the stamps, at two marks each. The sheets used in the preparation of these books, present the same peculiarity as those recently issued by the Swiss Government, both the 5pf and 10pf stamps being arranged tete beche.

CHINA.—A. C. Roessler and A. W. Dunning have favored us with specimens of the new surcharged stamps issued by the Chinese Republic. As noted in No. 1114, the surcharge consists of four Chinese characters, printed vertically in the Chinese fashion. Mr. Dunning has shown us 12 varieties of used postage stamps, including the current set from ½c to 50c, and 8 varieties of unused postage due stamps, from ½c to 30c. The colors of the surcharges on the postage stamps were correctly stated in No. 1114, the surcharges on the postage due stamps being all in red. Mr. Roessler says the surcharges were issued April 5, or earlier.

CYPRUS.—The Berliner Briefmarken Zeitung announces that five values of the new King George set have been seen. As we have not seen them the colors cannot be given. The values are the ½-pi, 30pa, 1pi, 4pi and 6pi.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—This colony has also issued three stamps of the King George series. The frame is stated by Lemaire's Journal to be the same as the Mauritius set of 1910.

Adhesives.

5d lilac and olive.
6d lilac and violet.
1sh black on green.

GUATEMALA.—Three varieties are reported of the recently issued provisional, 1c on 6c Granados: With surcharge inverted; double surcharge, both normal; double surcharge, one normal and one inverted.

HONDURAS.—A. W. Dunning has favored us with a specimen of the stamp mentioned in No. 1112 as having been issued to commemorate the accession to the Presidency of the Republic of Gen. Manueal Bonilla, February 1, 1912.

Mr. Dunning also sends us a specimen of a provisional commemorative stamp, issued September 15, 1911, to mark the date of the Anniversary of Independence. The stamp submitted is the 2c green of the current steamer type, the surcharge, which is in small type, reading, "XC—Aniversario de la—Independencia." The surcharge is in carmine. The number issued is said to have been very small. This provisional has apparently escaped the chronicler, and we are still in doubt as to its correct status.

MAURITIUS.—This colony is early in the field with stamps bearing the portrait of King George, three values having been seen.

Adhesives.

5c gray and carmine.
25c black and red on yellow.
10r green and carmine on green.

NICARAGUA.—Mr. Schachne has shown us the new cards (Waterlow imprint) mentioned last week, which are a credit to both the manufacturer and the Republic. Both stamps are the same size—the 4c being an upright rectangle and the 10c, the other way, both dated 1911. The headlines on the 4c are "Republica de . Nicaragua" in ornamental type arranged on a slightly ornamented band of nearly rectangular shape, with "Tarjeta Postal Interior" in one line below. The 10c has the name in French on an arched ornamented band with the same (as on the 4c) on a straight band below. The U. P. U. inscriptions are in small block letters—one line partly above and two lines below the headline design. The cards are a pure white and rather thin, size 140x90.

Postal Cards.

PHILIPPINES.—Dr. W. K. Beatty, writing from the Philippines, says: "In MEKEEL'S of January 20, 1912, I note some remarks on the 20 centavos yellow, current Philippines, about the difficulty of detecting the single line watermark. I cannot understand why the new watermark does not make a new variety; if you will examine a block of 20 centavos yellow I think you will experience no difficulty in distinguishing the watermark and identifying the letter. You cannot distinguish the letter by the benzine cup or water nor by holding to the light; rather let a strong light fall on the reverse of the stamp with the stamp on a dark green background. The new watermark if considered as a

OUR STAMP REBUS.

Our last contest cannot be considered a very great success. Only seven entries were received and the result may be possibly due to that tired feeling that is prevalent during the spring months.

This rebus was sent in by Frank C. Clark of Medford, Oregon, and we give herewith the official list of answers as submitted by him, reading from left to right:—

(1) Roman States, (2) Uruguay, (3) Honduras, (4) Liberia also Officials, (5) Congo, (6) Argentine Rep. also surcharged, (7) New Zealand, (8) Bermuda, (9) Mexico, (10) Benadir, (11) Peru, (12) Columbia Rep., (13) Reunion, (14) Corea, (15) San Marino, (16) Brazil, (17) German Empire, (18) Niger Coast Pro., (19) Col. Rep. Antioquia, (20) Two Sicilies, Naples, (21) Cape of Good Hope, (22) Great Britain, (23) Newfoundland, (24) India, Jhind.

Two contestants succeeded in naming all of the designs:—B. M. Randall, M. D., J. J. Prendergast.

James M. Hunnewell sent in a list with but two wrong and the same is true of E. P. Morehouse. Incomplete lists are also acknowledged from F. C. DePuy, C. Lam and Paul Warriner.

We have in preparation one other rebus that we shall hope to make sufficiently interesting to induce a strong competition.

variety will make the double lined watermarked new colors the scarcer variety. I will have to apologize here for presuming to make any criticism about those 20 centavos stamps as Mr. Siddall is our foremost philatelist out here and I am only a very rank amateur as yet on Philippines stamps."

Dr. Beatty need not apologize, as he and Mr. Siddall are both true students, and neither has any monopoly of discovery. By the way, Mr. Siddall did not say that the new watermark did not make a separate variety. In fact, all the catalogues recognize the two watermarks for the Philippines, as they do for the United States. Dr. Beatty sends us a block of four of the 20c stamps, and we find that the watermark is discernible, though faint. But the same is true of nearly all the United States and Philippine stamps, whether the watermark is double or single lined.

Theodore Siddall informs us that all values have been issued on the new single lined watermark paper except the 4c, 16c and 26c. The 2 peso in the color of the $1.00 U. S. is not expected to be issued for some time yet.

PORTUGAL.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us another value in the new set,—the ¼c, the lowest value in the set, the face value being the same as the former 2½r stamp.

Adhesive.

¼c seal brown.

Mr. Schachne now has the second card issued of the permanent set and this has the divided face like the 1c previously noticed and with the usual U P U headlines.

Post Card.

2c red on white.

ST. THOMAS AND PRINCE.—In addition to the cards chronicled in No. 1114, as having been received with the "Republica" overprint, J. N. Morse reports the 20r card and 50r letter card.

SALVADOR.—Mr. Schachne sends us another provisional card made from the 1c described in No. 1060. The stamp is completely obliterated with a large black overprint 30x43. An upright oval center (arms, flags, etc.) is flanked by a spray of leaves on each lower side:—above, is a ribbon with "Republica de Salvador" and at bottom is "Tribunal de Cuentas." As this overprint has put the stamp "out of commission" it leaves the card of no value so we find "Vale un centavo" in the upper left corner.

All this appears to be a new freak in postage affairs and seems to show that the Bureau of Accounts claims the 1c instead of the Postal Dept.

Post Card.

1c yellow green and black on white.

2c brown and green.

"STAMPS HARD TO GET."

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

(Contributed by A. Blanc.)

Being greatly interested in the stamps of Greece I know which ones, priced under two dollars are hard to get.

First of all 40l violet Paris print new. Next Nos. 11 and 12, 10l and 20l first Athens used. I have never found one in this country that was O. K., altho auction sales apparently swarm with them. Of course "there is a reason" Scott's prices are 75c and 50c respectively while Stanley Gibbons' is $10 and $5 proving their scarcity. No. 24, 40l salmon on greenish used is hard to get—and, by the way, S. G. calls this "solferino"!! No. 36a, 10l red orange, is unobtainable from dealers and even No. 61, 20l rose new, and priced only 75 cents, is exceedingly scarce. In fact so are all Greeks of the first type, unused, excepting the later 1 leptons.

Your readers have mentioned the 1902 series, yet they are offered abroad in lots of ten and over.

Many of the Postage Dues priced as low as 10 to 25c even are unobtainable unused.

(Contributed by F. E. Goodwin.)

Although not strictly within the meaning of your "Scarce Stamps Cataloguing $2 or Under" this one comes very close to it—perhaps close enough for your consent that it be mentioned. I refer to the 24 cent steel blue, 1866, Scott's No. 78c. It catalogues $2.50—its comparative scarcity, as compared with other U. S. of about the same retail price, would indicate that it should be at least $10. I have asked at least 25 dealers for this stamp and found just one who could supply it. The auction sales of the past season contained just one copy. I bid $3 00 on it—the stamp sold for $3.10. I consider it much harder to obtain than the 10c 1847.

The bedfellow of the above stamp—24 cent lilac, mauve, or whatever it may be called, is most difficult to obtain in fine condition. One can look over 100 copies, as I have done frequently, and not find one which could be called perfection. If lightly cancelled, it is off center, perforations cut in, or something. If well centered it will be daubed with ink. A dollar ought to be cheap for it in fine condition; and $5 is not too high for it in fine unused shape.

Another hard to get is 1c 1869, either used or unused. It seems to me to be under-priced.

The most over-rated and inflated stamp under $2 is the 5c 1847. From one to 20 copies are to be found in every auction sale—a very good guide as to the scarcity and value of United States stamps.

TUTTLE SALE No. 186.

On Saturday April 20, George R. Tuttle sold the H. S. Bellinger property of U. S. postage stamps. The 525 lots netted a total of $3,135.80. A strip of four of the 10 cent 1847 on original cover, cancelled light red and pen marked, brought $61.00.

We note herewith a few of the prices realized:—

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS GUIDE.

PAPER.

Varieties of paper are, philatelically, of first importance, for paper is not only an essential part of a stamp but is its very foundation. Yet though the primary importance of paper in relation to stamps, stamp production and stamp collecting is fully admitted in actual practise general collectors (which description, of course, covers all beginners) pay less attention to paper as a factor in making collectible varieties than they do to watermarks and perforation. I am not going to quarrel with the beginner on this score for watermarks are (generally) easy to see, perforations are easy to count, and variations in paper are often quite difficult to distinguish. Though I do not advocate the collection of paper varieties, as such, by the beginner, if he takes an intelligent interest in his stamps he will certainly wish to know how to distinguish the various sorts of paper most generally used in the manufacture of postage stamps. To more fully and clearly understand the many varieties of paper an elementary knowledge of the actual process employed in making paper itself is necessary.

In making paper all sorts of materials are used such as wood, straw, dried grasses, rags and waste-paper. These materials must, however, be of vegetable origin so that while linen and cotton rags are valuable, woolen materials are useless. The better qualities of paper are obtained from linen and cotton rags and as stamps are rarely printed on the poorer grades of paper we may take it for granted that discarded rags form the foundation of even the rarest philatelic gem. Rags of all sorts and colors find their way to the paper mills and during the first rough sorting, usually done by women, buttons, pins, books, etc., are removed. After this has been done most of the other processes are performed by mechanical means. The rags are boiled in a strong solution of soda and lime so that the actual dirt and grease can be got rid of and they are then ground and mashed in large vats until they are reduced to pulp of the desired consistency. This pulp is a medley of color as a result of the variegated hues of the rags used, so that the next process is bleaching, after which the pulp is a snowy-white compound. Next the bleaching solution has to be extracted and then the pulp is subjected to further grinding in large beater vats. When ground to the required fineness more water is added and the solution is conveyed to other vats in which it is constantly stirred. From these vats the watery pulp flows in a steady stream through strainers, which catch all lumps, on to a wide endless cloth of wire gauze, stretched upon horizontal rollers which keep moving it along at a steady rate. At the same time a shaking motion is imparted to the gauze and this serves the double purpose of shaking out a lot of the unnecessary moisture and of evenly distributing the particles of pulp so that the finished paper will be of even substance. The width of the paper is regulated by narrow bands of India-rubber, revolving upon two wheels, and resting upon the gauze. These bands technically known as "deckles," prevent the liquid pulp spreading beyond the required limits. These deckles extend only a short way and by the time it has reached the ends of these the pulp has acquired a certain amount of "solidity" and has the appearance of very soft, wet blotting paper. It now passes under a roller which, from a philatelic point of view, performs the most important part of the whole process, for it is this roll which, in machine made paper such as we are now describing, determines the nature of the paper—whether it is laid, wove, quadrillé, etc. In the case of watermarked stamps, too, this roller forms the watermarked devices.

After it has passed under this roller, known in the trade as a "dandy-roll," the paper is still very wet and active steps are now taken to get rid of the superfluous moisture. The pulp, which has reached a stage entitling it to be called paper, leaves the wire cloth and passes on to a roller covered with felt. It passes over, under, and between a succession of similar rollers, and large heated cylinders so that by when it reaches the end of this part of the machine it is quite dry. It is now actual paper but is still as absorbent as blotting paper so that it has to be "sized"—a process which gives it a surface that can be printed or written upon. The size is applied by another roller revolving in a trough of that material. The paper has again to be dried on the hot cylinders and is then ready for the next and final process known as "calendering." This consists of passing the dry paper between smooth, heavy steel rollers which vary in number according to the amount of gloss or polish desired on the paper.

The paper is, thus, manufactured in a practically continuous strip and it is wound upon rolls to the required length. It is no uncommon thing for several miles of paper to be wound on one roll and in printing newspapers by modern methods the paper is used direct from these large rolls. For all other purposes it is cut in the desired sizes by guillotine cutters. As the paper leaves the calendering rolls revolving cutters remove the rough or "deckle" edges.

The above is a brief description of the process employed in the manufacture of machine-made paper, but as some of the earlier stamps were printed on hand-made paper a brief survey of this process is also necessary. The pulp is made in the manner already detailed and when it is ready for conversion into paper a little of the liquid is dipped into a "mould." The mould consists of a frame, a wire cloth, and a deckle. The wire-cloth, as in the case of machine-made paper, determines the nature of the paper, and, when a watermark is desired, small pieces of metal or wire in the shape of the necessary design are sewn on to this cloth. The deckle is an additional frame, which forms a sort of tray on the wire cloth and determines the size of the sheet of finished paper. A little of the liquid pulp is taken on to the mould by dipping it into the vat in such a manner that an even deposit to the height of the deckle is obtained. The workman gives the mould a shake which removes some of the water and connects the fibres of the pulp. The deckle is removed and the partly formed paper is turned on to a piece of damp felt. On top of this another sheet of felt is stacked, then more paper, and so on until a pile of the requisite size is obtained. By means of pressure in a hydraulic press most of the remaining water is ejected, and after being pressed again without the protecting felt the paper is hung up to dry. It is then sized and glazed as in the case of paper made by machinery. In making paper by hand it is obviously impossible to obtain precisely the same thickness in every sheet, consequently stamps printed on hand-made paper frequently vary in thickness.

MANY "FREAKS" IN HITCHCOCK'S MAIL.

Seems To Be Regarded as a Sort of Court of Last Resort.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Epistolary oddities, from which a curious set of statistics might be compiled and which a student of psycology might explain after a diligent examination, daily find their way into the office of Postmaster General Hitchcock. They come from all sections of the country and Canada and in all sorts of chirography.

It would be a lonesome day that failed to bring several of them to the postmaster general. Conscience stricken petty delinquents, pilferers of government money, confessors of graver crimes, many of them seeking in old age to atone for the sins committed in youth, women appealing for aid in finding missing husbands and sons, hopeful visionaries planning revolutions, and victims of every variety of swindle seem to look upon the postmaster general as a father confessor, a first aid to the troubled or a court of last resort.

Many of the communications are of a purely mercenary nature, others without apparent purpose or meaning and some are most mysterious. Following are some excerpts selected at random:

"Please find enclosed a few stamps which I used that had been used before and not canceled. I want to live right in sight of God and man, so I return what I used that wasn't mine. —Woman."

The next letter shows that many a guilty soul is turned into paths of righteousness by religious fervor lately acquired:

"It came to my mind that when I was a little boy I put an old two-cent stamp on a letter. Since that time I gave myself up to serve the Lord and live for God. I don't want no two-cent stamp on God's book against me so you will find your stamp here. The Bible says, 'If you steal pay back that you robbed.' So this is on the way. Praise the Lord, Amen."

Sometimes the postmaster general has to consider whether or not he is "compounding a felony" by respecting the confidence of a too frank correspondent. Such letters as the following are not infrequently received.

"I have been leading a wicked life but have recently reformed. I came to Christ here in the gospel mission and am a new man in Christ Jesus. Praise the Lord. When a man becomes a child of God he must make his wrongs right, so that is the reason why I am writing you. When I was a boy, somewhere between 15 and 16 years old, I robbed the postoffice at ———, Ia., think that $6 or $7 would cover the amount that I took. I will pay it back as soon as I get the money. Please be as easy on me as possible. May God bless you.

"P. S.—I am 38 years of age now, so I think it would be twenty-one or two years since I committed the crime."

Recently the postmaster general received a small canvas miniature mail bag, in which was found a silver dollar and a small piece of paper inscribed as follows: "I will call on you for assistance on the fourth instant."

The sender's name and address was given. The department, at loss to fathom the purpose of the missive, asked what disposition should be made of the money. Later a second sack was received by the department officials inclosing a second dollar and a piece of paper which read:

"I received your letter and noticed the watermark on the paper."

MERELY AN INTRODUCTION.

Another reply was then sent to the mysterious correspondent which drew the following explanation:

"By sending the money I want to introduce myself to the postmaster general and his secretary. I expect to do the same in every department in the United States capital, and hope this will be satisfactory."

A request that the postmaster general replace a one-dollar bill, which had been "inadvertently" destroyed by "her little puppy" was recently received from a woman living in Portland, Ore.

An Arkansas woman asked the department to "find a trunk lost in transit. It was wrapped up with two wire and one cord string. Among the contents is two fine dresses worth $7.50 apiece."

A most pathetic appeal reached the department from a grief-crazed mother, soliciting its aid to find her son. Much publicity was given the affair in the press which resulted in the finding of the young man in Detroit, Mich. The mother's appeal follows:

"I am writing to your office as a last and only resort of hearing something from my only son, whom I have not seen for eight years. He was then at Zambeagga, Mindaneo, P. I. He is 38 years old, and more or less a soldier of fortune. His name is ———. He is of an athletic, but not very large build."

The "freak" letters received by the postoffice department in a year entail much additional work on the clerical force, and add a considerable amount to the running expenses of the department.—Lincoln Daily Star.

HOW COMMON STAMPS GROW SCARCE.

By FREEMAN PUTNEY, JR.

If you began to collect stamps a dozen or fifteen years ago, the chances are that in the first approval selection you received, there was a set of Switzerland, 1881, unused. You remember the stamps—the seated figure in the middle with white numerals in the corners.

If you did not receive a set on the first approval sheets you ever had, the chances are ninety-nine to one, that a set was on the second or third lot. Later, you received other approval sheets from the other dealers and there were more sets of these same Swiss stamps. Everybody bought them, from the 2r bistre up to the 1Fr gold.

The reason why these sets were so common was that they could be purchased very cheaply at wholesale by the ten, hundred or thousand sets and that every small dealer increased the demand and utilized the pretty tints of the stamps to brighten up his approval sheets. I do not know how many thousand sets were in the remainders sold by the Swiss government. I do remember disposing of several thousand sets at retail in the ten years previous to 1900, in the conduct of what was only a small stamp business. The short sets could be purchased as low as $20 per thousand. Every other dealer in the country, large and small, had a supply and only the wholesaler who controlled the stamps could say how many were disposed of.

The stamps of this Swiss set are still priced cheaply, at from two to five cents each in the catalogue. Every dealer probably has a few copies of scarce values in stock, but they have nearly disappeared from wholesale lists. A few old stocks still hold a moderate supply of them but, when found occasionally in wholesale price lists, they are quoted no longer by the thousand sets, but by the ten sets. One Swiss dealer probably holds at present a larger supply than anyone else, but he doles them out very sparingly.

In ten years more these pretty little stamps, which were so common a decade ago as to be only a joke, will begin to rise in the catalogue. The 15c lemon is already quite a little scarcer than the other low values. The 1fr gold has already, if memory serves, been boosted a little two or three years ago.

This example has been selected merely to illustrate the remarkable manner in which seemingly inexhaustible supplies of common stamps become used up and disappear. At first thought, postage stamps seem very distinct from those commodities in every day use, which are used up by being worn out or otherwise consumed. They are more likely to be compared to securities which are purchased in the market in good times but in hard times come upon the market when offered by the owners needing cash. This comparison of stamps to securities may be valid in the case of rare stamps, most of which are carefully preserved and eventually in a fair proportion of cases are again offered for sale.

In the case of common stamps, (although this seems a surprising statement to make) a large proportion of them are as actually consumed, as if they were worn out or eaten. Let us explain.

Willie Jones gets the stamp fever, he buys a 25c Album or, maybe, if his father lives on the right side of town, he pays several dollars for the album. He collects vigorously for a year or two, acquiring naturally the more common stamps. Then the fever leaves him, temporarily perhaps, but long enough so that he "swops" his stamp collection for a pair of rabbits.

The boy who gets the collection takes it home, neglects to mow the grass because of his interest in the album and when his father gets home, the old-man, who has no philatelic instincts, throws the album in the kitchen-stove.

Thousands of these small beginners' collections are started and then lost or destroyed every year. I have some knowledge of the number of beginners' albums annually sold in this country and have from time to time inquired of various dealers as to the number of such collections offered to them each year. I believe that 80% of these beginners' collections never again reach a dealer's stock. In the great majority of cases they are rated merely as one of the child's toys, along with the cigarette cards and picture books, and after lying

We do not know what kind of a new issue service they have had but we do know it is not our kind. These stamps have been finely centered, which is an innovation for this country as they usually come as bad as the U. S. There was quite a scramble a few years since for stamps when it was reported that the U. S. would buy these islands. This might happen again then you would realize.

around the house awhile they go into a spring bon-fire.

It maybe of interest to the collectors of today to know some of these formerly cheap stamps of which the wholesale stocks have, to the writer's knowledge, shrunk within recent years to unimportant proportions or else actually disappeared.

The stamps of the United States are purposely omitted, as the growing scarcity of many of these varieties is of sufficient interest to warrant a separate article.

From our above-discussed Switzerland to Mexico is quite a jump, but an interesting and favorite little set which first came on the market in quantity about twenty years ago, is the four varieties, head type, of 1864. This set retailed for a long time for a dime and could be purchased by the hundred for half that amount. Today only scattering wholesale lots can be picked up. The small Porte De Mar is another set which has recently began to grow scarce also. The last I knew, the most important holder of them still had a supply, but it was very limited.

It will be news to many collectors of today, to know that the Guatemala set of 1875, ¼r black to 2r dull red, head of Liberty to left, was at one time easier to obtain at wholesale than it was to sell at retail. This is a rather attractive set and a steady demand for it cleaned up any large wholesale supply a number of years ago. I do not know where to buy one hundred sets in a lot today. The bi-colored set of 1882 with Quintzel in the centre (I suppose some exact gentleman would pick me up if I called that bird a parrot) is still owned in quantities in one or two stocks but is a liberal seller and I predict that the Quintzel will in a few more years become an extinct bird on cheap approval sheets, so far as this particular set goes.

Another little South American set which is dropping out of the market in surprising fashion is that made up of the five low values of the Costa Rica 1889, head type. I say surprising, because this is another set which could have been purchased by the thousand and ten thousand, less than ten years ago. It was another favorite for beginners' albums and there is another example of the stamps which have gone into the kitchen-stove. The 1883 Costa Rica set was not as common nor as cheap, but is becoming much scarcer than it was.

Still keeping to Central America, we have our tiny friends, the Honduras 1865, first issue 2r green and 2r pink. Ten years ago these seemed so inexhaustible that we expected our grandchildren would buy them for two or three cents apiece. Today I understand that the supply at first hands is cleaned out and only scattered lots remain in a few wholesale stocks. Another Costa Rica set which will do much better at wholesale before long is the 1889 type, surcharged "Oficial" in tall letters, while the four varieties overprinted "Guanacaste" have already vanished not only from wholesale stocks but from those of most retailers.

This article seems to have dealt largely with the stamps of Central America although we did start with Switzerland. In some future articles I shall call attention to a number of stamps and sets from other countries, once common and obtainable in many cases at practically nominal prices in packets or sets, but of which the large supplies have disappeared and the stamps have now started on the road to respectable scarcity. This entire process is an encouragement to the beginner who does retain his stamp collection and who is one of the ten or twenty out of every hundred embryo collectors who stick to their albums permanently and form the solid ranks devoted to our fascinating hobby.

NOTES ON NEW ISSUES.

Cape Verde Islands.—The new stamps prepared for this Portuguese Colony bearing ex-King Manuel's portrait have at last been issued. All are overprinted with the word "Republica" in red, except the 20 reis on which the surcharge is in green. Our agent at Lisbon informs us that these stamps cannot be obtained without the surcharge.

Ceylon.—Our Colombo agent sends us the following interesting information:—

"The new stamps with portrait of King George will not be brought into use till the beginning of October, although some of the small values are expected here in May or June. As postage stamps will be used for revenue purposes as well, a proclamation in the Gazette will be necessary, and simultaneously with the introduction of the new stamps, those at present in use will be withdrawn and destroyed. The new stamps are, I understand, to be similar in design to those in use in the Gold Coast."

Chinese Republic.—As foreshadowed in our last issue, the provisional stamps were put on sale on April 1st, and we have received a small supply. All the values of the current Imperial stamps are surcharged vertically with four Chinese characters reading "Chung Hua Min Kuo," meaning "Chinese Republic," in some values the surcharge is in red, on the remainder it is in black. Previous to this printing, a small number received the same overprint in blue, which was considered unsatisfactory, but the stamps were nevertheless issued, and we have seen several used copies. So far as we can ascertain, only the lower values, from ½c to 30c, were surcharged in blue, and most, if not all, of these were sent to Hankow, and quickly sold out. The "Provisional Neutrality" stamps referred to in our March issue as having been withdrawn, have been re-issued with the additional "Chinese Republic" surcharge. The first surcharge is horizontal, and the second is vertical, so that the two overprints are cruciform. We have not as yet been able to obtain a single unused copy of either of these two issues, and we fear there is no chance of our being able to include them in our new issue distribution, though we are doing our best to obtain them. We are officially informed that a permanent set of Chinese Republic stamps is being prepared and will be issued as soon as possible.

Costa Rica.—Various journals have chronicled the following provisionals:—Telegraph stamps surcharged for postage 1c on 50c; 1c on 1 colon; 1c on 5 colons and 1c on 10 colons. Our agent at San Jose informs us that the entire issue of these four varieties were bought by a commission agent of that city, none having been put into circulation. As these stamps have never been issued to the public for postal use they will not be included in our catalogue or albums—Whitfield King & Co.'s List.

NEW CAYMAN ISLANDS STAMPS.

By Harry E. Huber.

The new stamps for the Cayman Islands, bearing the head of King George V, and promised for over a year, have at last been issued. But the surprise is in the form of three new values added to the series, viz., 2d, 2sh, and 3sh. Following is the Post Office Notice issued authorizing their issuance:

Post Office Notice.

Postage and Revenue Stamps (bearing the effigy of His Majesty King George V) of the following denominations, will be on sale at the George Town Post Office at 10 a. m. on April 24th next, viz., ½d, 2d, 2sh, 3sh.

A. Bodden, Postmaster.

I have as yet only seen the two lower values; i. e., ½d green and 2d gray. These come to hand on letter mailed at the George Town Post Office the day of issuance, April 24th. The new stamps are very similar to those of the last issue, King Edward VII, Postage and Revenue type, the only difference being the substitution of King George's head for that of his predecessor. The head faces the left, as did also the former issue. The duty plate for the ½d is the same as that formerly used, while a new one is necessitated for the 2d value. While in the case of the ½d the value appears in colorless figures on a horizontally lined background, the 2d is quite the opposite, the numeral appearing in color on a plain background. The duty plate for the 2d also has the "M" of "CAYMAN" in the type of the higher value stamps; i. e., in the case of the ½d and 1d of the former issue, the middle stroke of the "M" comes all the way down, while in the case of the other values it stops about half way down.

Of the Edward stamps there are still in stock at the George Town Post Office the following values:—1d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1sh, 5sh, and 10sh. It is doubtful whether the latter two values will appear in the new George V series, since the 2sh and 3sh stamps will very nicely take their place. Of the 3,000 10sh stamps issued in 1908, there is still on hand a very fair stock. Doubtless other values in the new type will appear as the stock on hand is exhausted.

My correspondent advises me that the 2d stamp used on the envelope was the first taken from the sheet, and consequently, the first King George 2d stamp sold in the Cayman Islands.

A second letter also brings to hand some envelopes which have been used in the local mail. George Town and Bodden Town, in Grand Cayman, have both dated cancelling stamps, while mail coming from the surrounding towns and villages are treated with rubber-stamp cancellations. The three line cancellation reading "RURAL POST—COLLECTION—Grand Cayman" is used by the driver of the mail cart between Bodden Town and George Town. A four line cancellation "EAST END—Grand Cayman—RURAL—Post Collection" is used at the Post Office at East End. This late mail brings to hand a third type, of which I was not formerly aware, reading—"WEST BAY—Grand Cayman—RURAL—Post Collection".

HOW TO READ PERFORATIONS.

A "single" perforation is when the gauge of the four sides is the same. A "compound" perforation is when two or more gauges are to be seen on the same stamp. It does not necessarily imply that there must be more than two, but when there are more than two gauges, the expression is used say "perf. 10 compound with 11 and 12." If the compound perforation on the stamp only consisted of two gauges, one of which was top and bottom, and the other the same at the sides, the perforation would merely be described 10x11, but in the case of those perforations which differ, the top perforation is always given first, the bottom second, the right of the stamp third, and the left of the stamp fourth. For instance, while 10x11 would mean 10 top and bottom, and 11 at the sides, 10 compound with 11 would signify that while the perforation was 10 at the top it might be 11 at the other three sides, or it might be 10 at the top and two sides, and 11 at the bottom. In some cases, the perforations are given in the following manner: 10x12½x11x11. This signifies that the top perforation is 10, the bottom perforation 12½, and the side perforations 11. In those cases where only two gauges have been used, the horizontal gauge is invariably (or should be) quoted first, and the vertical gauge second.

It is a very difficult matter sometimes to distinguish between "single line" perforations and "comb machine" perforations. The lines of the former are always perfectly straight, and it would be found when examining blocks that the holes had frequently cut into each other at the corners. With single specimens it is at times almost, if not quite, impossible to say whether a stamp has been perforated on a "single line" or a "comb" machine. Occasionally, little "tufts" will be seen at the corners, which show that the short lines of perforations of the comb machines have not gone the full length of the stamp. It may not be generally known that when stamps are perforated on a "single line" machine, all the horizontal or vertical lines are perforated first, then the sheet is turned round and the remaining lines of perforations supplied. The "comb" machines perforate three sides of the stamp at one operation, the second operation supplying the fourth line of perforation of the first row. When the sheet is being pushed forward, if this is done by hand, it may probably shift a little, which causes the lines of perforations to be irregular, and as they are not pushed forward precisely the same distance each time, it will frequently be noticed that there is a little gap between the two lines of one stamp and the beginning of the next, and as a rule the holes do not overlap. The more recently constructed comb machines, which are worked by steam or electric power, do not disclose all the above peculiarities as they run more smoothly, but the best method of distinguishing the difference between the "comb machines" and the "single line" perforations is to notice their appearance at the intersections at the corners in blocks of four or more.

"Mixed" perforations indicate that after a stamp has been perforated all round, one or more lines have been perforated again on another machine. The following is the explanation of this. In some cases it has been discovered that the line of perforations first applied has cut into the design of the stamp, and as this, according to some stamp printers, is a terrible crime, they adopt the practice of pasting a piece of paper over the holes and perforating the stamp again on the white line between the two rows, most likely on another machine. This has been more apparent on New Zealand stamps. Mixed perfs. of N. Z. stamps issued within the last 10 or 12 years indicate a compound of the 14 and 11, with two different perforations showing on the same side of the stamp.

A "variety," so far as stamps are concerned, is a deviation from what is customary. It generally happens when the stamps are being perforated, that a few sheets are spoilt, and in order to make up the requisite number, some extra sheets have to be perforated. It may not be convenient to put these through the same machine or machines as the others, in which case another gauge may be used, and as these are generally few in proportion to the bulk lot, they are said to be a "variety." In some cases an entire issue may be perforated on some one or two machines, and a subsequent issue may be perforated on other machines. These might also be termed "varieties," but not in the same strict sense as those above referred to.—Aust. Stamp Journal.

OUR EFFORTS APPRECIATED.

We have taken special pains in recent issues to publish matter of a rudimental character believing that the 1200 new collectors who have recently subscribed to the WEEKLY were entitled to this consideration.

As the weeks go by much other matter will be found in our columns that is calculated to instruct not only the beginner but the more advanced collector, while at the same time the specialist will have his due share of attention.

We aim to cover the wide field of philately and due justice will be shown the various branches or side lines, as they are termed. With so many interests to serve it is difficult to please every subscriber with the contents of each issue.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

An Order—The following amendment has been made to Paragraph 2, Section 566, Postal Laws and Regulations: "The wilful impression on any mail matter of a postmark bearing any other date than that on which such matter is despatched or of a backstamp bearing a date other than that on which the mail is received at the post office backstamping it, or the erasure of any date of a postmark or a backstamp, whether for purpose of fraud or deception or to conceal a delay or retention of mail matter or any other official error or delinquency, will in all cases subject the offender to dismissal from the service." Some time ago, there was a fraud perpetrated with the connivance of a postal clerk, through the distribution of racing tips in envelopes that were postmarked much earlier than properly, they should have been. About the only effect on philately that the order, if obeyed, will have is the discontinuance of the occasional instance of postmarking stamps such as the Confederate, twenty-cent green and two-cent red, with dates in the sixties, by modern instruments in which the dates were transposed. The fraud is in the attempt to palm off what should be an unused specimen at the much higher price of the used stamp.

OUR TENTH AUCTION SALE

Suggested—The suggestion has been made that an organization of stamp dealers be formed, the chief and practically only requirement for membership in which would be honesty and reliability, and, as a consequence, an unblemished commercial reputation. Membership in the proposed body would carry with it an assurance to the collector that he would receive fair treatment from the dealer and that he could rely upon the fulfilment of promises in the dealer's advertisement to the letter. The union would not be concerned in any trade advantage as it effected the individual members other than that attaching to or following clean methods. It would be planned to make the membership of the "poor but honest" dealer as influential in the councils of the organization as that of the most prosperous representative of the stamp trade. The absence of a spirit of trade rivalry would be guaranteed almost, by the knowledge that under the constitution of the association, the organization could not be used for mercenary or individual measures. The purpose of the protective association would be to guard inviolate the reputation of the dealers comprising its membership, or, in other words, the commercial interests in this country so that in time, the dealer who could claim membership and place the talismanic initials on his letter-head or in his advertisement would find that an "open door" would facilitate his trade relations both with dealer and collector, throughout the world. Dealers of the permanent class find it incumbent upon them at times to complain about the dishonest actions of collectors; and they realize the irony of being included in a class that numbers among its individuals, dealers against whom collectors have just cause for complaint on the score of ill-treatment.

Off—In a newspaper, just at hand, under the head of "Misleading Postal Information," we read the criticism of a correspondent as follows: "The United States postoffice provides for our convenience little books of postage stamps in various denominations and sizes. All, even the most recent, purchased by this writer print (inside the back cover) incorrect foreign postage rates. Letters and sealed matter require, we are told, '5 cents for the first ounce, etc.'; whereas, for a long time past the rate to England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales and on certain letters and sealed matter to Germany has been and is but 2 cents for the first ounce." A criticism of this kind is a careless one and unfair. On the inside back cover of the "most recent" booklets of both one and two cents, on the very page on which the quotation: "5 cents for the first ounce" etc., appears is the sentence in the last paragraph: "The domestic rate for letters but not for other articles applies also to Germany, Great Britain and Ireland and Newfoundland." Again on the inside page of the front cover under Domestic Rates, the same information is given. It took much ingenuity to skip these staring statements.

Favored—At a recent meeting of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, the business of the evening was the display "by Fellows of one or more values or an entire issue of any country." It is some satisfaction to record the fact that the President of the society, the Earl of Crawford, chose the five and ten-cent, U. S. 1847, for the place of honor, and that his representation was called a most interesting and complete exhibition, which included the proofs from the original die in the smaller and enlarged sizes, proofs in color and pairs and blocks of the regular stamps. Of the reprints or "government counterfeits" there were many proofs and there were "among others, two complete panes from the plate of the reprinted stamps." The retention by Lord Crawford of his collections of Great Britain and of the United States is something in the nature of a compliment to the stamps of our country; and naturally, Lord Crawford's illumining studies of our issues are received with much approbation by collectors here.

Seals—A reader says that he has been greatly interested in the references that have been made to the seal of the post-office department, in recent numbers. He calls attention to the fact that the "imprint" of the department as it appears on the stamp booklets, for instance, shows the horseman to the right. He assumes that on the trademark, the "charge" is faced according to the heraldic custom, or to the right, after the irregularity of placing it to the left on the seal which was adopted in 1837 had been corrected.

Queries—Here are three questions that will have to be "referred" in the hope that the information desired will be forthcoming. "What will be the numbers of first new plates of U. S., 3c (No. 340), 4c (No. 341), 5c (No. 342), 6c (No. 343) to be made after the new plates for 1c, 2c, 8c, 10c, 15c, 50c and $1 new 1912 issue?" "Has the watermark been changed on the sixth issue, playing card, 2c, ultramarine?" "Will types I and II of the new single-lined letter watermark be catalogued?" In explaining his first question, our correspondent brings out an interesting situation: "I want to be on the lookout for a plate number block of the 3c, 4c, 5c and 6c, with higher plate number than the new 1912-1c, 2c, 8c, 10c, 15c, 50c and $1, first issued, and include these with the new set in my album."

Smokes and Stamps—Mr. Edward J. Koller, New York, has favored us with "samples of inserts of a new five-cent package of little cigars made by the American Tobacco Company." On the reverse of the cards is: "Foreign stamp series A, 50 subjects. One of these attractive reproductions of foreign stamps packed in each package of the following brand: Derby Little Cigars." The reproductions are especially fine in workmanship and coloring and will attract attention to philately, as some of the scarcer stamps are among those pictured.

EARLY PRECANCELS.

F. L. SMITH.

So far we know nothing as to when the first pre-cancelled stamp was issued by a postmaster for the purposes they are now used for, and at this late day it is doubtful if we will learn much more than is now known. The early manner of cancelling them seems to have been by printing or drawing a line across the stamps while in the sheet. Sometimes more than one line was drawn as in Buffalo and others. The 1895 issue has one or more specimens that so far have not been identified. A cancellation similar to Buffalo appears on the 1 cent 1870 with embossed back. We might make a start here if a wrapper would only turn up. This simple method of cancellation was greatly improved upon by the substitution of some design, such as an oval or a circle, and probably many others, until at the present time, when the department has made rules governing their use, we have a design giving the town and state name, with a line above and below. Glen Allen, Virginia, enclosed in a circle with single inner line and double outer line, dated May 27, 1887, impressed on the envelope with a large black star adjoining, which cancelled the stamp, illustrates one of the early attempts to give the name of the town and state where mailed from. The stamp is the 1882 1 cent re-engraved. It exists dated August of the same year, and several years later; when a single lined circle was used, and upon the 1 cent 1898. I have been unable to get their history from the firm using them. Smithville, New Jersey, comes with a similar cancellation. In September, 1887, Burlington, Vt., appeared impressed entirely upon the stamp. At first the 1 cent 1882 re-engraved was used, two copies of which are the only ones known of at present. This is the first case so far as we now know where the town and state name appear on the stamp. Boston followed soon after, using the 1 cent 1890. This stamp was used to mail a prominent magazine whose circulation extended all over the country, and I have been informed by postmasters, was the first to attract their attention to the labor-saving device of pre-cancelling stamps.—Precancel Monthly.

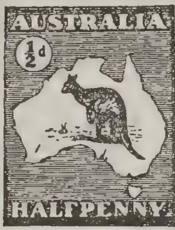
WHITFIELD KING & CO.
IPSWICH ENGLAND

THE FIRST NEW AUSTRALIAN STAMP.



The new design for the first Commonwealth stamp has been made public by Postmaster General Frazer and we are indebted to D. B. Beattie and F. W. Reid for clippings showing the design. Our cut is reduced from a newspaper design and is evidently lacking in some of the details that the stamp itself will possess.

The design is exceedingly simple. It consists of a dark background, with the Continent of Australia outlined as a white blank. In the centre of this open space is a kangaroo. Across the top of the stamp is the word "Australia," while at the bottom is the denomination—halfpenny, penny, etc. The denomination is also shown in figures in a small circle.

Some months ago a board was appointed to select designs and the prize money was paid over. None of the prize designs, however, were approved and the then Postmaster General exercised the power given under the conditions of the contests to select another design. The final choice fell to the lot of Mr. Frazer, who apparently has made up the new design from suggestions of the various competitors.

The Commonwealth Cabinet has approved the design and arrangements are now being made to print a sufficient supply for general use throughout Australia. All state stamp distinctions will disappear in the appearance of the new set, of which further values may shortly be expected.

"STAMPS HARD TO GET."

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

(Contributed by W. I. Mitchell, M. D.)

The articles published have interested me very much, as many of those listed already as "hard to get" have been on my "want list," but there are several others that I have not seen listed so far, that have been very elusive. Take Uruguay No. 148; it was on my want list three years and I only succeeded in getting a copy last December in a dealer's stock in Chicago and was glad to get it at full catalog.

Queensland No. 107 gave me lots of trouble as I had no less than six copies of No. 103 sent me as No. 107 before I secured it. Nos. 98 and 100 will also give plenty of hunting to secure.

Grenada No. 47 and Natal No. 77 also seem to be in the "just out of" class. Everyone seems to have trouble in getting Belgium No. 5 and No. 508, and both of these are much underpriced. Bolivia Nos. 55 to 59 seem to be unobtainable. Cuba Nos. 39 to 45, Prussia No. 10, Siam No. 24 are all hard to get. Siam No. 25, catalogued three times the price of No. 24 seems to be much more common.

French Colonies Nos. 9 and 10 are hard to get, most copies sent out being France Nos. 41 and 43.

All Portuguese Colonials high values of the '95 to '99 issues seem to be scarce. While above the two dollar limit, Austria No. 8 has been on my list of wants for several years, and I'd gladly give full catalogue for a fine used copy.

(Contributed by Herbert Armstrong.)

I notice some replies in regard to hard-to-get stamps cat. $2.00 or less. I haven't seen many really tough ones on the list so far. I have been working in the American, English, French and German markets for the last fifteen years and while some things are hard to get here they are easy in either Paris, Berlin, Hamburg, Antwerp or London. I don't know much about used stamps but here are a few unused that are really hard to get no matter where you go:—Belgium 204; Colombian Rep. 149, 454; Cundinamarca 18, 102; Costa Rica 220; Diego Suarez 1, 2, 3 and 4; Ecuador 76, 601; Fernando Po 64g; French Zanzibar 1706, 1707; Guatemala 74; Bamra 11, 19; Poonch 7 on yellow, not orange, 20; Italy 855; Luxemburg 133; Mozambique 46, 47; Netherlands 10, 11; New Caledonia 309; Nicaragua 216; North Borneo 311; Obock 202; Persia 55, 65; (I would like to include Peru 309 but it catalogues $2.50. It "got my goat") Portuguese India 98, 102; Salvador 211, 212, 251, 260, 261, 263, 264, 265, 279, 316, 323, 701, 702, 703; Sungei Ujong 27; Switzerland 207, 208; Turkey 128, 129, 130, 131, 301, 315, 316, 317, 318, 324, 329; Venezuela 36, 45, 72.

WARNING ON 1c POSTAL SAVINGS.

By MISS AMY L. SWIFT.

May I suggest that a warning note in regard to the supposed scarcity of the one-cent postal savings stamp might be of benefit to those who buy in haste and repent at leisure? They may never be very common, especially if superceded by the 1c envelope, but surely enough were issued to go around without making necessary a price of $1.00 apiece. We know each postal savings bank so far established was sent at least one sheet of 100, and while I do not know how many such banks there are, published statements have given the number as 9,000 up to 30,000. Taking the honest estimate, 9,000, would mean the issue of 9,000 sheets of 100, or 900,000 stamps, exclusive of those held at Washington, or duplicate sheets sent to larger users. Possibly some of these may be recalled and destroyed, but it is not likely, and while many will doubtless not be saved after use the majority certainly will be, thanks to the publicity given the matter of their value, therefore it seems to me only a matter of time until enough will come on the market to make them available to collectors at a nominal price. Those who bought Canadian ½c Jubilee at $1.50 each, only to see them drop later to less than a tenth of that sum, will be apt to remember that history repeats itself, but there are beginners since then who may not know about that peculiarity of history.

OF INTEREST TO ENVELOPE LOVERS.

By LOUIS G. BARRETT.

Marcus W. White has submitted some envelopes of the current series, all 2c size 13, die E, which show marked differences in the "cut" of the gummed flap on the so-called new knife. The normal flap for this knife has a rounded point, while on others, just noticed, the flap comes to a sharp point. Also there seems to be an intermediate stage, not quite so rounded as the normal type. The two extremes, however, are plainly distinguished. Of the white envelopes submitted, all show the USPOD 1911 wmk., but a similar one in blue with pointed flap, is the USSE 1911 paper. According to Mr. White, he has in his collection, or has seen, the following:—

Die E, 2 cent Envelope,
Wmk. USPOD 1911;
Size 13 on white
  New knife, rounded flap.
  " " pointed "
Size 13 on blue
  New knife, pointed flap.
Size 13 on buff
  New knife, pointed flap.

These last two items, Size 13 on the second quality papers, blue and buff with the USPOD 1911 wmk., are hard to account for, as it was understood that none of these papers had been made bearing that watermark. It has been reported from other quarters, however, so we are awaiting an explanation from official sources.

THE FIRM OF A. YAREMDJI.

After an absence from our columns of some months A. Yaremdji of Constantinople is again advertising with us, but his offers this week do not fairly represent the fine stock of stamps that he is known to carry. Moreover, Mr. Yaremdji's wholesale relations with American dealers have been known as very satisfactory and both branches of American philately, collector and dealer, will do well to establish trade acquaintanceships with him.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.—Miss Amy L. Swift sends us a clipping from Tasmania, mailed early in April, which gives some interesting information regarding a Federal issue of stamps. According to the clipping the Federal Cabinet has approved the new design for the first uniform stamp of the Australian Commonwealth. The design consists of a dark background with the continent of Australia outlined as a white blank. In the centre of this blank is a kangaroo. Across the top of the stamp is the word "Australia," while at the bottom is the denomination. The denomination is again shown in figures in a small circle. Arrangements will shortly be made to print the new stamp for general use throughout Australia. All the state stamp distinctions will then disappear.

CANADA.—William T. Wakeford sends us the 1c King George stamp, precancelled "Montreal—Quebec" in two lines of type, with two rules between, the whole being inverted.

CAPE VERDE.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the full set of King Manuel stamps, surcharged "Republica," recently issued for this Colony. The design, which is distinctive for this Colony is the most effective of any of the King Manuel issues. The head of the King is shown in a large circle, with wreaths of laurel at the sides. A straight tablet about one-half the width of the stamp appears at the top, with "Cabo Verde" in colorless letters. "Portugal Correio" in very small letters appears in a tablet conforming to the portrait circle. At the bottom, the value appears in a tablet thus "400 Reis 400," the figures being colored letters and "Reis" in colorless letters. The tablet containing the values is cut away in the centre to allow the circle to be completed. It is altogether likely that these stamps will not be obtainable without the surcharge. Therefore we chronicle the colors, the surcharge being in carmine on all except the 20r, which is overprinted in green. Whitfield King & Co. have also shown us the 2½r of this set.

Adhesives.

2½r lilac.
10r olive green.
20r carmine.
25r violet brown.
50r dark blue.
75r bistre brown.
100r brown on green.
200r black on salmon.
300r black on blue.
500r olive and brown.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—We are indebted to the New England Stamp Co. and A. C. Roessler for specimens of the King George stamps, which were placed on sale in the Islands, April 23, or earlier. Mr. Roessler notes that the name plate has the short middle leg of "M" in "Cayman" on the 2d, 2sh and 3sh, while the ½d has the long leg. The 2d value, now issued for the first time, has the name plate badly spaced. On some stamps it almost touches the upper frame, while on others it is centered to the right. This does not appear on the other values.

Adhesives.

½d green.
2d gray.
2sh purple and blue on blue.
3sh green and violet.

CHINA.—Whitfield King report having seen the stamps surcharged with four Chinese characters, with the overprint in blue, instead of black or red. The firm's correspondent writes that a small lot were first printed of denominations from ½c to 30c only, and were duly issued, but the colour not being deemed satisfactory the rest of the issue was overprinted in red and in black. The stamps overprinted "Provisional Neutrality" in one horizontal line, and recently withdrawn, have also been overprinted with the new vertical surcharge in order that the stock may be used up.

C. A. Howes has translated for us the four words of the surcharge—"Chung Hua Min Kuo"—which literally mean "Middle Flowery People's State." Speaking broadly, this means "Chinese Republic," China having long been known as the "Middle Flowery Kingdom."

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 3c on ordinary paper in deep blue green.

FRENCH COLONIES.—As noted some time since, several of the African Colonies of the French Republic are to have new sets of stamps in the near future. A clipping sent us by W. A. Kain, says that designs of M. de Neziere for the stamps of Dahomey and Senegal have been accepted and the engravers have already started to work on the corners, but the completed dies are scarcely expected to be ready much before the end of the year. The artist has followed the modern taste for symbolical figures illustrative of the country, and for Dahomey the stamp will show a native climbing a palm tree to harvest the oil from the nuts. In the four corners will be represented fantastic animals adored as gods or fetishes by the "medicine men" of the negroes, and the whole will be a picturesque little miniature souvenir of the African possession. The Senegal stamp will give a sketch of the cotton market in an African village, with many native figures introduced. Though nothing has yet been said about it, there is every probability that the French protectorate over Morocco will also produce a new series of stamps as soon as a regular postal service has been organized.

GIBRALTAR.—Morocco Agencies.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 4d orange of Great Britain surcharged "Morocco—Agencies," in two lines in black at the top of the stamp.

INDIA.—Travancore.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 2ch in a brilliant orange red.

ITALY.—A. Trinche sends us specimens of two new stamps from Italy, issued in Venice April 24, on the occasion of the inauguration of the new Campanile. The stamps were in use only two days, and were good for interior postage only. The design is the same for both stamps, and shows a tall rectangle, 21x37½ mm. The tall figure of the Campanile dominates the picture, which fills nearly all the frame, and is seen across the domes and spires of St. Mark's, with the other domes and roofs of the city forming a background. "Poste Italiane" runs across the top in colored letters on a white ground, "Centesimi 5" is arranged at the bottom in a similar way, except that the left end of the tablet containing the value is covered by the shield of Italy, surmounted by a crown. In small colorless letters, "Venezia—MCMII—MCMXII" appears at the left of the upper part of the Campanile, while "Come Era—Dove Era" appears at the right. Both values are printed on white, unwatermarked paper and perforated 14x13½.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke writes: "In No. 1109 you reported on my authority a 50 centavos Official stamp of Nicaragua, surcharged on the 1c R. R. stamp red, with black surcharge of 'Timbre Fiscal—Vale 10 ctvs.' on face and 'Correo Vale 15cts. 1911' on reverse, however with bar obliterating the 15cts of this latter surcharge. By last mail I received the identical stamp, but with surcharge of 15cts for official postage, and may be there are others, though I have not seen them.

"On this instance I would mention, that the first provisional set of postage stamps for official use, surcharged on the above stamp, but without surcharge on back, has never been recorded, and as I have just come into possession of these very rare stamps, I am pleased to report them as follows: Surcharge: 'Correo oficial—Vale—10 cts.—1911' in four lines in black on 1c R. R. stamp red, with vertical surcharge 'Timbre Fiscal—Vale 10 cts.' also in black. The values thus surcharged are: 10c, 15c, 20c, 50c, $1 and $2."

PORTUGUESE INDIA.—H. Cormack sends us used specimens of the 2 reals stamps of Portuguese Congo, perforated vertically, with each half surcharged "1—Real." The specimens submitted by Mr. Cormack are unsevered, one being surcharged "Republica" and the other without surcharge.

ST. HELENA.—W. H. Peckitt sends us the re-issued 4d and 6d stamps on chalky paper. The first seen were on ordinary paper.

SPANISH GUINEA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new set for this Colony. The new design was fully described in No. 1102.

TASMANIA.—Miss Amy L. Swift writes further regarding the new 6d stamp:

"I shall be interested to notice whether there is anything more re the Tasmania 6d pictorial. Those I showed you seem to me unmistakable lithographs, and a search through my duplicates shows nothing I could call re-engraved. I have been watching for something in that line since your first notice, but have about decided the description was an error, and that the stamp meant was the one I consider lithographed."

NEW COLONIAL KEY-PLATES.

By Fred J. Melville.

Jamaica's new threepence stamp, purple on yellow paper, is the first of the Colonial stamps to come to hand printed from the general key-plate showing the head of King George V to left on an oval medallion with pearled border. The frame-design is printed from the overprint or duty-plate known as the Nyasaland type, which, it will be remembered, was also used for the 2d grey stamp of Jamaica, issued last year with the portrait of King Edward. The key-plate in this Nyasaland type only bears the head of the King, the border with the denominating numerals being printed from the duty-plate at a separate operation.

The Colonial Office Journal illustrates the several kinds of key-plates to be used on the new Colonial stamps printed by Messrs. De La Rue and Co. (Limited) for the Crown Agents for the Colonies. The old and rather monotonous De La Rue design, which has had considerable vogue since 1888, has been adapted to new key-plates with the King George head. These are being used for the issues for the Cayman Islands, Fiji, Gilbert and Ellice Islands Protectorate, Mauritius, and Seychelles. The new Nyasaland stamps will resemble their predecessors save for the portrait, the frame designs, which were only introduced in 1908, being retained.

An entirely new style of key-plate in three varieties has been prepared, and these are illustrated as the "proposed 1912 issue." They have been constructed owing to a demand for an improved design which can be used with a cheaper class of duty-plate. On this the whole of the stamp-design is incorporated in the key-plate, leaving only two blank spaces at the top and a blank label across the bottom to be printed in by an inexpensive duty-plate bearing the figures of value and the names of the Colony or Protectorate. The specimens shown in the Colonial Office Journal are labelled "British East Africa."

The key-plate system is an economical one, inasmuch as a good part of the cost of producing a set of stamps for a small issue would ordinarily consist in the preparing of the designs and the plates from which to print them. By this method, however, a common design is reproduced on a plate (the key-plate) which is open to any Colony to use. The Colony has only to pay the cost of making the duty or "overprint" plates which print in the value and the name of the Colony, and also the cost of the actual paper, printing, and perforating. The key-plates are under the control of the Crown Agents; the duty-plates are the property of the Colony for which they are made, and they are capable of lasting a considerable time, besides being equally serviceable if it were decided at any time to alter the portrait of the Sovereign. It should be mentioned that both the old and the new De La Rue key-plates are in three varieties, for use respectively for "postage," "Revenue," or "postage and Revenue" stamps.

The practice which has extended considerably during recent years, of using the common key-plates has tended to monotony in the stamp-album, where our modern Colonial issues all look so much alike. But the Colonial Office Journal makes the novel suggestion that any Colony might adopt all four key-plate designs for one issue of stamps by purchasing some duty-plates for each type of key-plate. Thus the ½d to 2½d stamps could be in the new 1912 design, the next three values in the small Nyasaland type, the next three in the old De La Rue type, and the highest values in the large Nyasaland type. This proposal is so excellent and practical that it would be well worth adopting by those Colonies which are not already committed to a single key-plate. The practical value of the scheme lies chiefly in the additional facility it would give in distinguishing the different denominations of stamps in postal use, a desideratum in view of the monotonous similarity of a set of stamps all printed from one key-plate, and the very limited range of colours possible under the fugitive ink requirements of the present day.—London Times.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bdg., 7.30 P. M.

Boston, Mass., May 18, 1912.

The 270th (regular) meeting of the Society will be held at the Club Room on Tuesday evening, May 21st, at 7.30 o'clock.

The applications of Messrs. Wm. C. Polk and Ernest W. Gilson will come up for action.

The Entertainment, as already announced, will be a competitive exhibition of 50 rarest stamps, cataloguing not over 50 cents each. Two prizes will be given, first: two 90c entire U. S. envelopes, and second: four 30c entire U. S. envelopes.

Here is a chance to give us your ideas on the really hard to get stamps of moderate catalog value.

Entries are to be left with W. L. Aldrich, 5 Bromfield St., by 2 p. m. on the day of the meeting.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Swiss Chamber of Commerce has taken the initiative with respect to world-wide penny postage, which it will advocate at the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce to be held at Boston beginning September 24 next.

– June 7-8 the Philadelphia Stamp Co. will sell the general collection of Dr. D. M. Easter, Greensburg, Pa., consisting of a fine lot of 19th and 20th century stamps. While no great rarities are listed the lots described show a fine range of stamps of interest to the general collector.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from F. W. Lynes (5), D. B. Beattie, Hugo Kuenstler (8).

—The Co-operative Exchange has issued a wholesale list, single stamps and sets being offered by tens and hundreds. This list will be of special value to the smaller dealer.

—Herbert Armstrong writes us that he received some years ago a lot of used stamps, among which was a specimen of the 200r Cape Verde crown type in the exact color of the 100r. This stamp should ordinarily be orange but Mr. Armstrong informs us that this particular stamp is a fine shade of violet. The circumstances under which he discovered this stamp leads him to inquire whether it is possible to consider it a changeling.

—The Board of Directors of the M. P. A. have decided to submit the amalgamation question to the Convention at Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 15-16-17, instead of calling a mail vote. The fight will accordingly be waged with proxies, and the Convention sessions will doubtless be very interesting. It is hoped that the S. P. A. Convention will meet in Harrisburg in conjunction with the M. P. A., so that satisfactory results will be arrived at, without the delay and uncertainty which would be occasioned by the two Conventions sitting in different places, at different times. The Capital City Collectors Club, Harrisburg Branch of M. P. A., extends a cordial invitation to the S. P. A. to meet in the "Convention City," with the M. P. A.

OF INTEREST TO COIN COLLECTORS.

By Frederic B. Wright.

The article appearing in the issue of April 27th, in reference to the payment of $3,500 for a gold Half Eagle of the mintage of 1815 and the statement that there are only three others in existence, prompted my calling at the Connecticut State Library where Librarian George S. Godard showed me a mint copy of same in the collection of the late Joseph H. Mitchelson, now owned by the State, likewise a perfect copy of the silver dollar of 1804, both of which have been passed upon and pronounced genuine by Mr. T. L. Comparette, Director of the Philadelphia Mint.

Another specimen in this valuable collection, doubtless equally rare is a proof of a Double Eagle by St. Gaudens with the so-called "wire edge," of which only three were coined. This is a remarkable example of the artist's work, the Bas-relief of the obverse being very strong in its outline and graceful in the poise of the figure.

When this collection is fully arranged and open to the public it will be worth any collector's time to "stop off" in Hartford, not only to see fine specimens of coins, but also the beautiful building in which it reposes.

APPROVES MAIL ROUTE IN AIR.

(Clipping from Hugo Kuenstler.)

From Governor's Island to the post office building in Washington a bag of mail will be carried by aeroplane May 22 next as an experiment preliminary to introducing flying machines as mail carriers in the postal department. The order authorizing that innovation was signed yesterday by Frank H. Hitchcock, Postmaster General, who informed Edward M. Morgan, postmaster in New York, to prepare for the new project.

·The request for the long-distance mail delivery was made by a Washington aeroplane company. The Postmaster General agreed, with the provision that the aviator who will make the flight be sworn in as a mail carrier and that the transportation be made without expense to the Government. If the plan proves a success Hitchcock will carry out the promise he made several months ago that aeroplanes will be used in many districts where other means of delivery is impracticable.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS GUIDE.

PAPER (Continued.)

Speaking generally the knack of distinguishing the various sorts of paper most frequently met with in connection with postage stamps is easily acquired. In the majority of cases once the collector understands the characteristics of laid, wove, pelure, etc., no difficulty arises in the correct classification of paper varieties. There are exceptions, of course, and it is unfortunate, but none the less true, that the two varieties that first attract the beginner's attention,—the "hard" and "soft" papers of the U. S. A. issues of 1873-79—are the ones that present the most serious obstacles. In the following list of paper varieties I have named some stamp or stamps printed on each of the different sorts described. If the beginner will read the explanatory notes carefully and then compare them with the stamps mentioned I am confident that he will find the task of identifying the various kinds of paper is by no means difficult or uninteresting.

Wove.—This is the ordinary paper of commerce and the sort upon which the vast majority of stamps are printed. In making wove paper the "dandy-roll" is covered with a fine wire gauze similar to the bed upon which the pulp was distributed in the first stage of its manufacture. It varies greatly in substance and quality but its general characteristics are the same—it is a plain paper showing no watermarked lines other than the lines of the device of crown, letters, star, etc., intended to be shown. The coarser sorts appear to be watermarked with innumerable tiny dots. The WEEKLY is printed on wove paper and as examples the current stamps of the United States will serve.

Laid.—In manufacturing this paper the "dandy roll" is covered with longitudinal wires separated by a space equal to the width of one of the wires. These are held in position by small wire rings placed at regular intervals and in the finished article the paper appears to be watermarked with parallel lines. When the watermarked lines run from top to bottom of the stamps the paper is called vertically laid, and when the lines run across the stamp the paper is known as horizontally-laid. If the lines run in a slanting direction then the paper is diagonally-laid. Practically all the stamps of Russia issued betwen 1868 and 1905 are on laid paper.

Batonné.—This is wove or laid paper with watermarked lines showing at regular intervals, these being caused by the presence of cross wires on the "dandy roll." In the case of wove-batonné the paper between the watermarked lines is plain, while in the case of laid-batonné the spaces between the ruled lines are laid. Neither variety is commonly met with in the case of adhesive postage stamps though the current 1c and 2c U. S. envelopes furnish ready examples of laid-batonné paper.

Quadrille.—This paper appears to be watermarked with small squares or rectangles and this effect is produced by the "dandy-roll" being covered with a regular net-work of crossed wires. Any of the large picture stamps of Djibouti or Obock will serve as examples.

Porous.—The soft, porous paper which distinguishes certain United States stamps printed by the American Bank Note Company from similar stamps printed by the Continental Bank Note Company is a wove paper but owing to the fact that the mesh on the "dandy-roll" was somewhat coarse the paper appears to be watermarked with numerous tiny dots. The 5c Garfield stamp of 1882 is a common variety which only exists on the soft porous paper.

Hard.—The hard paper distinguishing the printings of the Continental Bank Note Co. is also wove but owing to the fineness of the mesh on the "dandy-roll" the paper has a perfectly smooth unwatermarked appearance. The 2c Treasury, which only exists on hard paper is a common stamp that may be used as an example. If this variety and the 5c Garfield are held together before a strong light and the differences are carefully noted the beginner should after a little practise be able to pick out the hard and soft varieties with comparative ease.

Dickinson or silk-thread.—This is paper having one or more continuous silk threads embedded in its substance. It is so-called from its inventor, John Dickinson, who made a machine by means of which the threads were incorporated in the paper while in the pulp stage. The 5r, 10r, and 15r stamps of the 1855-62 issues of Switzerland are common examples of silk-thread paper.

Silk.—This is paper having short pieces of colored silk thread embedded in its substance. Many of the United States revenue stamps were printed on silk paper and patches of these threads can be plainly seen on all the paper currency of this country.

Granite.—This is a similar paper but with the silk fibres so minute that they are difficult to distinguish without the aid of a magnifying glass. The Austrian stamps of 1890-1902 and most of the Swiss stamps since 1881 are on granite paper.

Pelure.—This is a very thin hard, wove paper, very tough though almost transparent. It has not been very extensively used for stamps and at the moment I can recall no very common stamp printed on this paper to serve as an illustration. There was a printing of the 2c Dominican Republic of 1880 on pelure paper and this variety, catalogued 60c, is probably the cheapest the beginner can obtain for illustration.

Manilla.—A light brown tough paper, sometimes with rather rough surface, frequently used for stamped wrappers. It derives its name from the fact that the pulp is made from Manilla fibre.

Colored.—This is paper into which coloring matter has been mixed with the pulp so that we get red, green, blue, etc. papers.

Surface-colored.—This is paper colored on the surface only. This tinting is not obtained during the process of manufacture but is printed on the paper before the stamps themselves are printed. The Guatemala stamps of 1897 were printed on surface-colored paper.

Blued.—This is paper which has not been intentionally colored but has turned more or less blue, sometimes all over and sometimes only in patches. The blueness is the result of the chemical action of certain ingredients in the printing ink on the paper. Almost any of the common line-engraved stamps of Great Britain will serve for illustration.

Safety.—A highly glazed bluish paper used for the 4d stamps of Great Britain issued in 1855, and for several of the revenue stamps of that country. The blue tint was caused by adding prussiate of potash to the pulp and the paper was so sensitive that any attempt at removing the cancellations resulted in the removal of the design as well.

Chalk-Surfaced.—This is also a highly glazed sensitive paper which has been extensively used of recent years in the manufacture of British Colonial stamps. The "surface" is obtained by the application of a certain solution to the paper after it has been made and not during the process of manufacture. As a rule it has a much more polished surface than ordinary paper and is thicker to feel. A silver coin drawn lightly across a corner of the stamp (or, better still, on the margin if possible) will make a mark like that made with a lead pencil if the paper is the chalk-surfaced variety. The mark can be removed by carefully applying a very slightly dampened piece of clean white rag.

Native.—Some of the early stamps of Japan and some of the issues of the Indian States were printed on what is known as native paper. This is paper made from rice fibre. As a rule it is very thin and soft and often has a silky feel. There are laid and wove varieties of native paper.

MAIL LOST ON THE TITANIC.

(Clipping from F. W. Lynes.)

Post office authorities are unable to estimate the value of the mail matter lost upon the Titanic. It is known that 3423 bags of mail matter were carried by the ship, but unless some sort of statement is made by the English and foreign postal authorities, no estimate of the loss can be made.

In the case of money sent in regular letters, without registering, the loss will never be made public. As the standard ocean mailbag holds about 2000 letters, it is estimated that in all about 7,000,000 pieces of mail matter have been lost.

Of the 3423 bags of mail in the hold of the Titanic, about 200 bags contained registered matter. These sacks contained, on an average, about 8000 letters each. It is estimated that, approximately, 1,600,000 registered letters and packages have gone to the bottom.

Three of the five postal clerks aboard the Titanic were in the employ of the United States postal service. They were:—J. S. March, of Newark, N. J.; O. S. Woodie, of Washington and W. L. Gwyn, of Brooklyn. The other clerks were employed by the English mail service.

Many valuable papers of all kinds went down with the ship, among them being the manifest of the North German Lloyd liner Haverford. On that manifest was the passenger list of the ship, details concerning her cargo and much other information. O. G. Hempstead, agent for the North German Lloyd in this city, said it is customary for ships coming to this and other ports to send by the faster ships their manifests, so that the agents may know in advance what to expect. A duplicate manifest has been cabled from Bremen.

STAMPS THAT DISAPPEAR.

By FREEMAN PUTNEY, JR.

In our last article we noticed a number of sets, particularly, among the Central Americans, which although rated so common as to be almost in the rubbish list a few years ago, have in recent times begun to disappear from the wholesale market.

Skipping for a moment from sets to single stamps, there are two varieties which twenty years ago were found in quantities in every boy's package of 1,000 mixed stamps for 25c. These are the 1p red-brown of Great Britain 1841 imperforate and the Germany 1875 10pf rose with the value spelled "pfennige." Neither of these stamps is likely to be scarce for many years yet, but both of them have disappeared long since from the purely "continental" class. Another stamp which used to be considered only good enough for cheap packets is the 1sh green, Queen's head, Great Britain of 1887. This stamp is now catalogued at 6c.

There must have been millions of the first two stamps, above named, in visible supply and tens of thousands of the third. Their disappearance is a remarkable illustration of the capacity of the beginner's trade to absorb the issues of popular countries.

Other stamps which used to be in the "continental" class but are no longer found in cheap mixtures, having risen to the dignity of being quoted singly in wholesale lists, are the 20l rose of Greece, large head, and the 25c dark red "Peace and Commerce" type of France. This last was never as common as some of the other values, but used to be purely a packet stamp.

Several other values of the same old French type, such as the 3c gray, 4c claret and 25c yellow no longer occur in continental mixtures but are still quoted separately at wholesale and can be had at prices which hardly raise them above the continental level when the expense of sorting and soaking is figured in. From a dozen to twenty years have elapsed since some of these became obsolete but I imagine that most of the Paris dealers laid in large stocks of them, which accounts for their continued low price.

While on this "Peace and Commerce" set it is worth remarking that the 3c yellow, 75c deep violet and 5fr violet are really "hard-to-get" stamps in fine condition. The same remarks also apply to most of the values of the "type I" set.

"Despise not, the day of the common stamp" is an injunction which might well be incorporated into the collector's book of proverbs. It is well illustrated in the 15c value of Italy 1863, head to left. This little stamp was at one time one of the cheapest unused stamps on the market and could be had for a ridiculously low price by the hundred. Today it catalogues 3c and few wholesale dealers have it.

Other Italians which were in the "continental" class only a few years ago but have since graduated, are most values of the issues from 1862 to 1879. The postage-due stamps have always been good sellers but until recently have always been in plentiful supply as well. Within the last two or three years wholesale stocks of them have been thinning out and quotations are rising. The same remarks apply to the officials from 2c to 1 lira.

If anybody had predicted twenty years ago that the 1p blue, the 1p carmine and 2p rose and 2p gray of Jamaica, would ever be quoted at more than a cent the boys in his neighborhood would have overwhelmed him with offerings. Next to the common Canadians these varieties were about the commonest British Colonials to be found on correspondence in this country. They now list from 4c to 10c each and are really good stock.

Some other British Colonials which used to be too common for consideration are the 1 penny red and 2 penny blue of New South Wales, Scotts' type A-17 and A-18. These are still quoted at a cent each with the common watermark, but have run up to as high as 50c and $1 if you happen to have them on the proper kind of paper and with the right perforation. Some of the New Zealands of 1882, with which every dealer's stock used to be loaded, are now growing appreciably scarcer.

MOISANT & LECLAIRE, Kankakee, Ill.

In South Africans, the Boer war caused a jump even in the most common stamps. The 1p brown, first issue of Orange River Colony, which we used to buy for from 10c to 20c per hundred is now quoted at 5c and the ½ red-brown and 2 penny violet have jumped to nearly the same extent. The low values of the small type of Transvaal, of which the supply formerly seemed inexhaustible, have almost climbed to the ranks of better grade stamps. Of the old low value Cape of Good Hope stamps, seated figure, with Anchor water-mark, the 1p rose is the only one which still remains really common. The others have all jumped decidedly at wholesale and most of them at retail.

Ceylon was long a country with the distinction of possessing only one really common stamp. That stamp, the 5c lilac, Queen, was, however, common enough to make up for a multitude of deficiencies. You couldn't open the mixture of British Colonials without getting a big handful of them. Today the wholesale price has multiplied several times and two varieties of the stamp are now known to exist, the scarcer of which catalogues at 50c.

THE KING AND THE CONGRESS.

At the opening of the British Congress May 8, with the unanimous consent of the delegates present, it was decided to forward a loyal message to His Majesty the King.

Accompanying the message was a framed sheet of the Congress stamps, which were designed by W. Ward and printed by Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co., for the Executive Committee of the Fourth Congress. The stamp is triangular, a shape popular enough among philatelists as that of those first favourites among stamp issues, the first Cape of Good Hope stamps printed by the firm of Perkins, Bacon & Co. In the centre is a vignette representing Britannia (off Margate beach), and the angles are occupied by the Arms of Great Britain, Margate and Kent.

The special sheet printed for His Majesty was in purple and gold; another special sheet was printed in silver and pale blue, for the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Crawford, K. T., President of the Royal Philatelic Society.

The letter which the President of the Congress sent with the special sheet of stamps to the King was as follows:—

"As Chairman of the Fourth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, now assembled at Margate, I have been deputed by the Delegates at their first meeting today, to send you the accompanying proofs from the plate of the special stamp issued in connection with the Congress in the hope that His Majesty The King will be graciously pleased to accept the impressions sent as a souvenir of the occasion.

The proof in gold and purple has been specially printed for His Majesty's use, and is the only impression made in this form. The others are printed in the various colours in which the souvenir stamp has been issued to those interested in the proceedings of the Congress.

I am further desired in the name of the delegates—one hundred in number—attending the Congress as representatives of upwards of forty of the principal Societies associated with philately, respectfully to ask you to convey to His Majesty the humble assurance of the loyalty and devotion of the Philatelists of Great Britain to His Majesty's throne and person.

I remain, my Lord,
Your Lordship's obedient servant,
A. Leon Adutt,
Chairman of the Congress."

In replying on May 2nd, Sir F. M. Ponsonby acknowledged the presentation sheet of stamps and the loyal greetings in the following terms:—

"I am commanded by the King to thank the Fourth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, now assembled at Margate, for the proofs from the plate and the special stamp issued in connection with the Congress, which they have been good enough to forward for His Majesty's acceptance.

I am further to express His Majesty's thanks to the Delegates attending the Congress for their kind message and expression of loyalty, which the King much appreciates."

A letter was also received from Lord Crawford acknowledging the "interesting and unique pull of the Commemoration Label, which will form one of the treasures of the Philatelic Library."

"I am greatly indebted to the delegates," his lordship added, "for this kindly remembrance."—Postage Stamp.

THE MATTER OF PUBLICITY.

L. G. Dorpat contributes to Hobbyist the following chunk of wisdom:—

"What would the dealers do, anyhow, if there were no journals to carry their advertisements? They would have to issue and mail price lists or "house organs" on their own account and not that only, they would have to advertise in other non-philatelic journals in order to get the addresses of stamp-collectors to whom they might mail their circulars and lists. Would that be cheaper? Hardly. It is probable that it would be dearer and less effective. On the other hand, by persistent advertising in several philatelic journals some dealers have become so generally known among collectors that their names are real household words among philatelists. They are wise enough to patronize the new and small journals as well as the old and large, in order to get their business early and in the best possible light before new collectors and to every nook and corner of the philatelic world."

OUR REVIEW.

Bright's Catalog, Part II, Post Cards, Envelopes, Etc.—We do not know of any other catalog in the English language covering as it does the envelopes, post cards, etc. of the entire world. This is the ninth edition of this useful work and is thoroughly revised and well and fully illustrated. A great deal of information is crowded into the 300 pages of this catalog and the collector interested in entires will find the work invaluable. Bright & Son occupy here a field entirely their own. Price of catalog is 42c.

(The publishers of the Weekly will send this catalog to any subscriber renewing his subscription for two years. We will date your whole number ahead, no matter when the subscription expires.—Ed.)

THE PENNY BLACK.

By Fred Michael.

You were the first and to Sir Rowland Hill the credit. Your birth a great step forward in the affairs of man, bringing the nations into closer union, binding their people with new ties, that grew stronger and stronger as your kind increased till now to every corner of the world they go with their greetings.

A bit of paper with the portrait of his Queen. But seventy and more years ago Sir Rowland showed you to the world. Today we wonder what a world that was without you. No stamps.

They little thought, who first on you did gaze, that in the distant years to come, you would be treasured, in a costly album placed and that o'er you would thousands bend.

TALE OF A STAMP.

I'm a stamp, a postage stamp,
A two-center. Don't want to brag,
But I was never licked except once;
By a gentleman, too; he put me on a
Good thing—it was an envelope—
Perfumed, pink, square, I've been stuck on
That envelope ever since.
He dropped us, the envelope and me,
Through a slot in a dark box,
But we were rescued by a mail clerk,
More's the pity. He hit me an Awful smash with a hammer;
It left my face black and blue.
Then I went on a long journey for
Two days and when we arrived
We died in the morning.

PROCTORSVILLE, VERMONT

BARTELS' SLATER SALE.

On May 15 and 16 the J. M. Bartels Co. sold the fine collection of A. B. Slater consisting of United States stamps in blocks, pairs and strips. There were no less than 750 blocks sold, including a block of eight of the 5c 1847, with full O. G. The sale totalled $5,410.25.

A New York 5c 1845, fine pair on original cover, one of the stamps with margins all around (Cat. $15.00) fetched $23.50.

A 10c 1847, horizontal strip of five, with left sheet margin, red cancellation (Cat. $25) sold for $62.00.

A block of four 90c 1861, light blue, lightly cancelled, very fine (Cat. $14) sold for $18.00.

A 90c 1862 deep carmine, very fine block of four, well centered, (Cat. $60) sold for $50.00.

The rarity of the sale was the block of five-cent referred to above. It was a block of eight with full original gum and good margins. It was the gem of the collection, (Cat. $68) and realized $260, or more than four times catalog value.

A superb block of the 15c 1875, re-issue of 1869, is described by Mr. Bartels as the only one he has ever seen, and with a catalog value of $50 brought $61.

In department stamps a 6c Post Office on vertically ribbed paper, block of four, was an interesting item, and the price realized was $3.50.

A 4c Pan-American with center inverted, hand stamped specimen, fine O. G. copy, brought $51.00.

We append a few additional prices:—

	Cat.	Price

SPECIALIZING AND THE SPECIALIST.

By AL. DE LA TORRE BUENO.

We are living in an age of "specialism." In every walk of life, in every line of business, in every profession the demand is for the specialist—the expert—in each department or branch of the different forms of human endeavor.

The "practical miner" was supplanted by the mining engineer, he in turn is making way for the "mining expert." The general practitioner is fast disappearing—except in the small country towns—and in his stead we have the specialist in children's diseases, in diseases of the throat, etc. The same conditions rule in the commercial world.

These conditions also obtain in our chosen pastime—philately—in which the specialist is looked upon as the most advanced and highest type of the collector—the collector par excellence. Such men are the ones who have placed philately among the sciences and have won for it the solid foundation upon which it now stands.

Almost every specialist started as a general collector, and as he has advanced his love for philately has increased and whetted his thirst for more knowledge; then recognizing the futility of trying to cover too large an area he has circumscribed his field of action devoting his energies solely to the stamps of one country, giving to them and to their study the best that there is in him; studying and generously sharing with his brother philatelists the fruit of his labors.

It is no more possible for every collector to become a specialist than it is for every wielder of a paint brush to become an artist. There are certain fundamental requisites, lacking which the collector can no more expect to become a specialist than can a longshoreman expect to become the arbiter of fashion.

To become a specialist one must be influenced from within—must be "called" as our reverend friends would say. This is the first, but by no means the sole requisite for entering the field of specialization. The man who would become a specialist must be willing to make a thorough and exhaustive study of the most minute details of the stamps; he must have keen discernment and judgment, to be able to differentiate between an imperfection in a single specimen and an actual variety; he must be thoroughly conversant with the mechanical processes employed in the making of stamps, such as the manufacture and varieties of paper, the different gums employed and the manner of applying same to the stamps, the several methods of transferring the design to the paper—"printing" as it is commonly called—such as engraving, surface printing, lithographing, etc., he must have a keen eye for color so as to be able to distinguish true shades from "fades"; he must study, not alone the postal history of the country he is specializing in but also its political history and its bearing upon the stamp issues of that country; in fact there is nothing, no matter how trivial or insignificant it may appear or how remotely it may be related to stamps, their production and use, which the specialist can afford to overlook.

The specialist who is gifted with a facile pen is doubly blest, for he can set down the fruit of his labors for the edification and enlightenment of the present and future generations of philatelists, and incidentally receive that which is sweet to all of us—the plaudits of his colleagues.

Practically all the philatelic literature comes from the pens of the specialists, who may well be termed the researchers.

The cost connected with specializing is not so great as to deter the philatelist who has the necessary ability and qualifications from entering the field; there are many countries the stamps of which are not hard to get and which being low in price are within the reach of practically anyone and at the same time afford the true enthusiast a fine field for research.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Hobbyist of Winnipeg states that "Postmaster General Hitchcock has resigned or is about to resign." It is sometimes necessary to go a long way from home in order to learn the news.

—The present membership of the A. P. S. is 1449 with seven applications pending.

—L. W. Charlat of N. Y. City has left on a business trip to London, Paris and Berlin.

—The Jolly Joker Club advertising elsewhere in this issue is represented by a live wire in its official journal. Stamp collectors desiring world wide exchange relations will find their opportunity by getting closely in touch with this flourishing organization.

—E. L. Southwick favors us with a copy of the May issue of the Amerika Esperantisto in which is an interesting article "Esperanto for the Collector."

—"I enclose check for advertisements. The last ad did the business. Have not had a minute's rest since it appeared. This is the first chance I have had to write you since the first of the month."—M. D. OLMSTEAD, under date May 14.

EDITORIAL.

Counterfeit—The WEEKLY has come into possession of a die of the one-third groschen green, 1858, Oldenburg, that was seized some years ago in Chicago, according to the story, in some raid undertaken by the government officers. The die was held as evidence for a long time but no complaints having been received by the authorities that collectors had been defrauded by impressions from it, the die has been released from custody. Captain Porter, who has charge of the secret service at Chicago, knew that the die was held there, even though it had remained in the archives of the department of justice and not in his department. The die is typographed and of course, the portions from which the impression is made having been left in relief, those that are to show no color are made in recess or cut away. The engraving is on copper which is backed by a lead or composition base almost an inch in depth. As counterfeits go, it is a very fair one, although differences from the stamp, as the original rarity, are to be detected by a close examination of the die itself. While the die is not exactly mutilated yet it would have to be restored before impressions at their best could be taken from it, as it is battered up a bit at two of the corners. In its present state it is practically harmless and it would be rather difficult nowadays to persuade the collector who was eyeing the rare one-third groschen Oldenburg, 1858, long established as a very scarce stamp, to buy it from an unaccredited source no matter how tempting the price.

As It Seems—We have been given to understand that it is unlikely that the government would attempt the prosecution under the present laws of the one who possessed and printed from a forged die or plate of a stamp issued by an "extinct" country or one that has a national identity no longer. However, should a collector complain that he has been defrauded through having purchased one of the stamps on the representation that it was genuine, then the federal authorities would take action. However, if the same procedure was taken with the stamp of a country having a separate existence at present, the authorities would have something to say and do. As it is, there are indications that lines constantly will be drawn closer against fraud of this kind, in keeping with the increasing vigilence of the federal authorities to check abuses that come under a general head.

Three Years Before—A Ways and Means Committee of the Pacific Philatelic Society, San Francisco, has been established, whose work will culminate in 1915 in the philatelic exhibition at the Panama-Pacific fair. In its personnel the committee is one selected with much acumen and it is certain that effective work will be accomplished by the following experienced members: H. G. Smith, chairman; H. B. Phillips, treasurer and H. C. Marcus, secretary. Mr. Smith, formerly of Minneapolis, served as treasurer of the American Philatelic Society with distinction; and for many years, Mr. Phillips was the representative of the Pacific Coast on the directorate of the American Philatelic Society. Mr. Smith says: "We are planning to have the greatest stamp carnival ever given in the world and the entertainment that will be given in '1915' will be such as to be long remembered." It is estimated that over ten thousand dollars will be needed by the committee which has acted favorably upon the suggestion that associate memberships for the year, 1915, in the Pacific Philatelic Society be sold to the elect at the rate of two dollars a membership. We believe that there will be a demand for these certificates which will be veritable philatelic passports in San Francisco in 1915.

Not Guilty—We have been presented with a circular giving the "Analysis of an Average Week's Mail" received by Miss Helen Gould. There are 1303 pieces of mail matter summarized, asking contributions of money to the amount of $1,548,502; and in considering this sum, it is to be remembered that the majority of correspondents do not mention the amount of money desired, and which, of course, cannot be included in this aggregate. We are somewhat surprised to notice that no requests for "foreign stamps" or for money with which to purchase them are listed; and, further, that no "old stamp collections" are offered for sale to Miss Gould. We repel any insinuation that correspondence from philatelists has been received and that it has been classified by the sententious statement "18-Cranks."

Look Who is Here—An esteemed correspondent has sent for inspection several cut-square United States envelopes, 1857-61, that recall the days when philatelic adventurers that plied their enterprise with little reck of hindrance or consequence. The two cut square envelopes purporting to be the three-cent and the ten-cent of this 1857-61 issue that are under scrutiny come under the category of "Montreal counterfeits," as they were distributed from that city in the wide-open days. These forgeries were something of an incubus on philately in the old time and there were many collectors who were defrauded by the six-cent and the ten-cent of the issue, in particular. Latterly, these forgeries have become rather scarce as envelope collectors who pick up such things as curiosities or adjuncts to their collections can testify. It may be added that the ten-cent submitted by our correspondent is in blue, instead of the regular color, green. From her letter, we quote: "It has been stated in print that there are no counterfeits of U. S. envelopes known, and various well informed collectors have told me the same thing." This assumption is not correct as books on counterfeits for years have listed these forgeries together with forgeries of the Centennial envelopes; and the existence of forged high values of the 1864 envelope set for which the author of the 1857-61 fabrications was responsible, no doubt, is proved by the thirty-cent green in our possession.

Something to See—A budget has been received from Mr. Robert S. Nelson, enclosing a number of interesting items for inspection, one of which is a copy of the Talladega, Alabama, five-cent envelope, which Mr. Nelson maintains is entitled to rank as a provisional. The letters "i. e.", as we make them out, are above the "Paid" of Paid 5, in the right hand upper corner of the envelope and the Talladega postmark occupies a similar position at the left. Other Talladega envelopes that passed through Mr. Nelson's hands had the same unvarying impressions. Mr. Nelson submits two non-governmental patent line, "Nov. 20, 1855" envelopes possessing all the characteristics of the Nesbitt stamped envelopes, except the watermark and the stamped envelope impression, that were used with adhesive stamps. Curiosities of this kind have been fully described in the past; and they prove that the Nesbitt company, the government contractors for the United States envelopes used the patent lines in ordinary envelopes that the company marketed. A double one-cent postal card, Grant, 1892, shows the "message" card as normally but the reply card is wholly blank or innocent of any impression whatever, making the curiosity a somewhat startling one. An official Uruguay is submitted on which the overprint reads: "Ofi" and a broken "c", the remaining letters having made no impression.

JOIN THE BOOSTER CLUB.

We must add the name of the Sooner Stamp Co. to our membership list. The firm sends in two subscriptions and writes "We have decided to do a little missionary work. Please send MEKEEL'S WEEKLY to the two following addresses." The name of the State University at Norman is given for one of the subscriptions and the firm advises us that if any good results are noted the subscription will be renewed at their expense.

We are indebted to several other subscribers who have sent us in new single subscriptions.

"STAMPS HARD TO GET."

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

(Contributed by Geo. W. Linn.)

I find it hard to get many of the low priced stamps of Peru. I just wrote Scott's for the Postal Packet Set, 1911 Cat. Nos. 301-2-3-4-5-6 priced at 10c to $1.00 used or unused and they can't furnish any of them. Have been trying for some time to get these and want pairs and blocks of them, but guess they are not to be had. Almost every country in the catalog furnishes similar examples when one tries to get them. Take Belgium P. P. Nos. 217-231 and 208 and you will look for some time before seeing them.

I visited no less than seventeen dealers in New York City and located just three sets. One dealer asked $3.50 for the three stamps, another asked $3.00 and the other asked $2.00 which I gobbled up and was very glad to get at that price. Not one dealer had the three above mentioned stamps in used condition.

IPSWICH ENGLAND

KING FREDERICK OF DENMARK DEAD.

COPENHAGEN, May 15 — Prince Christian was this afternoon formally proclaimed King Christian of Denmark, following the sudden death in Hamburg, Ger., of his father, King Frederick VIII.

An extraordinary meeting of the council of ministers was called and orders were issued for an extraordinary session of Parliament. The new King of Denmark is 42 years old. In 1898 he married Princess Alexandrine of Mecklenberg. He is brother-in-law of the Crown Prince of Germany.

King Frederick has reigned since January, 1906, when he succeeded his father, Christian. King Frederick was 69 years old. He was the brother of Dowager Queen Alexandra of England, the Dowager Empress of Russia, and King George of the Hellenes, and was the father of King Haakon of Norway.

He was born June 3, 1843. As Prince Christian he married Princess Louise of Sweden and Norway July 28, 1869, at Stockholm. He is survived by the Queen and seven children.

Frederick was characterized the most popular of living princes. He was unique among royalty in that he served as a soldier in the ranks. He wore the same clothes as other privates in the royal guard, ate with them, and performed the same arduous duties. As long as he was a private he refused invitations from the officers' mess. At the University of Copenhagen he continued his democracy by mixing with the other students, even going as far as to use the street cars to go home.

As a King he never had a bodyguard, and greeted children on the street in the friendliest manner. Often he used to drop in on humble subjects and chat with them. He was regarded as a model constitutional King, never interfering with the conduct of the government by the ministry. In the early days of his reign he regretted that there were no Socialists in the kingdom.

Frederick was chancellor of Copenhagen University and grand master of the Danish Masons. He was an admirer of the United States and his son, King Haakon, was visited by Theodore Roosevelt on the latter's return from his African hunting trip.

The people of Denmark are stunned by the sudden death of their popular King, who only two days ago they were informed had completely recovered from his serious illness.

The tragic circumstances of the King's seizure are virtually identical with those of his first illness three months ago, with the exception that this time the attack terminated fatally.

On both occasions his majesty was walking in the streets alone when he collapsed with heart failure.

Frederick VIII. was a great friend and admirer of the United States. He read daily the American newspapers and was a close student of American literature. He was always glad to greet American visitors at the palace.

"Why have they lowered the flags to half staff?" asked Prince Christian of Denmark, returning from an early morning ride today.

"Your royal highness," replied a breathless courier, who had ridden madly to meet him, "the King is dead."

"Long live the King," he added respectfully, as the shock showed plainly in the face of the new monarch.

This was the manner in which King Christian was notified the throne had descended to him. It was his first intimation his father was dead. Christian nearly collapsed and, after rushing to the palace, was overcome with grief.

WATERMARKS OF U. S. 1895 SERIES.

By W. E. WHITNALL.

Mr. Luff in his "Postage Stamps of the United States," page 181, referring to 1895 issue says, "On each quarter sheet of one hundred stamps there are ten horizontal rows of nine letters each."

(a) Mr. Luff does not go into details and say how many of the 90 watermarks are on the 100 stamps, and how many of them on the margins; but judging from their issues (see item (c) below) I think it may be found that there were not even 90 watermarks on the 100 stamps.

(b) In my own experience, the extreme difficulty of finding (on stamps where the watermark can be plainly seen) a specimen with a well centered watermark, is some confirmation of (a) above.

(c) In the full sheet of 400 1c imperf. stamps of current issue at my side as I write, the double line watermarks are as follows.

Horizontally, 17 watermarks to 20 stamps. Vertically, 19 (really 18 full ones and a little piece of the next) watermarks to 20 stamps.

In each case the marginal watermarks are ignored. Enclosed is a photo of part of a sheet of illustration I used to make this clear at one of our local philatelic meetings.

I am a collector of U. S. A. and frequently try to stimulate interest in the stamps of that country among my friends. On the authority of Mr. Luff's book I have taught some of them that the watermarks on the 1895 issue were nine in number per 10 stamps. At present I am not sure of my ground, and shall be much obliged for any help you can give me to clear the matter up.—Philatelic Gazette.

SOME GREAT STAMP COLLECTIONS.

Clipping from Chas. Jarecki.

Stamp collectors in New York discussed with more than usual interest the announcement contained in a cable dispatch to the Times recently that Lord Crawford has sold the bulk of his magnificent collection to a London dealer. It was stated, however, that he has retained his Great Britian and United States collections, which have long been famous in the world of philately. Indeed, the consensus of opinion among those who have seen Lord Crawford's collection of United States stamps is that it is the best in the world, while his Great Britain set is probably only exceeded by the remarkable collection owned by George V of England.

About five years ago Lord Crawford, at the earnest solicitation of some of the princely collectors in America, sent his United States stamps here for exhibition, and they were shown in the rooms of the Collectors' Club.

It was an event that philatelists have not yet forgotten. Nothing like it had ever been seen in New York. The multitude of varieties and early proof specimens, and the painstaking care with which minute shadings in color for similar issues and denominations had been selected, were a genuine surprise.

"It is unfortunate to admit—on patriotic grounds only, however—that an Englishman has a better collection of United States stamps than one of our own countrymen," said John A. Kleman, of the Nassau Stamp Company, and one of the officers of the Collectors' Club, "but the British Earl deserves credit for his achievement and his scientific method in studying minute variations has given in the last few years, a broader impetus to stamp collecting.

"The nucleus of his collection, which has given it its unique position, is the unrivaled collection which the Earl purchased from Henry G. Mandel, for $30,000 about ten years ago. Mr. Mandel was an old employe of the American Bank Note Company, which printed most of the early United States stamps.

"Besides all of the early impressions of both adhesive and envelope stamps Mr. Mandel had saved many of the original designs, engravers' proofs, samples, and rejected designs, things which are absolutely unobtainable for the collector at large.

"With his later additions, Lord Crawford's collection, therefore, forms a complete history of United States stamps, and if a scientific history should ever be written on the subject, Lord Crawford's collection would supply invaluable material."

Some idea of the extent of Lord Crawford's collection may be judged from the fact that his United States stamps, when brought here, were contained in forty volumes, each volume having about 1,000 stamps, making 40,000 stamps for the United States alone. Besides complete sets of all the regular issues, he has practically all of the extremely rare postmaster's stamps issued just before the first Government issue in 1847, and also most of the rare Postmaster's stamps of the Confederate States.

The finest collection in America is owned by George H. Worthington of Cleveland, Ohio, President of the Cleveland Stone Company, and Director in many other companies. He has been collecting for years, and dealers who know what he possesses estimate that he has spent from $750,000 to $1,000,000 for his stamps.

Mr. Worthington has one of the three best collections in the world.

"The Worthington collection overshadows everything else of its kind in this country," said John N. Luff of the Scott Stamp and Coin Company. "I should say it is worth close to $1,000,000. It contains practically all of the famous varieties. No collector in this country can equal his collection of United States stamps.

"Some of these are unique. One is the only known copy of the Alexandria postmaster stamp, printed on blue, for which, it is said, he paid $3,500. Six other copies of the stamp are known to have been printed on buff paper.

"He also has a pair of the rare Mauritius 'Post Office' one penny red stamps, on the original envelope, worth several thousand dollars, and a copy of the extremelv rare two-penny Mauritius of the same issue, a copv of which sold at auction a few years ago for $7,250, still the record price for a stamp at public sale."

Mr. Worthington has stated that he intends to leave his magnificent collection to the City of Cleveland.

The record $7,250 stamp is now owned by the King of England. It is the Mauritius twopence blue, with the word "Post Office" on one side instead of "Post Paid." Only about twenty-two specimens are known of the one and two penny stamps.

The history of the one owned by the King of England is one of the interesting stories of philately. Several years ago a collector visiting a friend in England spoke of their schoolboy collections. Remembering his little album, which he had not looked at for years, the host brought it forth and in it was discovered what is admitted to be the finest known unused copy of the rare two-penny Mauritius.

In 1904 it was sold at auction in London for $7,250.

Henry J. Crocker of San Francisco has long been known as one of the princely collectors in America. He lost in the San Francisco earthquake and fire eleven of his forty-three albums, but his choicest lot, the Hawaiian stamps, were then in England. Mr. Crocker received a short time ago from the London Philatelic Society an elaborate gold cup for his exhibition of Hawaiian stamps, one of the finest awards ever made in the philatelic world. He has no less than sixteen of the extremely rare Missionary Hawaiian stamps, some being unique specimens. Among them is the only known copy, outside of the British Museum, of the two-cent variety.

These Hawaiians alone are worth several thousand dollars. For one of the rare two-cent varieties Dudly Pickman, another noteworthy collector of Boston, is said to have paid $5,000 a few years ago.

John P. Stanton, of this city, had a famous collection, which was sold at auction last year, and brought $32,500, this being the record auction sale of the year and one of the largest ever held in America.

The King of England's collection is restricted to the stamps of Great Britain and the British colonies and in these countries he has everything that is obtainable. He owes his stamp enthusiasm, it is said, to his late uncle, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, who had one of the celebrated royal collections in Europe.

The greatest collection in the world, however, is owned by a Frenchman, Count Philippe la Renetiere, known several years ago as Count Ferrary. Few collectors have been permitted to see his treasures. It is said that he has spent at least $5,000,000 on his stamps. They are kept in safes and especially prepared cases in a large building at 24 Rue de Varenne, Paris, and half a dozen employes are busy all the time taking care of the collection and attending to an enormous correspondence with all parts of the world. This collection includes some of the only known copies of early British Guiana issues.

The British Museum has one of the finest public collections in the world, the T. K. Tapling collection, which Mr. Tapling bequeathed to the museum several years ago. It was said to be worth at that time about $250,000, but to-day its value is placed at $500,000. It contains nothing later than 1890, and is particularly rich in the early rarities of the British colonies.—N. Y. Times.

Donald W. Martin writes that the supply of stamps precancelled Saginaw, Mich., at Christmas time, among which were the inverts, is exhausted, and the new supply appears without any inverts.

Frank B. Eldredge sends a novelty consisting of the current officially sealed dark ultramarine, semi-official stamp, rouletted, or hyphen-holed perforation. The work is roughly done, leaving the stamps ragged when separated.

BELGIUM.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the 5fr value of the new set. The design is the same as the 10c, previously chronicled though of larger size. The 10c measures 18x22mm, or with the coupon, 18x30mm. The 5fr measures 23x26mm, or with the coupon, 23x35mm. Like the lower values, the new value is surface printed, and not particularly well done at that.

Adhesive.

5fr plum.

CYPRUS.—In No. 1115, we noted the issue of five values, with portrait of King George, but were unable to give the colors. These we now draw from the London Philatelist.

Adhesives.

½pi green and crimson.
30pa violet and green.
1pi rose and blue.
4pi olive green and purple.
6pi sepia and green.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the 75c King Edward stamp has been issued with the center in a darker shade of black.

GIBRALTAR.—Morocco Agencies.—We should have stated that the 4d Great Britain, surcharged "Morocco Agencies," chronicled in No. 1116, differed from the same stamp previously chronicled, in the omission of the new value surcharged at the bottom of the stamp in centimos.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The London Daily Mail says that the issue of postage stamps, other than ½d and 1d, bearing the King's portrait, will probably begin in June.

INDIA.—W. T. Wilson has now shown us the ½a, 2½a and 6a postage and 3pi and ½a Service, as chronicled in No. 1106.

JAPAN.—Mr. Schachne shows us the new double card, the mate to the single noticed in No. 1104. No change from last issue except the stamp which now has the value in ovals at the center of each side instead of in each lower corner.

1½x1½s rose on white.

MEXICO.—O. Darwin Owen sends us specimens of three crudely engraved and printed revenue stamps just issued by the insurrectionists in the state of Chihuahua. Mr. Owen states that the three values, 1, 2 and 5c, are all that have been issued to date and are good for the territory controlled by the red flag "General" Orozco. The stamps are line engraved and we are not acquainted with the name of the gentleman whose features are shown on the set.

NEW HEBRIDES.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the set of Condominium stamps, with values in French money, evidently from a new printing, as the paper has a new watermark. The values, colors and design are the same as the original issue. Instead of being printed on paper watermarked multiple crown CA, the watermark shows two large letters, "R F", only one letter appearing on each sheet of 60 stamps, so that some sheets bear the letter "R" only, while others have the letter "F" alone. These letters are fancy outline type, 115x128mm. Many of the stamps are without watermark, while others have only one or two lines from the large letter.

PORTUGAL.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the ½c value of the new Republica set, the color being brilliant jet black.

Adhesive.

½c black.

SIAM.—Philip H. Ward, Jr., reports having seen a copy of the 6 satang red, Scott's No. 121, cut diagonally from lower left to upper right, and half used as 3 satang. The cancellation, which of course covers the cut, was dated "5-3-12."

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS GUIDE.

WATERMARKS.

Next to paper we place watermarks in our scheme of importance though to be strictly accurate both should be classed together for watermarked paper is really an important sub-division of "paper."

A very large proportion of the world's postage stamps, ancient and modern, show a watermark in the paper. As I have already shown, in describing the manufacture of paper, the watermarks are formed when the pulp passes under the "dandy-roll." On this roll the letters or devices that are intended to show as a watermark in the finished stamps are in slight relief so that the pulp receives a little heavier pressure at these points and the consequence is an almost infinitesimal thinning. But though the actual difference in the thickness of the paper where the watermark appears and elsewhere is exceedingly trivial it is sufficient to show the device more or less clearly when the stamp is held in front of a good light. As a rule the watermarked devices are stamped out of thin sheets of brass and soldered on the "dandy-roll" at regular intervals. In some cases, the Small Crown watermarks of the early stamps of Great Britain, for instance,—the designs were made by twisting pieces of wire to the requisite shape and these "bits" were then sewn on to the wire cloth on which the pulp was poured.

Watermarks are introduced into the paper as an extra precaution against counterfeiting. When stamps were first issued the great fear of the authorities was that they might be successfully counterfeited and so entail considerable loss to the revenue. Of course the presence or absence of a watermark is not an infallible test of genuineness but it is often of great value in the detection of counterfeits where design and color are very close copies of the original. Forgeries of watermarks are generally clumsy in the extreme. All Governments have endless precautions for caring for the paper on which stamps are printed so that it is practically an impossibility for even a single sheet to be stolen without instant detection. The fact that a stamp has no watermark does not, of course, imply that it is a counterfeit, for many stamps have been and still are issued on plain unwatermarked paper. It is fairly safe to assume, however, that if the beginner has a stamp without watermark which is catalogued as having one the chances are that it is not genuine. If a watermark is difficult to distinguish immersion in a little highly rectified benzine will generally bring out the design quite clearly. The benzine will evaporate quickly and will not damage the gum on unused stamps. As a rule, though, it is unnecessary to resort to benzine—a little patience and close observation of the stamp held at different angles and against a dark surface will generally result in the detection of even the most obstinate watermark.

A study of the different designs which have been adopted for the watermarks of stamps in different countries is in itself an interesting occupation. To note only a few: there are crowns of all shapes and sizes; stars were the favorite devices on many of the early British Colonial stamps printed by Perkins Bacon & Co., while to this day India has retained its star watermark. Other Indian stamps show an elephant's head; some Jamaican issues show a pineapple; while we also call to mind an anchor for the Cape of Good Hope; a swan, for Western Australia; a sun, for the Argentine Republic; a sacred wheel, for Siam; a conch-shell, for Travancore; a horn, for Norway; a star and crescent, for Egypt; a sacred emblem, for China; a laurel wreath, for Prussia; turtles, for Tonga; and a pyramid, for Egypt. All have some special significance and their meaning is second in interest only to that of stamp designs.

In most cases the sheets of watermarked paper consist of the repetition of a certain device so arranged that one complete design is apportioned to each stamp. Thus, in the case of the current Indian stamps each shows one star as the watermark. Sometimes a large design spreads over the whole sheet so that each stamp only shows a small portion as in the case of the stamps of the Imperial British East Africa Company; others such as the 1881 to 1898 issues of Hungary have one complete watermarked design covering each block of four stamps; while in other instances the watermark is only large enough to cover a few stamps on each sheet. As instances we may cite the earlier stamps of Austria and Montenegro in which the words "Briefmarken" or "Zeitungsmarken" are shown in large double lined capitals across the centre of each sheet with the result that only the stamps in the two middle rows show portions of one or two letters. Again, some of the Bulgarian stamps printed in 1896 show a watermark of the national coat-of-arms in the sheet, this being large enough to cover only nine stamps of the hundred.

Another arrangement is that found in the case of the current United States stamps in which the letters "U. S. P. S." are repeated in such manner that each stamp should, normally, show one letter.

But, as I have already said, the general rule has always been one stamp, one watermark, and the great objection to this plan is that where stamps of different sizes or which are printed in different sized sheets are in use special paper has to be made for each variety or it would not "fit." To obviate the necessity of keeping special paper of different sizes for stamps of varying dimensions Messrs. De La Rue & Co. hit upon the idea of having "multiple" watermarks—that is a repetition of a design so close together that each stamp on a sheet would be watermarked with portions of several of the complete designs. The first of these multiple papers was the "turtle" variety used for the stamps of Tonga in 1897. In this series there are four separate shapes and had the usual plan been adopted four sorts of paper would have had to be made. By using the multiple variety, however, the same paper was used for all the stamps. In 1898 multiple rosettes were used for the Zanzibar stamps, in 1902 multiple star and crescent paper was introduced for the Soudan stamps, and in 1904 the multiple Crown CA paper made its appearance. It is the latter variety the beginner will most often meet with and will probably be puzzled by. In the case of stamps with what for convenience sake we now term "single" CA watermark each stamp on the sheet shows one complete Crown over the letters CA. In the case of the "multiple" variety the device is so arranged that on a level with the Crown of one watermark are the letters "CA" of another with the result that each stamp on a sheet shows portions of more than one watermark.

The importance of watermarks in general is such that the beginner should certainly collect distinct designs as being of equal merit with different designs or colors on the face of the stamps But until he has gained considerable experience I would not advise the collection of, say, the different sorts of star watermarks—"large", "small", and "broad"—or the various "garter" watermarks found on certain British stamps. Collect distinct designs that are easily distinguished and by so doing you will obtain all the necessary standard varieties and be saved endless bother.

A WITNESS OF MANY LICKINGS.

"That man looks at more tongues every day than any other person in the city."

"What is he—a doctor?"

"No. Sells stamps at the post office."

WELL EQUIPPED.

Sixty years ago there appeared in the newspapers, notice of the dissolution of a scholastic partnership in the neighborhood of London, which was signed by one of the teachers of youth with his mark.

Disclosures of this sort do not often hit one in the face nowadays; but a northern schoolmaster came near to falling a victim to effrontery of a somewhat similar character the other day.

Being in urgent need of a tutor, he opened up negotiations with a "master of languages" whose invaluable services were on offer.

Could he speak French? the schoolmaster demanded of this paragon. Oh, yes, fluently. Had he a nodding acquaintance with Italian? Indeed, he had—was excellently well versed in it, in fact.

These answers pleased the schoolmaster mightily, but he was an enthusiastic stamp collector and preferred to have, if possible, a tutor with corresponding tastes; so he telegraphed the question:

"Have you any knowledge of philately?"

And back came the triumphant answer:

"Can speak it like a native, sir!"

The negotiations ended abruptly.—Tit-Bits.

HISTORY FROM POSTAGE STAMPS.

By W. D. HAIGH.

I do not purpose to go entirely through the catalogue alphabetically, and deal with the whole world, as this would entail too much time, and become wearisome to you, but will select a few notable instances illustrating how history is portrayed upon the stamps of a country, and will commence with our near neighbour, France, but I must remind you that during the past 50 or 60 years, politics in Europe have been so very complicated that it is impossible to go over the events of any particular country without involving others, and therefore I may repeat myself at times by coming across the same instances while dealing with different nations. To commence then with France, we find stamps were issued first in 1849, and they bore the inscription Repub. Franc. (this being a curtailment of Republique Francaise), and they also bore an illustration of the head of Ceres, the goddess of plenty, emblematic of the Republic. The first change took place in 1852, and was caused by the election of Louis Napoleon to the Presidency, and the stamps were similar in design, inscribed as before Repub. Franc., but the head was changed to that of Napoleon.

A popular election in November, 1852, restored the Empire and the Prince-President was proclaimed Emperor under the style of Napoleon III., and at the same time a decree was made ordering "Empire Francaise" to be substituted in all cases for "Republique Francaise." Accordingly new stamps were prepared and issued bearing the same head as last but inscribed "Empire Francaise." After the successful campaign against Austria and Italy, in 1860 and 1861 it was decided to adorn the head of Napoleon with a laurel wreath, and stamps of this description appeared in 1863, but the fickleness of the French people was soon apparent, as the French Government made the disastrous mistake of declaring war against Germany on the 19th July, 1870. Disaster followed disaster in rapid succession, and the fall of Sedan on 2nd September of the same year, when the Emperor surrendered, brought about the end of the Second Empire, and two days later the Third Republic was proclaimed, and the conduct of affairs was taken over by the Government of National Defence. Napoleon fled to England, and once again the stamps of France show the head of Ceres, and the shortened inscription "Repub. Franc." It may not be out of place to refer here to the stamps of Alsace-Lorraine, which were really War Stamps issued in France by the German Army of Occupation in those districts where they had invaded France, and superseded the ordinary French Post-Offices.

Germany, having recently been mentioned, naturally comes next to be dealt with, and we first notice the issues at various dates forward from 1849 of stamps for a number of States afterwards forming the German Confederation, but formerly independent Principalities, the chief of which was Prussia, whose Chancellor was the great Bismark, who was the prime factor in welding the various States into one country, under King William of Prussia, who assumed the title of Emperor William I. of Germany. The war with France consolidated the Empire which consisted formerly of four Kingdoms, seven Grand-Duchies, five Duchies, and the free towns of Lubeck, Bremen, and Hamburg, together with the conquered provinces of Alsace-Lorraine, formerly in the possession of France. It is easy to distinguish which of these States were comprised in North Germany, and which were in South Germany, by referring to the difference of the coinage on the stamps of the different states, those in the North using the Silber Groschen as the unit of value, divided into Groschens, and the South using the Mark divided into 100 Pfennig, whilst one or two expressed the value in Schillings.

It is worthy of note, that whilst the power of the great Napoleon I. brought the old German Empire to an end, the defeat of Napoleon III. by Prussia, following the withdrawal of Francis II.'s claim to the title of German Emperor, was the means of consolidating the new Empire into the present Germany as we now know it.

Not much of the history of Austria is apparent on the face of its stamps, but stamps of the type of the earlier

ANOTHER HORRIBLE EXAMPLE

A short time since we sent out on our Mailing List, British Levant ½, 1p at 5c the pair. Today we see them advertised at 55c the pair. That is not a bad increase for a few weeks and shows how much stamps that are bought right often appreciate in value. Life is too short and new issues too nimble to wait till you see them advertised. We often send out stamps before they are noted in any new issue column. MOISANT & LECLAIRE, Kankakee, Ill.

issues of Austria with values in "Centes" and "Soldi" remind us of the powerful hold that country once possessed in Northern Italy, the end of which was brought about in 1866, when her sole remaining possession, Venice, was ceded to Italy, following close upon the loss of Lombardy in 1858-59.

The stamps of Spain are rich in historical interest, as commencing in 1850 during the reign of Isabella II., whose features are portrayed on several of the earliest issues, followed in 1868, upon her banishment from the country by a provisional government, which added insult to injury by obliterating the dethroned Queen's features by an overprint reading "Habilitado por le Nacion," followed again by new issues bearing a head representative of Liberty. This provisional Republic only lasted three years, and in 1870 Duke Aosta of Italy was selected, out of four candidates, to occupy the throne, a dynasty which he assumed under the title of King Amadeus, but he abdicated three years later, when once again a Republic was established. This in its turn only lasted two years, 1873-1875, and the house of Bourbon was restored in the person of the eldest son of Queen Isabella, who became King Alfonso XII. in 1875, followed at his death by his son King Alfonso XIII., who is so well known to us as the husband of one of our Royal Princesses (Ena), daughter of Princess Henry of Battenberg, and cousin of our present sovereign King George V. of Great Britain. Some unauthorised stamps were issued during the unsettled years 1873-74 in the Northern provinces of Spain, by the Carlists, who proclaimed their leader Dom Carlos, King of Spain, under the title of King Carlos VII., but the accession of King Alfonso XII. soon dispelled his claims, and he was forced to retire.

Portugal commenced the issue of stamps in the year 1853, that being the last year of the reign of Queen Maria, but her death paving the way to the throne for King Pedro V., the first stamps showing profile of Queen Maria were soon superseded by a new set. In 1861 King Luiz succeeded King Pedro, and reigned for 28 years, being in his turn succeeded by King Carlos in 1889. It is scarcely necessary to recall to your minds the tragic events of 1908, when the assassination of King Carlos and the Crown Prince brought about the accession of young King Manuel, whose reign, begun under such terrible circumstances, was so brief, and a bloodless insurrection in 1910 ended in the flight of King Manuel and his mother to England, and a Republic was formed, which has lasted to the present day, although recently attempts have been made by the Royalist party to create a rising in favour of the exiled King.

The stamps of Servia illustrate a very similar state of things, and the terrible murders in 1903 of King Alexander I. and his Queen, caused a sensation in Europe which was not soon forgotten. On June 15th, 1903, King Peter of the Karageorgevic family was elected to succeed to the throne of Servia, but his reign has not been marked with any great amount of prosperity, and nearly all the European powers refused for a long time to recognize his succession.

Italy in 1850 was a land of many petty States, each more or less a law unto itself, and each issuing its own Postage Stamps. The stamps of the Roman States or Papal States are familiar to us by the typical design of a tiara and crossed keys of St. Peter. Other states had their own heraldic design, whilst King Bomba, of Sicily, ordered the best engraver in Italy to be found to immortalize him in a series of stamps bearing his portrait, and Aloisio, the most eminent of engravers of his day was commissioned to prepare an exact likeness of His Sacred Majesty's features, and after much Ministerial tribulation the work was approved, and to this day these productions are regarded as a most superb piece of work. A special cancelling stamp had also to be designed and put into use, which only defaced the border of the stamp, and left the sacred portrait of the King untouched. The foundations of the Kingdom of Italy were laid in 1859-60 by the Union of the States of Lombardy-Venetia, the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies, the Grand Duchy of Tuscany, the Duchies of Parma and Modena, the Roman States, and Romagna, with Victor Emmanuel as first King of United Italy.

In 1879 King Humbert came to the throne, and an issue bearing his portrait appeared during the year of his succession. His murder on July 29th, 1900, by a lunatic and the accession of his son, Victor Emmanuel III., were followed by another issue in 1901, and with various additions remain in use to the present time.

Austria is a country pregnant with great historical interest, but it cannot be claimed that it is discernible on its stamps, as, owing to the fact that the throne has been occupied since 1848 by the Emperor Francis Joseph, and until the Jubilee issue on January 1st, 1908, to celebrate the 50th Anniversary of his reign, most of the stamps have been decorated with his head.

The union of Norway and Sweden, which was repealed by Norway on 26th October, 1905, followed by the election of King Haakon on November 20th as King of Norway as a separate Kingdom marks an epoch in the stamps and history of Scandinavia, and in the same part of Europe the Russification of Finland, much against the will of the Finns, is too well known to need repetition.

Leaving Europe, the only countries of note in Asia are Japan, China and Siam, and little of the history of these places is to be learnt from a study of their stamps and ignoring Africa altogether, we come to the comparatively new Continent of America, and the first country to be mentioned must be that of our cousins, the United States of America. The first two stamps, issued in 1847, bore the portraits of two men whose memory will never die, viz., Franklin and Washington, followed by a host of others who have played a prominent part in the government of that country, Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Lincoln, Stanton, Clay, Webster, Scott, Hamilton, Perry, Taylor, Garfield, Grant, Sherman, Madison, Marshall, Harrison and Farragut, to be followed no doubt in course of time by men like McKinley and Roosevelt, and other names better known perhaps to the present generation. I must not omit here to mention, that in 1902, Martha Washington, the mother of the world famous George Washington, was honoured by having her portrait on a stamp, of the value of 8 cents.

In 1869 an issue was made with various portraits and designs such as Express Rider, Locomotive, and Steamship, the Arms of the U. S., also two pictures showing the landing of Columbus, and the Declaration of Independence, this being probably the first issue of Pictorial Commemorative stamps known, and it would perhaps have been as well for Philately if they had also been the last. However, that was not to be, and another set was issued in 1893 to celebrate the 400th Anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, and the different values represented different events in the life of that adventurous seaman. The sale of pictorials proved so great that the Trans-Mississippi Exhibition at Omaha in 1898 was made the excuse for a further illustrated set of nine values representing the state of the country at different periods, and a small set of six values in 1901 serve to bring again to our memory the Buffalo Exhibition. These were followed in 1904 by a set to commemorate the St. Louis Exhibition, and remind us of the purchase in 1803 of a great tract of country, Louisiana, almost in the centre of the great United States, and a modest set of three values for the Jamestown Exhibition in 1907. Sets of pictorials must have proved a drug on the market, as the numbers issued, commencing with the Columbus set of sixteen values in 1893, nine Omaha in 1898, six Buffalo in 1901, Five St. Louis in 1904, and three Jamestown, dropped to a single stamp issued 1909 bearing the portrait of Wm. H. Seward, and celebrating the acquisition of Alaska by the U. S. A., and in the same year a single stamp commemorated the Hudson Fulton 4th Century. Nearly connected with the history of Spain, but unnoticed in my remarks on that country is the history of Cuba, whose wrongs were sought to be redressed by the large Republic, and after a short but decisive Naval War between the United States and Spain, Cuba, along with Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands, was taken under American protection, and the stamps of Spanish Cuba were overprinted in new values and issued under the authority of the U. S. Post Office. These were followed by stamps of the U. S. overprinted "Cuba" and the values in "Cents de Peso," and in 1899 the reins of government were handed over to the Cubans themselves who established an Independent Republic under American protection. Most of the foregoing remarks apply also to Porto Rico and the Philippines. We have to acknowledge the influence of the United States in another part of the great American Continent, when we find U. S. stamps surcharged "Canal Zone Panama," the first of which were issued on 18th July, 1904; and it is now generally felt that no Eastern Country is allowed to interfere with any part of U. S. feeling that they have a perfect right to take part in the discussion.

It would be almost impossible to leave this part of the subject without at least drawing attention to the history of the U. S. in 1861-63, by referring to Postage Stamps of the Confederate States, which were issued by the Southern States of the North American Republic, when civil war was found to be necessary to decide whether slaves were to be freed throughout the whole Republic or not. Whilst everyone regrets that civil war should take place in any country, even as a last resource, I am sure that it will be generally agreed that the Federal States were right, and the Confederate States in the wrong, and the defeat of the Southerners and the welding together of the whole of the States, in which the emancipation of slaves became a reality, was all for the future honour and welfare of the country.

A few more pages of history could be culled from the stamps of many of the South American countries—Argentine Republic, Brazil, Chili, Peru, etc., not to mention the history of desperate finances exhibited by the stamps of all the Central American countries—Guatemala, Nicaragua, Salvador and Honduras, but I feel that I cannot prolong a paper already, I think, carried to the utmost point of your endurance, and will leave it with you to decide whether the trials I have subjected you to are repaid by any new information, which may interest you sufficiently to induce you to give this phase of stamp-collecting a stray thought, now and then.—Stamp Collectors Fortnightly.

FINE STAMP AUCTION IN NEW YORK

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, JUNE 7TH AND 8TH

We call special attention to our 47th auction which will be held at the Morton Building, 116 Nassau Street, New York, (rooms 811 and 812) June 7th and 8th. This sale is in exceptionally fine condition, including as it does, the collections of Dr. D. M. Easter, of Greensburg, Pa., and Dr. W. P. Wherry, of Omaha, Neb., both of whom were very particular as to condition. New York collectors should be sure to examine the lots which may be seen at the above address in the Morton Building, New York, June 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th

The Catalogues are out. If you have not received yours, drop us a postal to-day.

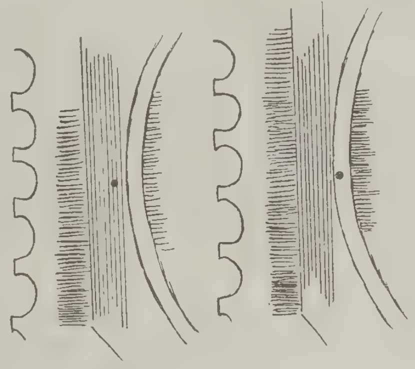
DOTOLOGY.

Mr. G. A. Hunt, Woburn, Mass., has proved his qualifications as an expert in what he aptly terms "dotology" and he has submitted some interesting illustrations to show the extent of his researches. He lists no fewer than six dot types, beginning with a "no dot" three-cent green, National, according to the following summary: I, no dot; II, dot in middle of white space; III, dot to right of white space; IV, dot to left of white space; V, dot on line of shading; VI, dot between two lines of shading. The following illustration of two "types" greatly enlarged typifies these dot differences.



Mr. Hunt submits various denominations, one, two-cent brown; three, seven- and ten-cent, with dots in the ovals or in the shade lines usually opposite the mouth of the portrait on the respective stamps. The thirty-cent black, with dot opposite Hamilton's mouth is a well known variety and it is sometimes alleged incorrectly that the dot on this stamp is the secret mark of the thirty-cent but the enthusiastic discoverer is willing to withdraw his claim when he is told that the dot is not a distinctive marking enough to be accepted as an engraver's key. Die dots and lines, and consequently, plate dots and lines have been thoroughly studied occasionally in the past but we know of no recent article on the subject.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from J. W. Longnecker, Hugo Kuenstler (3), A. C. Stewart.

—Frank E. Goodwin of Farm Machinery, St. Louis, Mo., delivered an address on "Cost Accounting" before the Tennessee Retail Hardware Assn. at Nashville, Tenn., May 22. Mr. Goodwin is an enthusiastic philatelist, and in a letter recently at hand wrote us "I take a dozen stamp papers and the WEEKLY is the one I want to see first. I don't know how it could be bettered and I think I am some judge of papers."

—A. W. Batchelder of the New England Stamp Co. suffered a severe fall recently in New York City, breaking one rib and fracturing others. He was taken to the Flower Hospital where he remained for about two weeks, and it will be another two weeks before he will be back at the office.

—A. R. Bardsley, Altoona, Pa., reports that he can get no return of approval selection from Sidney Lorenz, N. Y. City. This party gave as reference Frank Brown, 1560 Madison Av., but a letter sent to Mr. Brown subsequent to the mailing of the approval selection was returned, "not known." We cannot be too insistent for dealers to look up references always before sending approval selections.

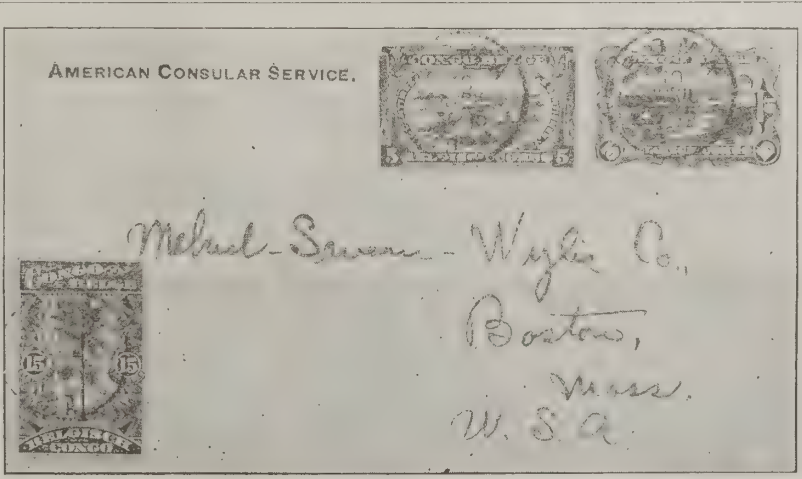
—Wolsieffer's next sale makes a break in the $100,000 series but it offers something "just as good." The sale includes the property of a dozen different owners and in the aggregate number of lots there must be stamps for all classes of collectors.

—We are advised by the International Stamp Co., DeGraff, Ohio, that the manager of the company has been ill. It is expected that he will be able to be at the office very shortly and attend to the accumulated correspondence.

—C. H. Clark of Lubec, Me., sends us a strong word in connection with the machine perforations and the manner in which they are now being exploited in the philatelic press. Mr. Clark considers them "a disgrace to our government, as they are cut and slashed in all shapes and otherwise mutilated, presenting a slovenly appearance." Our correspondent fails to realize that the government is trying to serve not the stamp collector but the people at large as represented in the patronage of the various mailing machines now on the market.

—R. K. Shaw writes the WEEKLY in appreciation of the pretty covers that we are advertising for premium purposes. He believes that the collectors of entires should organize in order that a medium of exchange may be provided.

—H. Leonard reports a half dozen collectors with whom he has had unsatisfactory dealings:—B. D. Goode, Boydton, Va., now of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.; A. W. Brooks, 21½ Wethersfield Av., Hartford, Conn.; Walter Straight, Pleasant Point, N. B., Can.; J. P. Kelly, 55 S. Spring St., Concord, N. H.; A. Stewart, 1406 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill. and Gilbert Foster, 701 Hoyt St., Portland, Ore.



Our Congo Cover Premium

Mr. Dye just prior to his departure from Boma very kindly favored us as indicated above. It is a pretty cover and will be an ornament to any collection.

EDITORIAL.

All Right—Recent remarks on "waste paper" in connection with the official postal savings stamps have called forth some inquiry from those who wish to know whether these used official stamps come under the classification of waste paper. They do. Many years ago, there was a controversy over the disposition of used official envelopes, in particular, and in order to prove the contention, evidently of a collector, that the postmaster might properly turn over such items to him, the department at Washington was asked for its regulations or ruling on the subject. The following letter was received from the third assistant postmaster-general of that time: "In reply to your letter of the 24th ult., you are informed that used official envelopes are a part of the waste paper to be accounted for by the postmaster receiving them, as all other waste paper. The canceled official stamps upon these envelopes are of no value beyond that of waste paper. This does not apply to unused official stamps which, under Circular 3283, of May 1, 1879, postmasters are to return to the department." It is reasonable to say that this construction is the one that is observed today; and so there can be no grounds for any assumption that the authorities are in any way antagonistic to the distribution of used copies to collectors. If any real alarm exists on this score it is a causeless one.

Marvelous—If there is anyone who is entitled to a seat in the philatelic academy of immortals, it is Mr. William R. Ricketts, Forty Fort, Pennsylvania, chairman of the philatelic literature committee and the philatelic index committees, respectively, of the American Philatelic Society. A sturdy start has been made on that heretofore nebulous proposition, the great philatelic index. What Mr. Ricketts already has accomplished proves that he is possessed of the capacity for infinite pains and the ability to encompass labor almost inconceivably patient. He is performing a task that when in the future, it is completed will mark a step of progression that will give to America the satisfaction of knowing that it has been a benefactor to philately in a world sense. We may add that Mr. Rickett's philatelic library is now one of the best in the world.

A Rare Bird—The following letter was addressed to Parnassus Penflip by Edward M. Rosenthal, Chicago, but as letters sent recently to Mr. Penflip have been returned with the explanation: "Moved and Left No Address," we have secured Mr. Rosenthal's consent to publish his communication here: "My dear Parnassus: I trust I may be permitted to call your attention to Mr. Freeman Putney's article, 'How Common Stamps Grow Scarce,' and more especially to the 'Quintzel' (depicted on the stamps of Guatemala). Since this word was mentioned twice in the same paragraph by Mr. Putney and the spellings were identical, I take it that the time-worn excuse of 'printer's devil,' etc., cannot be set forth in this case. Mr. Putney remarks that 'some exact gentleman would pick me up if I called that bird a parrot.' I have no desire to argue as to my being either the noun designating a degree of gentleness or my temperament as to the qualifying adjective. The facts, however, are as follows: The Century Dictionary calls this beast 'Quetzal,' pronounced 'Kwet-sal.' This strange and gaudy bird is described as 'the paradise-trogon.' Other permissible spellings are 'Quesal' and 'Quijal.' Trusting that you will give this important and epoch-making correction due publicity, I remain," etc. The Standard Dictionary allows the use of "Quezal" by the fastidious members of the exclusive set.

Caught—Dr. W. K. Beatty, Vigan, Ilocos Sur, Philippines, writes: "There is an editorial in the issue of January 20th, 1912, about the new Nicaraguan stamps that looks rather funny to me, the remark, 'The boat proceeding on its way without disembarking the stamps, probably to New Orleans, as our information comes from that city.' The underscoring is mine; this boat touched at Corinto; if it proceeded from Corinto to New Orleans, it will still be proceeding at this date, probably somewhere near Argentina going north (at this writing) as the Panama Canal is not yet a fact. It will have to go around the Horn to get to New Orleans from Corinto, the latter being on the west coast of Nicaragua. I thought to see a correction in the issue of Jan. 27th, but the point I noticed seemed to have escaped our editor's and others attention, notwithstanding philatelists pride themselves on their knowledge of geography." We appreciate the effectiveness of Dr. Beatty's casual comment (made in the course of a longer letter) and falling back on our informant's statement, it is found that mechanically, we repeated what had been reported to us,—but this is so poor an excuse that it is worse than none.

Good Ones—Occasionally the questions that are asked us are such as to impress those who are supposed to typify the sources of information as being singularly embracive. For instance, Mr. D. C. Battley, Secretary-Treasurer of the Seattle Philatelic Club submits the following essentially interesting and significant questions: The names of all the Postmaster-Generals from Franklin to the present time and time they served. 2. What is the law concerning the possession of a plate of a U. S. stamp? Is it unlawful to have photos or engravings of U. S. stamps if made in another country? 3. The formula of the gum on back of U. S. stamps if it is not a secret one. 4. How many and what are they of the forgeries of U. S. stamps? 5. Who is the owner of the best collection of U. S. stamps in the world and what is it worth?" A list of postmaster-generals from Franklin to Hitchcock, with time served will be made the subject of a special article that will appear in print soon. A bald compilation of names and dates such as may be gathered from historical reference works would ignore phases of certain of the administrations that have an indirect philatelic bearing, at least. Mr. Geo. H. Worthington and Lord Crawford have the best collections of United States stamps in existence but we could only theorize as to their value.

To Continue—We are told that the possession of a plate of a U. S. stamp is illegal and that the plate would be confiscated and the holder held liable to penalty. Possession of photos of U. S. stamps if made abroad are not recognized as lawful property by the authorities even though they may take no steps of seizure. An officer informs us that some judgment is supposed to be exercised in the consideration of cases of this kind. Forgeries of United States regular issues are rarely found. The ninety-cent, 1857-60, has been imitated in line engraving but the forgery is not dangerous. The two-cent, 1894, was counterfeited to deceive the government. Some of the envelopes have been rather poorly forged and the big newspaper stamps have received a bit of similar attention, while the semi-officials, etc., have not been entirely neglected. A few revenue stamps have been forged to defraud the government.

GILBERT AND ELLICE ISLANDS.

A resident of Ocean Island, now on a holiday visit to Sydney, has informed us that the supply of the ½d value of the Pandanus tree series is running short, and that instructions have been sent home for a stock of all values with a portrait of King George. In additon to those now in use, there will probably be three or four additional denominations including two or three above the 1sh value. It is stated that the new stamps will be on sale about June or July.

Our informant acquainted us that there are in all from 60 to 100 white people on Ocean Island. This district is only 30 miles from the equator and the climate, although pretty hot all the year round, is salubrious.—Aust. Stamp Journal.

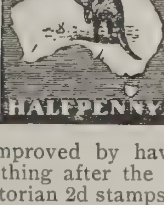
NEW AUSTRALIAN DESIGN.

We are delighted that finality has been reached, and although we have hardly yet got used to the peculiar style of the stamp, still we think it will improve on acquaintance. It was known to us several years ago that there was only a remote likelihood, even in King Edward's time, that the portrait of the monarch would be placed upon them, and since then we have advocated in various ways the adoption of a map of Australia for the central design.

The stamp before us is the essence of simplicity, but it looks like as if something had been cut off both sides of it, and we are decidedly of opinion that it would be improved by having a wider frame, something after the character of the first Victorian 2d stamps. However, we accept the Postmaster-General's decision, and we shall endeavour to refrain from worrying him over the subject, as has been done by our confreres in regard to the new King George British stamps.



It will be noticed, however, that the design does not bear the word "postage," and so far as our memory serves us it was decided about eleven years ago that in future all Commonwealth stamps intended for postal purposes must bear the word "postage" vide the Victorian stamps issued in January and June, 1901, and other new Australian stamps issued since.—Aust. Stamp Journal.

HOW "REMAINDERS" VANISH.

By Freeman Putney, Jr.

About fifteen years ago—possibly a little longer, as I am depending upon memory—the remainders of the Venezuela issue of the 1883 types came upon the market. These included both the "Correos" and "Escueles" sets, also the same stamps with the peculiar surcharge formed by the national arms on a background of fine diagonal lines. Nearly all except some of the highest values of these remainders could be had by the thousands and ten thousands at wholesale, and were sold on approval sheets marked at 2c each. Today, the 5c green can still be bought at wholesale but most of the other values have disappeared from the wholesale market and have also gone up a little in the catalogue. These stamps form another example of the way in which seemingly respectable supplies fade away.

Quite a chapter could be written on the various remainders of the several issues of Venezuela if only access could be had to the proper data. Unfortunately, the philatelic doings of this country have not always been in the broad daylight, as witness the clandestine (or worse) printings of the map stamps of 1896, but it is to be hoped that some one will give us a history of Venezuela stamps before what information there is grows too cold.

Returning to our commoner varieties, the remainders of the 1893 and 1899 types, together with their surcharges, were thrown upon the market so recently that it seems impossible for them to have already grown "better," but dealers will tell you that the more attractive colors have already become pretty well absorbed.

It is a striking commentary on the color taste of the great army of small boys, to note how the bright-hued stamps, such as the reds and the oranges, become exhausted more quickly than the sombre greens and blues and grays. I could name many instances where such stamps have become the "scarce" ones in a set, although originally existing in quantities as great as the others.

The small heads of Roumania used to be very freely offered not many years ago but they are getting to be much better property, even the common 1880, 15b brown.

The common Portugal, cataloguing from 1c to 3c each, have never been particularly popular in this country, but have grown much better since the political changes of the last three years. The low values of the 1894, Prince Henry set, and 1898, Vasco da Gama, were formerly quite cheap at wholesale, but the 25r green of the latter issue is now about the only one that can be had low enough for the average dealer to handle.

Peru is another country which to a dealer's mind, instantly brings up a vision of unlimited remainders. They certainly did seem practically unlimited when they came on the market late in the '90's. Their number included practically all those priced at reasonable figures in the catalogue, beginning with the 1874 issue and running to the "Universal Postal Union" type of 1895. Some of the cheaper stamps were scattered about the country by many thousands, in packets and on cheap approval sheets, but with very few exceptions they are getting to be good grade stock now. It has taken only a little over a decade to absorb them.

Paraguay is another South American country which has always been popular, but had a few very common stamps. The 1c gray, "Centavos" and "Centavo," types of 1892 and 1896, used to sell for a cent apiece at retail and could be had at a surprisingly small price by the hundred. Today they have jumped to 4c and 3c each in the catalogue and the wholesale stocks of them are pretty well used up. Some later varieties of Paraguay which were common for a time but have since jumped several hundred per cent. both at wholesale and at retail are several varieties of the 1900 sets.

The Scandinavians illustrate remarkably well the way in which unsensational but steady popularity will eventually absorb large quantities of common stamps.

Sweden has always been an easy country, in which any boy can secure a good sized variety of copies, and is usually a beginner's favorite. The old 12o value of 1858 used to be obtainable at a very few cents a hundred, and one could find several of the ultramarine color in every hundred at that. The ultramarine now sells at 6c and fine copies are not easy to keep in stock. Most of the odd values of the later Sweden sets have gone up a little at retail and considerably at wholesale. The Postage Dues and the long Officials have advanced greatly at wholesale and most of them can no longer be considered as packet stamps.

In Norway much the same conditions exist, although the beginner does not take to Norwegian stamps quite as rapidly as to the Swedish, partly because of the difficulty of distinguishing "shaded" from "unshaded" posthorn, and of Roman capital letters from Egyptian. Both difficulties, of course, vanish after a little study.

In Denmark, nearly all the values of the 1874 issues used to be considered common, but some of them, particularly the 25o gray and green, are now desirable stock. Of the little square early issues, the brown 4s always used to be common, but that day has gone forever, particularly in the case of the rouletted variety.

Speaking of these early Denmarks, it is a wonder to me that more collectors who have contributed to the Weekly's symposium on scarce stamps have not mentioned the various high values of early issues of this country. Try to pick up a few of these in really fine condition and you will appreciate what I mean.

Brazil affords another instance where popularity has used up the supply of cheap stamps. I don't suppose that all the dealers in this country, combined, this year, have a hundred copies of the 10r black, 1882, on their various approval sheets. Yet there was a time when this stamp and the 10r orange of the same type were among the cheapest unused, South American's dealers could utilize. The black has now jumped to 8c and the orange to 4c.

The 100r lilac, numerals on square tablet in centre, is another old stamp which used to be very common, and its dingy, dull appearance was so far from attractive that one wonders where the thousands of collectors came from who must have bought the supply. They must exist, however, because the big stocks of that little Brazilian are cleaned out. Another 100r of the same country is the blue and red, Liberty head of 1891. This used to be difficult to give away, but is quite a little better at wholesale than its former nominal price.

Whatever has become of all the supply of the first two issues of the Postal Packet stamps of Belgium? The first were never so common as to be in the "rubbish" class, but it used to seem as if there were plenty of them. Nevertheless, today, they range from 4c to 15c in the catalogue. Of the second issue, which used to be available for 2c and 3c approval sheets, the only common one left is the 50c carmine. Those others which were formerly common now list from 3c to 10c each, while the 2fr, which always used to be fairly good, is up to 20c and the 15c gray got a belated recognition as a really scarce stamp by jumping eventually to 35c.

When a few years can bring such price changes as these, it doesn't behoove any of us to sneer at the worthlessness of the apparently most common stamp.

"STAMPS HARD TO GET."

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

(Contributed by Laurence P. Dodge.)

I have noticed from time to time communications in the Weekly about stamps cataloguing under $2.00 which are hard to get. Some I have agreed to be hard and others have not seemed so bad after all. There are a few, however, I have not seen mentioned at all and as I have needed them all for a long time and have tried hard to get them, I would like to have them included in the list. They are as follows:—Afghanistan 199, Curacao 70, Antioquia 352, Madagascar 63, (if it exists at all which I doubt), New Caledonia 83, Queensland 109a, Roumania 175, Siam 69 and Venezuela 221. None of these stamps are priced anywhere near $2.00 and yet they seem impossible to locate.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—Wm. Lloyd also sends us a copy of the new perforation of the officially sealed stamp, which is rouletted 6 or 7.

BOLIVIA.—Hermann Focke and the L. L. Albright Co. have shown us specimens of a new provisional postage stamp from Bolivia, the 1c blue fiscal stamp of 1910 being surcharged in five lines in red, "10 10—Correos—10—Centavos—1912." The first figures are arranged over the old figures of value in the upper corners. There appears to be two distinct types of the surcharge—possibly the examination of a full sheet would disclose still others.

Provisional Adhesive.

"10 Centavos" on 1c blue.

BRUNEI.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 30c in new colors, but still bi-colored, those recently chronicled having been in a single color.

Adhesive.

30c orange and purple.

BULGARIA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the 3s value of the current set is coming in dull carmine and black instead of bright red and black.

COOK ISLANDS.—Ewen's Weekly reports having seen the ½d value of the current set perforated 14.

COSTA RICA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us several values of the Telegraph stamps of 1907, surcharged "Correos—Dos centavos—2," as noted in No. 1104. The last figure in the surcharge is so placed as to cover the old value in the circle at the bottom of the stamp, while "Correos" covers the word "Telegrafos" at the top. All the surcharges are in black.

Provisional Adhesives.

On Telegraph stamps of 1907.
"Dos centavos" on 50c red violet
"Dos centavo" on 1 colon brown.
"Dos centavos" on 2 colones carmine.
"Dos centavos" on 5 colones green.
"Dos centavos" on 10 colones plum.

FIJI ISLANDS.—The Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung reports the issue of two King George stamps for this colony, on multiple paper, perforated 14.

Adhesives.

½d green.
1sh black on green.

FRANCE.—Mr. Schachne has the double Pneumatic letter card for Paris of the same design as the single which was noticed in No. 1112.

Pneumatic Letter Card.

30x30c violet on gray.

FRENCH CONGO.—Mr. Schachne has sent us the reduced rate letter card which is precisely the same as the previous issue.

Letter Card.

10c rose on gray.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Ewen's Weekly reports having received the 9d King Edward stamp, in new colors, the frame being in pale blue and the centre very dark lilac.

KEDAH.—Aug. P. Zeller reports having seen the low values of the new set for this native state in the Straits Settlements. Ewen's Weekly says that the design is far superior to either Kelantan or Trengganu. The principal features of the design are branches of palm in the centre, with figures of value in each of the four corners. Presumably the new stamps are printed on multiple CA paper, but of this fact we are not yet sure. All are in two colors.

Adhesives.

1c green and black.
2c red and black.
4c gray and black.
5c brown and black.
8c blue and black.

MIDDLE CONGO.—J. N. Morse has shown us the first we have seen of Middle Congo cards, although said to have been issued in 1907. Can anyone inform us more definitely as to date of issue? They have stamps as illustrated in Scott A1 and A2 and the designs and material are as formerly for the French colonies.

Post Card.

10c red and blue on greenish.

Letter Cards.

10c red and blue on gray.
25c blue and green on rose.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke reports a new 5c provisional official stamp from Nicaragua similar to the 10c official noted in No. 1116, the same type of surcharge and same stamp being used, but with the additional postal surcharge, "Correos—Vale—15 cts—1911," on the back, with a heavy bar through the "15 cts."

SIAM.—Mr. Schachne has shown us varieties of surcharge on the local cards mentioned two years ago in No. 1007. That on the 3s is 12mm long instead of 11 and the character for 3 is 5½mm above instead of 4. The measures on 5s are 12½mm and 5¾ instead of 11½ and 4. The character for "5" is also quite changed. In both cases there has been a new set-up and of slightly different type. Both cards have the embossed arms at left.

Post Cards.

3 satang on 1¼ black and red on yellow.
5 satang on 1½ black and red on yellow.

PITY THE POOR P. M.

To get an idea of what we have to do in an average day in our offices and the time employed in doing it, from the time we open office in the morning until we close it at night, we ought to keep a record or minute of all our official acts and doings for a day now and then. Such a record would read like this: "Opened office at 7 a. m., built fire, swept out, changed postmarking stamps, cleaned and inked pads, sold a postal card (purchaser gave 25 cents to take the penny out of), asked for pen and ink or pencil with which to write it, then said, 'Won't you just write this card for me to A. B.?' (This took about five minutes). Sold two envelopes (had to make change and keep track of the number of envelopes sold, etc.). Man wanted to send some money by mail; had not decided how to send, whether by money order or registered letter; had to discuss this matter with him; finally decided on money order; looked in list, found place he wished to send money to, not a money order office; necessary to send by registered letter; sender did not have the right change; Postmaster had to make it for him, also give two paper dollars for two silver ones; sender could not write much, wanted Postmaster to address letter, but this not permissible; sender had to go out and get letter addressed—then return and get and affix stamp (twenty minutes of Postmaster's time consumed). Mail from East arrives; must be opened and distributed at once; back stamp letters, notice if errors in distribution; people waiting impatiently; some missent mail, some misdirected; one special delivery letter for patron who lives about a mile from post office must be recorded and sent out at once; nearly time for next mail to be made up, stamps to sell, letter to register, money order to issue, everybody in a hurry. Mail put in pouch and pouch locked; messenger waiting; in rushes patron with one or two letters that he wants to go in this mail; Postmaster asks messenger to wait; unlocks pouch, takes out the packages, unties them, postmarks the belated letters and puts them in the proper packages which he reties again and replaces in the pouch which must now be relocked and delivered to the messenger again."

HISTORY OF THE

POSTAL ISSUES OF HAWAII

BY BREWSTER C. KENYON.

This the standard work on the stamps of this interesting island kingdom and republic, covering Stamps, Envelopes and Postal Cards; showing varieties of paper, the several shades, and in most instances the number issued, should be in the hands of every collector. The list, showing number of each of the 1893 issues surcharged, will alone amply repay the purchaser.

Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News, Boston, Mass.

And so it goes all along through the day, always plenty to do. Long after everybody else has quit work the Postmaster is still on duty, writing the money order books and stamp sales account, box rent notices, notices to senders of unclaimed second, third and fourth class matter, taking inventory of valuable supplies, making out reports, trying to locate an error of a few cents in stamp sales account or in the money order acount. And so it goes day after day. From 7 a. m. until 9 p. m. the Postmaster must be on the job. Why, even if he was not under any responsibility and had practically nothing to do but to be there during those fourteen hours, he should be paid at least $2 a day. Yet there are many Postmasters who are doing this for less than one dollar a day.—Postmasters' Advocate.

AN OLD ONE.

May Irwin is perhaps America's most noted feminine story-teller. She is, so to speak, the Chauncina Depew of her sex. She recalls a visit of Beerbohm Tree to America, an incident of which occurred in a New York drug store sub-post office.

"Please let me see your stamps," said the English actor-manager.

The clerk, thinking him an inspector of some sort, placed on the counter two sections of 1 and 2 cent stamps. Tree adjusted his monocle and looked the blues and reds over very carefully. After much silent deliberation he put his long finger on a 2-cent stamp in the middle of the sheet, and said:

"I shall take this one."—Chicago Post.

Popular—Because the outlay necessary for a representative collection, can be limited to such a very small sum, ranging from the low average expenditure of a few shillings per week.

Interesting—Changes of colour, perforation and watermark as well as the actual new issues of the Colonies, Provisionals and the like provide frequent variety.

Economical—A supply at 10% over actual face value, not an extravagant premium to ensure an efficient supply.

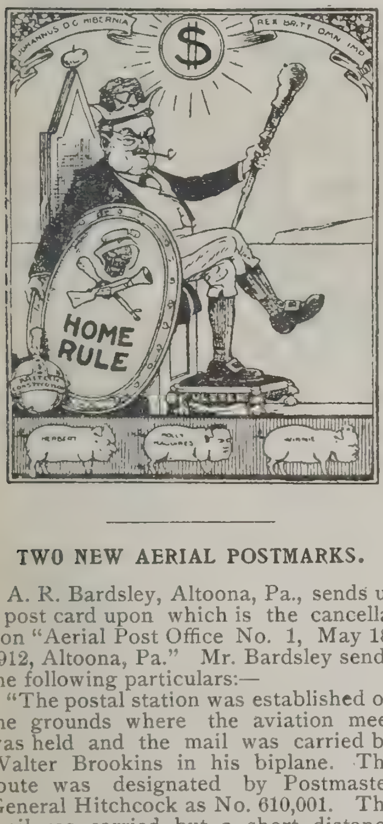
IRELAND, ISSUE OF—?

The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly reproduces from a weekly pictorial newspaper called The Throne, a suggestion for the first Irish postage stamp. We will leave it to our readers to translate into words the remarkable production that has emanated from the brain of the artist:—



TWO NEW AERIAL POSTMARKS.

A. R. Bardsley, Altoona, Pa., sends us a post card upon which is the cancellation "Aerial Post Office No. 1, May 18, 1912, Altoona, Pa." Mr. Bardsley sends the following particulars:—

"The postal station was established on the grounds where the aviation meet was held and the mail was carried by Walter Brookins in his biplane. The route was designated by Postmaster General Hitchcock as No. 610,001. The mail was carried but a short distance but served the purpose of adding a great deal of interest to the meet."

Another postmark bearing the date of May 22 reaches us from Baton Rouge, La., by courtesy of R. J. Hummel. Mr. Hummel informs us that the card was sent from Baton Rouge to New Orleans and thence despatched to its destination. In addition to the Baton Rouge postmark the card bears the aerial cancellation consisting of five horizontal lines with four stars at the extreme right inclosed between the first and fifth lines. Three other horizontal lines are separated from those above by the following, "U. S. Aerial Mail Service" in sans serif capital letters.

MANUFACTURE OF STAMPS.

Examine our common everyday postage stamp. On one side are the words "U. S. Postage," under which is the profile of some noted man. This is surrounded by a wreath design and underneath are words denoting the denomination. On the other side is a gum rather agreeable to the taste, provided one does not attempt to protract the licking process to any great extent.

Examine the stamp by holding it to the light and you will discern a dim watermarking, consisting of some portion of the letters "U. S." in block outline. A simple little affair, indeed, but the steps involved in turning out 30,000-000 of its counterparts a day are varied and by no means devoid of interest.

The paper on which the stamps are printed is the cheapest sort of wood pulp stock, weighing about fourteen pounds to every 480 sheets of the size of 17 by 22. A rag stock, though tougher and stronger, would not be suitable, as its surface, lacking porosity, would interfere with the process of gumming.

The watermark placed there as a safeguard against counterfeiting is formed while the paper is being made. As the damp fibers are being woven together the mesh passes beneath a copper cylinder, called a dandy roll, on which are raised the letters "U. S." in groups very close together.

These press against the soft forming sheet, somewhat changing the position of the fibers which they touch, and making the points of contact a trifle more transparent than the rest of the paper.

While the stamps of nearly all the European countries are printed from electrotypes, those of North and South America are printed from steel plates.

The United States government has spent much time and money in experimenting to find the most satisfactory method, and has adopted that of engraving, although it costs somewhat more than that employed abroad.

On comparing our stamps with those of France, for instance, one notices a marked difference. The former are more clear in detail and stronger in color than the latter, while they fade far less rapidly and are better able to withstand the assaults of the elements.

Our regular sizes of stamps are engraved in sets of 400, arranged 20 by 20. As they leave the printing press they are made to pass through a gummining machine, where a boiling hot preparation of glue is evenly distributed over them.

They then pass on to a dryer, which quickly hardens or sets the gum, after which they are perforated, five sheets at a time, and cut in four sections of 100 stamps each. They are then wrapped in bundles and packed in small cases, which are kept in vaults at a low temperature until shipped to the various postoffices throughout the country.—New York Evening Sun.

J. W. SCOTT ON THE EXHIBITION.

(Metropolitan Philatelist.)

The Stamp Exhibition is now the most important item of conversation amongst collectors. Who will exhibit? What will they show, and what chance has the ordinary collector? The average philatelist appears to be afraid that the conditions will be set so high that none but millionaires can compete. We want to remove this idea from the minds of all. There will be classes for both big and little, for great value and great care, for artistic arrangement and profound research. The last word has not been written about any country. Mr. J. B. Leavy made his name known through the world by a careful study of the despised Seebecks. Every collector cannot buy a 2c Hawaii Missionary, but fifty stamps of a dozen different countries can be arranged to make a much handsomer showing and to convey information that a single stamp, however rare, cannot give. It is the desire of the management to make the Exhibition a veritable college of Philately that every one can attend for the week it will be open and all leave wiser than when they entered. Stamps will be shown in the making, in the using as exemplified by a model post office, and as collected by the finest specimens that have ever been produced throughout the world, arranged in accordance with the views of the greatest experts of all civilized nations. Now is the time to remodel your collection if you think it possible of improvement. Fill up blank spaces, replace all damaged stamps and get everything in shipshape order. We hear a great deal about badly perforated stamps; they are as much in order as the finest. Your handwriting is not illustrated by a carefully written line but by the average letter that leaves your hand. The same rule applies to postage stamps. Mint specimens are those in the condition in which they left the post office, good or bad. A perfectly centered set of the first issue of British Solomon Isles does not represent the stamps of that distant possession of Great Britain, nor does a badly centered stamp (if one can be found) illustrate the stamps of Seychelles. The fundamental idea in stamp collecting is to show the world's artistic culture in a small space and no other series of objects on earth can do this as well as an ordinary stamp album. Herein lies the popularity of stamp collecting which commenced with the first hundred stamps which made their appearance and will last as long as stamps are issued and civilization continues on earth. The Exhibition will show all this and more, too. We therefore call upon all amateurs to get their collections in order and to do everything in their power to help their fellow collectors and the Exhibition which will do so much good for them individually and the cause in general.

BOSTON, MASS., May 21, 1912.

The 270th (regular) meeting of the Society was held at the Club Room this evening with 25 members and friends present. In the absence of both the President and Vice-President, Mr. E. M. Carpenter presided.

The following was read:—

Library Report for April and May, 1912.

There have been added to the Library since the last report:—Virginia Philatelist, Vol. III. (rebound and repaired), The Philatelist, Vols. 7-8 and 9-10 (rebound), Philatelic Era, Vol. X (repaired), 5 Vols. MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, 1907-11, (bound). Circular, Philatelic Gazette, Roessler's Stamp News, Collectors' Journal, New England Stamp Monthly and Griebert's Philatelic Notes and Offers.

The following were elected members:—
No. 559, Wm. C. Polk.
No. 560, Ernest W. Gilson.

A letter was read from the Secretary of the International Stamp Exhibition in New York and it was voted to have the President appoint a committee of three to co-operate with them in behalf of the Boston Philatelic Society.

Mr. Carpenter made an appeal for a larger membership in the American Philatelic Society from among the B. P. S. members and other philatelists of this vicinity, especially in view of the approaching Convention in Springfield.

There being no entries in the competition, it was voted to hold it again at the June meeting, making the number of stamps 25 instead of 50, and several entries were promised under these conditions. The same prizes will be offered.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

BELGIUM "SUNDAY LABEL" STAMPS.

A correspondent, suddenly developing a remarkably keen appetite for information regarding the so-called "Sunday Label" stamps of Belgium, bombards me with a shoal of questions such as, What are they for? Why are some stamps with and some without them? Why do some have labels at top and others at top and bottom? and as I do not think I have yet referred to these stamps in the WEEKLY I have no doubt other readers will be glad of information on the subject.

Ever since 1893 Belgian stamps have had a small label attached to the base inscribed in French "NE PAS LIVRER LE DIMANCHE," and Flemish "NIFT BESTELLEN OP ZONDAG" both meaning "Not to be delivered on Sunday." Any correspondence posted on Saturdays franked with stamps from which the small label has not been removed are not delivered on Sundays. If the small labels are detached—and their removal is a simple matter as they are perforated—then letters are delivered in the usual way. When the first stamps with these labels were issued the idea was not to continue their use indefinitely but to try to ascertain the wishes of the general public on the subject of the Sunday delivery of letters. Evidently it was found that opinions on the matter were about equally divided so that the labels have been continued in use to the present time. Thus strict Sabbatarians frank their letters with stamps having the labels attached while those hardened sinners who prefer to have letters delivered as quickly and often as possible just tear off the labels before affixing the stamps.

Stamps with label at top and those with two labels, one at top and one at bottom, are simply freaks caused by separating the rows of stamps incorrectly. The philatelic interest of such varieties is remote in the extreme. The same correspondent asks, "Why does Scott's 1911 catalogue record some as only with labels while others are recorded both ways?" This is merely a whim on the part of the cataloguers for, of course, all varieties from No. 46 of the ordinary stamps and No. 122 of the newspaper stamps can be collected with and without label if desired. Most collectors, however, treat the varieties without the label as incomplete and, in the case of the scarcer kinds, they are certainly of less value in this state.

It will be noted that on all the stamps issued from 1893 to date the two inscriptions in the label are placed one above the other but in the new issue now appearing they are placed side by side.

PRECANCELS.

Rarely a week passes without bringing me at least one query such as "What are precanceled stamps," or, "What does precanceled mean?" So that once again I will essay a short explanation. Precanceled stamps are stamps canceled before posting. The cancellations are, however, not effected in the usual manner with a postmark but are applied by means of the printing press to whole sheets of stamps at a time. The inscription of the cancellations is, as a rule, confined to the name of the town and State enclosed between bars. They are issued in this ready cancelled state to firms desirous of mailing large quantities of circulars, etc. at a time and their use entails a considerable saving of labor in handling such quantities of mail matter at the Post-offices.

SHORT REPLIES.

S. M. R. (Fayetteville, N. C.)—The reason why so many United States stamps have been issued in imperforate condition of late years is so that they can be used in the many automatic stamp-vending machines that have been placed on the market. The Government has now travelled a step farther in meeting the wishes of users of these machines by selling the stamps rolled in coils.

E. B. C. (Oregon City)—The various initials showing on the margins of the sheets of United States stamps are those of workmen who have attended to the "laying down" of those particular plates.

A. W. (Sutherland, Neb.)—The Indian stamp overprinted "C. E. F." you cannot find in the catalogue, is one of the set for the China Expeditionary Force listed on page 376 of Scott's 1911 edition. These stamps were first issued in 1900 for the use of the British troops employed in China during the Boxer troubles and they are still used in Pekin and other towns where British troops are still stationed.

R. A. C. (Oak Lane, Pa.)—The envelopes you mention without stamps are interesting as postal curiosities but have no particular value as prepayment of postage was not compulsory at that period.

R. L. B. (Chicago)—The Belgium 5c orange brown and 5c green stamps you mention as being "almost like the newspaper stamp of 1869-70 and 1884-91" are evidently Scott's No. 110 (or No. 114) and No. 121 respectively. (2) The surcharge of purple lines is probably a cancellation.

G. H. A. (Taunton, Mass.)—The "lightening flashes" or, as they are more usually termed, "thunderbolts" on certain of the stamps of Russia, are small arrow-shaped marks drawn through the small post-horns below the central coat-of-arms. (2) The corner letters on the British stamps of 1840, etc., do not constitute different varieties so far as the majority of collectors are concerned. The only people who bother about them are collectors trying to reconstruct plates. (3) You will find an explanation of the differences between single and multiple crown CA watermarks in last week's issue of the WEEKLY.

J. C. E. (Beach City, Ohio)—Scott's catalogue illustrates all the designs of the stamps of every country except those of the United States, to illustrate the latter being contrary to law. (2) The words "Du Pont" punched through your 2c stamp have no philatelic significance. Stamps are treated in this way by many large firms to prevent petty pilfering. (3) The catalogue value of this stamp is 8c.

Owing to the number of queries requiring attention this week "The Beginners' Guide" is unavoidably held over.

PRECANCELLED ERRORS.

F. L. SMITH.

Collectors of pre-cancelled postage stamps find that one or more differences occur in almost every issue. Whether all these differences should be called errors, and whether all should be collected, is a matter for each individual to decide upon. The specialist in gathering the history connected with his may properly want them; but the average collector may if the cause of the error be known, decide that some are of small interest. Information as to how these errors are made can seldom be had from the printer, and we must determine the matter by using our own judgment based upon what knowledge we have of printing methods. The methods of over-printing employed at the present are practically only two. The first consists in cancelling the stamps while in the sheet by a self inking hand roller having the design upon it in rubber. This is not a lasting material and the first impressions should be examined for errors, as after awhile the lines which at first were straight in crossing the stamp, will begin to curve and finally become wavy; or if the original design was a circle, as in Indianapolis, degenerate to an oval. Such a variation can hardly be called an error, and is only collectible if we wish to show the condition of the die. Akron with straight lines is a sample of a perfect stamp, and the wavy lines an imperfect one.

Double impressions from a roller are properly errors, and are not apt to be common, as usually but one row of stamps to the sheet will be impressed twice. It is caused by the roller, which has several dies upon it side by side, being started with the end die upon the last row previously cancelled.

It is in the second method of cancelling stamps that the greatest number of errors occur. In this the stamps are printed with a design set up separately for each stamp in type, or an electro of the same; in careless handling of the form a letter will get broken, a punctuation mark knocked off or the tail of a comma missing, and a number of other defects peculiar to type, some of which occur in printing. These are not original errors, but only imperfect specimens.

Lines running across the stamp are commonly printed with brass rule, one edge of which is a fine line, and the other, the thickness of the rule. Generally the thick edge is turned upwards to make a heavy line. Occasionally a mistake is made, and the thin edge is put up. This results in a wide and narrow line enclosing the town and state name; but to be sure this is the case; the line should be clear and sharp. A rule that is not perfectly upright in the chase, or as printers say, off its feet, will print the edge, thereby making a fine line. This can usually be told by one edge of the line not being sharp.

In spacing the ruled lines, errors are common from not placing the same number of leads between each, and occur in Chicago, and in fact in nearly all issues of lined stamps. Mr. Eagle has in his possession a 10 cent Chicago apparently first issue, but with lines the same distance apart as the wide dated specimens. As I do not find this in any other value of the first issue, it would appear to be an ordinary 10 cent stamp where the date dropped out before printing or most likely pulled out by adhesion during the printing, an accident that sometimes happens.

In stamps having single or double bars, or in other words where the lines are shorter than the stamp is wide, errors occur, and always in this manner. In cutting up the rule to the normal length, the remaining end will be so nearly the right size that the printer will use it rather than cut a new piece. In the first issue of Attica, three such errors are known. The variations in Scranton are of a different character, and an entire sheet is needed to explain the reason for so many breaks in the lines.

Errors occur in the space between words and dates, and are due to an extra space being put in to tighten up the line. In printing the stamps, when a fresh supply of ink is put on the table, if too much is used, you will have thicker letters and in some styles of type the dot to an i will be joined to the lower part, making it look like an l, or a c be closed, appearing to be an o.

This might be gone into at great length, but I think enough has been said to enable one to distinguish the various kinds of errors and determine which are important.—Precancel Monthly.

OLD U. S. POSTAL REGULATIONS.

By FRED GOSHERT.

If there is one thing that I like to do more than others, it is to rummage among old books, papers and correspondence. "Just to see what I can find" expresses the reason exactly. Recently in going through a box of such, belonging to a grand-father, a one time postmaster in a little village long since discontinued because of rural delivery, I came across some old Postal Guides and Postal Laws and Regulations. In going through these I found some very interesting reading, from a philatelic point of view.

For instance, how many are aware that at one time Uncle Sam used to sell postage stamps at a discount from face value. In the P. L. and R. of 1866 I find the following:—

"SEC. 307. The Postmaster General is authorized to sell, or cause to be sold to individuals, corporations and business firms, postage stamps, in quantities of not less than one hundred dollars in value, at a discount not exceeding five per centum from the face value of such stamps, and to sell, or cause to be sold, stamped envelopes, in packages containing not less than five hundred envelopes, at a discount not exceeding five per centum from the current prices thereof when sold in less quantities."

On the same page is a regulation, which if taken literally today, would put an end to all traffic in U. S. stamps by dealers in a hurry.

"SEC. 303. It shall not be lawful for any postmaster or other person to sell any postage stamp or stamped envelope for any larger sum than that indicated upon the face of such postage stamp, or for a larger sum than that charged therefor by the Post Office Department; and any person who shall violate this provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars. This act to take effect, and be in force from and after the commencement of the next fiscal quarter after its passage."

The above, of course, is intended to apply to P. O. employees selling stamps to patrons for postage. Since stamp dealers were a neglible quantity at that time this was sufficient. The present regulation reads:—

"No postmaster of any class, or other person connected with the postal service, entrusted with the sale or custody of postage stamps, etc., * * * * *" making the distinction quite clear.

Up to 1870, it was the occasional practice, in emergencies, to bisect stamps and use each portion for postage as half the value of the original stamp. Judging from the prices in the catalogue, where they are listed as minor varieties, this was not extensively indulged in. In the P. L. & R. of 1873 this practice was prohibited by the following regulation:

"SEC. 402. Fractional parts of postage stamps cannot be recognized in prepayment of postage. For example, a letter or package to which one two-cent stamp and the half of another two-cent stamp are affixed cannot be considered as having been prepaid threc cents, but only two cents; and a letter or package on which eighteen cents postage is chargeable cannot be prepaid in full by affixing a six-cent stamp and the half of a twenty-four-cent stamp, &c., &c."

The domestic postal rate in 1866 was uniformly three cents per half ounce or fraction, which approximately approached the present foreign rate, but the foreign letter rate at that time was almost exhorbitant in some cases and varied greatly according to what line of steamships transported the mail. The following are a few samples picked from ten pages of rates in force March 1, 1866. The amount given is the rate per half ounce.

In view of these rates, it behooved one who was so unfortunate as to have friends in "furrin parts" to write little and to the point.

In 1875, the Post Office Department, in honor of the Centennial to be held in Philadelphia the following year, prepared reprints of each series of stamps issued under its auspices, beginning with the 5 and 10c of 1847 and included the then current series of 1870. The official stamps of all of the departments and the newspaper and periodical stamps up to the issue of 1874, were included in this reissue. In a postal guide of that year appeared the official announcement, dated March 27, 1875, in part as follows:

"The Department is prepared to furnish, upon application, at face value, specimens of adhesive postage stamps issued under its auspices, as follows:"

Then is given the list of the various issues, their denominations, and the face value per set. The rest of the announcement is herewith given complete and contains a great deal of interesting information:—

"The 1847 and 1851 stamps are obsolete, and no longer receivable for postage. The subsequent issues of ordinary stamps are still valid. The newspaper and periodical stamps of 1865 are also uncurrent; those of the issue of 1874 can be used only by publishers and news agents for matter mailed in bulk, under the Act of June 23, 1874. The official stamps cannot be used except for the official business of the particular Department for which provided.

All the specimens furnished will be ungummed; and the official stamps will have printed across the face the word 'Specimen,' in small type. It will be useless to apply for gummed stamps, or for official stamps with the word 'Specimen' omitted.

The stamps will be sold by sets, and application must not be made for less than one full set of any issue, except the State Department official stamps and the newspaper and periodical stamps of the issue of 1874. The regular set of the former will embrace all the denominations, from 1 cent to 90 cents, inclusive, valued at $2; and any or all of the other denominations ($2, $5, $10 and $20,) will be added or sold separately from the regular set, as desired.

The newspaper and periodical stamps will be sold in quantities of not less than two dollars' worth in each case, of any denomination or denominations that may be ordered.

Stamps of any one denomination of any issue will be sold in quantities of two dollars' worth and upward.

Under no circumstances will stamps be sold for less than their face value.

Payment must invariably be made in advance in current funds of the United States. Mutilated currency, internal revenue and postage stamps, bank checks and drafts, will not be accepted, but will in all cases be returned to the sender.

To insure greater certainty of transmission, it is strongly urged that remittances be made either by money-order or registered letter. Applicants will also include a sufficient amount for return postage and registry fee, it being desirable to send the stamps by registered letter. Losses in the mails or by any mode of transmission must be at the risk of the purchaser.

☞ Applications should be addressed to 'THE THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL, WASHINGTON, D. C.'

No other stamps will be sold than are included in the above list; and specimens of stamped envelopes (either official or ordinary), or of envelope stamps, postal cards, or used stamps, will not be furnished in any case.

E. W. BARBER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General."

The entire five sets of the reissues of the postage stamps for public use, including the two 1c carrier stamps of 1851, could have been purchased for a few cents less than $10.00, but evidently very few were interested enough to avail themselves of this opportunity or else they were not preserved, for the catalogue value of the same five sets today is in the neighborhood of $1000. What would one of us give now for this same opportunity as was offered in 1875, provided that this offer was not made to any one else?

The set of 1870 is not a reissue but a special printing and is the rarest set of all. This is explained by the fact that the 1870 issue was in use in 1875 and the collectors at that time were not wide-awake enough to realize that the Centennial special printing of that set was a distinct variety and so did not supply themselves with them.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from R. E. Jessup (3), E. W. Bridge (3), Robt. L. Ekstrand, C. M. Breder (4).

—It was recently stated in the WEEKLY that the imprint "Bureau of Engraving and Printing" was soon to be omitted from our sheets of U. S. stamps. Herman W. Boers reports the new two-cent with imprint "A5896" only.

—Eugene Klein, Inc., will hold their tenth auction sale Friday and Saturday, June 14 and 15, at the salesroom of S. T. Freeman & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

—Edw. W. Bridge sends us several clippings giving the particulars of the establishing of an aeroplane mail in connection with the aviation meet at Saugus, Mass., May 30-31. The mail was carried but a short distance but sufficiently far for the meet to take its place with the similar events that have been thus dignified. Mr. Bridge made every attempt to favor us with the aero cancellation, but the card came through minus the same. It slipped a cog somewhere.

—Some one nodded last week! In the article "History From Postage Stamps" W. D. Haigh refers to Martha Washington as "the mother of the world famous George Washington."

—A. B. Frawley favors us with a photographic post card upon which are reproductions of two Cuban inverts. One is the special delivery and the other a block of four of the 1c.

—Can any subscriber favor us with the address of Wynn Warwick? If so we shall greatly appreciate the courtesy extended.

—Wm. Beaumont of Worcester, Mass., was a recent visitor at the WEEKLY office and submitted for our inspection a book of Canadian lock seals. These are all dated in 1872 and establishes a fact in relation to these seals which is not generally known.

—Congress is considering the issue of new paper money, in bills of smaller size than those now in use, but of the same denominations. The suggested change is from three and four-tenths by seven and twenty-eight one-hundredths of an inch—the present size—to two and one-half by six inches. It is no paradox to say that a man's pocket will hold more of the small bills, and yet that he may not be able to get any more of them into it.

—The Apex Stamp Co. is with us for the first time this week, and will continue to be represented in future numbers. They carry a select stock of stamps and our readers will do well to open relations with them, especially in the approval department.

—Louis Eder of Newark, N. J., submits an aeroplane post card used between Heidelberg and Mannheim, Germany, on May 19. The postmark is circular in form and contains the following:—"Flug Post, Heidelberg-Mannheim, 19.5.12." On the reverse side of the Offizielle Luft-Post-Karte" are views of the castle at Heidelberg and one of the water towers of Mannheim, the central design showing an aeroplane in flight. Our correspondent intimates that this view card with the 10 pfennig stamp attached will be a scarce article.

—F. M. Mason, Providence, R. I., reports unsatisfactory business relations with Gilbert W. Emerson, Philadelphia, Pa. Upon request for formal statement from collecting agency the attorney replied as follows:—"Replying to letter wherein formal report is wanted I beg leave to advise that execution was issued and the wife filed a property claim, which claim I enclose herewith. With the sending of this I have closed the account on my books." The affidavit in question was submitted for our inspection, and is now in Mr. Mason's possession.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

NEWTON, May 25, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Some of your readers may be interested in reading my personal experience with the Mutual Stamp Exchange, conducted by Mr. I. C. Greene, of Leominster, Mass. and in which only members of the "A. P. S." can participate.

I have so far entered 191 books in this Exchange. The value of the first 100 books entered was $771.44. My credit for stamps taken from above was $529.11. Up to date I have taken stamps to a value of $635.88 from the Exchange, have a credit of nearly $60 and over 40 books still in the Exchange.

To my mind this Exchange is equitably and most successfully run. I consider it one of the principal benefits to be derived from membership in our National Society, and I think A. P. S. members who do not patronize it are missing an opportunity to dispose of their duplicates very advantageously.

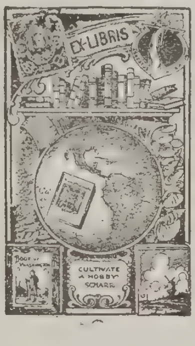
A COLLECTOR'S BOOK PLATE.

A great many people are interested in the subject of book plates and a decided novelty in this direction is one used by Geo. H. Scharr of Brooklyn, N. Y., as seen in the following picture:—



On the above book plate we find a torch representing enlightenment, a fitting emblem for the educational influence of philately. The word "asbestos" indicates interest in the collecting of minerals, of which he has a very fine lot. Old coins, shells, pictures and even photography are represented in the book plate, all of which is Mr. Scharr's own idea and shows the extent of the hobbies in which he is interested.

WASHINGTON STATE ORGANIZATION.

(Tacoma Ledger, May 29.)

Philatelists from Seattle and Tacoma gathered last night in the federal building in Tacoma and after poring over each other's stamp collections decided to unite in the formation of the Washington State Philatelists' society. Headquarters are to be maintained at Seattle owing to geographical position, and Tacoma and Spokane are to have branches with probably a vice-president for each city. Until January 1 the officers of the Seattle Philatelists' society will act as officers of the association, which is to incorporate as a stock company.

Last night's meeting brought out ten Tacoma stamp collectors, some of whom were gray-haired and all well along in years and it developed that there are 50 to 75 stamp collectors in the city whose combined collections are conservatively worth many thousands of dollars. The meeting brought from Seattle also about twenty enthusiasts of that city, among whom were many gray-haired collectors. With each man came his treasured stamp album and more than an hour was spent in going over these. Many of the collectors had special fads and collections, ranging in number from 3,000 to 20,000 different varieties.

The Tacoma collectors present were Lewis Johnson, A. A. Johnson, Dr. A. L. Chadwick, LeRoy Pratt, P. N. M. Carlsen, K. D. Powell, Charles Roediger, James A. Hays and V. D. Tomlinson. Among those who possess fine collections and who were unable to attend were P. C. Kaufman and Frank McCandless. Lewis Johnson showed one of the finest collections of any, numbering about 12,000 varieties and each page of the album made a work of art by beautiful designing about the stamps and coloring effects. Mr. Johnson has been collecting since 1900 and has spent more than three years on the work in his album.

The collection of Mr. Pratt, numbering about 10,000 varieties, he values at $10,000. His specialty is blocks of four of United States issues, but he possesses a fine collection of original letter covers also. Joseph A. Hyde of Seattle, has one of the finest collections of American issues in the Northwest, if not in the country.

The officers of the Seattle society are: President, C. J. T. Utermark; vice-president, August Ringer; secretary-treasurer, D. C. Bartley. V. D. Tomlinson of Tacoma, was elected secretary of the Tacoma branch.

HITCHCOCK NOT TO RESIGN.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has authorized a formal statement denying emphatically "that he had any intention of resigning as a member of President Taft's Cabinet." The statement was in reply to numerous published reports that he was about to retire from official life to engage in business.

Used Stamps By Weight

We continue to sell large quantities of our famous 10 pound bags to American dealers, who frequently send us repeat orders, showing that the stamps are giving satisfaction. The mixture is superior to any other at the price, containing as it does a greater number of countries but no U. S. A., Canada or Great Britain. We send a bag containing 10 pounds weight, securely packed and postage paid, to any address in the U. S. A. on receipt of a money order for $3.75.

EDITORIAL.

For Statistics—The third assistant postmaster-general, Mr. Britt, has instructed all postmasters "who have been authorized to issue precanceled postage stamps for use in payment of transient second-class matter and matter of the third and fourth classes" to report covering the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1912, on the following points of information, relative to precanceled stamps: 1. Number of patrons using precanceled stamps. 2. Number and value of each denomination of stamps precanceled. 3. Total number and value of all stamps precanceled. 4. Total number of pieces (by classes) of matter mailed with precanceled stamps.

In 1844—The observation appears in print occasionally that D. O. Blood & Company, who issued so many interesting stamps in connection with their famous local post or despatch, in Philadelphia, were the originators of the plan of denoting the hour in the postmarks applied on letters carried by them. The small Blood stamps, 1849-54 are common and as usually, they are preserved on the original letters, the collector naturally attends to the markings on them. As some of these covers include the hour on their postmarks and as it was not until years later that the government adopted the same convenience, it is apt to be assumed that Blood and Company were the innovators of the hour postmark. We have seen an hour postmark that antedates any of the similar ones of Blood, as it reads: Boyd's City Express Post, Aug. 10-9 o'c. The impression appears on a letter sent from Rochester, August 8th, 1844, that bears a Pomeroy letter express local; the letter was delivered in New York by the Boyd carriers under an agreement between the two companies.

Help—Mr. W. E. Whitnall of Liscard, Cheshire, England, whose singularly searching questions relative to obscurer details in connection with the issues of the United States have evoked much favorable consideration by and no little data of value from our readers wrote us some months ago as follows: "Many thanks for your kind reply re Postage Currency Notes in No. 1087. One line in your reply prompts me to trouble you further. You say 'The National Bank Note Co. were allied institutions.' The relation must surely have been an intimate one for the imprint of both companies to be on the face of the same bill. While this agreement or relationship was in existence, the stamps of the 1861 type were manufactured, and they are described as the work of the National Bank Note Company. Were they entirely so? In 1879—Had the National Bank Note Company ceased to exist, or had its agreement with the American Bank Note Company on the lines of the agreement ceased to exist? If in 1879, the National Bank Note Company was in existence and had similar relations with the American Bank Note Company, as in 1862, why were the stamps of 1879 by the American Bank Note Company? Did the National Bank Note Company also tender for the 1879 contract in competition with their allies? The American Bank Note Company (the successors of Rawdon, Wright, Hatch & Edson) absorbed the Continental Bank Note Company, February 4th, 1879,—see Luff, 'Postage Stamps of the United States,' pp. 34 and 35. Were the National Bank Note Company or the Continental Bank Note Company in any way successors of Toppan, Carpenter & Company.

Something—We have secured only a few of the barest details on the subject of the foregoing questions, which, inadequate as they are, will be given but it is hoped that some of our studious readers may be in a position to give fuller and further testimony. The vice-president of the American Bank Note Company has written us a courteous letter but he throws little actual light on the inquiries. The following details are pieced together from scattered sources. The National Bank Note Company, New York, and the American Bank Note Company, New York and Boston while separate organizations worked in harmony and in the case of some of the United States currency notes, they were the joint product of the two companies. Perhaps, the National Bank Note Company excelled in its portrait work while lathe and engine work was a specialty of the American Bank Note Company. In 1873, the Continental Bank Note Company of New York secured the contract for the production of the United States postage stamps; and in 1879, both the National and the Continental Bank Note Companies were consolidated with or absorbed by the "new" American Bank Note Company, which completed the Continental's contract with the government. In 1861, the American Bank Note Company did not compete, we learn, for the contract and had nothing to do with the manufacture of the postage stamps, the work of the National Bank Note Company. From certain minor indications, which taken in the aggregate afford a not illogical basis for the statement, we must reject the plausible supposition that the National Bank Note Company or the Continental Bank Note Company were "in any way successors of Toppan, Carpenter & Co." until some proof to the contrary is adduced.

In the Air—An aerial mail service was established at Cicero, Illinois, during the aviation field meet at that place which immediately adjoins Chicago on the west. The length of the meeting is four days, ending June 2nd, but the enthusiastic "general manager of the aero club" says that it "is our purpose to establish a permanent aerial postoffice at Cicero. If the four days' trial of the service prove successful, an application for the permanent office will be made to Postmaster General Hitchcock." Two trips daily were made to the two stations, with Cicero as the base and it was required of visitors who wished to send letters to their friends that the missives be stamped but a special aerial mail service postmark was used for cancellation. The establishing of an aerial mail service in any part of the country is now listed in the postoffice bulletin as nonchalantly as if it were the most ordinary routine.

Welcome—The question of the hour, Is the new catalogue out? painlessly subsides and we feel that an old friend has passed away. Now that the catalogue is "out" the collectors who are busily examining it will discover some justification for the delay in the manifest care with which many of the countries have been treated. We are pleased to see that as a handbook on philately, the catalogue is increasing in value, as we are in a position to know how insatiable is the demand for rudimentary information regarding the various issues and for explanation of the causes of different stamp effects, so to say. Of course, the prices in the catalogue are the thing but to instil a broader faith in philately it is fitting that constantly the way be made smoother for the eager beginner who wants to learn much that by many of us is accepted as a matter of course.

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

(Contributed by Edwin B. Hill.)

Among the stamps catalogued less than $2, which should be included in the hard-to-get class, is Chile No. 39a—5c on 30c rose carmine, surcharge inverted, of which only five sheets, 100 stamps to the sheet, were printed. The genuine stamp is certainly not plentiful. One well-known dealer's stock consisted of just seven copies which were at once absorbed by a specialist in Chile, with orders to "send on any more that turn up." I have seen only one unused copy, and fewer than a dozen used ones since the stamp issued Dec. 28, 1900. A large issue of forgeries in 1902 has the figures 14x13mm instead of 13½x12½mm, the genuine. There are also other slight differences.

NEWARK COLLECTORS DINE.

We learn from the Newark, N. J. Star that a very successful anniversary of the Newark Club was held May 31. We quote the report:—

Members of the Hudson County Stamp Club were guests last night of the Newark Stamp and Coin Club at the annual banquet of the latter, held in the club rooms, 827 Broad street. There were present about thirty stamp collectors from various parts of Hudson County and about thirty from Newark.

A. C. Roessler, president of the Newark Club, was toastmaster. Addresses were delivered by William E. Hiddin, formerly a stamp designer, who spoke upon "How Dies Are Made," and by E. W. Fuss, who talked of the "Twentieth-Century Issues."

During the evening many rare and valuable stamps were exhibited.

STAMPS OF TRINIDAD PRINTED BY PERKINS BACON AND CO.

A Paper Read Before the Royal Philatelic Society, London, on November 17, 1910.

By E. D. Bacon.

(Reprints of this article will be made uniform with the series advertised from time to time. These reprints fit into the blank album wherever needed and are supplied at 5c each. We furnish a neat binder for 30c which covers actual cost only.—Ed.)

Some years ago, more than I care to remember now, I wrote a paper on the early stamps of Trinidad. This paper appeared in the number of the Philatelic Record for February, 1890, and was reprinted with additional notes in the Philatelic Society's work on the Postage Stamps, etc., of the Brtish Colonies in the West Indies, published in September, 1891. In this paper I gave a list of the dates on which the various stamps were sent to the island by Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co., commencing with their first consignment of December, 1848, and continued down to and including that of March 24, 1860, but I was unable at that time to add the numbers of the stamps sent out.

A short while since I was permitted, through the kindness of Mr. J. D. Heath, the managing director of Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co., Limited, to compile a complete list of the stamps sent to Trinidad by the firm, with the exact number of each supply and other details as they appear in their books. The list, especially the latter portion dealing with the perforated stamps, will, I venture to think, be found of particular value, as nothing whatever has hitherto been published concerning the quantities printed of these highly interesting issues. A copy of the list is given in an appendix to these notes, and a few remarks thereon, will, I hope, prove acceptable to collectors.

To take the imperforate series first. It is evident the authorities in Trinidad had the intention of issuing postage stamps early in the year 1849, as a supply of "blue" and "lilac" stamps was sent out in December, 1848. For some reason now unknown, this course was not adopted and the introduction of stamps was postponed, as I showed in my previous papers, until April 11, 1851. Previous to this date a second supply had been ordered and received in the island consisting of "blue" and "brown" stamps, so if the first consignment had been preserved the postal authorities had stamps of three different colours on hand when the first issue to the public took place. My old contention that all the various coloured stamps, without expressed value, were sold at One Penny has long since been conceded. If further proof was needed on this point it is furnished in a letter published in Le Timbre-Poste for September, 1900, from Mr. William Eversley, a former Postmaster-General of the colony. This letter, which had been filed away and entirely forgotten, was found by Mr. J. B. Moens on going through his papers in 1900, the year when he retired from business. It is dated February 8, 1864, and Mr. Eversley therein states that the grey, blue, and red stamps all had the postal value of One Penny.

The colours, values, and other particulars in the list of the Perkins Bacon stamps, with the exception of the last column headed "Remarks," are given just as they are entered in the printers' books. It will be noticed that the colour grey does not appear against any of the consignments, although used specimens in grey and brownish grey are fairly plentiful. There is no doubt that these come from the 25,000 "lilac" stamps sent out in December, 1848, and that the colour has changed since they were printed. The "lilac" ink used by Messrs. Perkins Bacon & Co. was particularly susceptible to change, witness the alterations that have taken place in the colours of the first Six Pence stamps of Tasmania, Mauritius, Bahamas, and Natal, all of which are designated "lilac" in Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co.'s invoice books. The same remark as to alteration in colour applies with equal force to the supply of "purple" stamps on white paper that were sent out in July, 1854, as several different shades are found of this stamp.

No colours are added to the supplies forwarded in September, 1852, December, 1855, and December, 1856. The table of dated specimens of the Perkins Bacon printings I gave in the Philatelic Society's work on the stamps of the West Indies, pages 152-153, does not contain sufficient data to decide the colour of the first of these three parcels, but as regards the other two lots the tabulated list is, I think, quite decisive in enabling us to fix the colour in each instance as "red."

All the stamps sent to the colony previous to the year 1857 were on blued paper, with the sole exception of the lot of "purple" stamps forwarded in July, 1854, the pigment of which did not stain the paper. For the red and blue stamps Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co. made use of the same inks as they did for the One Penny and Two Pence stamps of Great Britain current at the same period. The date of the cessation in the blueing of the paper, therefore corresponds, and we know that this took place in the case of the One Penny stamp of the parent country in February, 1857, when a change of colour was introduced. It follows from this that the first Trinidad "red" stamps on purely white paper were those sent out in June, 1857, and these and the subsequent supplies were rose-red in colour. No stamps printed in blue were sent out after February, 1853, and consequently none in this colour can have been issued on purely white paper. Any such specimens of the brick-red, brownish-red or blue, must necessarily have had the blueing of the paper discharged. At the same time, it should be remembered that the blueing of the paper on different sheets was very uneven, and consequently it is possible to find individual specimens of all three stamps that show only slight traces of the stain.

A comparison of the list with the table of dated specimens already referred to enables us to give the order of issue of the various coloured stamps without expressed value. The stamps first issued seem to have been those I call reddish-puce, or perhaps a better designation for them is purple-brown; in the list they are simply called "brown." These were followed by the blue, which were succeeded by the grey of various shades, the "lilac" of the list. All these are found used in the year 1851. Then in 1853 there was a re-issue of blue stamps, and at the end of that year the brick-red and brownish-red stamps made their first appearance. In 1854 were issued the purple and grey stamps on white paper, all those previously described being on blued paper. These were succeeded by a further issue of brick-red stamps on blued paper in 1855-7, followed towards the end of the latter year, by the rose-red stamps on white paper, whch continued in use with but little change of shade until the end of the Perkins Bacon contract.

The list is again useful for the indications it affords of the months when locally printed stamps were likely to be wanted in the island. The dates I gave in my previous writings of the periods when the blue and grey lithographed stamps were in use, were:—

1. October, 1852, to June, 1853.
2. April to July, 1855.
3. November, 1856, to February, 1857.
4. Autumn, 1858, to February, 1859.
5. March to July, 1860.

For some years past Mr. M. P. Castle has made a special study of these native printed stamps. His researches have been embodied in a very interesting paper read before the Society in December, 1908, and subsequently published in the London Philatelist of September and October, 1909. The writer, with his usual perspicacity, deals exhaustively with his subject, and shows inter alia that the stamps of the later printings are capable of being "plated." He has, fortunately, also been able to compile a longer list of dated specimens than I had access to in the years 1890-1, and he divides the stamps into several printings, as follows:—

1. September, 1852, to April, 1853.
2. March to May, 1853.
3. March to June, 1855.
4. December, 1856, to January, 1857.
5. October, 1858, to June 1860.
6. March to May, 1860.
7. 1860.

There is in reality very little difference in these two tables, as my No. 1 includes the stamps on bluish card, which Mr. Castle puts under a separate number (No. 2); while his No. 7 (the stamp printed in red) is not included in my summary, which deals only with the blue and grey stamps, and which was simply intended as a statement of the periods when the stamps were in use, and not, as Mr. Castle has taken it, as an account of the printings. Two conspicuous points brought out in Mr. Castle's table prove that the date of the first issue of the lithographs can be put back from October 10, 1852 (the earliest day I was able to give) to September 26, 1852, and that of the same stamps issued in the year 1855 from my date of April 4 to March 25. It is certainly very gratifying to me to know that a student of Mr. Castle's acumen is so closely in agreement as regards the dates of use and the other deductions I came to about the native printed stamps when writing on the same subject more than seventeen years earlier.

If we now turn to Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co.'s list of stamps given in the Appendix, we are at once struck with the fact that if the sending of September 30, 1852, had been despatched a month or five weeks earlier, no provisional stamps would have been needed in the island in September of that year, the month in which Mr. Castle has shown they were first issued. But seeing that this consignment could not have reached the colony until the end of October, it is not surprising that the former supplies became exhausted in that month, and that arrangements had to be made for a local issue. A reference once more to the list shows that we might expect further deficiencies of the Perkins Bacon stamps in the island in March, 1855, November, 1856, October, 1858, and March ,1860, which are the dates we know from specimens on letter-sheets that the local stamps were in use. It also appears as if the use of the local stamps issued in March, 1855, must have extended beyond the month of June right up to the end of January, 1856, as there were no Perkins Bacon stamps sent out between July 31, 1854, and December 31, 1855. Another fact brought out by a study of the list is that at some periods when the local stamps were in use they appear to have been issued concurrently with the Perkins Bacon stamps, or at least there was a supply of the latter stamps in stock at certain times when the former were being used. A probable explanation of this overlapping is that the postal authorities decided to use up all the local stamps of each printing in spite of the fact that a fresh supply of the Perkins Bacon stamps arrived while there was a stock of the former on hand.

Before leaving the imperforate series, I should draw attention to the small numbers of the Four Pence (4000), Six Pence (9000), and One Shilling (7000), issued in May, 1859, which account for the great rarity of the Six Pence in an unused condition, and of the Four Pence and One Shilling in similar state before the remainders of these two values were unearthed some years ago.

REPUBLIC STAMP CO., Frankfort, Ky.

I now pass on to consider the peforated series. The first lot of perforated stamps sent out, as will be seen from the list, left London on August 4, 1859. The whole of this lot and those of the next three sendings of November 15, 1859, March 24, and May 14, 1860, consisted of the stamps known as pin-perforated 12½ and 13½, 14. All the four values are found with both gauges, but it is impossible to determine the quantities of each variety, as it is practically certain that both the gauges were used for all, or nearly all, the lot of stamps sent out on the four dates mentioned. Judging from the rarity of specimens at the present day, there was a larger number of each value with the 13½, 14 gauge than with the 12½ gauge. Of the One Shilling there was only one small lot of three thousand stamps, which contained both gauges, and as no remainders of this value have been found, it is not surprising that the stamp is a real rarity with either gauge of the pin-perforation.

The stamps of the next consignment, that of July 5, 1860, consisting of One Penny, Four Pence, and Six Pence values, had the clean-cut machine perforation, measuring 14 to 16½. As Lieut. F. H. Napier and I pointed out in the account we wrote of the Perkins Bacon perforating machines in our Handbook on Grenada, these Trinidad stamps were the first of all postage stamps to be perforated by the new machine acquired by Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co., in the summer of 1860. They have clean-cut holes on all four sides, and show that the work of the machine at the outset of its career was as perfect as that of the best machines of the present day.

There now remain the two lots of stamps of 1861, which were despatched from London on April 27 and December 21 of that year. These are the stamps we find with the rough perforation 14 to 16½, which was made by the same machine as that used for the supply of July, 1860, and which shows the remarkable deterioration that so quickly took place in the work of the machine, even after it had been repaired in January, 1861.

I must now proceed to direct attention to certain varieties of the Four Pence, Six Pence, and One Shilling stamps that are found in some of the current catalogues. In the imperforate issue two distinct colours are given of all three values. Now these stamps were printed from plates containing 240 specimens, so if we turn the numbers of stamps sent out to the colony into sheets, we find that there were only 16⅔ sheets of the Four Pence, 37½ sheets of the Six Pence, and 29 1-6 sheets of the One Shilling. The quantities being so small, it seems impossible that there can have been two mixings of the colours for any one of these stamps, and, as they were the first supplies of these values to be sent out, the printers had no surplus stock of sheets from a previous printing to make use of, as we know they had at subsequent dates.

AITUTAKI.—The King Edward ½d stamp of New Zealand has appeared surcharged in red for Aitutaki, similar to the Niue surcharge chronicled in No. 1103. We are indebted to Whitfield King & Co. for a specimen.

Adhesive.

Surcharged on New Zealand stamps.
½d yellow green; red surcharge.

BERMUDA.—Gibbons' Monthly notes the issue of three more values in the "Hog Money" or ship type.

Adhesives.

1sh green.

BOLIVIA.—Der Philatelist reports the issue of another provisional, the 2c of 1909 having been surcharged "20 cents—1911," in green.

Provisional Adhesive.

20c on 2c green and black.

CANADA.—All the way from France comes the information that the agitation for printing the Canadian stamps with values in French as well as English has been revived. At present the proposal is to place the word "sous" between the figures of value, as well as "cents."

CHILE—The current set of stamps, which has been in use only a few months, is shortly to be superceded by an entirely new series, according to Maury's Collectionneur. The new set will run from one centavo to two pesos, the colors and designs of the different values being as follows:—1c green, portrait of Diego Portales; 2c rose, portrait of Arturo Pratt; 3c dark brown, portrait of Lord Thomas Cochrane; 4c red brown, portrait of Camilo Henriquez; 5c blue, monument of Bernardo O'Higgins; 10c gray, portrait of Ramon Freire; 12c rose, portrait of Manuel Blanco Encalada; 15c scarlet, portrait of Francisco Antonio Pinto; 20c violet, portrait of Joaquim Prieto; 25c red brown, portrait of Manuel Balnes; 30c dark green, portrait of Manuel Montt; 50c blue, portrait of Jose Joaquim Perez; 1p orange, a condor; 2p bronze, monument of Jose San Martin.

COLOMBIA.—Something is forward in Colombia, regarding to the issue of a new series of stamps, says Maury's Collectionneur. The Colombian Government has decided to abandon the policy of having its stamps printed locally by the lithograph process, and has invited bids from the leading houses of the world for the furnishing of an entirely new series to be printed from steel plates. The particulars of the proposed series are as follows:—

2,000,000	½c dark violet; portrait of Caldas.
4,000,000	1c green; portrait of Narino.
8,000,000	2c red; portrait of Santander.
2,000,000	5c blue; portrait of Bolivar.
1,000,000	10c orange; portrait of Sucre.
500,000	20c olive; portrait of Ricuarte
100,000	50c red brown, portrait of Cordoba.
200,000	1p lilac; Arms of Colombia.
50,000	5p black on yellow; portrait of Camilo Torres.
20,000	10p black on green; Arms of Colombia.
50,000	4c violet; registration stamps; Allegory of Colombia.
250,000	10c light blue; registration stamps; view of Cataract of Tequendama.
50,000	2½c carmine; Too Late stamps; Arms of Colombia.
50,000	5c yellow green; A. R. stamps; view of Government Palace.
20,000	4c gray; "Urgente" express stamps.
50,000	2x2c red; reply card.

FRANCE.—Colonies in West Africa.—In No. 1099 we announced, on the authority of Die Post that new stamps were in preparation for the African Colonies of Dahomey, French Guinea, Ivory Coast, Mauritania, Senegal and Upper Senegal. A recent number of Maury's Collectionneur prints an interview with M. de la Neziere, who has designed the new stamps, and also gives illustrations of the designs. All six are of practically the same size, or very nearly the same as the previous issues for French West Africa. As stated in No. 1099, the design selected for Dahomey shows a native climbing a bread palm tree, the shape of the stamp being an upright oblong. "Dahomey" appears at the top and "Afrique—Occidentale—Francaise" at the bottom, the figures of value being printed in ovals at the sides. The design for Guinea is also an upright oblong, with the inscriptions arranged as for Dahomey, except that the value is placed in a circle above the name of the Colony at the top of the stamp. The design shows three native carriers crossing a ford. The design for Ivory Coast is a horizontal oblong, the central design shows a native boat on a river, a pretty scene. The figures of value will be placed in large circles in the lower corners, the position of the inscriptions being reversed from those mentioned above. The design of the Senegal stamps, also a horizontal oblong, shows a Sengalese market, with natives sitting and standing. The values will be printed in large circles at the ends, the name of the Colony being at the bottom as for Ivory Coast. All of these designs have figures of idols and fabulous animals, etc., in the wide frames.

The design for Mauritania shows a child riding on an ox, with the driver walking alongside. Unlike the other horizontal oblong stamps, the name of the Colony appears at the top, the values being printed in large irregular octagon tablets in the upper corners. The last design, that for Upper Senegal, or Haut Senegal-Niger, as the stamps have it, shows a different idea, the frame being composed of lattice work, with an arched top, and the picture of a native warrior on a camel. The figure of value will appear in the circle formed by the arch, the name of the Colony being again at the top of the stamp.

The designs for Mauritania and Guinea have been engraved by M. Puyplat, and will be the first to appear, it is expected, possibly in July or August. The designs for Ivory Coast and Upper Senegal have been engraved by M. Foment, these four being engraved on wood, we gather from the Collectionneur. The designs for Senegal and Dahomey have been engraved on bronze, by M. Mignon. The postage due stamps will be the same for all six colonies, showing the words "Chiffre Tax" and "A percevoir" borne on a broad circular band, with the name of the colony above and "Afrique—Occidentale—Francaise" below. The value will appear in a large square central tablet, imposed upon four curved brackets within the circle. In size the postage due stamps will be much smaller than the regular postage stamps.

GUATEMALA.—Dr. Roy F. Desart reports having seen the 20c and 75c values of the current set, Scott's Nos. 119 and 121, perforated "Oficial," in used condition.

INDIA.—Jaipur.—The handsome series of 1904-06 has been imitated by local artists and printers, but in a very bungling and unsatisfactory way. Four values have been seen, the 2a being printed in two shades of green.

Adhesives.

¼a yellow.
½a ultramarine.
1a rose.
2a gray green.
2a dark green.

NIUE.—Two more stamps of the current New Zealand set have been surcharged for use in Niue, in addition to the ½d chronicled in No. 1103. The type is the same as that used in the earlier surcharges, the printing being very neatly done in black. Specimens have been shown us by Whitfield King & Co.

Adhesives.

Surcharged on New Zealand stamps.
6d carmine rose; black surcharge.
1sh vermilion; black surcharge.

PERSIA.—Owing to the fact that a large quantity of the current stamps were stolen from certain Persian Post-offices during the recent difficulties, the remainders were surcharged "Officiel" and Persian characters. Mail matter now coming to this country and England is franked with stamps of this character. As the regular official stamps bear the word "Service" there is no chance for confusion.

URUGUAY.—Dr. Roy F. Desart reports that the new Uruguay official stamps are watermarked very irregularly, some showing double-lined letters while others show no watermark at all.

THE STAMPS OF TRINIDAD.

One must, therefore, search for some other explanation of the three varieties; i. e., the Four Pence, dull purple; the Six Pence, bright yellow-green; and the One Shilling, purple-slate. I have never myself seen satisfactory specimens of any of these three stamps, and as the colours correspond exactly with some of the pin-perforated issue, and the latter stamps are frequently found with good margins between the design and the perforation, I believe that they have been inserted in the catalogues from pin-perforated specimens, which have had the perforations removed. But I shall be told that there is an unusual imperforate pair of the Four Pence, dull purple, in the "Tapling Collection." This is undoubtedly so, but the pair in question came, to my knowledge, from an official source. It certainly was never sent to the colony, and can, therefore, have no bearing upon my argument one way or the other.

Of the pin-perforated series the total number of sheets of the Four Pence was 87½, of the Six Pence 158⅓, and of the One Shilling 12½. It is impossible to say for certain how many printings were made for these stamps, but it seems probable that there were three for each of the two lower values. At any rate, we know from the correspondence between Messrs. Perkins Bacon & Co. and the Agents-General for the Crown Colonies that the twelve sheets of the Four Pence forwarded on November 15, 1859, were from stock left on hand, that they had not sufficient stamps to complete the order, and had therefore to make a fresh printing of the Four Pence and Six Pence, which did not leave London until March 24, 1860.

In the next issue with the clean-cut perforation there were 37½ sheets of the Four Pence and 58⅓ sheets of the Six Pence. A fresh printing was made for both values, but amongst the stamps sent out there were, no doubt, some surplus sheets of the last printing made for the pin-perforated stamps, as the Four Pence is found in exactly the same shade of brown-lilac and the Six Pence in precisely the same shade of bright yellow-green, in both sets. A One Shilling, indigo, has of recent years been added to the catalogue lists of the stamps with clean-cut perforation. Here, again, I can but repeat that I have seen no genuine specimen, although I have examined copies of which the perforation was forged. The list of the Perkins Bacon stamps proves that no supply of the One Shilling was sent out with the three other values in July, 1860, and this is strong evidence against the postal issue of such a variety. Specimens do, however, exist of the One Shilling, indigo, which undoutedly belong to one of the two consignments that went out to the island in 1861, although they bear a cleaner cut perforation than the majority of those specimens. As I have already mentioned, the perforating machine was repaired in January, 1861, and although for a short time it made clean-cut holes, in a month it worked badly again, and could only produce the form of perforation known as "intermediate between the clean-cut and rough," and then it soon degenerated to such an extent as to be only capable of producing the purely rough perforation. Now the first parcel of stamps sent to the island in 1861 left on April 27, and must therefore have been perforated before that date, so it is not remarkable if a sheet or two out of the lot had the "intermediate" form of perforation. It is to this variety of perforation that these specimens of the One Shilling, indigo, belong.

Of the stamps with rough perforation there were 126 sheets of the Four Pence, 109 sheets of the Six Pence, and 38 sheets of the One Shilling, and no doubt two printings were made of all three values. Some catalogues give no less than four colours for the One Shilling, viz., "indigo, violet-blue, lilac-blue," and "bright blue." In my opinion there are only two true colours to be found of this value with rough perforation, viz., indigo and deep bluish purple, the latter of which appears in the catalogues as "violet-blue." Both these colours are very easily changed, and remembering the small number of sheets that were sent out of each printing, i. e., 17 and 21 respectively, I believe that the "bright blue" is a colour changeling produced from an indigo stamp, and that the "lilac-blue" variety is a colour changeling made from a copy of the One Shilling deep bluish purple. I know no more difficult philatelic problem than that of determining and naming correctly the colours of the Trinidad Four Pence and One Shilling stamps of the different printings of Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co. I have done my best, with the help of the printers, to simplify the ordinary catalogue list, but I cannot hope, nor do I expect, to at once convert every collector to the opinions I have expressed.

To compensate in some measure for the eliminations I have made, I have an addition to make to the stamps pin-perforated 14 of a One Shilling, indigo, a specimen of which is in the collection of Mr. H. J. Duveen. The existence of this variety proves that in the small sending of 3000 pin-perforated stamps of August, 1859, there were a few printed in indigo, which almost certainly came from surplus sheets left over from the supply of imperforate stamps sent out in April, 1859.

In conclusion, and to refer to the list of the Perkins Bacon stamps for the last time, it will be seen that the final supply sent out by the firm left London on December 21, 1861. Looking at the increased quantities of stamps that were wanted by the colony in the years 1859-61, clearly shown by the list, and the absence of any issue of provisional stamps in 1862, it appears to be almost a certainty that Messrs. De La Rue and Co. must have forwarded their first printing of Trinidad stamps in that year and not in 1863, which has for many years past been the date assigned for the first De La Rue stamps.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS GUIDE.

SEPARATION.

In dealing with design, color, paper, and watermark I have, as explained in my preliminary notes, described what we may term the essential constituents of a postage stamp. We have now to consider what for want of a better word we may call the "afterthoughts"—that is gum, for the simple attachment of the labels to letters, etc., and perforation or some other method of easily separating the stamps one from the other.

The earliest stamps of all were issued imperforate and the only way of separating them was to cut them apart with knife or scissors. Obviously this was a slow and somewhat clumsy way of doing things and as postage stamps became more and more in demand, inventive brains tried to devise some method by means of which stamps could be easily and quickly separated. Mr. Henry Archer, an Irishman, was the first to solve the problem that led to the general perforation of stamps,—at any rate he was the first to shape the idea into practical form, for he invented and perfected a machine for perforating sheets of stamps which was ultimately purchased by the British Government in 1854. The lead given by Great Britain was slowly followed elsewhere and at the present time the only imperforate stamps issued in civilized countries are those that have escaped the perforation machine through error or those sold intentionally in this state for use in stamp vending machines. The United States was one of the first countries to grasp the many advantages conferred by perforation and in 1857 its first perforated stamps made their appearance.

There are two chief kinds of perforation—those in which small pieces are cut right out of the paper between the stamps, and those in which a series of cuts or slits penetrate the paper without actually removing any of it. The first of these represents perforation proper, and is the method most generally employed, while the other represents rouletting.

The ordinary and most commonly met with sort of perforation is made by rows of hollow punches which cut out small circular pieces of paper from the spaces between the vertical and horizontal rows of stamps. There are three distinct types of machines used for this work. These are known as "guillotine," "comb," and "harrow" machines respectively. The first of these is the simplest and represents the earliest type. This perforates a single row at a time so that after the vertical rows have been perforated the sheet has to be turned round so that the horizontal rows can be treated. The machine is so adjusted that after each row has been perforated the sheet of stamps is automatically moved forward so that the punches may descend on the next space. This system is the only one that has ever been used in connection with United States stamps. Next we have "comb" machines. These have a long row of punches to which smaller rows are attached at regular intervals at right angles. Each stroke, therefore, perforates three sides of the stamps in each horizontal or vertical row so that the sheets only have to go under the machine once. The stamps of Great Britain and most of those of the British Colonies are now perforated by this method. "Harrow" machines perforate an entire sheet or pane of stamps at a time. This method is not employed very extensively, though these machines have been used in the Portuguese Mint for a number of years. Specialists distinguish between the work of these three sorts of machines but this is hardly a matter that need trouble the beginner.

The various other methods of separation, which merely prick holes or cut slits in the paper without actually removing any of it, are classed under the general heading of roulettes. Where sharp pointed instead of hollow punches are used, pricking holes in the paper, the stamps are said to be pin-perforated. In this case the "perforations" are made in the same manner as those more ordinarily met with, i. e. by means of a single-line machine. The most common form of roulette consists of straight rows of small cuts or slits. These small cuts are made by means of little wheels or discs of metal with tiny projections on the circumference. As a rule several of these rouletting wheels are arranged on a spindle at proper intervals so that an entire sheet of stamps can be rouletted vertically or horizontally at once. Other varieties have the cuts arranged in curves, zig-zags, etc. but these are so rarely met with that their description is hardly necessary in an elementary paper of this sort. Lastly, we have what is known as "rouletting in colored lines" which is not true rouletting at all though it produces the same effect so far as the separation of the stamps is concerned. This process can only be used in the case of those stamps printed from plates formed of separate clichés. Between the rows of stamp blocks printer's "dotted rule" is inserted. This rule is a little higher than the level of the blocks so that when the printing ink is applied the rule is not only inked but also pierces the paper. Thus, in these cases the stamps are printed and perforated at the same time. So far as stamp-collectors are concerned this is the most perfect form of separation for each stamp has an even margin on all four sides. But the fact that it can only be used where the printing plates are made from single blocks has prevented its very extensive use.

SHORT REPLIES.

D. R. (Bloomington).—A tête-bêche is a pair of stamps one of which is inverted in relation to the other. (2) The imprints and plate numbers of United States stamps will generally be found in the centre of the margin on each sheet of 100 stamps as delivered to the Post Offices. As these sheets are only quarters of the original sheets, as printed, the margin only shows on two sides.

E. B. C. (Oregon City).—Your Bolivian stamp perforated 11½ instead of 14½ is either a forgery or a perforated proof. You will find a reply to your other query in last week's issue of the WEEKLY.

ENVELOPE AND POST CARD CATALOG.

Would you not like a complete catalog illustrating and pricing the envelopes and post cards of the entire world? We know only one catalog that does this—Bright's. Price of catalog is 42c, but we will make you a present of one if you renew your subscription for two years. Makes no difference when subscription expires. Remit $1.00.

A P. O. DEPARTMENT BONFIRE.

A bonfire was recently held by the Post-office Department of over 170,000 Christmas postal cards, barred because of their tinsel decoration, notification having been made that these cards are unmailable on account of danger to the clerks in handling. The number sent in spite of the warning shows that men and women are but children of a larger growth, who keep on doing things apparently because they have been told not to do them.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—The following new precancels have been reported by Donald Graham, F. B. Eldredge, S. M. Schoemann and Edward Howard:—

Cleveland, Ohio, 1c 1912, normal; type IV; perf. 8½ vert.
Chicago, Ill., 1c 1912, normal; no lines; type V.
Chicage, Ill., 2c 1912, normal; type V.
Chicago, Ill., 50c 1912, normal; type V.
Chicago, Ill., 10c 1912, inverted; type V.
Tacoma, Wash., 1c 1911, normal. type I.
Minneapolis, Minn., 8c 1910, normal; type VII.
Minneapolis, Minn., 3c 1910, normal; type VII.
Covington, Ky., 1c 1910, normal; type IV.
Boston, Mass., 3c 1910, normal; type V.

The Philatelic Gazette says that it has not yet been officially decided that no more imperforate sheets above the 2c value will be issued. The demand for legitimate purposes has been so small, however, that it was thought best to discontinue the issue for the present. Coiled stamps will continue to be supplied as formerly. The 1c and 2c will be furnished perforated, either horizontally or vertically, while the 3c and 4c will be supplied only perforated vertically. There seems to have been a supply of 4c perforated 12 still on hand, as some were placed on sale quite recently, but we have not heard of any perforated 8½. The 5c in coils will be furnished no longer.

ANGOLA.—Whitfield King & Co. send us the King Manuel series, surcharged "Republica" as usual. We have not previously seen this new series, which is the same as the Cape Verde series, with the exception of the arrangement of the values and the name of the Colony. The figures of value are in fancy type, in colorless type on colored ground, those of Cape Verde being in plain heavy type on white ground.

AUSTRALIA.—The Commonwealth of Australia is having trouble over the accepted design for its new stamps as well as England and Belgium. This design, a kangaroo imposed on a map of Australia, was recently printed in MEKEEL'S, so that our readers will readily see the point of the following caustic comments from Australian newspapers:

If simplicity is the quality to be aimed at in a stamp, this design should take a lot of beating. It is simple to the verge of severity. That is the best that can be said of it. The small object in front of the kangaroo is not a turnip nor a rabbit. It represents a tuft of grass—so Mr. Frazar the Postmaster General says.—Sydney Telegraph.

The design adopted for the Federal postage stamps is a reflection upon Australian art. Nobody pretends, of course, that it is a triumph of either beauty or symbolism; it being simply the one that happened to catch the Minister's eye and fancy when he suddenly decided to clinch the matter. The kangaroo is characteristic of Australia in a sense, but not in the sense requisite for a postage stamp. The animal with the phenomenal tail was more truly characteristic of Australia before the coming of the white man; and would have been a quite fitting design for a stamp issued by a tribe of blackfellows. A modern design, however, should in some way have summarized Australia; it should have figured forth the "idea" of Australia; it should, that is to say, have been an example of idealistic rather than realistic art. As it is, it falls below the realistic glory of a jam label, and is about equal to the kind of brand one would expect to see on a sample of potted marsupial.—Sydney News.

The new Commonwealth stamp is a delight to the humorist, but a grief to all others. It must have been conceived as a joke. It is a libel on Australia, because its obvious embodiment of a "white" policy is interrupted by a dozen blades of grass, as if the continent were really "Australia Deserta," and could grow no more! "Thus bad begins, but worse remains behind"—the clump of what might be grass so suspiciously resembles a rabbit that one suspects a worldwide intimation of the persistence of the pastoralist's pest. Why should a kangaroo rampant in a rocky Sahara

FREE SCOTT CATALOG

If your name is on our Mailing List and purchases have amounted to $5.00 or more in the past two months you are entitled to a Free Scott Catalog, and if you have not received a copy please advise us and we will attend to the matter. When you consider that the price of the catalog is 15% or more of the amount required to be bought and that we sell many stamps at 10% over cost, you will see that the profit on the first $5.00 worth bought is a minus quantity. No other dealer offers a free catalog with new issues, which is a much different proposition from selling stamps bought by the lb. at a few cents per M. Our customers stay with us keeping their names on our Mailing List. If they don't we both lose.

continent, contemplating a badly drawn rabbit in a miserable clump of herbage, constitute our national stamp?—Sydney Mail.

Commenting on the above, the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly says:

"There!" as Mr. Squeers would have said, "there's richness for you!" For ourselves we shall suspend judgment until we see something better than a newspaper illustration from a cheap process block. But in the meantime a friend to whom we have shown the above cut asks (apparently in all innocence) why the kangaroo is not wearing boxing gloves! It is so difficult to please everybody.

BELGIUM.—The Belgians appear to be as little pleased with their new stamps, as were the English with the King George issue, if we may judge from a recent interpellation in the Belgian Senate. We translate freely from Lemaire's Journal des Philatelistes:

M. Houzeau de Lehaie, with suitable apologies of course, had the temerity to ask the Minister of Posts if he had yet examined the new stamps. M. de Broqueville, presumably the aforesaid Minister, said it would give him pleasure to show M. de Lehaie the series of horrors which had been submitted to him.

M. de Lehaie said that "the lion on the 5c stamp showed absolute ignorance of heraldry. They have bungled the national lion. The socialists, possibly, would view this with an indifferent eye, but how had the Minister tolerated it? What is this lion with two tails? That is absurd. What is this lion who has his paw upon the public treasury, containing only five centimes? That is not a lion, that is a wise dog. They say that the 10c stamp represents the portrait of King Albert, but that is not true. Look at the new pieces of money; there is a portrait of the King. The head of the King has some character, that which figures on the stamp has none." M. de Lehaie closed his speech, amid general hilarity, with the hope that these stamps will be kept in service only long enough for the time necessary for collectors to put them in their collections.

Elsewhere, it is stated that there is great objection in Belgium to the portrait of the King as it appears on the stamps, as critics say it appears to make him crosseyed. Some press dispatches say the objectionable stamps are to be replaced at once.

CHINA.—F. B. Eldredge reports that his personal mail from China has come through with Nos. 89 and 91, surcharged with four Chinese characters vertically, as previously noted.

GIBRALTAR.—Morocco Agencies.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 1d King George stamp of Great Britain, second type, surcharged "Morocco—Agencies" at the top, like the 4d stamp recently chronicled, with the further surcharge of "10 Centimos" at the bottom.

Adhesive.

On Stamps of Great Britain.
"10 Centimos" on 1d carmine; surcharge black.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Marsh's Circular reports the issue of 1d post card, with portrait of King George. The design is the same as that on the 1d letter card, and the inscription is similar to that on the last issue of King Edward cards, excepting the arms now have the helmet and mantling added. The color of the stamp is more of a vermilion red than carmine red, and the card itself of a deeper tint of buff.

Post Card.

1d scarlet on buff.

Mr. Schachne reports having the King George 1d card, which is identical with the buff King Edward card except the stamp and arms.

Post Card.

1d red on buff, 140x90mm.

Offices in the Levant.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the new printing of the 2sh 6d King Edward stamp, on ordinary paper, surcharged "12 Piastres," as previously.

HAYTI.—The Berliner Briefmarken Zeitung notes that the 2 centimes de gourde has been issued in a paler shade, or "sulphur" yellow.

INDIA.—W. H. Peckitt has now shown us the ½a, 2½a and 6a values of the new King George set. The 2½a is ultramarine and not pale blue, as stated in the London Philatelist. Whitfield King & Co. have also shown us the ½a and 2½a values.

Patiala.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the ½a and 1a stamps of the King Edward set for India, "Postage and Revenue" type, surcharged "Patiala —State," in two lines, in black.

Adhesives.

½a green.
1a carmine.

PORTUGAL.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly says there is a rumor that the new stamps, with values in centavos, are to be surcharged with the equivalent in reis, presumably to assist the natives in arriving at an appreciation of the new currency, and incidentally to benefit the Portuguese treasury.

SAN MARINO.—Maury's Collectionneur reports that the 1c brown of 1907 is now printed on yellow paper.

Adhesive.

1c brown on yellow.

SOUTH AFRICAN UNION.—The Government of the Union has placed an order with the printers for a series of stamps, with portrait of King George. The contract is to run for five years, and the estimated quantity of stamps to be furnished each year is 100,000,000.

SPAIN.—The Philatelic Journal of Great Britain says that the 1 peseta value of the current set has just been issued, though Scott's Catalogue has priced it for nearly two years.

TRENGANNU.—The two higher values of the current set, announced some time since, have now been issued. The design is the same as the lower values, though larger.

Adhesives.

$5 lilac and green.
$25 green and rose.

VICTORIA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the current 3d stamp has been issued in buff instead of orange. The ½d stamps in the two shilling booklets are now arranged in three rows of four stamps, instead of two rows of six as formerly.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 8d pale yellow green on paper watermarked Crown A.

PROVISIONAL NEUTRALITY STAMPS OF REPUBLIC OF CHINA.

Early in February the stamps of the regular 1898-1910 issue of China were surcharged with four Chinese characters, reading Ling shih chung li, to mean "provisional neutrality"—literally "temporary middle stand." These stamps were prepared in the offices of the Imperial Chinese Post Office. Some of the stamps were sent to Foochow to replace the exhausted stock there, and were issued to the public for two days. I am informed by the Commissioner at that port that the values issued were as follows:—

3c greyish green,	surcharged in	red.
$1 red and flesh	"	black.
$2 claret and yellow	"	"
$5 myrtle and salmon	"	"

Postage Due Stamps.

½, 2, 4, 5, 10, 20, and 30 cents.

A telegram was sent by the Director of Communications of Fuhkien province (Foochow being the capital of the province) to the Department of Foreign Affairs of the Republican Government, requesting them to instruct Mr. Piry, the Postal Commissioner, to withdraw the stamps. A translation of this as given in the Official Gazette is as follows:—

"The stamps which bear the characters, Ling shih chung li, or 'provisional neutrality,' as designed by Mr. Piry, the Postal Commissioner at Peking, have been sent down to Fuhkien to be issued. I have repeatedly requested Mr. Pot, the Postmaster at Foochow, to devise means to withdraw such stamps and postpone the issuance of same pending the arrival, at Foochow, of a telegraphic reply from the Central Government. I have not as yet received the reply; but as this affair relates to the sovereign rights of the Republic, I deem it necessary to request that you promptly take up the matter with Piry, the Postal Commissioner, and advise me at once as to the result of your consultation."

The Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Military Republic of China, Dr. Wang Chung Hui, now resident in this city, Nanking, objected to the phrase used on the stamps, remarking to me in a personal conversation that "a nation might be neutral, but to call a stamp 'neutral' was absurd." As a result of his objections the issue at Foochow was immediately withdrawn. I have so far been unable to discover how many of each value were actually sold to the public.

The stamps surcharged horizontally with the four characters, Ling shih chung li (provisional neutrality), were further surcharged vertically with four characters reading Chung Hua Ming Kuo, to mean "Chinese Republic"—literally "Middle flowery people's nation." These were sent to the offices here, and they were received in Nanking a few days ago, sent out from the local Postal Commissioner's Office at four p. m., March 21st, to two of the station offices in this city, the Sanpai-lou station and the Chung-cheng-kai station, where they were placed on sale at nine o'clock on March 22nd, 1912. They were only on sale for two hours, as a telegram was received by the Postal Commissioner from the Postal Commissioner at Peking instructing his office to withdraw the stamps from circulation, which was immediately done; but before the notification could reach the local stations above mentioned, a few of the stamps had been disposed of to the public. The withdrawal was due to further objections on the part of the Government of the Military Republic of China, as is evident from the following copy of a telegram from Provisional President Sun Wen to President Yuan Shih Kai, which was published in the local Government Gazette of March 22nd, 1912:—

"To President Yuan, Pekin.—Mr. Piry, the Postal Commissioner, has had the characters Ling shih chung li, or 'provisional neutrality,' imprinted upon the stamps. The Department of Foreign Affairs and the Department of Communications have already instructed him to obliterate these four characters and put Chung Hua Ming Kuo, or 'the Republic of China,' in their stead. However, he would not as yet efface the four characters, Ling shih chung li; so there now appear on the stamps eight characters, Chung Hua Ming Kuo, Ling shih chung li, or 'provisional neutrality of the Republic of China.' This is certainly prejudicial to the national repute. Having heard that such stamps have already been distributed among several provinces, I find it necessary to request that you will instruct Piry to notify by wire the different places concerned that they must do away with the characters Ling shih chung li, or 'provisional neutrality,' before they are allowed to issue the stamps. An answer expected.—Sun Wen."

The stamps actually issued and sold to the public on the 22nd, between the hours of nine and eleven, before withdrawal, are as follows:—

1c brownish orange;	red	surcharge.
3c greenish grey	"	"
16c olive-green	"	"
$1 red and flesh;	black	"
$2 claret and yellow	"	"
$5 myrtle and salmon	"	"

The only errors I have been able to discover are in the 16 cents, where the surcharge is badly centred. A line drawn through the vertical surcharge on the normal stamp would come between the characters chung and shih, while on the error chung is directly under the character Hua of the vertical surcharge. On the error the first character of the horizontal surcharge Ling is so far to the right that it does not appear on the stamp, while the same character from the stamp to the left appears on the stamp, thus making the neutrality surcharge read Shih chung li ling instead of Ling shih chung li. [This is really only a misplacement of the overprint, hardly to be termed an error.—Ed. M. J.]

The following table shows the number of stamps issued:—

Value.	No. sent to the offices.	No. returned to the offices.	No. sold to the public.	No. known to have passed through the post offices and been cancelled.	No. held by buyers (probably all unused).
1c	980	none	980	425	565
3c	600	"	600	230	370
$2	96	40	56	29	27

On March 24th stamps of the same issue, with the vertical surcharge Chung Hua Ming Kuo (without the neutrality surcharge), were issued to the public and sold at the Nanking offices. The values surcharged and placed on sale were 1, 3, 7, and 16 cents, 1, 2, and 5 dollars, and the Postage Due stamps.

It is reported that a commemorative issue is in preparation bearing the portrait of Sun Yat Sen, and will consist of five values.

As a supplement to the above, Mr. Harte-Lovelace tells us that he received from Tientsin a set of the current stamps—½, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 16, 20, and 30 cents—overprinted in blue, with four characters arranged vertically, meaning "Chinese Republic." His correspondent stated that "these were issued by a local office, and called in when the general issue (surcharged in red at Shanghai) was given out." The latter presumably was the series listed in New Issues last month, but there seem to have been various local issues in addition.—Gibbons Monthly Journal.

PREFER 0 TO 24 TO A. M. AND P. M.

Following the example of Belgium and more recently that of France in registering time, 0 to 24 beginning at midnight, it is expected that the matter will be given full consideration by our own postal authorities.

"Of course the question still is in an experimental stage," said the Postmaster-General to The World correspondent, "but I am much interested and have started an inquiry into its details. It seems to me to have many advantages over the present system. In the stamping of mail matter I believe it would prove much less confusing than the system now in vogue of marking the letters A. M. or P. M. It would be just as easy to stamp half past 16 as it would to stamp half past 12."

Prof. Willis L. Moore, Chief of the United States Weather Bureau, said:

"I think this country should adopt the system of computing time that is now being given a trial by the French Government. If we could eliminate our A. M's and our P. M's. such a change would prove far less confusing in keeping time records than at present. At the radie-telegraph convention, to be held in London beginning June 8 next, I have no doubt that the proposed change in the method of computing time will be given serious consideration by the delegates. I am one of the representatives of this Government to the convention, and shall use my influence to have the new system adopted."

EDITORIAL.

Looking Ahead—From a Washington officer of the government who favors us occasionally with interesting information, we learn that the proposed Panama-Pacific stamps are to be beautiful and striking productions if the intentions of the department do not miscarry. The interest that is being taken in the forthcoming stamps is such that a careful choice of subjects for designs will be made. There have been submitted a number of sketches for approval, we learn, but it would be premature to say that any choice definitely has been made. The information conveyed by the Philatelic Gazette as to the designs is confirmed and the statement of that paper is almost echoed, that Balboa, or the discovery of the Pacific; Panama Canal scene; Golden Gate, and earliest California theme will be exploited on the stamps. Of course, if any singularly happy and original thought comes to notice it will be employed in some way or other, even if any present plans are displaced; and any list is not to be accepted as official until notice to that effect is given. As the Gazette says, it is something of a problem to decide upon the subject of the stamp that is to celebrate the state of California and some difficulty is being found in securing a working design that is amply and distinctively historical. We suggest that the discovery of gold at Sutter's in 1849 be included among the ideas that receive consideration as one could not name any event that had so inspiring and impressive an influence on California.

Next Year—By comparison with 1915, the date of the philatelic exhibition at San Francisco, 1913, when New York's great philatelic festival will be held, is near. Those having the New York exhibition in charge as to the preliminary work are proceeding in a way to compel admiration and confidence; and all sections of the country are being urged to regard the exhibition, intimately and personally. Any impression that the exhibition is wholly for the classes, as contrasted with the masses, is unfair and we have every belief that the classification of exhibits will reveal much cleverness in providing for the collector whose collection may not represent any great outlay of money, but which is yet no ordinary collection.

Assured—The editor of Everybody's Philatelist gives further particulars regarding the journalistic endowment fund, the subject of which he broached a month ago and we are gratified to read that his plan of perpetuation has been received favorably. We read: "We would say that the material support promised already assures the certainty of our endowment. The plan is proving more popular than we had anticipated." When the project was first mentioned, the originality of the idea appealed to some who while sympathetic enough, were dubious as to its practicability. It was our belief that the endowed journal would come only when a philatelic Arcady had been founded but here we see an example of the compelling force of enthusiasm and sincerity when centered on a proposal detached from any selfish motive on the part of its projector. It is hoped that the tenders of support likewise are based on a sense of disinterested conviction; if they are, what now may be only assurances will assume a tangible form. The endowed paper would be issued by Dr. Holt so long as he lives; at his demise the board of trustees who are the custodians of the endowment fund would directly administer the affairs of the paper and choose an editor, who is to serve without financial reward. At his death, Dr. Holt will bequeathe his paper, "with a moderate cash bequest," to the committee in trust. Dr. Holt is grateful to philately for the genial cheer that it has given him and he is anxious to reciprocate the favor.

Slipped—At a recent meeting of a large philatelic society, a drawing of an outline map of Newfoundland was shown to the members, who were asked to name the "island, a British colony" that the drawing represented. Two prizes were offered for correct answers and there were but two contestants who were right. Notwithstanding that the map of Newfoundland appeared on the common two-cent of 1908 and that some of the newspapers showed it in connection with the Titanic disaster, the question was a poser for the members, many of whom could have told readily of the more minute details of most stamps. Somehow, the picture of the map did not inspire the proper association of ideas and so it is to be seen that what may be termed the obvious in philately is sometimes overlooked.

Stumped—During the Detroit convention in 1910, the members who had gathered one evening at a conversatione that preceded an auction sale were asked to name the portraits on the two and five dollar, 1902, general issue. The question, seemingly so simple, was a stumbling-block; and it was a long time before any of the high-brows present at the American Philatelic Society convention could name the personages; and, as it was, the first answer just reversed the order of Madison and Marshall on the stamps. Of course, the stamps in question are scarce and were not in the small collections, as a rule, nor were illustrations of them seen in the stamp papers. Notwithstanding, the majority of those at Detroit had the stamps in their albums, and dealers among the members had handled dozens of copies of each stamp. We repeat that what is nearest at hand often is overlooked, or, at least, taken for granted; the distant points sometimes seem to be the most attractive.

Hand in Hand—The postoffice department and the department of agriculture have pooled their interests to the extent that a plan of procedure has been formulated under whose provisions rural and star route carriers "shall report forest fires discovered by them along their routes to persons designated by the state and national authorities to receive such information." Postmasters stationed in or near national forests are instructed to notify the nearest forest officer when fire is discovered.

Needed—We learn that the Philatelic Literature Society which now has a membership of eighty-four, is issuing to its members a monograph (reprinted from the journal of the society) on "Early English Philatelic Literature, 1862-1865." The authors or compilers of the treatise are Messrs. Anderson and Smith; the first-named being known as one who has given in the past the details of important researches in early English philatelic literature, while Mr. Smith has long had a penchant for the literature of the first era of printed philatelic records. We can conceive of no more necessary and fascinating a work than the one now being produced; and its historical merits cannot be unduly emphasized. In this country, philatelic literature began almost contemporaneously with that of England and an exhaustive and systematic compilation covering the first years of permanent philately here would strike a responsive chord in the breast of the thoughtful philatelist in this country.

OUR REVIEW.

Scott's 1912 Catalog.—This book is a very welcome visitor to the home of the philatelist. It gives evidence of the care taken in its preparation and we can bestow upon it a hearty word of praise. The publishers indicate an evident intention to eliminate "chalky" papers from future editions, and gives this warning, "Unless the present season brings a remarkable change in the lack of interest shown we shall drop these chalky paper varieties from the next edition." The catalog comes in paper and cloth covers, and retails respectively at 60c and 75c. In company with our many subscribers we give the newcomer a hearty greeting.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from R. G. Montgomery, D. C. Bartley, W. A. Kain, Geo. Pack, J. H. Massey, Hugo Kuenstler (5).

—John A. Muchmore reports unsatisfactory dealings with B. E. Jaffee, 67 Willett St., N. Y. City. It is a case of stamp substitution.

—A. C. Roessler sounds a note of warning in connection with the National Stamp Exchange, 243 E. 30 St., Los Angeles, Cal. Gives as references prominent Californian dealers and has defrauded several parties in N. Y. City. No reply to letters can be secured. The manager of the company is W. D. Keep.

—The Southern Philatelic Assn. will meet at Scranton, Pa., August 12-13-14.

—We are pleased to introduce to our subscribers this week Arthur Irwin Smith, a writer of several years' experience, having contributed to Judge, Popular Educator, Ten Story Book and similar publications. Mr. Smith is an enthusiastic collector and will be heard from quite frequently through our columns.

—From George Pack we receive a clipping that has the startling headline "Stamp Collecting in Serious Danger." The story is built up on no other basis than the introduction of a resolution at the British Congress by Baron Erik Leijohnfud to the effect that the increased use of automatic franking machines for postal purposes constituted a danger to philately. The truth is that the resolution received little support and was rejected by the Congress when put to a vote.

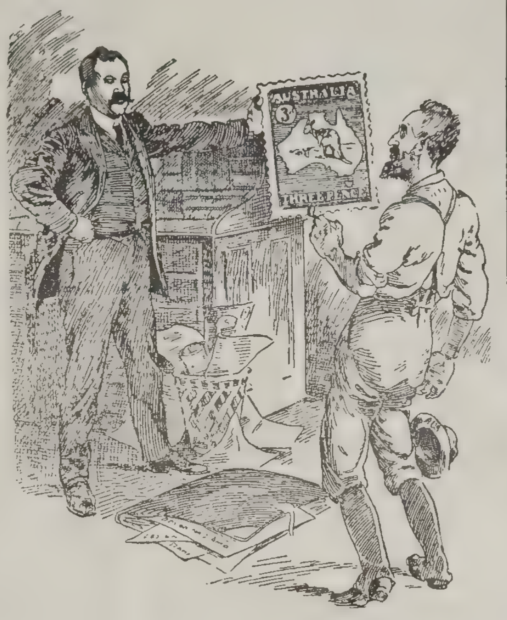
—Two auction catalogs are at hand. P. M. Wolsieffer advertises his 121st sale to take place June 22, consisting of the properties of several U. S. and Canadian philatelists. The Philadelphia Stamp Co. announces a similar auction for June 28, at 116 Nassau St., N. Y. City. It will be an afternoon sale, commencing at 2 o'clock.

—A parcels post has been arranged between the United States and Panama. Postmaster General Hitchcock is negotiating with Portugal, French Guiana, Martinique and Guadaloupe for the extension of the parcels post system to them.

—Geo. S. Dates, Jr., submits a set of five stamps that is being distributed with Helmar cigarettes. Upon the outside of the little transparent envelope in which the stamps are enclosed is this inscription, "Philately. The popular European rage—foreign postage stamps."

—The aviation meet at Saugus, Mass., gives us a rather unique aeroplane cancellation. It consists of the regulation circle, while within it in four lines is the following inscription:—"Aero—Postal Sta.—Saugus—Mass." We are indebted to Arthur T. Brown for specimen submitted.

THE NEW AUSTRALIAN DESIGN.



The new design for the Commonwealth Issue has met with a great deal of criticism. The press of Australia has been particularly bitter in its condemnation of the design. The Sydney Daily Telegraph publishes a cartoon that we reproduce through the agency of the Postage Stamp. It is entitled "The Stamp of the Commonwealth" and pictures the following fragment of conversation:—

P. M. G. "What do you think of that?"

Australia. "Great Scott! The seven years drought! I didn't think you'd advertise that!"

The Melbourne correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald discussing the design says: "There is no lettering on the map, the bareness of the continent being eliminated by the figure of a kangaroo on a plot of ground. It is not a barren country either, for in front of the animal there is a small plant-like substance. Officially it is kangaroo grass, but the uninitiated might easily take it for an inkpot with two pens sticking up in it. One gentleman who saw it facetiously expressed the opinion that it was a rabbit sticking its head out of a burrow."

OUR PICTORIAL REBUS.

A valued subscriber to the WEEKLY wishes to know whether the designs illustrated in our pictorial rebus, with the exception of possible U. S., are illustrated in Scott's catalog.

In this connection we beg to say that all the designs are made from stamps listed in Scott's catalog. Our rebus is intended to be a stamp hunt and not a catalog hunt. Any designs selected from U. S. stamps would not of course be pictured in the catalog.

There is every indication that this rebus is proving a hard one and subscribers are urged to send in their lists no matter how incomplete they may be.

"STAMPS HARD TO GET."

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

(Contributed by Frank C. Clark.)

In your list of cheap stamps hard to get might be included two of Siam. I would be pleased to obtain same in any manner, namely Scott's 44c and 49a.

THE DEPARTMENT STAMPS OF THE U. S.

The stamps which form the subject of these notes make an attractive and handsome collection and are of considerable philatelic interest; a short history, therefore, together with a list of the numbers issued, may be of interest to my readers.

Departmental stamps were first issued in the United States in 1873, to check the growing abuses to which the "franking" system, then extremely prevalent, was subject. This system has never lasted long in any country, owing to the obvious and sometimes flagrant ways in which it was turned to personal advantage.

In America, at this time, when a large number of public men enjoyed the privilege, large trunks, packing cases, and even barrels of wine have been known to pass through the post free of all charge.

At a Congress, however, held at Washington in 1873, it was decided to abolish this system of frankings and to prepare special stamps for the various Departments.

Congress apportioned to each Department stamps up to a certain amount, as follows:—

Agriculture,	$ 52,000
Executive,	1,600
Interior,	330,000
Justice,	15,000
Navy,	38,000
Post Office,	800,000
State,	85,000
Treasury,	504,000
War,	153,000

To begin with it was intended to place some distinctive mark on each series, but after discussion, fearing to over-elaborate the design, it was finally decided to allot a separate colour to each Department.

These stamps were issued on July 1st, 1873, the work of production being undertaken by the Continental Bank Note Company, at the price of 15c (7½d) the thousand. There was a separate series for each Department, containing on an average eleven values, 1c to 90c. Each stamp bore the portrait of some distinguished man, after the following artists:—

1c portrait of Franklin, after Rubrecht
2c portrait of Jackson, after Powers.
3c portrait of Washington, after Houdon.
6c portrait of Lincoln, after Wolk.
10c portrait of Jefferson, after Powers.
12c portrait of Clay, after Hart.
15c portrait of Webster, after Clavenger.
24c portrait of Scott, after Coffee.
30c portrait of Hamilton, after Cerrachi.
90c portrait of Perry, after Wolcutt.

The colours allotted to the different Departments were as follows:—

Agriculture—Yellow.
Executive—Carmine.
Interior—Vermilion.
Justice—Mauve.
Navy—Blue.
Treasury—Brown.
War—Dull Rose.
State—Green.

In the State Department there were, in addition to the eleven lower values, four higher ones, consisting of stamps of the value of $2, $5, $10, and $20 each; these four stamps, which were double the size of the others, all bore a portrait of Seward, after Carpenter.

In the case of the Post Office, the portrait is in every case replaced by the value, in large figures; these stamps were printed in black on white paper. The reason for this was that the stamps would have to be distributed among postmasters and so might be confused with the regular issue.

This stamp which, notwithstanding the number issued, is catalogued highest, is the 24c Treasury; indeed, it would be difficult to find 500 copies even among the stocks of all the dealers, though 100,000 were originally issued.

Another interesting point in these statistics is the fact that though the number of stamps issued of each of the four high values of the State was the same, the difference in their value to-day is extreme. The $5, though the scarcest of the four in unused condition, is yet the value most frequently met with used. This is explained when we know that the Department of State was in the habit of sending voluminous documents to Ministers and to Consular agents abroad, which documents often required stamps of the value of two to five dollars, while the 10 and 20 dollars were but rarely used. The result was that when the Departmental stamps were suppressed, the greater number of these two higher value stamps remained in the office. We thus find that the present price of the $5 unused is well justified.

While on this subject it may not be without interest to know that six or seven years ago a quantity of the $20 stamps, about a hundred in all, were discovered in Washington and sold to a well-known dealer in that city.

Among the scarce varieties of these stamps are the 10c, 24c and 30c Agriculture; all the Executive; the 90c Interior; the 15c, 24c, 30c and 90c Justice; the 7c, 15c and 90c Navy (the 2c of this was printed in green, by error, but never used, the 2c, 24c, 30c and 90c State, also the dollar values; the 24c Treasury; the 7c War; and the 90c Post Office.

All the stamps printed by the Continental Bank Note Co. were on thin hard paper and perforated 12. In 1879, however, a second printing of some of these stamps was made, this time by the American Bank Note Co., which, however, differs from the productions of the former firm in that all stamps are on soft porous paper, often having a mottled appearance.

The following stamps are known on this soft paper:—

Agriculture, 1 and 3c.
Interior, 1, 2, 3, 6, 10, 12, 15, 24, 30 and *90c.
Justice, 3 and 6c.
Navy, 1c.
Post Office, 3c.
Treasury, 1, 3, 6, 10, 30 and 90c.
War, 1, 2, 3, 6, 10, 12 and 30c.

"SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES."

It is with great pleasure that we are able to announce a series of articles under the above title to be written by Frank E. Goodwin, who has already contributed several articles to the Weekly. We are pleased to make this announcement and next week a more extended notice will be given. We have some good things in store for our readers.

A GREAT RARITY.

We have been shown by the Manhattan Stamp Co. a very beautiful block of eight of the $200 imperforate first issue U. S. revenues. It is indeed a gem of the first water, lightly cancelled and bright in coloring and the collector who succeeds in securing it will have a philatelic treasure.

A LEATHER BOUND ALBUM AT SMALL COST.

By O. D. Challans.

This will not interest the collector with unlimited means but will help those who want a neat album and cannot afford a high priced one.

For several years I have kept my collection in two board bound International albums. I have always wanted a couple leather-bound books but could not afford them. About a year ago the covers became so soiled that I concluded to have them rebound.

I took them to the binders and, while discussing different bindings, I said that the books did not particularly need rebinding but were so dirty that I had concluded that rebinding was the only resource. The binder said "Why don't you have them leather covered? That will be cheaper and will give you two fine books." I took him at his word and left the books. When I returned for them in a week he handed me the two books, covered with green morocco leather, each book stamped POSTAGE STAMPS in ½ inch gold letters and, last but not least, a bill for covering the two books of only $3.00.

That gives me two albums, leather bound with the exception of the cloth backs, at a total cost of only $5.75 including the $2.75 I originally paid for the albums.

Of course all binders may not do the work quite as cheaply but it will pay anyone to investigate prices when there is an old album to be freshened up.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bdg., 7.30 P. M.

Boston, Mass., June 14, 1912.

The 272nd (regular) meeting of the Society will be held at the Club Room on Tuesday evening, June 18th, at 7.30 o'clock.

As voted at the May meeting, the competitive exhibition announced for that occasion will be held at the June meeting, the number of stamps being reduced from 50 to 25. It will therefore be

25 Rarest Stamps
Cataloging Not Over 50c Each.

There will be two prizes awarded—first, two 90c entire U. S. envelopes which catalog [cut square] $2.00 each; second, four 30c entire U. S. envelopes which catalog [cut square] 75c each.

Entries should be left with W. L. Aldrich, 5 Bromfield St., not later than 2 p. m. on June 18th.

Several have already promised entries, and it is to be hoped that many will be interested in the same way. There are many of these hard-to-get low-priced stamps. What ones have you that you put in this class?

This is the last regular meeting of the season; come and help make the occasion a memorable one.

THE TALE OF A STAMP.

I'm a stamp—
A two-center—
A postage stamp—
Don't want to brag,
But I was never licked
Except once,
By a gentleman, too.
He put me on
To a good thing;
It was an envelope,
Perfumed, pink, square,
I've been stuck on
That envelope
Ever since!
He dropped us—
The pink envelope and me—
Through a slot in a dark box;
But we were rescued
By a mail clerk—
More's the pity
He hit me an awful
Smash with a hammer,
It left my face black and blue;
Then I went on a long journey
Of two days
And when we arrived—
The pink envelope and me—
We were presented
To a perfect love
Of a girl.
With the stunningest pair
Of blue eyes
That ever blinked.
Say, she's a dream!
Well, she mutilated
The pink envelope
And tore one corner
Of me off with a hairpin;
Then she read what was inside
The pink envelope;
Then she kissed me—
Oh, you little godlets!
Her lips were ripe as cherries
And warm as the summer sun.
We—the pink envelope and me—
Are now in her bosom.
We can hear her heart throb when
It goes the fastest.
She takes us out and kisses me.
Oh, say!
This is great!
I'm glad I'm a stamp, a two-center.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS GUIDE.

SEPARATION (Continued).

Having described the various sorts of perforation it will be as well to explain how perforations are measured. Owing to the fact that the needles or punches are not similar in size or similarly spaced on all perforating machines we get various "gauges." A standard of measurement has been adopted by philatelists for distinguishing between these numerous varieties and a stamp is said to be perforated 10, 11½, 15, or whatever it may be, according to the number of holes that may be counted in the space of 20 millimetres. Naturally the number of holes on the side of the stamp do not count as the gauge for not only are most stamps shorter at the top and bottom than at the sides but, as the beginner will soon note, stamps of different countries or different issues, or even different values vary in size. If one purchases a good perforation gauge (and most dealers can supply these useful helps for about 10c) it is a simple matter to determine the gauge of the perforation on any particular stamp and at the same time unnecessary to count the holes. On the gauge are a number of divisions, each of the exact width of 20 millimetres, in which are a number of dots or short lines. To ascertain the gauge of a particular stamp it is only necessary to compare the perforations with the marks on the gauge and when both coincide the number printed on the division in question indicates the gauge. It is not necessary to fit the stamp on all of the divisions to find the gauge. A good catalogue, which every beginner should possess, will mention the varieties of perforation that may be found in connection with any given stamp or issue. Thus if a stamp is catalogued as only perf. 12 it is hardly requisite to measure the perforations at all. If, however, a stamp is known perf. 14 and also 12½,—one has only to place it on the 14 and 12½ spaces indicated on the gauge to tell which it is.

When a stamp is catalogued as perf. 14 it means that the perforation gauges 14 on all four sides. Occasionally, however, the gauge at the sides of a stamp is different from that at the top and bottom. This is caused by the use of two machines of different gauge in those cases where single line machines are used or is due to the fact that the short lines on a "comb" machine have the needles differently spaced to those on the long row. In these instances stamps are said to have compound perforation which is expressed in print as, say, 10 x12. This would mean that the perforation measured 10 horizontally (i. e. top and bottom) and 12 vertically (the sides). In the case of compound perforation the horizontal perf. is always named first. This is a practically universal rule now and thus saves much confusion.

Roulettes also differ in gauge and these are measured in the same manner —that is, the number of slits or curves that may be counted in the space of 20 millimetres constitutes the gauge.

Some of the different sorts of perforation listed in the catalogues appear somewhat trivial but, as a rule, they are of importance to the specialist. For instance Gibbons' catalogue lists the Bulgarian stamps of the 1889 type as perf. 13 and also perf. 13½. This difference of half a perforation is so slight that most beginners would fail to distinguish between the two. Yet this small difference marks two distinct issues, printed in sheets of distinct sizes, and probably at different printing establishments. Differences in perforation are often the sole means of identifying between different issues of stamps or of distinguishing originals from reprints and forgeries so that their importance in the scheme of collecting is easily understood.

The beginner, however, will be well advised not to attempt, at first, to collect varieties of perforations as such. It is a matter that can be left until the collection has become fairly advanced. At first he will find the accumulation of ordinary straightforward varieties quite as much as he can manage though, naturally, if he has been so fortunate as to acquire any rare varieties of perforation it is as well he should be able to identify them.

SHORT REPLIES.

B. F. G. (Elgin, Ill.)—Cannot understand your query regarding the 3c U. S. (2). The 30c on soft paper belongs to the issue of 1879. I cannot tell you whether it is grey-black or full-black from your description. The difference in color in different parts of the design is simply due to the effect of light and heavy shading. (3) The "8908" errors on the Nicaraguan provisionals of 1908 only occurred once in each setting. The setting consisted of 25 stamps though the unsurcharged fiscal stamps were in sheets of at least 50. Gibbons' prices the 4c on 5c with this error at $2.00. (4) The United States stamps surcharged 2½c for use in Cuba in 1899 were possibly requisitioned in error. At any rate the value was not required so these stamps were sold to the public at 2c each. (5) Double paper is a paper that was used experimentally for certain U. S. stamps. This consisted of a very thin paper superimposed on a backing of thick paper. The design was printed on the top of thinner paper and any attempt to erase cancellation marks resulted in the destruction of the top layer of paper and with it the design.

S. M. R. (Fayettesville.)—Revenue stamps used postally have little philatelic value unless their postal use was officially authorized.

THE BOY WHO KNEW.

By ARTHUR IRWIN SMITH.

"I think stamp collecting is silly," declared Thomas Rawdon, a light-haired boy with shifty gray eyes.

"I do not," replied Edgar Allen. He was a year younger than Thomas, yet at school they were in the same grade. "Of course you have a perfect right to consider it silly if you wish, but on the other hand it is nobody's business if I do something silly. As to whether there is any real good in collecting stamps, that is a matter of personal opinion; and I know the best informed people have the same opinion I have."

Thomas turned to Aileen, his sister, and said something in a low tone; then giggled, and walked off down the street.

Edgar reddened slightly, then looked up at Aileen. She was not smiling.

"Thomas is hateful," she exclaimed. "Of course," she added, "I don't know much about stamps, but I'd like to learn."

"It is great sport, I think," Edgar told her. "I have only a small collection that has not cost me very much, yet it contains two thousand different stamps from nearly a hundred different countries. It gives a fellow a funny feeling to hold in his hand a stamp that he knows belongs to some queer nation on the other side of the world. You ought to see some of the strange dragon stamps I have from China, and the Japanese ones with chrysanthemums."

"I'll let you show me sometime," said Aileen. "Anyway, I don't want you to think that I agree with Thomas."

Edgar and Aileen were good friends and never had a quarrel, but Thomas was disagreeable. Perhaps Thomas was jealous of the way Edgar stood in his studies at school, or of the way he made friends. Nearly everybody seemed to know and to like Edgar; he was always cheerful and had a pleasant word for anyone he met.

The minister had started him to collecting stamps, giving him as a nucleus for a nice little collection, some stamps that had been sent from China and from Africa by his missionary friends. At the same time he had offered to divide with Thomas, but that youth spurned anything that came from the preacher. He considered it more manly to avoid preachers and girls and books, and thought it great sport to slip away and go fishing on Sunday and hide in the bushes and smoke cigarettes.

It happened that a millionaire from the city purchased a country home out near where the Allens and Rawdons lived, and built up some very beautiful grounds around his mansion. His servants were all brought out from the city, and his private secretary was a New Yorker who wore gold-rimmed glasses. Some of the Elton boys had hoped to get employed by him during the summer but their applications were all turned down courteously. Mr. Ordway preferred to have experienced help from the city.

Thomas and Edgar were alike in thinking that it would be very pleasant to have some kind of position on Mr. Ordway's place during the summer vacation. Thomas would have been glad to do any kind of work, just that he might say he was working for the millionaire.

"Wouldn't it be fine," thought Edgar, "to be his private secretary."

That winter Edgar divided his evenings between his stamps and the study of stenography. Thomas laughed equally loud at his new hobby.

"Nobody but girls and 'sissies' are stenographers," he declared.

"That's all right," replied Edgar, smiling good-naturedly. "It won't hurt me to learn it, I guess."

So all through the winter he struggled with the curves and hooks of shorthand and by spring had acquired an astonishing speed. He had rented a typewriter and mastered the touch system, so that he could either write or typewrite anything that was dictated to him just about as fast as one could talk.

Spring found Edgar in bad financial condition. His correspondence course in stenography had cost considerable, and he owed some rent on his typewriter. His father had felt some business reverses during the winter, and had to tell Edgar that he could let him have no more money. So it became necessary for the boy to get out and earn some money in some way.

The season was dull and he hardly knew where to look for work. To raise some money immediately he offered his stamp collection for sale, and was surprised when it brought enough to clear his debts and furnish a few dollars spending money besides. It was very unpleasant to let go his beautiful stamps, but there was consolation in the fact that he could build up a bigger and better collection when he secured regular work.

Along in May Edgar's quick eye caught sight of a want advertisement in the Elton Daily News:

"Wanted: A bright young man for office work. Apply between 10 and 11 A. M. at Woodham Place."

"Mr. Ordway," muttered Edgar, as he reached for the hair brush. He must get himself in shape to apply for the position at once.

At 10 o'clock sharp, he walked up to Woodham Place, Mr. Ordway's country home. and was ushered into the reception hall. Thomas Rawdon, and several other boys whom he did not know so well, were already there. "Sister Edgar," sneered Thomas, "you don't think you stand a show for this job, do you?"

"I have as good a chance as you, perhaps better," retorted Edgar.

Directly they were ushered into the room which served as library and business office.

"Young men," said Mr. Ordway, in a kindly manner, "I want a bright, well-informed young fellow to assist my private secretary through the summer. It will be necessary for him to spend quite a good deal of time in the city, and at times there will be considerable responsibility upon his assistant. I will question all of you and try to learn who is best qualified for the place."

Continuing in his affable way, he asked each of the boys his name and age, what he had been doing and how he stood at school. The answers were rather uniform and Mr. Ordway seemed at a loss as to how he should proceed.

"Well, boys," he remarked, finally, "I will test you with a few practical questions concerning matters that might come up in the course of business. If I were to send you to mail a package of business papers to the Philippine Islands how much postage would you put on the envelope, provided the package weighed three ounces?"

"Six cents," replied Edgar, quickly.

"Correct. But suppose the papers were going to Port Said, Egypt?"

"Fifteen cents, sir."

"How do you know?"

"I learned the foreign postage rates a good while ago. I have been collecting stamps for several years and I used to correspond with a collector in Port Said."

"Was the collector's name Jacques Duprez?"

"Yes, sir," responded Edgar, his eyes opening wide in surprise, "but—"

"Oh, I have corresponded with him myself," said Mr. Ordway. "I collect stamps, too."

Thomas Rawdon squirmed uneasily. Somehow Edgar could not keep from glancing over at him.

Mr. Ordway questioned Edgar a little further, drew from him the fact that he understood shorthand and typewriting, and engaged him upon the spot. He was to begin work the next dav.

The boys prepared to leave together. Those who had lost were good-natured about it; there was no ill-feeling in the crowd, even Thomas being cheerful.

Mr. Ordway stepped to the door. "Edgar," he remarked, "it may be that when my secretary has no further need of your assistance, I can use you in working with my stamps. I have a collection valued at fifty thousand dollars, and if you know enough about stamps to help me I will be glad to keep you employed permanently."

"Do you think collecting is silly?" asked Edgar of Thomas, as they neared their homes.

"No," replied Thomas, "and I want to ask your pardon for ever laughing at you."

INTERNATIONAL STAMP EXHIBITION.

ROUGH DRAFT OF RULES AND SCHEME OF COMPETITION.

(Subject to Revision.)

In order to place the fullest possible details in the hands of intending exhibitors abroad in ample time for them to make their plans for entering their collections, we print herewith the draft of the Exhibition Prospectus covering the "Rules and Regulations" and the "Scheme of Competition." Both may be subject to alteration in some details before being finally issued, but it is hopefully anticipated that there will be few (if any) modifications in the plans:—

(1) Exhibits (except where otherwise indicated) must be mounted on loose sheets or cards; no special size is stipulated, but a convenient and economical size (measurements) will be supplied by the Hon. Secretary. Exhibitors in these classes will be permitted to display a portion in the cases, and the balance of the collection may be sent in volumes or in loose sheets at a charge of 2s 6d per bound volume, or 2s 6d for every 50 loose sheets.

(2) Space occupied in the display of exhibitors' collections will be charged for at the following rates, viz.:—

Per square foot, 3d. (Minimum 2s 6d.)
Albums to be shown open at interesting pages, 5s per book.
Albums in Class J, 2s 6d per book.
The charge for space will be payable by the Exhibitor before or at the time of sending in his exhibit.

(3) Exhibits may be insured independently by the exhibitor; or they may be insured against loss by fire or theft while in the custody of the Exhibition Committee, before, during, and after the exhibition, from time of receipt until despatch back to the owner. The Executive Committee has arranged to insure exhibits at a charge of 2s 6d per cent., but neither the Executive Committee nor the Officers of the Junior Philatelic Society incur liability for any exhibits sent them. The charge for insurance will be payable by the exhibitor before or at the time of sending in his exhibit.

(4) Competitors are required to give notice to the Hon. Secretary of the character and extent of their exhibits not later than September 1, 1912. The printed form provided for the purpose of this notification should be used.

(5) Exhibits must be delivered, carriage paid, between October 1 and 6, 1912, at such place as may be notified to the Exhibitor by the Hon. Secretary. (In the case of overseas collectors, exhibits may be addressed direct to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. F. Johnson, 44 Fleet Street, London, E. C.)

Exhibits will be returned free of charge to the owners by post or otherwise, but in all cases at the sole risk of the owner; insurance in course of transit (if any) must be paid by the owner.

(6) The Executive Committee reserves the right of refusal to include any exhibit, or part of any exhibit, without assigning any reason for such refusal; in the event of there being insufficient space for shewing the whole of an exhibit, the Executive Committee reserves the right to shew only such portion of the exhibit as the said Committee may select.

(7) Exhibits in Classes A to M must be the bona fide property of the Exhibitor in every case. Joint collections must be shewn in joint names, but combinations made expressly for the purpose of the Exhibition cannot be admitted for competition.

(8) Exhibitors in Class J must, if called upon to do so, furnish evidence of age which shall be satisfactory to the Executive Committee.

(9) Albums and volumes of stamps intended for exhibition will be shown open at such interesting pages as the Executive Committee may decide; such albums will be kept in cases and may not be inspected except by the Judges, or in certain cases by permission of the owner, and at his risk, and then only in the presence of a member of the Committee.

(10) No exhibit may be removed prior to the closing of the Exhibition.

(11) Exhibitors, who are desirous of selling their collections, may have the same entered upon the Sale Register kept by the Hon. Secretary; such exhibits will be marked in the exhibition with a red seal; no price or other notification of sale may be affixed to any exhibit. In the event of sale the price will be payable to the Executive Committee, who will account to the owner for the purchase money after deducting 2½ per cent. to be applied toward the general expenses of the exhibition.

(12) The Judges will be appointed by the Executive Committee; their decision will, in all cases, be final. Exhibits by any of the Judges cannot be entered for competition. The Judges will be requested to base their awards upon a consideration of Completeness, Rarity, Philatelic Knowledge and Research, Condition, Arrangement and Neatness.

(13) The Judges have power to add to the number of awards where the competition is heavy, or to reduce the number of medals where the competition is insufficient to justify the making of the full awards scheduled in the scheme of competition.

(14) Exhibits intended for competition must be entered in the class appropriate to such exhibits in the following scheme of competition. Exhibits which the owners may desire to enter "not for competition" will be shewn so marked and in their proper classes.

(15) No single exhibit can secure more than one award; there is, however, no limit to the number of exhibits any one collector may enter in one or more classes.

(16) Exhibitors may send short descriptions of their exhibits for inclusion in the Official Catalogue, but such descriptions may be modified, altered, or omitted at the discretion of the Executive Committee. To facilitate the compilation of the Catalogue exhibitors are desired to send in their descriptions as early as possible during September, and not later than October 6.

UNITED STATES 1c OF 1890-98.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

Historical.

This 1 cent stamp was engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Company of New York and was first placed on sale on February 22, 1890. The official description of the design and color was as follows:—

"One Cent. Profile bust, after Rubricht, of Benjamin Franklin, looking to the left, on an oval disk, with dark background and narrow white border, immediately above which, set in a panel conforming to the curve of the disk, are the words 'United States Postage' in white capitals, and below which, in slightly larger and shaded letters, arranged in a waved line running nearly across the whole width of the stamp, are the words 'one cent.' Just above these latter words, on either side, is a white numeral of denomination—the arabic figure '1'—in a small oval space, surornate score, the upper portion of which is connected with and serves as a support to the panel around the medallion. The article is placed upon a distinctly lined oblong tablet, seven-eighths of an inch high by three-fourths of an inch wide, with beveled sides and bottom. The color is ultramarine blue."

To this description we need only add that the stamps were printed on the soft porous paper usually associated with the productions of this company. That the gum varies in color from yellowish brown to white, and that the perforation gauges 12.

In 1894 the stamp printing contract, which had been held by the American Bank Note Company was awarded to the Government Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and as all my readers are aware, this department has since been responsible for the production of all United States postage stamps. On the 30th of June, 1894, all the dies, rolls and plates and a large stack of stamps was transferred to the custody of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. It was decided not to alter the designs of the stamps, but the manufacturers, thought fit to add a work by means of which their work can be distinguished from that of the previous manufacturers. This distinctive work took the form of a double-lined triangle added to each of the upper corners.

The Triangle.

The triangles are curved on the sides adjacent to the portrait medallion and attached to the center of each of the inner lines is a small colored dot. These additions were evidently made to the original dies supplied by the American Bank Note Company. The first 1c stamps printed by the Bureau were placed on sale on October 10, 1894. At first a thick soft weave paper was used somewhat similar to that employed for the 1890 issue, but later paper of a different quality, its "forms" was made use of.

In 1895 watermarked paper was introduced, as an additional safeguard against forgery, the device adopted, being a repetition of the letters "U. S. P. S." (United States Postal Service) in large double-lined Roman capitals. The 1c stamp on the newspaper was issued in April 29, 1895. At first the watermark was very indistinct and on the stamps forming part of the early supplies it is very difficult to distinguish. Later on the method of manufacturing the paper was improved upon with the result that the watermark may be discovered with a little less difficulty though, at its best, it is inferior to the watermarks shown in the stamps of most other countries. The letters were so arranged that one should face on each stamp but, as a matter of fact, one rarely finds a complete letter on any single stamp.

On January 14, 1898, the color of this stamp was changed to green in accordance with an agreement made with the Universal Postal Union to adopt the colors recognized by the Union, for 1c, 2c and 5c stamps before January 1, 1899. No change was made in the design and the green stamp remained in use until an entirely new series made its appearance three years later. All the stamps produced by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing have white to yellowish gum, while the perforation gauges 12 as before.

The Plates.

All the plates for the 1c value produced by the American Bank Note Co., contained 400 stamps but the impressions were, as usual, cut up into sheets of 100 stamps before issue. The imprint "American Bank Note Company," is shown in heavy-faced shaded capitals above the center of each upper pair of 100 stamps, and below the central stamps of the bottom row of each lower pair. To the left of each imprint is the serial letter or letter and number and at the right the number of the plate is shown in italics, thus "No. 258." Altogether nine series of five plates each were used, viz.: C. 11 to 15; G. 36 to 40; Q. 89 to 93; B. B. 145 to 149; F. F. 165 to 169; U. U. 240 to 244; C.1, 280 to 284; D.1, 285 to 269; and F.1, 295 to 299.

The plates manufactured by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, likewise all consisted of 400 impressions, which were divided into sheets of 100 stamps before issue. The lines of division are indicated by arrowheads in the margins and on some plates, by ruled lines. The imprint, consisting of the words "Bureau, Engraving and Printing" in small uncolored letters on a colored oblong tablet, appears eight times in the margin of each plate so that it appears on the two outer margins of each pair of 100 stamps. The plate number is always placed at the right of each imprint. The first, which appears on all plates 2 to 35 inclusive has simply a thin frame line around the inscribed rectangle while the second variety, found on all other plates, has a rosette and arrow-head ornament at each end of the imprint. No less than three different styles of numerals were used for denoting the plate numbers. For numbers 2 to 122 inclusive the figures were 3 mm. high; for numbers 165 to 314 inclusive they were 2½ mm. high and much thicker, while for numbers 333 onwards, thin fancy figures also 2½ mm. high, once used. The stamps on unwatermarked paper were printed from plates 2, 6, 15, 17, 18, 21, 24, 24, 29, 31, 33, 35, 98, 99, 101, 102, 119, 120, 121 and 122. For the blue stamps on watermarked paper the same plates were used with the exception of Nos. 2, 6, 15, 17, 18, 21 and 27, and in addition sixty-five new plates ranging from No. 165 to No. 496 were used. When the color of the stamp was changed to green, plates 429, 440, 441, 442, 446, 452, 493, 494, 495 and 496, which has previously been employed for the blue stamps were used. Although plate No. 442 is included in the official list Mr. Huff tells us that "philatelists have been unable to satisfy the statement." A large number of new plates were used later, ranging from No. 526 to 1148 or even higher. The complete list of plate numbers issued down to 1907 is given in Mr. Luff's "Postage Stamps of the United States" and I must refer collectors to that conventional work for these details.

The collections of all these plate numbers would prove a fairly formidable charge if not impossible task. It would certainly prove a valuable collection and though the plate numbers and imprints themselves probably offer no scope for study the original strips showing these details are of invaluable assistance in practically the only line of research these stamps afford.

Guide Dots.

The chief interest in these stamps, from a specialist's point of view, centers around the guide dots and a careful study of these might lead to very interesting conclusions. These guide marks face into two main divisions—those on the transfer rolls, which are rolled into the plates at the same time as the impressions and those worked on the plates before any impressions have been rolled in. Of these the transfer-roll dots are by far the more interesting. I take it my readers are fully conservant with the manner in which a stamp design is transferred from the original die to the plate. The water mediary, is known as the transfer-roll, receives the impression from the die and transfers it to the plate. To facilitate the correct delinquent of the impressions the American Bank Note Company were in the habit of adding a small dot near the right hand side of the design on the transfer-roll. Then as each impression was rolled in, a mark was made on the plate which served as a guide for the correct placing of the next impression in the row. As a rule these dots were so placed that as each was worked on the plate, it was obliterated by the next impression of the stamp design. Sometimes, however, they were in such a position that they show on some unshaded or lightly shaded portions of the design. They always appear in the right hand margin, for, of course, the dots made in rolling in the era stamps are not obliterated, and it is this fact that makes the plate number strips from the right-hand sides of the sheets so valuable. If the distances between these dots and the edges of the stamp were measured and carefully tabulated it would not be possible to say how many different kinds of rolls were employed. In the 1890 issue I find the distances are 3¼, 3½, and 3¾ mm. and probably others exist.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing also adopted this system of working guide-dots on the transfer-rolls. Naturally as there were numerous plates there were also a good many

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

(Contributed by A. E. Bartlett.)

Have been much interested in your correspondents lists of "Hard-to-get stamps under $2.00."

The stamp that I had the hardest time to connect with, is the one peso of Cuba of 1898, number 174.

Although I have good friends in Cuba, who have furnished me with lots of the high priced stamps, none of them can get me the 174. Have written several dealers and have had many promises, but the best so far has been a revenue cancelled specimen.

JOIN THE BOOSTER CLUB.

We have initiated Shirley E. Moisant into the Booster Club. How it was done we will let Mr. Moisant tell in his own words:—

"I was surprised the other day to receive a letter from the Managing Editor of one of the largest insurance papers published, stating that his son 15 years old was collecting stamps and as he wanted to encourage him in the hobby asked me for some advice as to albums, hinges, etc. Only two or three days after that I received practically the same letter from the U. S. Manager of one of the largest English Companies stating that his daughter 16 years old, was collecting stamps in a small way and wanted some advice. I told them what they wanted and in addition advised them to subscribe to the WEEKLY."

OUR ELEVENTH AUCTION SALE

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—John H. Frederick, 9 Belmont Circle, Trenton, N. J., would like the present address of W. R. Lindsay, formerly at Ardmore, Pa.

—Certain fraudulent surcharges have recently been put into circulation by a Los Angeles dealer. We are desirous of securing information and shall be pleased to hear from any subscribers who may wish to submit their purchases for inspection.

—L. J. Moulton of Boulder, Colo., was a recent visitor at the WEEKLY office. Mr. Moulton has been taking a vacation trip east. His success with our trade column advertising has resulted in a contract for displayed advertising commencing September 1. These lines will explain his failure to reply to correspondence that has been addressed to Boulder in his absence.

—The French Minister for the Colonies and the Under Secretary of Posts and Telegraphs have promised their aid to the coming Philatelic Exposition in Paris. The Under Secretary will be present at the opening.—Revue Philatelique Francaise.

—"A good thing will always come out on top. By the enclosed set of stamps, you can see that the habit has penetrated as far as the cigarette box. The enclosed is the original, just as it was taken from the box. This is liable to start a boom in stamp collecting."—A. STEINBERG. We are similarly favored by Jas. D. Patterson of N. Y. City.

—Herman W. Boers states that he has seen the new 1c stamp without capital Bureau imprint in the following numbers, 5807, 5828, 5831. Also the new 2c in 5827, 5872 and 5888.

—O. D. Challans reports unsatisfactory dealings with the Moosic Stamp Co., a boy concern of Moosic, Pa., also with A. Stewart, Chicago, Ill., recently reported by Mr. Leonard.

—L'Echo de la Timbrologie is gently ironical over the reported destruction by Colombia of remainders of demonetized stamps to the number of 10,903,460, but says: "They don't tell us the one thing that we wish to know, that is, what stamps they are which have met this mournful fate. Whichever they may be, we salute the victims and admire the beauty of a sacrifice to which Colombia has not been accustomed."

—We have repeatedly called dealers' attention to the fact that care should be exercised in sending out approval selections to a coterie of boys on the east side of N. Y. City who are making a business of defrauding dealers. The latest complaint comes from the Payn Stamp Co. of Los Angeles, Cal., which desires information from anyone who has had unsatisfactory dealings with B. E. Jaffee, Abe Rubin, Sidney Lorenz, Henry Altrest, H. Pfesdorf, A. Koppel and R. H. Weinberg. Address the company at 2340 Garnet St. and send as complete data as possible.

—J. E. Handshaw, Mrs. Handshaw and their two sons, sail for Europe June 29, and will visit the principal points of interest in England, France and Germany, possibly extending their trip as far as Rome. The party will return in September and as might naturally be expected, Mr. Handshaw will combine business with pleasure.

—Herman W. Boers informs us that the new 2c stamps are appearing without the Bureau of Engraving imprint and the letter A. Mr. Boers has seen Nos. 5919, 5920 and 5923 and submits a specimen of the last named for our inspection. No 1c stamps have yet been seen.

Used Stamps By Weight

We continue to sell large quantities of our famous 10 pound bags to American dealers, who frequently send us repeat orders, showing that the stamps are giving satisfaction. The mixture is superior to any other at the price, containing as it does a greater number of countries but no U. S. A., Canada or Great Britain. We send a bag containing 10 pounds weight, securely packed and postage paid, to any address in the U. S. A. on receipt of a money order for $3.75.

WHOLESALE LIST

is undoubtedly the oldest in existence as we started sending out the new issues as long ago as 1870, our firm having been established in 1869. Our New Issue Service embraces the whole World (not merely British Colonials) but is divided into sections, any of which may be separately subscribed to. We shall be pleased to send an explanatory leaflet and order form on request. [22

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

BELVIDERE, ILL., June 12, '12.

TO THE EDITOR:—

I enclose one dollar for two years' subscription to MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

Now that the Republican National Convention is at hand, it reminds me of a fact that you may be interested in knowing, that a copy of your STAMP NEWS was used as an admission ticket to the last Republican Convention in Chicago.

Having occasion to visit Chicago during the Convention, but not expecting to attend, I went out to the building in which it was being held, on short notice, with a friend of considerable prominence in public life. Before going in on his own ticket, he arranged with one of the outside guards to get me in. This gentleman hurriedly told me to follow him and to hold up something that looked like a ticket, at the doorkeeper. He then rushed off so hastily that I had no time to pull anything from my pocket, but a copy of your paper, which was the thing that protruded furthest from my inside pocket. I held this up to the astonished sentinel at the door, who looked at me as though he thought I had some kind of mania other than the harmless one for postage stamps. The man I was following turned and said "Oh that's all right, he's a deputy sheriff and a friend of mine," whereupon the sentinel let me pass, and I became an interested spectator of the proceedings. Your paper is very valuable and interesting, but I think that this is probably one of the most novel uses to which it has been put.

U. S. OLD ISSUES WANTED

I want to beg, borrow, buy or exchange, either singly or in any quantity, all issues of the United States from 1847 to and including 1868. I want single stamps, pairs, strips of three and blocks of four of anything in any year, mentioned. Also die, India and cardboard proofs, trial printings, etc.

Collectors having any of such are earnestly requested to send what they can spare; with lowest cash price, or with want list for exchange.

Even the three cent stamps of each issue are wanted, along with the others.

Correspondence is desired with collectors who specialize in U. S. or who desire to, and need assistance. The object is not speculation, but to secure all possible information upon the subject for my forthcoming series of articles upon Specialized United States and the Uncatalogued Varieties, to appear soon in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

To make these articles of the greatest possible benefit to every collector of U. S., I respectfully ask the co-operation and assistance of everyone possessing U. S. stamps and their adjuncts which they can spare. For all stamps loaned or contributed, I will pay the postage.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—The following new precancels have been reported by Lowell J. Ragatz and Frank B. Eldredge:—

Providence, R. I., 1c 1912, normal; type IV.
Buffalo, N. Y., 2c 1912, normal; type IV.
Providence, R. I., 1c 1912, reading up; type IV.
Chicago, Ill., 2c 1912, normal; type V, no lower line.
Cleveland, Ohio, 15c 1910, inverted; type IV.
Cleveland, Ohio, 6c 1910, normal; type IV.
Covington, Ky., 1c 1910, inverted; type V.

Kendall P. Smith reports having received a copy of the new die of the 2c envelope, size 13, on blue; watermarked U. S. S. E.; new knife.

D. H. Graham reports having obtained at his local post-office a bunch of reversed envelopes, size 5, new knife, 2c carmine on amber, new watermark. The gum is on the outside and the stamp on the inside, at the left upper corner.

ANGOLA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new set of King Manuel stamps, surcharged "Republica," chronicled last week.

ARGENTINE.—Several changes have been made in the stationery issued with the new stamps, the first to appear with the stamps changed from San Martin to the Laborer being the express letter cards of the values of 30c and 60c. The colors of the paper used is changed, the simple paid card being buff with white inside, while the reply card is gray with white inside. The stamps are printed in red and the remainder of the printing in black.

Express Letter Cards.

30c red on buff.
60c red on gray.

BELGIUM.—Maury's Collectionneur says that the 40c value will shortly appear. The same paper chronicles the issue of a new telegram or express card, with portrait of King Albert, but without Sunday coupon, though the very elaborate instructions to users are printed in both French and Flemish.

Telegram Card.

30c dark green on greenish.

BRUNEI.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 4c value in the new color announced some time since.

Adhesive.

4c claret.

COLOMBIA.—Madrid Filatelico says that the 10c value of the 1904 series has been issued in a modified design, and is now printed by the "Litografia Nacional.

Adhesive.

10c violet.

FRENCH MOROCCO.—A new series of stamps is being prepared to signalize the French Protectorate over Morocco, according to the Revue Francaise des Collectionneurs. The design will resemble that in use for Somali Coast. The inscriptions will be in Arabic and the values will be expressed in mouzana, equivalent to centimos. The features of the design will be a Moorish arcade, a minaret and a palm, with a native in the foreground.

Gummed Stickers with your name and address thereon. Useful for envelope corners, packages, book marks, etc. Write how to get them practically free. A. H. KRAUS, 518 Kraus Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.

Wanted—Address of I. D. Smith, formerly 53 E. Main St., Battle Creek, Mich., later Windsor, Ont., Can. A.C. ROESSLER, Clay St., Newark, N. J. *

1c Postal Savings fine, 30c; one straight edge, 25c. H. T. WILLCOX, Jewett City, Conn.

FRENCH OCEANICA.—New stamps are being prepared for the Islands included under the head of French Oceanica. The stamps will be of large size and will show three designs. The first showing a Tahiti woman in an oval with flowers in her hair; the second, two natives, one sitting and the other standing, with two palms at the left and in the distance a chain of mountains; and the third a mountain in one of the islands.

GERMANY.—The Philatelic Gazette says there is talk in philatelic circles in Germany of a special commemorative stamp to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Kaiser's accession to the throne, June 15, 1913. No difficulty is anticipated in finding an artist in the imperial printing plant to supply a satisfactory design. As the time for preparation is somewhat brief, the issue will probably be confined to one value, either the 5pf or 10pf stamp. Maury's Collectionneur says that the commemorative issue will be a post card.

MOZAMBIQUE.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the King Manuel set for this Colony, surcharged "Republica." The design is the same as the Cape Verde and Angola stamps recently chronicled, except in minor changes in the figures of value.

Adhesives.

2½ reis lilac.
5r black.
10r olive green.
20r carmine.
25r brown violet.
50r dark blue.
75r bistre brown.
100r brown on green.
200r green on salmon.
300r black on blue.
500r olive and brown lilac.

Whitfield King & Co. are informed that the number of stamps of this new type available for surcharging is limited, the 2½r value of Angola and Cape Verde being already exhausted.

PHILIPPINES.—According to the Philatelic Gazette, the stamps issued on paper with the new watermark, with printed "O. B." surcharge, are the 2c, 6c, 10c, 20c and 30c. This printed surcharge is now used much more extensively than formerly, several of the bureaus seeming to have given up the hand-stamping method. The Gazette says that the day will come when catalogues will recognize these official stamps, and list simply two kinds, one set hand stamped and the other with the "O. B." printed.

The 2p in violet brown has been printed on both old and new watermark paper, but as there is still a good supply of the black stamps on hand, it will be some time yet before the new color will be placed on file. A single sheet in the new color, on paper with single-lined watermark, has been let out by favor and has been distributed through stamp dealers in this country. When further copies will be obtainable is a matter of conjecture. It may be a year or two longer before they are placed on sale, unless more are issued "by favor."

ST. THOMAS AND PRINCE ISLANDS.—The King Manuel set for St. Thomas and Prince have been issued with the "Republica" surcharge, the design being the same as for Angola, Cape Verde and Mozambique, except slight differences in the shape and arrangement of the figures of value.

Adhesives.

2½r lilac.
5r black.
10r olive green.
20r carmine.
25r brown violet.
50r dark blue.
75r bistre brown.
100r brown on green.
200r green on salmon.
300r black on blue.

SPAIN.—J. T. Perdorno reports having seen the 25c value of the 1900 set, perforated "MERITO." The perforation is in capitals 5mm high, the whole word being 21mm long. The "E" is accented. Mr. Perdorno is unable to give the purpose of the perforation, though he has been told that the stamps thus perforated were issued after the late war in Melilla, Morocco. Can any of our readers throw any light on the subject?

TURKEY.—The appearance of the new stamps announced some time since has been postponed until July 23, the anniversary of the Ottoman constitution.

URUGUAY.—It is reported that Uruguay is preparing to observe the 86th anniversary of the independence of the Republic by surcharging its stamps with appropriate inscriptions.

VENEZUELA.—The Philatelic Gazette reports having seen the 50c value of 1911 set, with centre in a changed color. No definite information is yet at hand as to whether this is an error, or the beginning of a bicolored set.

Adhesive.

50c violet and blue.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—The 6d value with changed watermark follows hard after the 8d chronicled last week. Whitfield King & Co. have shown us this value on paper watermarked Crown A.

THE U. S. GOVERNMENT COLLECTION.

By J. M. Bartels.

The nucleus of the Museum of the Post Office Department was derived from various exhibits which had been especially prepared for the Chicago Columbian Exposition in 1893. These consisted of different items of interest in connection with the postal service, curious objects which had been passed through the Dead Letter Office, numerous sheets of cardboard proofs, but no postage stamps. A special room was assigned to this exhibit in the old Post Office Dept. building on E street, between Seventh and Eighth streets. Mr. Stanley I. Slack was placed in charge as curator and to him is due great credit for the pretentious museum which now fills a room and practically the entire corridor on the third floor of the main post office building at the national capitol. A continuous stream of visitors has been daily attracted to this exhibit and it is only natural that frequent inquiry would be made in regard to the government's stamp collection. Time and again the information would be imparted that the Department had no stamp collection but full sheets of proofs of some of the stamps could be seen. The astonishment of many visitors at the fact that the Post Office Department of this great government did not have even a set of its own stamps can better be imagined than described.

Curator Slack finally made up his mind that something had to be done. A beginning was made by securing from the Third Assistant Postmaster General specimens of all stamps of the United States then current, and from the Superintendent of Foreign Mails, Mr. Brooks, a set of all foreign stamps which had been received from the central bureau of the International Postal Union at Berne. The foreign stamps were beautifully mounted, without regard to philatelic requirements or rotation on large sheets of cardboard and skilfully embellished by brush and pen phantastically wielded by an artist who was then in the service of the department. More prominence was given to elephants on the Siam sheet and palm trees with Samoa than to the scattering postage stamps which could be found somewhere in the jungle. As new issues appeared more room would be required and the mistaken idea of the original plan of mounting was soon apparent.

In 1900 the late H. G. Mandel mounted for the P. O. Department exhibit at Paris five frames of United States stamps and loaned a portion of his own collection which was also exhibited the following year at the Buffalo Exposition. Soon after the foreign portion of the exhibit was remounted by the assistance of the writer along strictly philatelic lines.

Prior to the Louisiana Purchase at St. Louis in 1904 an expenditure of about $5,000 for United States Confederates, Philippines, Hawaii, Cuba and Porto Rico stamps was made from various sources out of the appropriation of $50,000 made by Congress for the Post Office Department exhibit. This fund enabled the acquisition of many valuable stamps which, when added to the collection gave the department a creditable exhibit. When shown at St. Louis in glass cases this collection proved one of the principal attractions.

United States.

Only unused specimens were accepted in the United States collection. The departmental issues and newspaper stamps are quite complete. Beginning with 1847 we find the 5 and 10c, then of 1851 all up to the 24c. The 1861 contains the 3c scarlet and 3c pink, as well as several of the "August" issue. The grills of 1867 are well represented, but lack the very rare ones. The 1869 issue lacks only the inverts. The 1870 grilled is complete except the 24c. The various "Special Printings" are mostly lacking. After that date all issues are complete except the 2c inverted Pan American. The 4c without "Specimen" is one of the best stamps in the collection. A block of four of all values of the current issue on bluish experimental paper is attracting much attention just now.

Hawaii.—The missionary issue is, of course absent, but one each of all "numerals," and subsequent issues make a fine showing.

Philippines.—A nice collection of the old Spanish issues, lacking only several of the rarest surcharges. The United States issues contain all the special surcharges and special printings made in 1904, but they are shown as regular stamps.

Cuba.—The old Spanish issues are complete and there is a good showing in Puerto Principe surcharges.

Porto Rico.—All issues complete, including the Coamo provisional.

Confederate States.—The regular issues are complete. The locals include only a few of the cheaper ones.

Back in the eighties the late F. Trifet, of Boston, was called on to mount a collection of United States and foreign stamps for the "Records" of the stamp division. Lately this album was turned over to the curator of the museum and he has now merged it into the regular collection, thereby greatly increasing its interest and value. Many noted rarities were thus secured, among which the following are worthy of mention:

Bergedorf—½s violet, 3s rose.

Saxony—3pf red, unused.

Schleswig Holstein—Nos. 1 and 2.

Switzerland—Basle unused, Zurich 4r (vertical lines), 6r (horiz. lines).

Spain—1850 to 1853 (Scott 1 to 30) unused. All rare 2 reales and the Madrid issue are extremely fine.

Cape of Good Hope—The 1p and 4p "wood blocks."

Mauritius.—1848 1p (2 copies), 2p.

Ceylon—1857 imperf. 10p, 1sh 9p, both fine unused; perf. wmk. star 8p, 9p, 2sh, all unused.

Canada—6pf imperf. unused.

The Arrangement.

The arrangement of the stamp collection is modeled after the government collections in Germany and England, combining the best features in the imperial Postal Museum at Berlin and the Tapling Collection in the British Museum. Both of these were especially visited by the writer while in Europe in 1905, measurements and samples of mats for mounting were secured and taken to Washington. Out of the appropriation for the Jamestown Exposition in 1907 a valuable large upright case was made and this now holds the entire stamp collection. Vertical sliding frames each divided into several sections contain the stamps nicely mounted in catalogue order. At the top is the number corresponding with a printed list of countries in a frame close at hand, enabling any visitor to pull out the slide containing such countries as he may wish to inspect. It is thus demonstrated that the stamps are not exposed to the light and therefore cannot fade, a very important thing to consider in a stamp exhibit. The individual cards are so arranged that they can be readily removed or changed as occasions may require.

There is but one improvement which we would like to suggest to Mr. Slack in case any rearranging is ever done. Try to have each set of stamps on a line or two by themselves, put the date above each issue and space them so that it can be readily seen where a new issue commences. If there are only three or four stamps in a set, give them a line to themselves, leaving a little space at the sides. If the set contains a larger number of stamps let the line be longer or make two lines of them. In order to secure accuracy in spacing let the sheets have an inconspicuous back ground of small squares printed in very pale blue or gray, with a mark to designate the horizontal and vertical center lines. This will be a wonderful help in laying out symmetrical pages and spacing the stamps accurately. No visiting collector should fail to inspect the stamps in the Museum of the Post Office Department. —Philatelic Gazette.

"TAKE A STAMP, LEAVE A BIT."

Rawhide's First Post Office the Simplest Ever.

Anybody could have gathered it and run off with it under his arm Post Office, flag pole and all.

Simple?—Well it was that and then some.

They put it up in Rawhide, Nevada, in the early days of the mining boom there. And it is still in existence, a highly treasured souvenir in a certain New York office where you can do almost anything by pressing a button.

This Post Office, set up by the roadside in 1897, and serving among other purposes to point the way into Rawhide, consisted of an upright stick surmounted by a swivel flag pole bearing a white flag. When the flag was up, the water-wagon man knew that he was to make a delivery of water. Near the top of the stick was a "Tuxedo" tobacco tin containing a book of postage stamps, and a notice which ran thus: "Take a stamp and leave a bit for the stage driver"—a "bit," it may be necessary to inform unenlightened Eastern readers, being a quarter. A stamp having been affixed, the letter was dropped into a sixteen ounce seal box of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company, which was fastened underneath, and from which the mail driver made collection.

The authenticity of this interesting relic is certified to by C. C. Dunning, who had the mail contract at the time Dunning knows. He found the "bits" and humped in the stage.

Was everybody honest? Well they had to be, as there might have been trouble. But nobody expected anything but honesty. It was the fashion among these pioneers. And smoking an honest tobacco was a big start. They surely liked the smoke in that green tin! —Ex.

THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS LOCAL STAMPS OF 1898-99.

A correspondent sends me a drawing of one of the stamps issued by the Filipino revolutionaries under Aguinaldo in 1898-99 and asks for information regarding it. Many other of my readers probably have some of these stamps and have been puzzled as to their meaning and status though they have long been included among the issues listed in Scott's "Local" catalogue. It has been asserted that these locals were entirely speculative but such does not seem to have been the case judging from the published evidence. For postal and registration purposes there were only three values and even with types these only provide six varieties while for telegraph and fiscal purposes there were only four additional stamps. In the American Journal of Philately for January, 1904 there is a very full and interesting account of these labels from the pen of Mr. C. A. Howes and to this excellent article I am indebted for most of the following information.

At the time the Spanish war broke out Aguinaldo was at Singapore having been "persuaded" to leave the country by the Spaniards some years previously. He was brought from Hong Kong to Manila by a United States vessel with the intention of employing him and his followers against the Spanish. He had other plans, however, for he had long dreamed of an independent Filipino nation with himself at the head of affairs. Soon after landing at Cavite on May 16th, 1898, he, therefore, issued a proclamation proposing to set up a temporary dictatorial government to continue until such time as a regular constitutional government could be organized. The Americans had full knowledge of what was going on but made no objections for at that time they only occupied the naval station established at Cavite. Meanwhile the Spanish were practically invested in Manila, the Americans lying before it and the Filipinos encircling it and having control of the rest of the island. As the headquarters of the revolutionaries was rather too near to be pleasant at Cavite the Americans requested Aguinaldo to remove and on the first of August he removed his headquarters to Bacoor on the shores of the bay some distance nearer Manila. On the same date the declaration of independence of the Philippine nation was issued and thirteen days later Manila capitulated to the United States, who occupied it but refused entrance to the Filipinos. Naturally this caused considerable friction and owing to increasing differences between the American and Filipino forces the latter removed their seat of government to Malolos, north of Manila, in the early part of September. Here the first Philippine congress met on the fifteenth day of the same month and Malolos remained the native capital until its surrender to the American forces on March 31st, 1899.

This short historical sketch shows that, under Aguinaldo's leadership, the Filipinos had for a space of ten months a government equally independent of both Spanish and American influences. This government was acknowledged throughout the islands except at Manila and the sea-ports still in Spanish hands. Civil government was established, an army was organized, a few taxes were levied, the telegraph lines destroyed during the troubles of 1896-7 were rebuilt, and a postal system was established. It will thus be seen that a real government was in operation—a government which might have continued to conduct the affairs of the country had not Uncle Sam had different ideas on the subject. The issuing of stamps in connection with the postal system was, therefore, a perfectly legitimate step to take and though they are locals they have a certain amount of philatelic interest as well as being historic mementoes of the war of 1898-99.

For postage proper there was a 2c value and this exists in three types. One of these is inscribed "Correos y Telegrafos" at top and was evidently available for telegraphic as well as postal uses. The others were inscribed "Correos" only, one having the value "2 cents." on a plain and the other on a lined ground. The central design of all three shows a triangle containing a rayed sun with stars in each of the angles. This rests on a lined circle on which the value is shown beneath the triangle while at each side a "K" is shown. For newspaper postage a 1 milesima stamp was issued this being inscribed "Impresos" at top. The design shows a rayed sun in a circle enclosed by a circular band inscribed "Gobm. Revolucionario Filipinas" (i. e. Revolutionary Government of the Philippines) while above, in the centre, and in each of the two lower corners is a "K" and the upper spandrels contain the dates "1898" and "1899." The registered stamp is inscribed "Certificado" at the top and is like the newspaper label on an enlarged scale but with a star in place of a sun in the centre. The facial value of this was 8 centavos. It will be noted that in each of the designs the letter "K" is repeated three times and these are so arranged as to occupy the angles of an imaginary triangle. The meaning of these mysterious letters is clearly explained by Mr. Howes in the following words:—

"Some twenty-five years ago the Filipinos in Spain affiliated themselves with the Spanish Masons, and later established a number of Masonic branches in the Philippines with the idea of working for reform in the administration of the islands. Taking their cue from this, when it was found that the effort was useless, certain Filipinos under the leadership of one Marcelo H. del Pilar formed a secret society, a sort of Philippine political masonry, whose avowed purpose was the liberation of the Tagalogs and expulsion or destruction of the Spanish. This 'bastard offspring of Philippine Free-masonry,' as it has been called, was named the Kataas taasang Kalagayan Katipunan Nang Manga Anac Nang Bayan, or 'Sovereign Worshipful Association of the Sons of the Country.' The first three words give the clue to the three K's on the stamps."

transfer-rolls. At first the dots were placed fairly close to the design. Thus on plate 101 the dot is 2½ mm. distant, on plates 24, 99, 122, etc., it is 2¾ mm. away, on plates 24, 98, etc., the space measures 3 mm., while on plates 31, 33, 35, it is 3½ mm., and so on. On plate 100 I find the dot is 5½ mm. distant from the design, while on plates 1147 and 1148 it is exactly 5 mm. away from the side of the design and so always shows on the stamps on the uncolored frame around the portrait medallion. By means of these dots therefore we can identify the stamps printed from these plates and a careful study would probably make it possible to say that certain other stamps were printed from some particular plate or other.

PLATE DOTS.

We now come to the marks made in the plates before any impressions were rolled in. These are, of course, also guide dots, for their purpose is to act as guides in arranging the 400 impressions that go to each plate but to prevent comparison with the transfer-roll dots it will be as well to term these plate-dots. The first lot of dots were marked on the plates between the ends of the two central ones of stamps, but vertically and horizontally in each pair of 100.

Curiously enough they are not level with the edges of the stamps but vary in position from 1 mm. to 2 mm. from the end of the design. They, therefore, appear between the stamps and out on the margin. From plate 98 (and possibly earlier) dots were marked to show the space to be occupied by each horizontal row of stamps. Sometimes these are entirely covered but in other cases they show quite plainly at the center of the outside frame of the stamps in the extreme right and left-hand and vertical rows. On some plates I notice these side dots are double then, and whether they were so marked by accident or design I cannot say.

OTHER VARIETIES.

We have lines to shade, which are in themselves an interesting study in connection with this 1c stamp. The productions of the American Bank Note Co., vary from a pale ultramarine to a deep dull blue. But the blue stamps of the 1894-95 issue defy description in cold print. They exist in a wonderful array of shades and provide several rich tints that are a delight to the eye of any color enthusiast. It will be found that impressions from the same plates furnish quite a diversity of shades ranging in some cases from a bright ultramarine to the darkest of dark blues. The green stamps also vary considerably the two early ones being represented by a very pale yellow-green and a handsome dark green.

The only really expensive variety is the 1890 issue imperforate. I have seen several used copies of this. The 1c of 1895, unwatermarked paper, may also be found imperforate and though some authorities class this as only a finished proof it is an interesting variety and one that cannot be ignored by the specialist.

Of proofs proper, I only know of the 1890 variety on card board, and a die proof of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing's production in deep blue, but probably many others exist.

Lastly the specialist should look for various plate flaws such as colored dots which were never intended to show (I know they can be found on certain plates), hair lines, etc., and perforation freaks.

When he has conscientiously exhausted all the possibilities of these 1c stamps he will indeed have found a collection of which he may well be proud.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

AUTHOR'S FOREWORD.

In accepting the commission of the publishers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS to prepare a series of articles upon Specialized Collecting of United States Postage Stamps, I feel that it is a stupendous task. Were it not for the fact that each year there are hundreds of newcomers born into the world of philately, who must needs have assistance to keep alive their interest, to instruct and to entertain them, I would feel that the undertaking would be love's labor lost. It is to the army of beginners, and the fairly well advanced collectors, I would write. The far advanced, studious, serious collectors who have for years specialized in the stamps of the United States, I fear, will find little which will be new to them in the progress of this series of talks on the many collectible minor varieties of the exceedingly interesting stamps of our own country.

As a field for serious study of stamps there is nòne more fertile and interesting than the postal issues of the United States from 1847 to date. When one has gathered all of the stamps described and priced in the Standard catalogues one has only made a good beginning. There still remains hundreds of "stickers" each showing some material difference from all others to be added to the albums.

The two stamps of 1847—5 and 10 cents—amaze one by their possibilities for study by the specialist. The stamps which follow—the imperforate issues of 1851 and their fellow stamps, perforated prints of the same plates—make up a world which only a few have fully explored.

And as the specialist proceeds further he finds that his catalog and the few handbooks upon the subject which he possesses, only lead him to the edge of an almost limitless garden of beautiful, interesting variety. The acquisition of one uncatalogued variety of stamp leads the explorer deeper into a land of stamps which he has never even dreamed existed. And I venture the assertion that few of my readers will ever see the day when they can say that their collection of United States adhesives is complete in all their possible varieties and combinations.

So much for the pleasure of specializing, and the field that is open. As an investment a specialized United States collection will possess worth, if forced upon the market, that the same amount of time and money expended upon a general collection could not begin to meet.

Fortunately the greatest number of legitimately collectible minor varieties of these stamps exist among the cheaper kinds. A very few dollars invested in the stamps which catalog from a penny each up to a dime will produce a considerable number of stamps which may be profitably added to any collection. As the collector progresses in his studies of the collectible varieties he will find that many of the desired stamps will be found upon approval sheets and books in the exchange circuits.

Quite naturally the student of varieties will gather duplicates which will be used as mediums of exchange with other collectors, so that the collection is being constantly added to. By means of correspondence much will be learned regarding different minor varieties. In fact an earnest, studious collector will soon find himself wondering that he has found so much to learn about the stamps he is becoming a specialist in.

It is not my intention to go deeply into the history of the different issues, nor to describe the catalogued varieties. The catalogs and several excellent books upon the subject will do that. If it becomes necessary to take up any considerable space in explaining the distinguishable features of some type of stamp already noticed in this way, it will be for the purpose of drawing comparisons between it and the varieties.

Before taking up the study of the varieties, issue by issue, I would say a word about values. A collector should seek good condition and demand it, or require that the price be in accordance.

Condition, as I understand it may be described as follows:

Mint—as the stamp comes from the postoffice; never hinged. Unused—with full gum, except where it has been lightly hinged. Uncancelled—unused without gum. Fine—with good margins all around, and if perforated without perforations touching any part of the design; lightly cancelled, and unstained or unsoiled. Good—perforations may barely touch the design, or the full design may not be clear by reason of overcancellation. Fair—A small part of design may be obliterated by perforation, or by heavy cancellation. Poor—Badly centered, heavily cancelled, soiled or torn. In case two of the faults exist the stamp should take the lower classification.

When sheets are made up for specialists, or want lists are filled, I would classify the prices as follows: Mint or fine—full catalog. Unused or good—three-quarters catalog. Uncancelled or fair—one-half catalog. Poor—not more than one-fourth.

Pairs ought to be worth the above price classification and one third added. Strip of three—as classified in price, and one-half added. Blocks of four—as can be agreed upon between seller and buyer. Remember I am figuring on sheets or books made up of certain issues, or varieties, at the request of the collector.

There are exceptions, of course, to this rule. Circumstances may have made single stamps quite common, but pairs, strips and blocks of four almost unattainable. These cases, whenever known, will be mentioned in their proper place.

As to the collection of different cancellations, a specialist must suit himself. I can see much reason for collecting "Paid," "Carrier," "Railway," "Steamboat," "Express" and year dated cancellations. But I do not see the necessity of gathering each stamp with a black, a red, a green, and a pen cancellation, because this only represents the different inks used by the postmasters.

However, there must be some demand for different colored cancellations, else the specialized books would not price a stamp at four cents cancelled in black and $1.00 in green.

The year-dated cancellations (showing plainly the year used) are rarities in the earlier issues.

Shades will probably be the hardest part of the study in specializing. Several shades will be mentioned which many believe they possess, but few are really known. Stamps with shades difficult to understand, should be submitted to an expert for examination and opinion before being placed.

The first chapter in this interesting subject will, naturally, be the varieties of the issue of 1847. This is a fascinating issue and worth spending much time upon.

Issue of 1847.

Denominations—5 cents; 10 cents.
Authorized by Congress—March 3, 1847.
Printers—Rawdon, Wright, Hatch & Edson, N. Y.
Date of issue—July 1, 1847.
First stamp placed on sale (probably) August 5, 1847.
Withdrawn from use—June 30, 1851.
Distribution—3,712,000 pieces 5 cents; 891,000 pieces 10 cents.
Returned to department for exchange—value $12,088.55 in all.

For sentimental reasons, if for no other, the issue of 1847 is very dear to every collector of United States postage stamps. Representing as it does the first issue of stamps authorized by this country it is held in high esteem. Probably no stamps are more eagerly sought for by the beginner. They are first in his album, first of the really attainable ones priced in the catalog, and, like Washington whose portrait adorns the 10 cent denomination, are first in the hearts of his (philatelic) countrymen.

Proud is the heart of the new collector when he secures the 10 cent black of 1847 for he has then completed the set. If he is earnest, studious, and can accumulate the necessary funds for its purchase this is the first issue of the United States to be finished.

After the stamp collector has been looking a little deeper into the stamps of this country he finds that in his possession of the 5 and 10 cent stamps he has only made a beginning. As he becomes a specialist his accumulation of Forty-Sevens will grow. Finally, if he goes that far, this issue becomes one of the most pretentious of all his cherished stamps, covering as it will, several pages in the place of honor in his blank album.

The catalogs list the 5 cent in red brown, dark brown and orange; the 10 cent in one variety, and two bisections. There are also two "reprints" catalogued. The color of paper is stated as "bluish."

Of the minor die varieties there is little field for study for the specialist. The 5 cent stamp will be found in the clear early printings and a rather smudgy worn plate appearance. It has been stated that the 5 cent occurs in a "shifted die" variety, but the author has never been fortunate enough to see a copy.

There are five distinct shades, five varieties or colors of cancellation, and attributes in the 5 cent to make up a very pretentious collection in itself. There are also intermediate shades to be found which, if the specialist cares to go that far, makes up a rather formidable combination. I would list the collectible shades as follows:

Shades.—Light Brown, Orange Red, Red Brown, Brown, Seal (or dark) Brown.

There are two collectible varieties of paper, and possibly three. The common, or normal, paper is thin bluish. It also is found on vertical laid paper with lines very close together. The later variety is rare. This stamp is occasionally found on white paper. I have seen it used in that variety. But authorities claim that the stamp was never issued in other than bluish paper, and it may be that some chemical action has discharged the blue from the paper of those shown, leaving the paper white. I have a copy of this stamp on yellowish paper which no solvent has been able to change. But it may be due to the action of the gum, or of time.

This stamp oxidizes with age, and all copies should be well cleaned with peroxide of hydrogen before being arranged as to shades.

Specialists are paying considerable attention to the matter of cancellations. In the early days of its issue the pen mark was the most common form of cancelling the stamps, and in this form is the most common. Then comes red, blue, black and green cancellations, their commonness being in the order named.

Pairs are not scarce, horizontal pairs being frequently found. Vertical pairs are rather uncommon, and should bring a slightly higher premium than the horizontal variety. Strips of three have been seen, but are rare. Blocks of four are found in but few collections, and few dealers have them in stock. They readily find sale at a good advance. The so-called "Reprint" is not such at all. It would be better called a government imitation. It never was available for postage. The imitation can be told from the genuine stamp by comparing the cravat—the original terminating in a distinct angle to left of the chin. The imitations made in 1875 for exhibition at the Philadelphia Centennial, are on paper with a bluish tinge. They are to be had also in India paper and card-board proofs.

The 10 cent black is found in three collectible shades—gray black, greenish black and deep black. Paper is bluish. It is found also on the close line laid and on the alleged white paper.

This denomination has a "shifted die" a line showing plainly through the inscription. The same remarks about the imitations above apply to this stamp. The same is true of cancellations—pen cancelled stamps being the most common.

The bisected, or half used as five cents, is occasionally to be had. No such stamp should be purchased unless on original cover, and a post-office cancellation covers a part of stamp where cut and the envelope as well. Pairs are not common, and are worth a good premium over two single stamps.

THE N. Y. STAMP EXHIBITION.

J. W. Scott in Metropolitan Philatelist.

We have been asked by a number of collectors how much they ought to contribute to the Exhibitors Fund. It is a delicate matter to attempt to dictate how a man shall spend his money. Things of this sort should be left to a man's own conscience, his natural liberality, or to his sense of self interest. Still, we want to answer our correspondents or at least to give a hint of what we think right. First, every adult American collector should become a member. This costs one dollar and is returned in admission fees, so it is no tax on the owner of a five hundred dollar collection. Second, we think a donation of one-half of one per cent. on the value of an amateur's collection is money well invested. Third, as to dealers, those in the first class should (and practically all have) contribute $100.00. The smaller concerns should pay from $25 to $50 according to their standing and all others dealing in stamps anywhere in the country can put up $5. Remember, at least $15,000.00 must be in hand before this year is out.

RARE STAMPS BY IMPRISONMENT.

Milan, June 12.—An ingenious, if reprehensible, scheme to obtain stamps of rare value has been divulged by one of the delegates at the Milan Congress of philatelists, who admits that his collection contains two of the kind in question.

A trader of Jibouti, French East Africa, engages natives to commit a minor offense, the penalty for which is a fine of fifty francs, or imprisonment by default. The native serves his sentence and on leaving prison receives a document bearing a stamp of the value of the fine, which he sells to the dealer for a nominal sum, the latter disposing of it to a collector at ten times the amount. Obliterated French colonial stamps of 50 francs denomination are highly prized by philatelists.—Press Clipping.

MR. BARTELS ON THE NEW SCOTT'S.

(J. M. Bartels is so great a student of U. S. stamps that we reprint his review of the 1912 Scott's catalog as found in the last Philatelic Gazette. Specialists in U. S. stamps will find this magazine of special interest.—Ed.)

This year it took six months longer than usual to issue the new edition of the American Standard Catalogue, consequently many collectors have felt their patience sorely tried, some even believing that an injustice was being done them and that their rights had been ignored. At last we have the completed work before us and Mr. John N. Luff, who has done the revising well merits the gratitude of American collectors for the distinct improvements in the present edition. He has worked unceasingly for over a year to bring the Scott catalogue up to the standard of modern requirements which indeed has been a herculean task. For the past six years outside of prices and the adding of new issues, very few changes had been made and practically no rewriting done. Many countries had been so neglected that dealers and auctioneers had frequently found it necessary to use Gibbons, Kohl or some other catalogue when marking or listing stamps for sale as the Scott catalogue was either inadequate or antiquated in regard to prices. This was particularly the case with many British Colonies and most Central and South American countries. Dealers were doing a profitable business buying certain popular lines at small discounts off Scott and selling at a good margin in the European market. This was especially the case with old German stamps which are now advanced heavily.

The principal improvements consist in the adding of numerous varieties, such as inverted and double surcharges and including the most important shades for which there is an ever increasing demand among specialists. In most cases the general collector will continue to content himself with filling the spaces provided in a printed album or collecting the main numbers in the catalogues. The specialist, however, must try to complete the varieties listed under minor headings in the catalogues; some far from being satisfied to stop there, even go much further by including oddities, additional shades and blocks. In Europe we find many collectors who abide by the printed album but make practically two collections, one unused and one used.

A number of countries such as Nicaragua, Mexico and Persia have been largely rewritten and greatly improved. Mexico which has been dormant for many years has bounded into favor again, and most of the early issues have jumped up. The first two issues are published with comparative prices:

The notes referring to reprints and special information have been much improved and former misleading statements and errors corrected. This constitutes no small part of Mr. Luff's best work. Indeed, no man is better qualified for this task as he owns what today is probably the largest collection of reprints and reference material. A feature of the Scott catalogue is the listing of all stamps which are known partly perforated or imperforate. Many of these were probably never actually issued and owe their existence either to accident or design. For instance when government remainders are sold such as the "Seebeck" issues, Hayti, Dominican Republic, a sheet may be found perforated one way only or with one row of perforations omitted. Another laudable improvement is an endeavor to correct the frequently inaccurate name of a color or shade; but still more uniformity along these lines is desirable.

As on several occasions The Gazette had considerable to say regarding the U. S. section and make a few suggestions, which may be considered in the next edition, it is unnecessary to take up this point again. The 1851 10c, type II, listed for the first time will undoubtedly be omitted in future. The 2c green Navy "error" is now considered a proof by the best authorities and never should have been in the catalogue. The wisdom of omitting it, now that it has become so valuable and many have paid good money for their copies, may be questioned by many. We do think, however, that in future no space should be provided for this interloper in the albums published by the same firm.

The Postage Due 30c and 50c yellow brown are still retained. In our opinion they should be omitted as the copies supposed to represent this shade are different from the other values in the set and more properly belong to the "brown" series from which they would be difficult to separate.

It must be pleasing to cut square collectors to note the elaboration of that section of the U. S. Issues. The 1907-10 series has been awarded some fifty extra numbers, and all the main dies of the 1c, 2c, 4c and 5c of the current issues are duly noted. The awakened interest in this former popular line of collecting has necessitated the present fine list of cut squares in the Standard Catalogue. Those just starting to collect cut squares can easily determine the various varieties by the brief but intelligent description of the dies.

We learn that for the purpose of preventing further delay in the issue of the catalogue the revision was carried through only as far as Salvador. Countries following it have received only changes in prices and the addition of new issues. Doubtless the next edition will complete the work of thorough revision of the catalogue and when this is accomplished the value of the Scott catalogue as an aid to the collector will be greatly enhanced.

EDITORIAL.

San Francisco's Stamps—Several suggestions have been received from readers for designs of the forthcoming Panama-Pacific stamps that embody sufficient merit to warrant that they be tendered to the authorities at Washington; and we have so advised the persons who submitted them. The ideas were based, no doubt, upon the remarks on the issue that appeared in this column in the paper dated June 15th, in the course of which it was mentioned casually that "the discovery of gold at Sutter's in 1848 be included in the ideas that receive consideration." In support of this subject, it is to be said that Sutter's Mill-Race as pictured presents a scheme marked by a natural nobility that is not without originality. The mill-race itself, a few Indians and several whites, and two gigantic trees in the foreground, backed by two bold promontories and a few buildings, etc., characteristic of the period, are details on a broad scale that would allow of the necessary compression in design. We may repeat that the department is taking no perfunctory interest in the set of stamps but is keenly intent upon producing a series that will justify itself on the score of artistic and impressive treatment.

Pioneer Days—A history of the Pony Express, reprinted from the old Philatelic Californian, 1897, has been started by the Philatelic Gazette and as the story of the fascinating enterprise is retold its interest does not wane. The tendency of the historians of the Pony Express, as philatelists, not unnaturally is to begin their tale almost with the year that the express was established but they should sketch the earlier times, beginning with 1849, when the overland route became well known. In that year, a family carrying with it only such articles and utensils as were necessary, could travel from the Missouri frontier to the Sacramento valley in four and one-half months. The season for travel was at its best in early May, when it was advisable to leave Missouri so that arrival in California would be late in the month of September. The favorite mode of travel was by mules and light but durable wagons, the grass and water en route sustaining the animals; and it was customary to start at sunrise and rest during the middle hours of the day and complete the day's march in the afternoon.

Pony Express Service—While on the subject of the Pony Express, attention is directed to the following letter: "Some time ago I saw your reference to the mail-bag as shown on the two-cent 1869 as being entirely different from that of the Pony Express riders but could not write you while on the road to say that you are correct, as the following description taken from William Lightfoot Visscher's The Pony Express or Blazing the Westward Way will prove:" "Two hundred and fifty miles a day was the distance traveled by the Pony Express, and it may be assured that the rider carried no surplus weight. . . . . Even his case of precious letters made a bundle no larger than the ordinary writing tablet, but there was $5 paid in advance for every letter transported across the continent. Their bulk was not in the least commensurable with their number; there were hundreds of them sometimes, for they were written on the thinnest tissue paper to be procured. . . . The mail-bags were two pouches of leather impervious to rain, sealed, strapped to the rider's saddle before and behind. The pouches were never to contain over twenty pounds in weight. Inside the pouches, to further protect their contents from the weather, the letters and despatches were wrapped in oil silk, then sealed." The post was employed mostly by the government, traders and merchants; and it has been asserted that it would have enjoyed some profitable years if the construction of the telegraph across the continent had not usurped its functions. Just before the Pony Express was supplanted by the telegraph an average of seven hundred letters a week was brought from the Pacific coast; and in the last weeks when the telegraph had practically destroyed the utility of the Pony Express, the rates were reduced to one dollar a half-ounce and each letter was covered by a ten-cent government stamped envelope.

Department Data—A contemporary quite properly says that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has "saved the Post Office Department hundreds of thousands of dollars in the making of stamps. They now cost 5 cents per 1,000 where they formerly cost as high as 18 cents per 1,000." Quite coincidentally, a reader has sent a reproduction of the following notice from which it will be seen that the 1869 set was contracted for at the rate of twenty-five cents a thousand; the National Bank Note Company had the patent rights of the grill it may be added. "June 10th, 1868. A new contract with the National Bank Note, made by Postmaster-General Randall at 25½ cents per thousand." From the same source, the following excerpt from the report of Postmaster-General Cresswell, has come: Annual report, 1870: "The adhesive stamps (postage) adopted by my predecessor having failed to give satisfaction to the public on account of their small size, their unshapely form, the inappropriation of their designs, the difficulty of canceling them effectually and the inferior quality of gum. . . ." This notice was dated March 5th, 1869, and consequently was prepared by Postmaster-General J. A. J. Cresswell almost as soon as the 1869 issue of stamps had been well distributed.

An Answer—There have been several answers to the questions regarding the steps of business succession of the different bank note companies that were concerned in the manufacture of the earlier United States stamps; and one informant traces the change in the company that printed the 1851 issue of stamps as follows: Toppan, Carpenter, Casilear and Company; Toppan, Butler and Carpenter; Philadelphia Bank Note Company and a change subsequently.

Excellent—A subscriber writes: "I was pleased to note that some one was preparing an article on Postmaster-Generals and their terms of office. Years ago, when laying out plans for loose leaf album of United States, I made the album as and for a historical postal reference for my pleasure. Enclosed is the plan I worked upon, crude, perhaps but enjoyable; and I wait the article in question." The plan of this collector is an effective one and the sample sheet that he enclosed has supplied us with some information of which use has been made. Mr. Goodwin's series on United States issues will be found of added interest by those who attend to the "writing up" of their collections, a practice that should be promoted.

OLYMPIA (WASH.) STAMP CLUB.

(Arthur K. Roberts, 1904 Washington St., Olympia, Wn., president of the club, sends us the following clipping from a local paper with the request that interested parties living in or near Olympia should communicate with him.—ED.)

Something new in the line of novel organizations has been brought to the surface in Olympia, by the announcement that the organization of the Olympia Philatelic club has been perfected. The club has for its object the collection of all kinds of postage stamps, from every civilized country, both from the pecuniary as well as historic or chimerical consideration.

The Olympia club has for its officers the following: President, Arthur K. Roberts; vice president, Lincoln Lounsbury; directress of programs, Mrs. E. C. Story and secretary and treasurer, Sidney Rankine. It is contemplated to give programs at various intervals, for the benefit of the members, at which interesting discussions on the work will be had.

The local organization was perfected with ten charter members and additional members are to be added soon. This is considered a remarkable start in a city of Olympia's size as Seattle has only a slightly larger club, while in Tacoma, although steps toward the perfection of an organization have been taken, they have not yet materialized.—Morning Olympian.

20th CENTURY STAMPS OF FRANCE.

By G. A. Higlett.

The causes which have brought about changes in the designs of the postage stamps of the present French Republic are of more than ordinary interest.

The people of France have been very critical of these designs. The simple but artistic design of the first issue of 1849 was repeated for the issues of the present Republic after the great war. In course of time it became the subject of much adverse criticism. The effigy was ridiculed in the press, it was nicknamed "Marianne," the nickname stuck to it, and that settled the matter. Poor Marianne died of ridicule.

It was replaced by the design known as the Peace and Commerce type. This too had its day, and in turn became the subject of hostile criticism and public complaint. Mythological figures were said to be unfitting emblems of the up-to-date fin-de-siècle Republic. Minerva and Mercury were condemned and banished, to make room for the issues of 1900, of three different designs for different values, supposed to be more highly emblematic of the lofty ideals and virtues of the Republic.

The Blanc type, for the lower values, 1c to 5c, displays the winged goddess or figure of Liberty, holding the balanced scales to represent Equality, accompanied by two small unclad figures embracing to represent Fraternity. In passing, one may note that the goddess has apparently six toes to her feet, but presumably the goddess of Liberty is at liberty to have as many toes as she may fancy. The emblem of Fraternity does not appeal strongly to British sentiment, because here brothers are not fond of kissing each other, but they manage these things better in France.

There are a few minor varieties of the Blanc type, the principal ones being, on the 1c, the figure of value having a long serif or hook touching the margin, and on the 5c, a triangular spot on the mirror. Copies are also found with the inscription "Republique Francaise" quite illegible.

The Merson type, for the higher values, 40c to 5fr, shows the same goddess with a sheathed sword and numerous olive branches to represent Peace. There are varieties on some values with the tinted background missing (sans teinte de fond), or with this background much out of place.

The Mouchon type, for the intermediate values, 10c to 30c, presents the figure of Liberty wearing the Phrygian cap, and crowned with olive to represent Peace, having a cuirass to represent Armed Defence, ornamented with a small lion's head to typify Courage, bearing in the right hand a sceptre crowned with a Hand of Justice, and supporting with the left hand a tablet inscribed "droits de l'homme."

This type gave rise to instant complaint. The Hand of Justice was an emblem of the old kings of France and therefore quite unsuited to a Republic. The poise of the tablet supported by the left hand was held to be an impossible position for such a thing to be held in, and the inscription, "Rights of Man," seemed to ignore the Rights of Woman, or is supposed to do so by those who do not consider that Man embraces Woman, which statement also is ambiguous. The very minute size of the lion's head as the emblem of Courage also suggested that the moral quality it typified might also have to be looked for with a microscope. The whole thing was condemned as unsatisfactory.

In the issue with two printings, varieties may be found with the figures of value quite away from the centre of the value table, and others in which the figures of value differ considerably in shade of colour from the rest of the stamp, etc., so that we find

1. Difference in colour.
2. Out of centre.
3. Double imprint.
4. Figures missing.

An examination of the backs of the stamps shows the following varieties:—

1. Double impression, one at the back (impression au versa). This is caused by a sheet not being fed into the machine, in consequence of which the bed-plate receives an impression, and the next sheet being placed thereon gets an imprint on both sides, exactly coinciding with each other.
2. On thin transparent paper, with impression showing through on the back (impression ressortant au verso).
3. Impression at back on the gum (impression au verso sur la gomme). The stamps were printed in such a great hurry, that the gumming immediately followed the printing. Sheets on which neither the printing nor gum were thoroughly dried being laid upon one another, the lower gummed surface took off an impression from the upper printed surface of the sheet beneath.

Some other minor varieties to be found on particular values are as follows:—

10c. Hook of figure 1 broken off and missing.

15c. Hook of figure 1 long and touching frame.

Lines of background run together making it almost solid.

Top flag of figure 5 very thick.

Spots of colour in centre of figure 5.

25c. Curl of figure 5 making a complete circle.

Accent over E of POSTES.

Sower Type 1.

The prevalent dissatisfaction led to a change of design in 1903. A part of the coinage already bore the design of the Sower, by Roty, and this was chosen for the new postage stamps. It is supposed to typify the Republic sowing its ideas or ideals (whichever you like) in the world. It may be consoling to the French to portray themselves as benefitting the whole world of other nations by spreading their own ideals, but it is not exactly complimentary to the other nations. Quite apart from this consideration, the design was open to more serious practical criticism.

It will be seen that a strong wind is blowing the lady's dress in a particular direction, and she is walking against this, sowing against the wind, which is believed to be not the usual method of practical husbandry, even if it holds good on the moral plane. But far more strange than this is the fact that a strong light is falling upon the lady from the front, casting dark shadow behind, while the sun is also behind her, and this is not in accordance with the working of natural law in this country, although, of course, as stated before, they may manage these things better in France.

The preparation of this type was hurried by the Government with all possible speed. Sheets were printed in the morning, gummed in the afternoon, and perforated the next day. This great haste was not compatible with good work.

In this first type of the Sower, the figure appears on a lined background, with the sun rising above the line of the horizon.

The stamps were issued from April to June 1903. The plate numbers are 3, 4, 5 and 6. The printings are in various shades of rose.

The haste with which these were prepared led to numerous minute varieties. Taking the 10c only as an example, there are to be found numerous spots or faults arising from defective printing, such as:—

A blotch on the sun, producing the semblance of an eclipse (Sémeuse à l'éclipse).

The appearance of a small flag in the hand (Sémeuse avec drapeau).

A series of faults producing the appearance of a broken seed bag with the seed escaping (Sémeuse au sac percé).

A ball or bullet (Sémeuse au boulet).

There are also numerous apparent errors of lettering, letters joined together, engraver's name omitted, etc.

There were very many spoiled or faulty sheets (fautées), known here as printers' waste, which should in the ordinary course be cancelled and sent to the Bank of France to be burnt, but a great many of these waste sheets have escaped destruction and found their way out into the philatelic market.

There are also to be found the three varieties mentioned in the case of the previous issue, impression au verso, impression au verso sur la gomme, and impression ressortant au verso. The copies seen are generally unused, and probably came from the defective sheets.

Sower Type 2.

Steps were taken to remedy the defects appearing in the design, and a new type was produced from the same die with all the lines of the background eliminated. In order that the Sower might appear to be standing on terra firma, something like an inverted soup plate was engraved at the bottom, all the rest of the background being in solid colour. This type is known as the Semeuse avec terrasse or avec sol.

It was made a trifle smaller than the first type, to allow better perforation.

It was issued in April, 1906, and 30 million stamps were printed.

Immediately it was issued, steps were taken to improve it. The very next day after the issue, there was discussed the question of the suppression of the small part of the seed bag which projects in front of the left arm, and the elimination of the ground upon which the Sower stands, and this was carried into effect, and a further new type produced, also by an alteration of the original Die.

Sower Type 3.

This type has the same solid background, with no ground under the feet, and the projecting point of the seed bag removed.

Printing commenced on 5th July, 1906, and the stamps were issued on 28th July. The colour is in shades of red, or dull red. The Plate numbers are 6 and 7, and the total issue was 55 million stamps.

Sundry minor varieties are found, as before.

This issue was also considered unsatisfactory, and orders were given for certain retouches to be made at once.

When the issue had lasted for less than two hours, it was withdrawn. Those who had promptly laid in a supply were happy, as it was said that the whole stock was to be burnt, but other ideas finally prevailed, and later on the whole stock was issued.

This type is described in French catalogues as Sémeuse sans terrasse or sans sol.

Sower Type 4.

The alteration of design, or re-touches, consist of a white line outlining the posterior contour of the figure, with something of the same sort done to the right arm and the seed bag, to make them stand out in bolder relief, and in the meantime a further printing and issue were made of Type 1 with the lined background.

Printing commenced in September, 1906, and the issue in the next month. The printing was continued until February, 1907, and the total production was 500 million stamps.

The lines of the re-touch made by the engraver were so fine that imperfect printing often made them disappear, and so it is possible to get pairs apparently consisiting of Types 3 and 4 together.

On 24th October orders were given for a further re-touch, for the contours of the figure to be better shewn and for the inscriptions to be made more legible.

Sower Type 5.

In this type the outlines are clearer and the inscriptions are in thicker letters.

Printing commenced on 22nd January, 1907, and the issue was first made in the following September. The colour is in shades of red, scarlet, etc.

Besides the variety with impression shewing through on the back, and imperforate stamps, the varieties due to defective printing are as numerous as ever. Some of these are very pronounced, giving us the Sower with candle in right hand, Sower with beer jug in right hand, Sower playing at ball, etc.

This type was also successfully forged to defraud the Post Office, the principal distinguishing feature of the forgery being its perforation by a line machine instead of by the comb machine of the genuine stamps.

It is not usual for one of the commonest stamps of the issue of an important country, while only recently or still in use, to present such an extended field for study as is shown by the 10 centimes value of the Sower type. The penny issues of New Zealand during the past ten years present a great variety arising from varied causes, the place of printing, alteration of design, numerous changes of paper, many different perforations, etc. The French stamps, however, have all been produced at one place, have all the same perforation, there are no official changes of paper, and the design although slightly varied has been produced from one original die, but it will be seen from the foregoing, which is based upon Mr. Maury's well-known hand-book, that we have here an almost infinite variety, presenting a most extensive field for study, with the advantage that most of the varieties can be picked up for a trifling cost, and the very numerous varieties already listed indicate that there are more discoveries yet to be made.—Phil. Jour. of Great Britain.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—Clifford E. Bresee reports having found the 2c envelope on blue paper, with the laid lines horizontal instead of diagonal. The envelope has the 1907 watermark.

AUSTRALIA.—Apropos the Kangaroo stamp, proposed for Australia, Scott's Circular says: The late Mr. Æsop or some other story-telling gentleman whom we met in our school days used to describe a mountain in labor that brought forth a mouse. Our Australian friends are probably prepared to vouch for the credibility of this tale, since something of this nature has recently happened in their section of the world, only their product has the appearance of an overgrown rat. After years of promises, discussions, prize contests for designs and other preliminaries to a new issue, the Postmaster-General has taken matters in his own hands and has produced a design for a postage stamp which he terms "simple yet expressive" but which everyone else calls ridiculous. The comments of the public press, which are extensively reprinted in philatelic journals, are unanimously adverse. The reproductions of the design seem to justify their objections. It certainly is a "wonder-beast." The design is absolutely flat, inartistic and devoid of ornament or beauty. It presents the outline of the Australian continent nearly filled by a kangaroo and a few scratches to represent grass. The word "Australia" and the value in word and figures complete a most uninteresting exhibit. The Melbourne Argus thinks that it looks like a "label for Killjoy's hopless beer" but that must have been written in a moment of thoughtlessness. We have always understood that a kangaroo was full of hops. It must be admitted that the design has advertising possibilities. It suggests that the kangaroo has just jumped through a paper banner. If trimmed up with a few galloping horses and clowns it would not make a bad circus poster. But as a postage stamp it is enough to cause people to use "language" and we don't blame the Australians for being disgusted with it.

BOLIVIA.—H. Cormack has also shown us the surcharged stamp, 1c on 10c, chronicled in No. 1118.

CHINA.—The philatelic situation in China is so well summed up in Scott's Circular that we copy freely: During the revolution the Post Office Department was, by mutual consent, regarded as neutral and was not molested by the contending parties. When the Manchu dynasty was virtually overthrown and shortly before the abdication was proclaimed the Republican leaders made strong objections to the use of stamps bearing the word "Imperial," and it was decided to overprint them in some manner that would show the changed condition of affairs. This was left to Mr. Piry, Postal Commissioner at Peking, who caused stamps of the 1902-10 issue to be surcharged with four Chinese characters meaning "Provisional Neutrality," literally "temporary middle stand." No one seems to know the exact significance of this surcharge. The characters were in a horizontal line across the middle of the stamp. Some of these stamps were sent to Foochow, capital of the province of Fuhkien, about February 1st of this year and were on sale there either two or three days before they were withdrawn by an official order. The stamps sold there were the 3 cents, 1, 2 and 5 dollars. The first was surcharged in red and the others in black. Postage due stamps of ½, 2, 4, 5, 10, 20 and 30 cents were also surcharged. We lack information as to the colors of the due stamps and the surcharge on them. It is stated that some 4,000 to 5,000 stamps were sold at Foochow.

After the stamps with the "Provisional Neutrality" surcharge were withdrawn Mr. Piry was instructed to obliterate that surcharge and apply a new one reading "Chung Hua Ming Kuo" i. e. Republic of China literally "Middle flowery people's nation." He added the new surcharge in the shape of four characters in a vertical row, two above and two below the old surcharge, but failed to efface the latter. Some of the stamps with this cruciform surcharge were sent to Nanking where they were placed on sale on the morning of March 22nd, only to be withdrawn in less than two hours on receipt of telegraphic instructions from Peking. The stamps sold were the 1, 3 and 16 cents, with red surcharge, and the 1, 2 and 5 dollars, with black surcharge. In all 1764 stamps of all denominations were sold, of which 1379 were purchased by one man.

Following these two attempts a third surcharge was made, consisting of the four characters for Chinese Republic, as in the issue last described, but forming an unbroken vertical line. The stamps with this surcharge was placed on sale on March 24th. The first printing of this surcharge was in blue but that color was not found satisfactory and subsequent printings were in red or black according to the color of the stamp. Most, if not all, of the stamps with the blue surcharge were sent to Hankow and were quickly sold. We have no information of the quantities but the denominations of the stamps were ½, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 16, 20 and 30c. As has been previously stated, the Republic of China surcharge, in red or black, was applied to fifteen values of postage stamps and the full set of postage due stamps, some printed in blue and others in brown.

Stuart T. Danforth has been informed that the new stamps of the Republic will not be issued until the surcharged Imperial stamps have been exhausted.

HONDURAS.—The Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung reports the issue of the 1c value of the new permanent set, dated "1912."

ITALY.—Tripoli,—Champion's Bulletin gives the following as the quantities surcharged "Tripoli—di Barberia" on the stamps of Italy, and issued in 1910: 1c, 200,000; 2c, 200,000; 5c, 400,000; 10c, 300,000; 15c, 300,000; 25c, 300,000; 40c, 300,000; 50c, 20,000; 1l, 10,000; 5l, 3200; 25c express, 20,000; 30c express, 20,000.

NETHERLANDS.—The Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung chronicles eight more values of the new postage due set in single color.

NEW HEBRIDES.—Champion's Bulletin says that the last printing of the French Condominium stamps was done in London, though on paper watermarked "R F." Some of the stamps have no watermark, and others only fragments of the two letters. In order to get the full watermark it is necessary to get a block of 48 stamps.

PERSIA.—Our foreign contemporaries note the fact that four of the current stamps, 2c, 3c, 6c and 13c, have been surcharged "Relais" and Persian characters, for use on the line from Rescht to Teheran, by the little relay posts, which are not post-offices.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish al' the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—"I recently discovered something that is worth knowing to collectors. I had a packet of 1000 hinges and the weather was wet and they stuck together, notwithstanding they were placed in an envelope in a tight box. I thought I should have to throw them away, but an idea struck me. I put them in the refrigerator and froze them, and was then able to take them all apart and never lost one."—E. J. POST.

—Eugene Klein, Inc. will sell the second part of Charles Steigerwalt's collection of U. S. and foreign stamps Saturday, June 29. Descriptive catalog is at hand.

—An unknown correspondent sends us from Lexington, Ky., a new aerial route postmark. We do not know any of the circumstances in relation to the same. In addition to the regulation Lexington postmark we have in three lines the rubber stamped inscription "U. S. Official—Aerial—Mail Stamp."

—We are indebted to Maitland Milliken for a bunch of six clippings. We appreciate courtesies of this character even though we are unable to use the clippings sent.

—Gammans' Stamp Notes is the latest house organ. For a sample, try 61 Nassau St., N. Y. City.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from C. M. Breder (6), J. Rausch, George Hoppe, Jr.

—Clarence H. Eagle of N. Y. is making an extended trip abroad and will not return until August 10.

—M. S. Karlitsky favors us with information in connection with the enterprise displayed by tobacco firms in sending out sets of stamps in packages of cigarettes.

—G. de Lachasse in remitting for a two years' renewal to the WEEKLY calls our attention to the fact that he has been a subscriber to the paper for twenty years. We have a large number of subscribers in the twenty year class.

—The Manhattan Stamp Co. has removed to larger quarters at 38 E. 23 St., N. Y. City. The firm will have a show window which will prove a material advantage.

—Walter R. Lindsay, Ardmore, Pa., who was reported in the WEEKLY two weeks ago, is now complained against by Leslie Hart, Pottstown, Pa.

—M. F. Klingenstein advises us that the American Tobacco Co. is using about three million stamps per week in the cigarettes the firm is placing on the market.

—The Springfield Stamp Club held its annual lawn party at the home of J. W. Prevost, June 4. It was ladies' night, and the attendance of members with wives and sweethearts was 37. The weather was threatening but this could not dampen the ardor or spoil the fun for the S. S. C. The lawn was decorated with Chinese lanterns and electric lights. A red-hot program of outdoor sports was prepared by the ladies under the direction of Mrs. Oppenheimer, the lady chairman, and the evening ended with dancing and refreshments.

—The Kansas Stamp Co. reports unsatisfactory dealings with Raymond Streathlow and W. Knack, both of Milwaukee, Wis.

—JOHN S. ALBEE.—The envelopes to which you refer are called albinos. In unused condition they are worth only a few cents each, due to the fact that so many hundreds of them have been discovered.

CANNOT BE SOLD OR GIVEN AWAY.

We are indebted to Dr. J. G. Grant and a Washington, D. C. correspondent for official data in connection with the postal savings bank stamps. We quote from the order as follows:—

"Special attention is directed to section 44 of the Instructions to Postmasters at postal savings depositories, which provides that the official postage stamps and official stamped envelopes of the Postal Savings System under no circumstances must be sold or given to the public. This rule applies to cancelled as well as uncancelled stamps and envelopes."

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

HARTFORD, CT., June 14, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

On the first day of January next will be the 50th anniversary of President Lincoln's emancipation of the slaves. A bill has been introduced into the United States Senate providing for the fitting celebration of that day as the most important event in our national history.

Will that event be commemorated by a special stamp or set of stamps?

What a prospect of forever fixing the event in the memory of the people of the United States and every other place where the franking power of a postage stamp is known, and, to a philatelist with a little dreaming power what a vision of beautiful art and color opens out!

J. W. LONGNECKER.

MARGINAL PLATE NUMBER MISSING.

W. A. Langdon has submitted another sheet of stamps with plate number missing. This time it is from the bottom of the sheet and Mr. Langdon reports two different numbers as having been found in this form. We quote from his letter:

"Again I have the pleasure of sending you one sheet of 2c stamps 1912 issue, plate number A 5832 on side margin but omitted on the bottom of sheet.

I wish to state that I have just secured 25 sheets, plate number 5832 and 5836 mixed and each one is in the same condition as the one I have forwarded under separate cover."

STAMPALIA.

Rome, 23rd April.

"Italy has notified the Powers that the occupation of the Island of Stampalia will be maintained until the close of the war."—REUTER.

It thrills the flock of statelets who
Are tended in "S. G., Part II.";
It lifts the hair upon the head
Of us who blush a British red.
Yet Albion can afford to smile
At loss of just a simple isle;
They might have pounced on Wales a spell,
With Lloyd George thrown in as well.
It thrills, this news across the foam
From Rome,—there is no place like Rome—
Flamed from St. Mark's by famed Marconi
O'er waving fields of macaroni.

Italia's going fine and large,
She means to make a big surcharge,
And catalogues will glow the gaylier
When indexed under "S," "Stampalia."
Don't taunt her for a jade turned silly;
She's got a bran-new Campanile—
Her Campanile's tinkling bells
Ring all along the Dardanelles:
(Italia's not the sort to shirk
When chance turns up to flout a Turk;
She sees the chance, she's just the kind,
You ne'er met a Venetian blind)
You'd swank a bit, without a doubt,
And snap up islands round about;
You'd elevate the lustrous hat,
If you possessed a thing like that,—
An "I fell" tower that tumbled flop,
The same old angel up at top;
You'd wag a flag, I'm very sure,
And gather bombs in gay Genoa,
And, aviating o'er the sea,
Drop them on Turks in Tripoli.

London's luckier by far,
London's got a Quadriga,
London Art's up several pegs—
Quadrigas have sixteen legs.

The first Turk's stamps, they didn't please,
They'd monograms like bumble bees;
And if in water they got wet,
Each curled up like a cigarette.
To me a stamp's a sad disgrace
That prints a wasp upon its face.
I can't think what they did it for
And hope the Turks won't win the war.

Now Turks' isles have a new design—
A melon rather large and fine:—
The caicos is a fruit that's found
Where Kaiks and Yashmaks most abound;
Like cabbages it often grows,
A rosy mauve, in rows on rows:
A melocactus, prickly, spiky,
Engraved taille-douce in Saloniki—
A strange device for Turks to hit on—
A melancholy thing to sit on.
(A caucus? No! You're wrong again—Ask Mr. Joseph Chamberlain.)

Italia! Italia!
She's been and took Stampalia!!
It's in the Daily Mailia,"—
Oh, ain't she just a dahlia?
Italia! Stampalia!
Put on your best regalia!
Hip, hip, hip, hip, hooraylia!!
Italia! Italia!
Stampalia! The Mailia!
Italia's got Stampalia!
Oh ain't she just a dahlia?
Who says the war's a failure?

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

GUM.

We have now described each of the parts of our dissected postage stamps with the single exception of gum. Gum is not an "essential" portion of a stamp but is a useful auxiliary added by kindly governments for the convenience of the public in affixing stamps to postal packages. Stamp collectors cannot ignore it for, as it has been officially applied and forms a part of the stamps as offered for sale at the post offices, an unused stamp cannot be considered "mint" unless it has its full original gum. There are exceptions, of course, for some stamps have been issued without gum and these must, naturally, also be considered mint. Quite a number of the stamps of various Portuguese Colonies were issued without gum and the 1871-75 stamps of Sarawak are rarely met with with gum. In the case of the former gum is omitted owing to the dampness of the climate of the places to which stamps are consigned. In the case of the Sarawak stamps these had gum originally when despatched from London but owing to the dampness and heat the sheets all stuck together and had to be soaked in water to be separated. This resulted in the removal of most or all of the gum and purchasers had to provide their own adhesive for affixing them to letters. In the vast majority of cases, however, stamps are issued with gum though the adhesiveness of this is a variable quantity. On the first stamps issued, the 1d and 2d British stamps which appeared in 1840, the gum, or "cement" as it was officially called, was a thick, dark-colored, evil-tasting compound highly deficient in adhesive properties. It was considered necessary to issue special instructions as to its use so on the margins around each sheet part of the inscription read:—"In wetting the back be careful not to remove the cement."

It is certainly interesting to examine the various kinds of gum shown on different stamps. We find thick glue-like mucilage on some of the older stamps as well as intentionally colored gums, while on most modern stamps the gum is either colorless or of a slightly yellow tinge. Then in the case of modern New Zealand stamps specialists distinguish between dull and shiny gums and in other countries we find smooth, hard, soft and streaky gums. United States and Canadian stamps are provided with gum which, as many collectors know to their cost, becomes "sticky" on the slightest provocation. The least trace of damp affects them and they then stick to one's album pages with such tenacity that they can be safely removed only by sacrificing the gum.

Stamp collectors rightly attach considerable value and importance to the presence of "original gum." But it is as well not to run to extremes on the matter especially in the case of old stamps. Some old stamps are better without their gum for owing to its composition it has a tendency to crack or discolor the paper. The absence of gum from a brilliant fresh looking specimen of a rare old stamp should not seriously affect its market value and it is certainly vastly to be preferred to a less brilliant specimen even when the latter has its full quota of gum.

Varieties of gum, as such, will not trouble the beginner. The advanced collector, however, frequently finds differences in the gum are of some assistance in distinguishing between various printings or issues of stamps and also, in isolated cases, in differentiating between reprints and originals. For instance a study of the different gums is of the first importance to the specialist who aspires to identify the genuine stamps of Hanover from the reprints.

SHORT REPLIES.

R. H. G. (Windsor, N. S.).—Stamps overprinted "Specimen" or words having the same meaning are, as a rule, stamps sent to Berne for distribution to the various countries belonging to the Universal Postal Union, those distributed to officials, etc., in indicating a change of design, etc. Such varieties are of interest to specialists for, generally speaking, they represent early printings of the stamps in question. As to their value I can give you little information. In the case of high value British Colonials they are sold for much below facial value; thus a $50 stamp overprinted "Specimen" could probably be purchased for about $7.50. They are not varieties that should be included in a catalogue and I know of no list of these stamps having been published at any time.

O. A. H. (Elkhart, Ind.).—The names shown in tiny letters below all the stamps of the 1908 issue of Austria are those of the designer and engraver. The name in the lower left hand corner is that of Professor K. Moser, who drew the designs while in the right hand lower corner is the name of Ferdinand Schirnboeck, who engraved the dies. These stamps, like all other issues for Austria, were printed at the State Printing Office in Vienna.

I. S. (Hastings, Neb.).—You will find the story of the Connell stamp of New Brunswick in the WEEKLY for April 15th, 1911. I am afraid I cannot find space to repeat it but I have no doubt you can obtain a copy of the WEEKLY containing it without much trouble.

G. S. (Richmond).—The Russian stamp overprinted "Smyrne" is one of a series for use in Russian Post Office maintained in Smyrna. Similar sets were overprinted for use in Constantinople, Jaffa, Jerusalem, Kerassunde, Mount Athos, Salonica, Beyrout, Trebizonde, Dardenelles, Metelin, and Rizeh.

A BUNCH OF ERRORS.

By ARTHUR IRWIN SMITH.

Business was very dull. Benton sat listlessly in his office, idly turning the leaves of the book that held the records of his deals. He was only one of dozens of dealers in the city, and perhaps one of the youngest of that number. It was July, one of the dullest months of the year, and it seemed as if his competitors were getting all the trade of the season.

Benton had made a thorough study of the stamp business before venturing to invest his little capital. He had worked for awhile with one of the larger firms, and he felt confident that he was able to handle a business of his own successfully. While it was necessary for him to begin upon a small scale, he felt that uniform courtesy, promptness and honesty with his patrons would soon bring him his share of trade.

A stranger came into the office. Benton sat up erect and alert.

"Mr. Benton, are you adding anything to your stock at present?" began the stranger, a well-dressed young man of slightly foreign air.

"Not very much," replied Benton. His spirits fell; it was not a customer, but someone who wished to sell. Still he might pick up a bargain, so it was best not to lose all interest in the matter.

One of Benton's specialities was the stamps of the German colonies. Cruger, another young dealer, was his principal competitor along that line. Between them they controlled the bulk of the trade, but it seemed to Benton that lately Cruger was getting practically all of it. One of these colonies, which may be called Baronia for sake of convenience, was especially in demand. Both of the dealers had experienced much difficulty in getting anything from this remote country with which to satisfy their clamoring customers. Cruger had obtained three copies of the rare ten pfennig with inverted center, but they had been snapped up in as many days.

Benton's visitor was producing a large, long envelope from his pocket, and unfolding the contents with extraordinary care. An instant later he held a perfect, shimmering sheet of the rare Baronian error before the eyes of the astonished young man.

"In order to assure you of the genuineness of these stamps," he said, "I must tell you in confidence how they came to be in my possession. My trade is engraving and printing, although I have been interested in philately since I was about ten years old. Contrary to the general practice, this issue of stamps was printed upon the island of Baronia itself. I had charge of the printing there, and in some manner two sheets of these errors were made. One sheet was issued to the public; the other was held in the government's offices and I have it here. I have heard that you are one of the leading dealers in stamps of the German colonies, hence I am offering this sheet to you first."

Benton examined the stamps carefully. They had every appearance of being genuine. Should he buy them? It would certainly be a scoop; Cruger would be left far behind. Suppose the true story of how they came into his possession reached the public? What effect would it have upon his business?

"You may have this sheet of one hundred stamps," continued the stranger, impressively, "for five hundred dollars."

Still Benton did not speak. The stamps could easily be sold for three times that amount. Why should he refuse them because they were, practically speaking, the same as stolen property? No one need know.

"No," said Benton, a moment later, with sudden decision. "I cannot handle the stamps." His innate honesty had come to the front. He had resolved in the beginning to conduct a clean business, and he would keep that resolve.

"But, Mr. Benton, you can make a thousand dollars on this deal," insisted the fellow, an unpleasant light showing in his eyes.

"I prefer not to handle them," replied Benton, briefly. "Good-day."

He had certainly thrown away a good chance to make some money, reflected Benton, after his visitor had gone. Should he have let his scruples outweigh the welfare of his business? With the evening, however, there came several important orders to be filled, and Benton forgot the incident in the work that followed.

Somehow Benton could not help being surprised when he read Cruger's advertisement in the next week's papers.

"I have a few copies of the rare Baronian ten pfennig error," announced Cruger, "for sale at a reasonable price. They are in perfect mint condition."

Regardless of the season, business came to Cruger in an avalanche. Every collector of the stamps of the German colonies must have a copy of this error, and very naturally turned his trade to the dealer who could supply him with such a desirable specimen. Benton lost many of his old customers, and could find few new ones.

The surprise of the season came with the announcements of the week following. No less than four other dealers offered the rare Baronian for sale at varying prices. On the heels of this came the announcement from the experts that all of the stamps were reprints. A different paper and different ink had been used in the second printing. It had taken close microscopical examination to ascertain this, but it was a fact nevertheless.

The whole story came to light. The young engraver and printer who sold the stamps, had had complete access to the plates of the Baronian issue. Duplicating the ink and paper as closely as possible, he ran off several dozen sheets of the rare bi-colored error. Then he had come to America and foisted them off wholesale upon four or five credulous dealers, at fabulous prices.

With the discovery of the true status of the stamps there came a flood of collectors to Cruger demanding that he refund their money. Naturally they were angry at having been deceived. In the reaction that followed Benton found business again coming his way. It became known that he had refused to buy the stamps from the Baronian printer, and this fact brought him the respect of the philatelic public. Cruger was not openly condemned for dealing in the stamps, yet it hurt his business seriously.

A month later another stranger visited Benton. This time the dealer was very busy with some correspondence and kept his visitor waiting several minutes.

"My brother is consul in Baronia," he began, as soon as Benton could give him attention, "and I have received several letters from him lately with some queer stamps on them. I am not a collector, but I have heard that errors in printing sometimes make a stamp very valuable, so I have brought these to you."

He handed Benton three entire envelopes, each bearing one or more of the rare inverted ten pfennig stamps. There was no doubt as to the genuineness of these, for they had been postally used and were still on the original cover. Very likely the consul in replenishing his supply of postage stamps had purchased a part of the only sheet issued. Not noticing the error he used them up in writing to his relatives and friends at home.

Benton offered the man a fair price for the lot and his offer was accepted. This was a greater scoop than he had thought possible. To be able to offer half a dozen of the rare errors on the original cover was something he had never even dreamed.

This was the turning point in the rise of Benton's great stamp business. Cruger left the field burning his Baronian reprints and selling the remnant of his stock to Benton. As the years passed by, Benton's stock continued to grow, until at last he was ranked among the leading dealers of the day.

Neither Benton or Cruger is living to-day, but there is a saying of Benton's that should live forever:

"The man who handles doubtful goods, in the stamp business as well as elsewhere, will eventually lose."

WHY I COLLECT UNUSED U. S. STAMPS.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

(At the last meeting of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors Society, held June 18th, one of the most interesting events of the evening was a debate on the question: "In collecting U. S. stamps shall I confine myself to the unused?" The affirmative speakers were Messrs. Eilers, Hardy and Goodwin, and the negative, Messrs. Collins, Mann and Myers. Mr. Goodwin being unable to be present sent his argument in mss. form and we are pleased to give it the wider publicity of publication in the columns of the WEEKLY.—ED.)

I collect the unused stamps of the United States principally because it is nobody's business what I do with my money. Primarily I might say that the local banks are already loaded up to the limit with my deposits, and stocks, bonds and mortgages have got on my nerves until it is hard labor and a bore to keep track of the dividends and clip the coupons.

Then, too, I have, since childhood, been of serious nature. Undertakers' establishments, funerals and well kept cemeteries have always been a source of pleasure and a joy forever to me. It is something of a task to visit the different morgues where current funds are kept in cold storage. What then could be more appropriate than to start a little burying ground of my own where I could inter my money and at my leisure and during my spare moments pay mournful tribute to the cash which has been decently and reverently buried without unusual and public display of my grief?

We are told that "cleanliness is akin to godliness." Therefore, being of a reverent nature I cannot find pleasure in the accumulation of unclean things, and a lot of cancelled postage stamps are most unclean, a condition which even a Turkish bath and a massage will not alleviate. Unused stamps are neat and tidy, and if they are in mint condition one knows that they have never been tainted or contaminated with evil association or indulged in habits of the unwashed tramp.

It is a pleasure, too, to add an unused postage stamp to my collection, and in after years have some expert doctor of philately inform me that it has been cleaned and treated to a nice new coat of gum to cover its back. Then I know that I have secured a stamp which is even rarer than its brother right from the postoffice, because it has been purified, cleansed of its sins, and has been born again. I advise all collectors to try and secure as many cleaned and regummed stamps as possible, if they are friendly inclined, because it is not likely that they will ever be compelled to part with their stamp friends. I know this, because most postage stamp buyers are unwilling to deprive an owner of his cleaned stamps, much as they will try to separate him from his used friends at ten per cent. of catalog. Then, too, if cleaned stamps are bought for unused and it is never discovered, there's a feeling of importance when the value is figured according to Scott's 1912, which came near being 1913. Then, too, what a man don't know doesn't hurt him any. So I say, if you can't get all unused postage stamps, let someone "soak" you with cleaned specimens, and above all, don't try to learn the difference.

Most of the later issues of United States postage stamps are still available for postage, and might come in handy in case a collector went broke. Think of the advantage of being in a distant place with no funds at hand, and no other means of communicating with friends who were not so unfortunate, but a collection of unused stamps in one's suit case. An unused two cent green, of the vintage of 1887 is still recognized for postage and an 1885 Special Delivery, even though not intended to find friends in any but a big city post office, will now be recognized by a boy on a bicycle in any Yap town in this country. Almost any hotel clerk will willingly donate a sheet of paper and an envelope for the advertising his place will get out of it, and the two stamps mentioned above will convey a message to loved ones, or someone who does not know your financial condition. If you have always paid your debts before chances are that these two stamps will prove a "get rich quick" investment and several hundred per cent. dividend will be realized just as soon as the friend can secure funds and rush it to the "broke" one in haste.

I need not say that a used stamp will not do so much for any collector, because a collection without any unused stamps reposing therein would be a desert with no oasis visible, in case one wants to write home for money.

Then, too, it is impossible to fix up an unused postage stamp with a smear of black and call it worth two cents, and then by some simple method place a green spot upon the stamp which had been attached alongside, and call it worth a dollar. One unused stamp is equally as valuable as its brother, unless, perchance, it has lost its chewing gum, or a few of its perforations have been ruthlessly shaved off, or possibly the design was knocked out of the middle by a cross eyed perforating machine. Even then, the difference will not be so marked as is caused by the vagaries or necessities of an ancient postmaster, whose sole aim seemed to be to invent a cancellation daub unique and different from any other.

The student of political economy will, if he is a stamp collector, accumulate nothing but unused postage stamps. If every collector in the country would retain nothing but unused stamps it would wipe out the postal deficit, and leave the department with a surplus. This because it costs the government only a few cents to make a thousand two cent stamps which it sells for twenty dollars, and the profit goes to maintaining city carriers and rural free delivery which would be impossible, if every stamp sold were to be used for postage.

In conclusion I will say that I have a number of used postage stamps, and I am ashamed to acknowledge it. I am of a generous and philanthropic nature, however, and if there is a collector here who honestly and conscientiously prefers to collect used stamps I will trade him such used stamps as I have for like unused copies without asking a bonus on any deal.

This offer I consider to be so equitable and fair that it ought to either be accepted by any and every speaker on the opposing side. If any of these speakers refuse to make such exchange then I ask the committee in charge of this contest to throw out all arguments that it is better to collect used stamps, on the unimpeachable ground that the speakers are not sincere in their argument, and that they are only talking for effect.

"STAMPS HARD TO GET."

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

A PROUD AUNT.

Never had there been such a commotion in the little flat. And the most excited person present was the sister of a young mother who had just presented her husband with twins.

Auntie was wildly delighted at being auntie in a double sense, and off she rushed to the post office for stamps to spread the great tidings.

"Stamps!" she jerked, as she reached the counter and flung down her money.

"How many, miss?" politely inquired the clerk.

"Two!" she cried joyously.

"What kind?"

"A boy and a girl," she returned rapturously.

THE BRITISH INSURANCE STAMPS.

By Fred J. Melville.

In the course of a few days the Insurance Stamps will be on sale at all the post offices of the United Kingdom. By courtesy of the Board of Inland Revenue a representative of The Postage Stamp was invited to a private Press exhibition of the new stamps.

It is officially explained that for the convenience of the public it was found desirable to provide stamps which shall enable employers and contributors to pay all ordinary periodical contributions by affixing to the cards supplied a single stamp. As the stamps are to be handled by the post offices it was also desirable that they should be clearly distinguishable from ordinary postage or revenue stamps.

Further as there are two parts of the National Insurance Act, 1911, covering totally distinct objects, it was neccessary that there should be stamps for each part of the scheme and that these two kinds should be readily distinguishable, the one from the other.

The two parts of the scheme refer respectively to the Part I. National Health Insurance.

Part II. Unemployment Insurance.

To avoid any confusion with the postage stamps the Insurance Stamps have been made of a smaller size; the stamps are oblong in shape.

To facilitate the distinguishing between the "Health" and the Unemployment Stamps the designs have been drawn so that the longer sides are vertical in the Health and horizontal in the Unemployment stamps.

It will be seen therefore that the issue of the new kind of stamps has been very carefully planned with a view to the convenience both of the public and of the officers of the post office handling their distribution. As the stamps have to be affixed to cards or books with printed spaces provided it will clearly be impossible that confusion or interchange between the two classes of stamps can take place in the course of filling up such cards or books.

The design of the "Health" stamp consists of a crown surmounting a shield on which is clearly printed the value of the stamp. Surrounding the shield is a wreath in which the rose, thistle, shamrock and daffodil are combined as emblems of the four countries of the United Kingdom; it is officially explained that the separate National Commissions will all use the same stamps for all purposes. Above the crown are the serpent and bowl of Æsculapius, emblematic of the National Health Insurance.

Such is the official explanation of the emblemata; the design is naturally rather complicated for so small a space as .825 inch by .6125 inch, but the effect is quite pleasing with the careful and clean printing. The stamps are surface printed. The six denominations for which the largest demand is anticipated are each being printed in a single colour by the firm of Messrs. Waterlow Brothers & Layton, Limited of Birchin Lane, London; the other seven values (making up the series of thirteen denominations in all) are bi-coloured, these being printed on the presses of the Stamping Department at Somerset House, under the direction of Seymour J. Bennett, Esq., I. S. O., the Inspector of Stamping.

The thirteen denominations are as follows:—

(a) Surface-printed by Messrs. Waterlow Brothers & Layton, Ltd.

4½d, Pale Blue.
5d, Orange.
5½d, Mauve.
6d, Deep Blue.
7d, Magenta.
1s 2d, Yellow.

(b) Surface-printed in two colours in the Stamping Department, Somerset House.

1½d, Brown and Green.
2d, Brown and Blue.
2½d, Brown and Magenta.
3d, Green and Mauve.
3½d, Claret and Black.
4d, Claret and Orange.
1s, Claret and Green.

The first colour is that of the key-plate bearing the design except the value-shield, and the second colour given in the list is that of the value-shield.

In printing the single coloured stamps it appears that a separate composite plate has been prepared for each value; that is to say, they do not appear to have been printed from key and duty plates, and a comparison of the shield of value on the bi-coloured stamps will show that the single coloured stamps are printed from single plates at one operation.

We have not considered it necessary to discuss the Insurance Act in these notes save in regard to the special issue of stamps; possibly our readers have heard and read details and ciriticisms of the Act ad nauseum, but it is officially explained that

"The present issue [of the Health stamps] has been so arranged that in every case a single stamp is available for the payment of the joint contribution of employer and employee (whether male or female) for a week or fortnight. Only in the case of voluntary contributors paying a rate in excess of the flat rate or of a contributor desiring to pay up arrears, can a combination of stamps become necessary."

It is also stated that the issue of high value stamps is under consideration in connection with the scheme, whereby employers will be allowed under certain conditions, to deposit with the Insurance Commissioners, either quarterly in advance, or by weekly instalments, a sum sufficient to cover the contributions due for the quarter, the stamping of the contribution cards by the employer being deferred until the end of the quarter.

The second class of stamps to be issued under the provisions of the Insurance Act, 1911, are the Unemployment stamps. These are horizontal oblong in shape, and show as the principal feature of the design a ship in full sail, which is the old emblem of the Board of Trade. Above the ship is the Crown; the Rose and the Thistle are at the two sides of the stamp, and at the bottom is the Royal Cipher with representations of the Shamrock.

This design was prepared by Mr. Harry Wilson, and is used for all the three denominations, 2d, 4d, and 5d, all of which are printed in single colours, the value being shown in figures in a shield at each side of the emblem of the Board of Trade.

The 5d stamp represents a full contribution by employer and workman for a week, or any period exceeding two days, but not exceeding a week. The 4d stamp represents the contribution from employer and workman for a period of more than one, but not more than two days, and the 2d stamp the contribution for a single day or part of a day. The 2d stamp also represents the full contribution for a week or part of a week in the case of workmen under the age of 18.

These Unemployment stamps are all surface-printed by Messrs. Waterlow Brothers & Layton, Limited.

Unemployment Stamps. Printed by Messrs. Waterlow Brothers & Layton, Limited.

2d. 4d. 5d.

It was stated in the Daily Telegraph of Tuesday, June 11, that the Insurance Stamps would provide philatelists with their first glimpse of the new watermarked paper ultimately to be used for postage stamps, showing the device of the Crown and Royal Cipher. The watermark is a multiple one, or, as it is better known to printers, an "all-over" watermark.

It is highly significant philatelically, that the "multiple" watermark is to be brought into use in connection with our own postage stamps. It is only since 1904 that the multiple Crown over CA mark was first used for the De La Rue printed Colonial stamps and the advantages this kind of watermark presents in the printing of postage stamps leads one to anticipate the possibility of other countries and colonies adopting a similarly convenient "all-over" watermark.

Although the Insurance stamps are being printed and issued on "G. R. V." paper, this is a paper for postage stamps, and has been used for the Insurance stamps as a temporary expedient only. An all-over watermark "N.H. I." (National Health Insurance) will probably be used for the Health stamps; whether the Unemployment stamps will ultimately be printed on "N. H. I." paper, or on a paper with the initials of the Board of Trade (? and Crown) we are unable to say.

The perforation of the Insurance stamps is 14½ on the long sides by 14 on the short sides of the stamps. We understand that the makers of the new perforating machines for the George V postage stamps, Messrs. Grover & Co., Ltd. (Britannia Engineering Works) have constructed the machines for the perforating of the Insurance stamps. It is understood that one of the machines constructed by this firm will be exhibited in operation throughout the period of the week of the Jubilee International Stamp Exhibition next October, and before then we hope to publish a description of the very finely adjusted and massive machinery which has effected so great an improvement in the perforating of our English stamps. —Postage Stamp.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

ISMAY, MONT., June 21, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

You have perhaps noticed the decisive part played in the last instalment of Mason's "The Turnstile," just concluded in the June Scribner's by a stamp. The hero, Harry Rames, has won fame and a bride by his Antarctic expedition, but when married, he follows his wife's inclinations by settling into an English country gentleman, entering politics and becoming a member of parliament. Seemingly he has settled into this routine existence, when one morning, as they sit at the breakfast table, the mail is brought in, and among it a letter, which, as afterwards develops, contains only a sheet of blank paper, but which is franked by a one penny stamp issued for "Rexland," the Antarctic country which he discovered. At sight of it the old longing for the waste places of the earth returns, and from that moment it was a struggle, though at first unspoken, between love that would keep him at home and the call of the frozen South. But at last the stamp wins and the story closes as they are again setting sail for the Antarctic.

Rexland bears a strange resemblance to King Edward VII. Land, whether Rames is Shackleton I cannot say, but that the stamp plays the decisive part here can be no question. The author is probably not a philatelist, for he makes the hero say: "A stamp was struck to commemorate my discovery of it," as though he were speaking of a medal. However, the way in which he brings it into the story is very clever, indeed, I cannot recall another instance in current fiction where a stamp produces similarly important results. Will you kindly call attention to it in your columns, as philatelists will no doubt be interested in it?

TO THE EDITOR:—

My small advertisement in No. 1121 of M. W. S. N. has brought 12 replies—and probably more to follow. The trouble is, I have not prepared my 20th Century stock for approval trade. If you will kindly look up my copy you will probably see that I specified 19th Century. Mistakes will happen, of course.

GRACEVILLE, MINN., June 27, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

In sending in a limited solution to your last rebus, I cannot but feel the handicap under which the owner of a limited or specialized collection labors in a contest of this kind. A few months ago when it developed that one not possessing a U. S. 1869 90c was practically debarred from the competition, I concluded to pay no more attention to these rebuses, but the philatelic mind is naturally analytical and drawn to these problems and Mr. Hunt has a special facility in making them attractive.

The rebus before this one received but seven solutions and you laid it to the season of the year. That is not the explanation. The school boy may put aside his collection during the marble season, but not the veteran collector. To one with a limited collection the incentive to the contest may not be equal to the discouraging outlook, and I think this is a more reasonable explanation.

To a late questioner you explained that these rebuses are based on stamps and not on catalogue designs. This seems to be true, but why cannot we have a search within the limits of the standard? The scrutiny of stamps in possession may be productive of some profit, but the study of the catalogue brings (to me at least) vastly more result in the advancement of philatelic interest. The field is big enough and Mr. Hunt is just the man to find its treasures.

B. M. RANDALL.

(We shall be pleased to comply with the request of our correspondent, recognizing as we do the force of the argument presented. With the publication of one more rebus of the "advanced" type, we shall furnish some studies based on the catalog. The awards in our last contest will be made shortly.—ED.)

EDITORIAL.

As Usual—This is the time of year when it is the custom to discuss the annual convention of the American Philatelic Society which is held each August. For 1912, Springfield, Mass., has been honored as the convention seat and past performance on the part of the hospitable philatelists of Springfield in entertaining the convention is a guarantee that the visitors this year will be received with all cordiality. Indeed, in 1902, Springfield's convention was ideal in its appointments and was a triumph in its social aspects. One could scarcely conceive of diversions more interesting and enjoyable than those that were provided. Those who have attendance at Springfield in prospect this year may rest assured that they will find the duties devolving upon the hosts discharged in a manner to add greatly to the felicity of the occasion. We know that Springfield, almost from time immemorial, a philatelic center, has grown greatly in philatelic grace during the past decade; and there should be no compunctions on the score of the ability of the Springfield men and women to make the convention a memorable one. The arrangements for the care and comfort of the visitors are progressing smoothly, we are certain.

Serene—There is little competition for office in the American Philatelic Society this year, the only contest being in the selection of two of the three candidates for director-at-large. As all three of the members in question are men of distinction, the result must be a satisfactory one. The contenders for official journal are the present incumbent of the berth and two monthly papers, one of which, Everybody's Philatelist, offers a bonus of sixty dollars for the exclusive publication of all official matter. This year, the Philadelphia Stamp News tenders no bonus but "offers to publish all official reports, free." As nothing is said about exclusive rights by this bidder the assumption is that all the other papers that desire to publish the reports will be furnished with them by the secretary, following the precedent established in 1910 when the WEEKLY was the official journal. We are much in sympathy with the aims and ideals of Everybody's Philatelist but the change to a monthly suddenly would result dubiously, we are afraid, now that the members have been accustomed to a weekly for so many years; and further, the geographical position of the paper's publication office is not in its favor. The officers of last year are deserving of reelection on their records of work done willingly and intelligently. Mr. Barnum demanding relief from the burdens of the secretary's office is replaced by Wm. E. Ault as a candidate, a gentleman who from the best information is a worthy alternate. There is a strategic point much to Mr. Ault's advantage in his nearness to the home of Mr. Hassler, the treasurer, at Louisville, Kentucky. Mr. Ault is just "across the river" from Mr. Hassler.

Different Views—A criticism has been read of the present by-laws of the American Philatelic Society as being inadequate and obsolete and entirely inapplicable to present day conditions; and it is argued that a new set should be adopted. This opinion is wholly at odds with some that have been expressed by competent critics who have acclaimed the by-laws for their shrewd and skilful construction. Different of the past presidents for instance have said that under analysis they were admirable as a working basis. Of course it does not follow that the code is flawless and that there is no need of the committee on by-laws annually appointed. On the contrary there is necessity for some adjustment each year and the members of this important committee may be depended upon to perform their task in bringing the by-laws to date with due deliberation and insight. Mr. Nast gives notice that he will propose an amendment at the convention to Article VI. Section 8 (add) as follows: "The president shall not be eligible to succeed himself at an annual election. Provided, however, that he shall again be eligible to the office of president, after the interval of a full term." We understand the purport and propriety of this proposed amendment and believe that it is a progressive step, speaking broadly. However, there are reasons to oppose the amendment and they may be termed physical, to a great extent. The work of the president's office, if attended to with due diligence requires much time and the president should be in a position where he can have the assistance of the business office of to-day. The volume of correspondence alone is a consideration that must be weighed. It takes several months for a new president to get the swing of things and just as he has mastered the situation, he finds his term drawing to a close. It should be an understanding, however, that one term as president does not establish the rule that a second is to follow. Then, a second term would be based on exceptional merit and illustrious achievement.

It Comes—Mr. Thos. C. E. Hunter writes: "The June Official Postal Guide supplement, under 'Official Postage of Saving System' says: 'Official Postal Stamps and official envelopes of the Postal Saving System, under no circumstances must be sold or given to the Public. This rule applies to cancelled as well as uncancelled stamps and envelopes. Theo. L. Weed, Director." Perhaps, we need not add that this ruling has been anticipated by some collectors who have been giving attention to the manner in which some of the used stamps have reached the market.

In the Newspapers—A Chicago paper that ought to know better says that King George in addition to collecting stamps has a liking for amateur theatricals and then says that he is a vaudevillian as well as a "numismatist," misusing the term for philatelist. However, it is just possible that the paragrapher had something in mind based on the following extract from a syndicate letter that appeared in a chain of newspapers a few days later: "King George's principal hobby until a few years ago, as most people are aware, was that of postage stamp collecting, his collection being the most valuable in the United Kingdom. Since his accession he has developed another hobby, known to but few save his immediate entourage and personal friends, namely the collection of medals and coins, especially those relating to the British Empire." Etc. It is probable that philately still holds its prominent place in the regard of the king and that it will not be supplanted by any other hobby.

Many Thanks—The editor appreciates the kindness of those who sent him condolence on the death of his father, William B. Severn, aged 72 years, who for forty years had been actively engaged in the auction ad commission business in Chicago. Among those who attended the services at Graceland chapel were six members of the Chicago Philatelic Society.

A. P. S. PROXIES.

It is the intention of the Managing Editor of the WEEKLY to attend the convention at Springfield. As in the past he will be pleased to hold the proxies of his friends who cannot be present and will execute any commissions placed with him.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

ON TO SPRINGFIELD!

By WM. C. STONE (Press Committee).

Some folks may have thought we have been asleep because we have not been booming Springfield every week since the last convention but that is not so. We have so much we want to show you that we have had to consider carefully what to select for the week of the convention. At last we have our program practically finished and here it is.

First as to the headquarters. The Hotel Kimball is a new modern up-to-date half million dollar hotel. The meetings will probably be held in the banquet hall although that is not definitely settled. The rates (European plan) are from $1.50 up or for rooms with bath $2.50 up. No inside rooms. Write direct to the hotel to secure rooms and as Springfield is a great place in summer for automobile parties it will be well to write in advance to make sure of quarters. There are other good hotels to which the committee would be pleased to direct members upon application.

Monday night everyone is invited to spend a social evening at the residence of William C. Stone and get acquainted with the Springfield boys (and girls) and with each other. Purely informal. No oratory.

Tuesday morning the session will open at 10 o'clock and in the afternoon a trip to Mount Tom will be taken.

Wednesday morning another business session with a picnic at Minnechaug Lake in the afternoon. Baseball, etc.

Thursday morning business. Trip to Forest Park in the afternoon. The evening will be given up to a "Stamp Bourse" at the hotel. A room, or rooms will be provided with tables where members can show, sell, swap and talk stamps to their hearts' content. Bring on your stock books and want lists. It will be an open board with no "unlisted" securities.

Friday will be devoted to personally conducted parties "Seeing Springfield" etc. Should some of the members desire an opportunity can probably be given to visit one of the Holyoke paper mills.

Do not forget that you are expected to bring your better halves. The Springfield ladies will be disappointed if you do not.

—When the WEEKLY was the official journal of the A. P. S. strenuous objections were made to any attempt upon our part to influence legislation or elections. Will the friends of Mr. Crocker take kindly to the efforts of Mr. Mann to make Mr. Nast a member of the directorate? Better watch out, Mr. Editor!

A FRENCH VARIETY.

By FRANZ REICHENHEIM.

Quite recently I had the chance of acquiring a very interesting curiosity, namely, a used copy of the 80c carmine, imperforate, of France of 1853, showing on the back parts of two stamps, standing tête-bêche, of the 1fr of the same issue, in a rose-carmine shade.

I examined this stamp thoroughly, and compared the impression on the back with the unused tête-bêche pair of the 1fr (from the "Castle" collection) in my possession, and with the reprint of the tête-bêche pair of the same value also in my collection, but could not find any fault except that the print of the design on the back was not quite distinct and that it was in a much lighter shade than usual. The latter may be the result of bad inking or of the gumming, or it may be an error of colour. I came to the conclusion that a sheet of printer's waste of the 1fr value had accidentally found its way into a quantity of sheets intended for the 80c value, and was printed and issued. I showed the stamp to Mr. Bacon, who, after a long and careful examination, did not like to pronounce it genuine, but declined to state that it was a fake or a forgery. I therefore submitted it to the Expert Committee of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, and they declared it to be genuine, and agreed with my opinion as regards its origin. As a plate of 300 stamps of the 1fr contained only one tête-bêche pair, and as it is most improbable that another waste sheet was printed in the same way, only one other copy of this curiosity can exist; but there may, of course, be found copies (298 in all) of the 80c stamps showing on the back parts of two stamps of 1fr in the regular position.—West End Philatelist.

OUR REVIEW.

Catalog of Precancelled Postage Stamps of the U. S.—We have received from F. L. Smith, 40 Exchange Pl., N. Y. City, a review copy of this catalog, which Mr. Smith writes is his "contribution to the cause." He is editor and publisher and is no doubt the best fitted for this work of any philatelist in the country. The book is a very comprehensive one but is a check list rather than a price list. These stamps have been used by twenty-nine states, 225 post offices, with a total issue to date of 5,241 stamps. The book has nearly one hundred pages and is priced at $1.00. Every collector of precancelled stamps will surely want a copy.

U. S. OLD ISSUES WANTED

I want to beg, borrow, buy or exchange, either singly or in any quantity, all issues of the United States from 1847 to and including 1868. I want single stamps, pairs, strips of three and blocks of four of anything in any year, mentioned. Also die, India and cardboard proofs, trial printings, etc.

Collectors having any of such are earnestly requested to send what they can spare, with lowest cash price, or with want list for exchange.

Even the three cent stamps of each issue are wanted, along with the others.

Correspondence is desired with collectors who specialize in U. S. or who desire to, and need assistance. The object is not speculation, but to secure all possible information upon the subject for my forthcoming series of articles upon Specialized United States and the Uncatalogued Varieties, to appear soon in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

To make these articles of the greatest possible benefit to every collector of U. S., I respectfully ask the co-operation and assistance of everyone possessing U. S. stamps and their adjuncts which they can spare. For all stamps loaned or contributed, I will pay the postage.

BRIGHT'S ENVELOPE CATALOG.

Frequently you get hold of an envelope or a post card and you know nothing of its value nor can you lay your hands upon a book that will give you the desired information. Bright's catalog of envelopes and post cards is just the book you need. It is the only book of its kind in the English language and can be secured very easily. We will send it to you free of charge if you will remit $1.00 for two years' renewal of your subscription to the WEEKLY. We will date your subscription ahead no matter when it expires. A new two years' subscription from a friend will answer every purpose.

FIRST ISSUE VENEZUELA.

The real facts are as follows: The first set of stamps, yellow, blue and red, were created June 28, 1858 by a decree of the Secretary of the Treasury, who had in those days control of the mails, and were provisionally printed in Caracas, by means of lithographic process. Copies of such stamps were sent to the United States to be engraved properly, which was done, and such second issue, probably made in New York, reached Caracas in November, 1859. The records say they were neatly engraved, but do not mention by whom or where, excepting that it was done in North America, by which we always understand in Venezuela, the United States. The first (Caracas) issue was printed on thin paper. The second (probably New York) was engraved on better paper, sometimes greenish and bluish. In both series occur the medio real in yellow and orange hues, and the dos reales really in all the shades of pink, carmine and vermilion.—Philatelic Gazette.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

BOLIVIA. — Maury's Collectionneur says that the authorized issue of the provisional stamps chronicled in No. 1118 was 500,000.

BOSNIA.—Ewen's Weekly chronicles three new values in the Jubilee issue, with dates "1830-1910"?

Adhesives.

12h ultramarine.
60h indigo blue.
72h red.

CEYLON.—The Ceylon Times gives the following definite information regarding the forthcoming issue of King George stamps: Commencing from about October next, the Treasury will issue one kind of stamp only for postal, judicial and revenue purposes. This is a concession to the public, so that ordinary postage stamps may be equally used for judicial and revenue purposes. The new stamps will bear the head of King George V., and as at present, the different denominations will be in different colors. The word "Ceylon" will be at the top, the words "Postage" and "Revenue" at the left and right of the portrait, and the value in the space at the bottom. There will be 17 denominations, ranging from 2c to 500r, as follows: 2c, 3c, 5c, 6c, 10c, 15c, 25c, 30c, 50c, 1r, 2r, 5r, 10r, 20r, 50r, 100r and 500r.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—Ewen's Weekly chronicles the issue of two values of the new King George stamps on the authority of the Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung. By the way, the item in No. 1116 should have said that the 3c green had been issued on chalky paper, instead of ordinary, as the latter was issued several years ago.

Adhesives.

3c green.
6c carmine.

GIBRALTAR. — The Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung reports having seen specimen copies of the ½d postage stamp and ½d wrapper, with portrait of King George. The stamp is on multiple paper and perforated 14.

Adhesive.

½d green.

GILBERT AND ELLICE ISLANDS. — Another value of the King George set has been issued, according to the Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung.

Adhesive.

½d green.

GREAT BRITAIN. — From an official statement made in the House of Commons by the Postmaster General, it is learned that the British Postoffice is to issue ½d and 1d stamps in coils of 500 and 1000 stamps for the convenience of firms doing a large posting business. He explained that the delay in the issue of the higher denominations of the King George set was due to the necessity of providing better plates for the ½d and 1d stamps, for the re-engraving of the head and for the pressure in the manufacture and issue of stamps under the Insurance Act. Hitherto the control of the manufacture and issue of stamps has been in hands of the Board of Inland Revenue, but the Government inserted in the last Finance Bill a clause transferring these powers to the Postoffice.

KEDAH.—The Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung chronicles some further values in the new set, from specimen copies. These are in a larger design than those noted in No. 1118.

Adhesives.

10c brown.
20c green.
$2 red brown.

NORTH BORNEO.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly reports the discovery of two printings of the overprint "British Protectorate" on the $5 and $10 values of the 1901-04 series. Apparently there was a local emergency overprinting, presumably owing to a shortage of the official supply. The local overprinting was done with tall sans-serif capitals, while the normal printing was done with the type known as Latin Compressed, with serif.

SIERRA LEONE. — The note under Straits Settlements might well be repeated here as the 3d has appeared on chalky paper, and the same remarks as to color applies.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS. — Ewen's Weekly reports that the 10c violet on yellow has been issued on chalky paper, instead of ordinary paper. By the way, Ewen's Weekly calls the printing "brown", as the yellow paper makes the ink appear to be brown, like the 3d of Great Britain.

ST. LUCIA. — The Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung reports having seen specimen copies of seven values of the new King George set, all on multiple paper, perforated 14.

Adhesives.

½d green.
1d carmine.
2½d blue (ultramarine?).
3d violet on yellow.
6d violet and red.
1sh black on green.
5sh green and red on yellow.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA. — The Australian Philatelist notes that the current 1sh stamp has also been issued on Crown A. paper. The 6d and the 1sh are on paper with single-lined "A", while the 8d chronicled some time since is on paper with double-lined "A".

SALE OF EXHIBITS TO BE ALLOWED.

J. W. SCOTT in Metropolitan Philatelist.

Following the example of most public exhibitions of stamps and other articles it is probable the committee in charge will allow exhibits to be sold at the conclusion of the fair. The extensive publicity attained by a collection which has been seen and admired by thousands, to say nothing of those which have been ticketed by the judges as prize winners will doubtless secure buyers at very fancy prices for all who are willing to sell. The object of the exhibition is to excite an increased interest in stamp collecting, for that reason the fair will be held in one of the most important buildings in the city, in the center of art, fashion and wealth. Of the thousands who will attend not one half will be philatelists, but it is the aim of the managers to make all art amateurs stamp collectors through the beauty of the exhibits. Is your collection in shape to be shown? Have you eliminated the torn and damaged stamps and filled in all the vacant spaces which are required to round out the scheme which you are working out? Hundred thousand dollar collections will be shown and so will the hundred dollar style without the thousand, but they will be divided into classes and one is as likely to secure a gold medal as the others. The one essential is that they all show a plan carefully worked out. If you want to secure honor, glory or prizes, now is the time to get busy. Remember others will be looking for the stamps you want and the one who starts first will get the best specimens and probably secure them at a lower price than those who come later.

THE DIVISIBLE STAMP OF GENEVA.

There are many folk who seem to make a hobby of giving advice to the Powers-that-be, and perhaps few in authority receive more suggestions from the public than does the Postmaster-General. One of the pet ideas that is constantly being re-invented in the fertile minds of the writers to the newspapers and to the Postmaster-General himself is that our penny stamp should be made divisible, that is to say, that it should consist of two portions each of which could be used separately for a halfpenny duty.

The idea is probably nearly as old as the postage stamp itself. I have no record of one of our twopence blue stamps of 1840 being bisected for use as two penny stamps, but it is by no means unlikely that this was done unofficially on occasion. Throughout the history of postage stamps even where a full series of stamp values was in circulation there may be traced instances, often isolated and purely accidental, of stamps used in portions. In some cases there has been definite published authority for such use.

In a few instances—very few indeed—stamps have actually been designed for such use. Among the more accessible stamps which may be quoted as examples are the 4/4 schilling stamps of Mecklenburg-Schwerin of 1856 and 1864 and the 4/4 gutegroschen stamps of Brunswick of 1857. But the original and historic example is the rare double Geneva which, although of the facial value of 10 centimes, could be purchased when current at the reduced price of 8 centimes; to-day the most generous of stamp dealers would ask you £75 for a copy.

The divisible Geneva came into use long before the first era of philately; it was forgotten ere the pioneer philatelic luminaries first gathered in the Rectory of All Hallows' Staining, or the book-shop of the rue Taitbout. It was not discovered until stamp collecting had become a popular pursuit, and on its discovery was regarded with grave suspicion. Probably even at that time it was no unknown thing for a stamp to be used in portions, and the Mecklenburg-Schwerin and the Brunswickers must have been familiar enough to collectors of the period. But the curiosity of the 10 centimes Geneva which could be broken up into two 5 centimes stamps, and which pretended to an antiquity compared to which the Brunswickers and Mecklenburgs were modern innovations, probably led the sceptical Mr. Edward Pemberton to denounce the stamp as an ingenious but spurious invention. It was one of the few errors of judgment this earliest and most intuitive of forgery-detectors made and persisted in for years. That its peculiarity as a divisible stamp was a factor in the formation of his opinion is clear from the first part of his description of it in Forged Stamps: how to detect them. He says:—

"The 10c Geneva Port Cantonal, composed of two 5c Port Local, is a complete fiction. One would think its appearance was enough to condemn it, and yet it has been largely sold, and even inserted in our best catalogue of stamps."

The Swiss cantons, as every collector knows, were amongst the first States to follow the lead of Great Britain in issuing stamps for the prepayment of postage. Zurich was actually first with its stamps March, 1843, and two months later, May 22, Professor de Candolle was interesting the Grand Council of the Canton of Geneva with his proposals for a reformed postal system of which stamps for franking letters were to form part. Before Geneva's famous first issue came into use on October 1, 1843, Brazil had given us in July the first of its bull's-eye stamps.

M. de Candolle had been in London in 1839, at the height of the Uniform Penny Postage agitation and he was impressed by the scheme and subsequently followed its development "with all the interest that a bold and ingenious plan is capable of inspiring." But in his speech before the assembly he was clearly timid about the risks to the revenue of introducing so broad a scheme as that which Rowland Hill had successfully advocated in England. His arguments dwelt more upon the advantages of prepayment, both to the Post Office and to the public. His dictum "everyone writes more letters in his own interest, or for his own satisfaction, than in the interest and for the satisfaction of another," led him to the view that if it were as easy to prepay a letter as to post it "a general feeling of delicacy and justice would cause the number of prepaid letters to be in excess of that of unpaid letters."

After setting forth the advantages of the English stamp system M. de Candolle discussed its applicability to the posts of Geneva. He said:—

"Letters above a certain weight can be franked [in England] by means of a blue label which costs double. This arrangement would be a needless expense in Geneva. It would be a saving to allow two labels to serve for a double letter, or one for every ounce. The only difficulty I see, arises from there being two rates: one for letters delivered in the commune in which they are posted, another for letters to be conveyed from one commune to another. Letters now cost 5 centimes in the former case, and 10 in the latter. But it is clear that one could adopt a uniform rate for the whole Canton by selling the labels at an intermediate price, say at 8 centimes (8 francs a hundred). This would cost a loss of 3 centimes in prepaying for the interior of a commune; but there would be a gain of 2 centimes in prepaying letters sent from one commune to another, and these letters are by far the more numerous."

In reporting on the proposals to the Council of State the Finance Department without judging it necessary to state the reasons for its opinions, saw nothing that is not most beneficial in the employment of stamps and envelopes as in England and in Zurich. The Department proposed to the Council the adoption of the principle, and the preparation of a scheme for carrying it out.

On the question of rates, however, the Finance Department gave reasons for the maintenance of the two rates of 5 centimes and 10 centimes, and incidentally set forth the following statistics of the Petite Poste of Geneva for 1842:—

		fr.
45,478	letters from outside the Canton for the communes, producing	4,547.80
69,190	letters from the town for the communes, producing	6,919.00
289	letters from one commune to another, producing	28.90
7,653	letters from the communes for the town, producing	765.30
122,610	letters in all, producing	12,261.00

the expenditure for the year being 11,351 francs.

When the matter of the stamps was referred to the Finance Department, with instructions to prepare a scheme, the Department's first proposal was to issue a 5 centimes label, one such label to be used on letters posted and delivered within one commune, and two such labels on letters from one commune to another. There is here no hint of the issue of the stamps in the peculiar double form, nor is there in the minute of the sitting of the Finance Department of September 26, 1843, when it was stated that the stamps were ready; but in the notice to the public issued through the Feuille d'Avis of the Republic and Canton of Geneva, September 27, 1843, we get the first reference to the double-form of the stamps, the charges for the stamps being:—

5 francs per sheet of fifty double stamps;
50 centimes per row of five ditto;
10 centimes per double stamp;
5 centimes per single stamp.

The notice also stated: "Two stamps placed together will frank a letter weighing less than an ounce sent from one commune of the Canton to another. A single stamp will frank a letter posted at an office for the interior of the commune,—for instance, at Geneva for Geneva, at Carouge for Carouge, etc."

The stamps came into use on October 1, 1843, and were the kind we style the "double Geneva," lithographed in black on apple-green coloured paper. They were in sheets of fifty doubles, or one hundred 5 centimes duties set in pairs, and bearing the inscription:

10 | PORT CANTONAL. | Cent.

above each pair. They were produced by a Geneva printer rather meagrely indicated in most of the philatelic records as "the lithographer Schmidt," and in the sum total of his manufacture of these stamps it is believed he printed six hundred sheets of a hundred stamps, i. e., as I take it, fifty "doubles"; 60,000 singles, or 30,000 "doubles" in all.

Rather contrary to the excellent M. Candolle's views of the acceptance by the Genevans of the etiquette of prepayment it was found that the majority of people continued to send their letters unpaid. To bring the use of the stamp into more general favour therefore, the authorities sold the stamps, from March 11, 1844, onwards, at the rate of 8 centimes the double, and 4 centimes the single stamp, thus penalising the unpaid letters by making them liable to the full charge of 5 or 10 centimes respectively.

The double Geneva stamp is, of course, a great rarity, the late M. Paul Mirabaud, the greatest collector of Swiss stamps, whose collection realised about £8,000 when sold after his death had a mint double, and a mint pair of doubles, and a fine lot of the stamps, single and double, used, including original letters. So far as my records go the pair of doubles was the largest block he possessed, though his was the richest store of the Cantonal stamps ever brought together up to the time of his death. The largest block of the double Geneva on record was that formerly in the collection of the late Sir William Avery, Bart., which comprised six doubles and three singles, or 15 x 5 centimes; the block, probably the largest block on record of a stamp of so high a degree of rarity, was sold to Sir William by Mr. W. H. Peckitt many years ago, and passed back to that dealer in 1909 with the whole of the great Avery collection which Mr. Peckitt bought for £24,500 net cash. The magnificent block has since passed into the possession of Mr. Henry J. Duveen, who is to-day the fortunate owner of the finest collection of the early Swiss stamps in existence.—Postage Stamp.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

How Postage Stamps are Made.

I have now described the various parts which, collectively, make a complete postage stamp and it is next of importance that the beginniner should have some idea of the different processes employed in the manufacture of postage stamps. Without at least a rudimentary knowledge of the means employed in making stamps the novice can hardly collect and arrange his stamps intelligently nor can he properly understand the meaning of such terms as "engraved," "die," "plate," "lithographed," etc., which constantly appear in catalogues and articles on philatelic matters.

The three chief processes employed in the manufacture of postage stamps are line-engraving, surface printing or typography, and lithography. Other processes occasionally employed are variations of these three, which I have placed in their order of importance.

Line-engraving merits first place for several reasons. It was the process employed in the production of most postage stamps issued during the twenty-five years immediately following their invention, it is a process productive of more artistic results than any other, and it is the only method ever used in the production of United States postage stamps.

The procedure adopted is as follows:—A drawing of the proposed design is prepared, generally on an enlarged scale, and when this has been approved by the responsible authorities a copy of it, but with all the details reversed, is made by a skilled engraver on a flat slab of specially prepared steel. This engraving is the exact size the stamp will be when printed and it is technically known as the "die" or "matrix." The slab of steel forming the die is "softened" so that the engraver can work it the more easily but when his work is complete the die is hardened and is then in such state that innumerable impressions, all absolutely alike, can be taken from it. On the die not only is the design reversed but the parts that will show in color on the finished stamps are cut into the steel while the uncolored parts are in relief. When the die has been hardened an impression (or several impressions if required) is transferred to a small roller of "softened" steel under heavy pressure. On the roll the design is again reversed as compared with that on the die, the lines which had previously been in recess now being in relief and vice-versa, while the design is now like it will be on the finished stamps. This "transfer roll" has in turn to be harened and from this the plate or plates used for printing are made. Impressions from the roller are made as many times as are necessary on the "plate" until it contains the desired number of stamps, each impression, of course being exactly like all the others. This process again reverses the design and the impressions on the plate are exactly similar to the die, the parts that will show in color in the printed stamps being cut into the steel. Any desired marginal inscriptions, plate numbers etc., are now added, the superfluous ridges of steel between the impressions, due to the heavy pressure employed, are toned down, and after the hardening process the plate is ready for the printer.

In printing considerable force is necessary to properly fill the hollows with ink and all that adheres to the surface of the plate is carefully wiped off. Then the paper, which has been previously dampened, is applied in such a manner that it is forced into all the small lines and hollows and so takes up the ink with which they are filled. On many stamps produced by line-engraving the ridges of color can not only be seen quite distinctly but they are prominent enough to be felt.

It will be readily understood that when the above process is properly carried out each stamp on a sheet is an exact facsimile of all the others. It requires special machinery and skilled workmanship so that it can only be employed by a limited number of firms. In some countries when stamps were first needed and the necessary machinery etc. for high class work was not available the authorities had to make shift with such plates as local talent could furnish. In many of these cases it was not possible or convenient to engrave a die but the design had to be engraved direct on to the plate. In these instances, too, the plates were of copper as being an easier medium to work on. The most experienced engraver could hardly reproduce the same design twice exactly alike and as the engravers responsible for these locally engraved stamps were rarely too well skilled it follows that each design on the plate differs more or less materially from the others and owing to this fact specialists can now "reconstruct" these plates. Owing to the difficulties in the way of obtaining even tolerably close copies of the design these plates usually contained but a small number of impressions. Stamps produced by this means include such well known favorites as the "Sydney Views" of New South Wales, "Post Paid" Mauritius, early Tasmania, 1866-67 Bolivia, and St. Louis, Baltimore, and Providence Postmasters' stamps of the United States. Naturally, being made of such a soft material as copper, these plates soon showed signs of wear with the result that in many cases "retouching" and "re-engraving" was resorted to. In retouching those parts of the design which were worn away were restored, while in re-engraving practically the whole of the design was re-cut, often in such a manner as to be almost unrecognisable from the original.

In one instance stamps produced by line-engraving were printed direct from the original dies. This happened in the case of the famous "Post Office" Mauritius stamps when the single designs engraved for the 1d and 2d labels were at once the dies and the plates.

SOME STAMP STORIES.

How to Collect.—The following story, dealing with a novel way of collecting stamps, may interest my ardent stamp collectors. A young man who had not much petty cash to spare on stamps decided on the following way of amassing a large collection. He put in the Times one day the following announcement: "Marriage—A handsome brunette, twenty years of age, possessing £100,000 in her own right and an expectancy of half a million, would marry an honest man, even though he had no fortune. Letters will be received until the end of the month, and should be accompanied with stamps for return postage to secure attention." From all parts of Europe, it is said, and even Asia and Africa, responses soon poured in. The result was that the young man's collection was said to have been augmented by over 25,000 specimens from all over the world.

Buying up the Post Office.—A storekeeper in a small out-of-the-way town in the United States many years ago hit upon a novel method of advertising his store. He conceived the idea of buying up the stock of stamps at the Post Office, across the way. The Postmaster objected to be demanded of all his stock, but his mysterious customer demanded the stamps, sheet by sheet, over the counter, as an ordinary member of the public until he had bought every stamp to be had. Then he took the stock over to his store across the road, and plastered his windows with notices that postage stamps were only to be had at his store; and, to his mortification the Postmaster had to send customers across to his store for any stamps they needed, until some days after he once more got in a stock from headquarters.

A Memorable Deal.—Many are the stories of notable errors of stamps printed in the wrong colour. One of the most notable is the 2d of Western Australia, of 1865, printed in pale violet, the colour of the 6d. Concerning this error the following story is told. In 1878 the firm of Stanley Gibbons remitted a sum of money to the postmaster at Albany, Western Australia, for stamps then in use. In his reply the postmaster sent a half sheet of 120 of the 2d value asking that they might be accepted at the price they were charged to him by the Treasury, viz., 6d each. This was done and the stamps were sent out by Stanley Gibbons as curiosities at 5s each. One well-known collector of Western Australians objected to pay this sum and returned them, but a year or two afterwards he was glad to secure one copy for £5. To-day they are catalogued at £20 each.

The Old Lady's Receipt.—The following story belongs to the early days of the introduction of adhesive labels for the prepayment of the postage of letters. The incident is said to have happened in Paris.

The widow Richard, an old lady, entered a post-office very much out of temper.

"Sir," she exclaimed to the clerk, in a voice trembling with anger, "how does it happen, I should like to know, that when one has prepaid the postage on a letter, the person to whom it is sent is made to pay it again?"

"How it happens, madam?" cried the clerk; "why, it doesn't happen at all."

"Well, I say that it does happen; and what's more, that it happened to-day, there!"

"And I tell you again that it is impossible that it should be so."

"But it is a person of my acquaintance to whom I wrote yesterday, and whose letter I prepaid, who says she had to pay for it, too. She was furious about it, and I don't wonder she was, for I wrote her concerning my own affairs, and she had to pay the postage. It's a downright robbery, I say!"

Thereupon the widow kicked up such a rumpus that it was found necessary to call in a policeman and take her before a magistrate. Instead of pacifying Madame Richard, this proceeding nearly threw her into the last stage of exasperation. Although the officer requested her to assume a proper line of conduct, the widow persisted in her fury, and stamped and screamed most uproariously.

"To be told, too, that I don't know what I done with it!" she cried.

"Done with what?" inquired the magistrate.

"The receipt," answered the widow. "The receipt which proves that I prepaid the letter." So saying, she fumbeld in all her pockets.

"There!" she exclaimed suddenly, "I've got it. Here it is!" And she exhibited triumphantly to the magistrate—what do you imagine? A postage stamp!

The poor lady had taken it as a receipt for the money she had paid to the clerk, and had treasured it sacredly instead of sticking it on the letter.—Brixton Gazette.

SALE OF HISTORIC MEDALS.

(Clipping from J. Spiro.)

Philadelphia, June 27.—At the third session of the public sale of the collection of rare coins and medals belonging to George H. Earle, Jr., held to-day, many foreign gold medals of beautiful workmanship sold for about their value only, the largest, dated 1742, of George II, of England, weighing over seven ounces bringing $200.

Many Oriental, Indian and Persian gold coins dating back to 150 A. D. brought poor prices. Most of the military orders and decorations were purchased by Thomas L. Elder of New York, who paid $177.50 for the military Order of the Cincinnati, $36 for the commander's cross of the Legion of Honor of Napoleon I., $11 for the commander's iron cross of Germany. A superb offering of fifty pieces of New England, oak, willow tree and pine tree silver coins, dated 1652, sold from $4 to $65 apiece the largest offering of this money for many years.

The Lord Baltimore shilling brought only $25, the sixpence, $22 both bear his bust. The rare New York cent, dated 1786, bearing the bust of Washington, with Liberty seated, sold for $150. Vermont, New Jersey, Connecticut and other cents, dated before 1790, brought up to $25 each for exceptional specimens. The British settlements Kentucky half penny, dated 1796, $19.50.

The sale is to run for five sessions, and the collection is said to be the most valuable ever offered in the United States. About $23,000 has been realized so far and the rarest pieces are yet to be offered.

CHAPTER III.

Issue of 1851-1860.

Although the catalogues, hand-books upon stamps, and collectors themselves divide this series of United States postage stamps into two issues (designated as Issue of 1851-56; and Issue of 1857-60) I cannot reconcile myself to such a distinction. Those stamps which followed the issue of 1847, and which were superseded by those issued in 1861 seem to me to be entitled to be called one issue only, and that which is commonly known as the issue of 1857-60 should be known as the perforated variety—those before it the imperforate variety.

No act of congress nor general order from the post office department created any new issue in 1857. In fact, without any preliminary notice to the public, or to the various postmasters, these stamps were furnished in perforated state, as the imperforate ones became exhausted and postmasters made requisition for new supplies.

So at the risk of being ridiculed, perhaps, by those who would say that the author should not set himself up higher than the cataloguers, or various expert authorities upon the subject, I shall treat these stamps, imperforate and perforated as one issue, and two major varieties.

This scheme does not, of course, operate smoothly with the catalog numbers. But I am certain that specialists will derive more pleasure and thorough understanding of the issue if they will group the one cent, three cent, and on up together, upon sufficient pages to separate the varieties, than if they treat the stamps as two issues.

1 CENT BLUE, 1851-1860.

Approved by Congress, March 3, 1851.
Issued, unperforated, July 1, 1851.
Printed by Toppan, Carpenter, Casilear & Co., Phila., New York, Boston & Cincinnati.
Number of plates—12.
Stamps delivered to postoffice department, June 30, 1851, to July 6, 1855—26,827,700.
No record of balance.

SAME ISSUE PERFORATED.

Issued, perforated, February (?) 1857.
Number issued, not known—no record kept.

With the single exception of the three cent of the same issue I know of no stamp produced for postal use enjoys such possibilities for extensive research as does the One Cent of 1851-1860. It is true that the catalog only lists six varieties, and six shades, 12 stamps in all and of these eight are priced prohibitively to all but the collector whose pocket-book is fairly well fattened.

The catalogued types, I, II and III, are too well known to be further explained here.

There is a fourth type which the standard catalog does not mention, and hundreds of these have been passed up by collectors who, having the catalogued type II, did not know of the type IV, and did not care to possess two of what they supposed were the same. Type IV is as collectible and as worthy of mention in the catalog as any of the other types. When the plates were made the die was not sufficiently rocked to show the line outside the labels at top, bottom, or both, and these were re-cut by the engraver, in the plate, and this line forms type IV.

The engraver did miss re-cutting the line into some of the designs on the plate, and the stamp printed from this design forms what the catalog designates as type III.

That the engraver was not careful in his treatment of the plates, in his attempt to make them uniform, is proven by the fact that pairs adhering are found containing a combination of types I and II, types I and III, types II and III, types II and IV, and types III and IV.

There is still another type of this issue found imperforate, which I believe is worthy of the research of the collector. It is a form of type III, but bears all of the characteristics of the type III of the perforated variety. The scroll work has been cut away from the sides, and the circle has been removed—not by insufficient rocking of the die, but by an engraver's tool. This I will designate as type IIIa. This may possibly be from a sheet not being perforated, as was intended—thus becoming an error.

GOOD FOR BUYER OR SELLER.

NEW YORK, June 26, 1912.

GENTLEMEN:—

In your issue of Apr. 20th, Mr. J. L. Hitchcock of San Francisco, Calif., advertised a Hawaiian Missionary, 13c, type 2, which we purchased in due course.

We enclose a photograph herewith, so that you can see the superb condition of this stamp. The stamp is uncancelled on the original cover, and very rare in this condition.

The Yvert & Tellier catalog is the only one which prices any of these stamps unused, and lists the 5c, at 15,000 frs, and the 13c H. I. & U. S. at 10,000frs, placing no price on this one.

We consider the stamp to be worth $25000.00. We write this brief appreciation of the value of your columns, as an advertising medium, and have found them equally good for buying as for selling.

AUSTRALIAN DESIGN APPROVED.

From the Melbourne Daily Telegraph of April 3 we learn that the Cabinet has approved Mr. Frazer's stamp design.

The same design will apply to all stamps of all denominations, with green for the halfpennies, red for the pennies, and blue for the two pennies. These are the colors required by the International Convention. It is estimated by the department that it will take 12 months to have the die prepared and the first issue of the new stamps made. This may seem long, but seeing that the development of the stamp, in its passage through from the various stages of spasmodic Ministerial activity, has absorbed about 11 years, 12 months for the issue is not thought to be phenomenal.

Every Minister who has been at the Post Office has entered with the fixed idea of evolving a Commonwealth stamp. Usually the King's head has been the central figure. Mr. Thomas, when P. M. G., called for competitions, offered a large reward, appointed a board to adjudicate, paid the competitors, and did nothing. The nearest that he could get to a decision was to reduce the designs to half a dozen, hang them on his office walls, and leave the responsibility of selecting one of them to his successor.

It was after a year's anxious thought that the department called in an official artist to supply it with a more suitable design than the competitors had submitted. The present stamp is the result. Whether the design is good or bad, it represents finality in a subject that has conquered the patience and shattered the ingenuity of Ministers since the beginning of Federation.

LETTER BY AIR TO MAYOR.

Gaynor Receives First Message Sent by Aeroplane from New Jersey.

(Clipping from HUGO KUENSTLER.)

Mayor Gaynor has received one of the first messages transmitted by aerial mail service. The envelope was postmarked South Amboy, N. J., and stamped "Aero Plane Route No. 900006, Via Aeroplane Mail Service from South Amboy, N. J." Inclosed in the envelope was a message signed by E. C. Roddy, secretary of the South Amboy Business Men's Association. It read:

"This letter is sent to you via United States Aerial Mail Service. This is the first official aerial mail service authorized by the Postmaster General in the State of New Jersey, and extends to you the greeting of the South Amboy Business Men's Association, under whose auspices this initial mail service was performed by Aviator Oliver G. Simmons in the Wright-Burgess hydroaeroplane." The "aerial" letter was delivered by the regular Post Office service.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

HANOVER, PA., July 6, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

I enclose correspondence which demonstrates that Geo. R. Lucas, Elmira, N. Y. and later of Auburn, N. Y. obtained a selection of stamps on approval under very suspicious circumstances.

The Elmira card was answered by sending a selection without investigating the reference. When I heard from him at Auburn, I wrote his reference but the letter was returned. I wrote him in reply to his second card that I would be pleased to send him a second lot upon returns being made for the first. So far nothing has been heard of him.

I would be pleased to hear whether any other dealers have been defrauded or not.

Edwardian Stamps of the British Empire

PART I

BY DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG

This book is Volume II of the series inaugurated by Bright & Son and known as "Bright's Philatelic Library." In the volume before us the Edwardian issues of Antigua, Bahamas, Bechuanaland Protectorate, British Central Africa, British Honduras, Canada, Cape Colony, Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus and Dominica are illustrated and described.

In addition to the bibliography there is an appendix giving the colonial color scheme, and the entire volume is one that will appeal to the philatelist who makes any attempt at a philatelic library.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Harry E. Huber informs us that commissioner Geo. S. S. Hirst of the Cayman Islands died June 8.

—Earl F. Campbell sends us a Japanese post card with a Japanese aerial post mark. The route was from Tokio to Yokohama, a distance of twenty miles, and W. B. Atwater, an American aviator, acted as mail carrier in a Curtiss hydroaeroplane. The date is June 1, 1912.

—Eugene Klein of Philadelphia left last Tuesday on a business and pleasure trip to Europe.

—A news clipping states that all the Zeppelin baloons in Germany will hereafter be fitted to carry mails and a wireless equipment.

—Harry C. Bradley reports unsatisfactory dealings with H. K. Leworthy and Raphael Duke, both residing on White St., Fredonia, N. Y.

—The firm of L. L. Albright Co. reports Eugene Summers, R. 1, Bayard, O. and Benj. Weisner, 66 E. 114, N. Y. City.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from M. S. Karlitsky, C. S. Mundt (2), Hugo Kuenstler (5), M. A. Lesser (2).

—M. A. Lesser of N. Y. City sends us a couple of clippings from the N. Y. Staats Zeitung. A German aerial mail postmarking is shown upon a card which bears in addition to the regular postage what appears to be a special aviation label. The other clipping announces special sets of stamps for insular use ordered by Italy for the two islands which it recently snatched from the Turks. The clipping goes on to say that for foreign postage the Italian government has decreed the use of its own stamps.

—G. A. Doyle, Bridgeport, Ct., reports Alfredo Villagraa, Valparaiso, Chili, unsatisfactory dealings.

—Webb's Stamp Monthly, Perry, O., is the latest candidate for philatelic favor. A sample copy can be obtained upon application without doubt.

"STAMPS HARD TO GET."

Catalog Value $2.00 and Under.

A correspondent suggests that an article dealing with hard-to-get stamps would be appreciated by our readers. We invite contributions to a symposium, suggesting that it be confined to stamps that catalog $2.00 and under. We shall hope to have a sufficient number of entries to make a worthy contribution to our columns.

U. S. OLD ISSUES WANTED

I want to beg, borrow, buy or exchange, either singly or in any quantity, all issues of the United States from 1847 to and including 1868. I want single stamps, pairs, strips of three and blocks of four of anything in any year, mentioned. Also die, India and cardboard proofs, trial printings, etc.

Collectors having any of such are earnestly requested to send what they can spare, with lowest cash price, or with want list for exchange.

Even the three cent stamps of each issue are wanted, along with the others.

Correspondence is desired with collectors who specialize in U. S. or who desire to, and need assistance. The object is not speculation, but to secure all possible information upon the subject for my forthcoming series of articles upon Specialized United States and the Uncatalogued Varieties, to appear soon in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

To make these articles of the greatest possible benefit to every collector of U. S., I respectfully ask the co-operation and assistance of everyone possessing U. S. stamps and their adjuncts which they can spare. For all stamps loaned or contributed, I will pay the postage.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

(Concluded from page 221.)

The true broken circle of the unperforated variety is found in the perforates, making five distinct varieties in each so-called issue, or ten varieties in all.

Owing to the scarcity of stamps of Type I, shades are not prolific, but it is found in pale blue, blue and dark blue.

Types II and IV being the most common naturally are productive of most shades. In the unperforated varieties these are found in sky blue, pale blue, blue, slate blue, dull blue and blue black.

Type III is found in greenish blue, in addition to pale blue, blue and dark blue.

Type III, in the perforated variety is found in sky blue, pale blue, blue, slate blue, greenish blue, dark ultramarine, and blue black.

This gives the specialist ten collectible varieties, and a multiplicity of shades which alone make up a number of handsome pages. But even here the study does not end.

Types II and IV being the most common in the unperforated varieties one can with profit hunt for the type with full side ornaments, and cut away.

A line of color starting from a position dot at right top of stamp runs across the top, forming a straight outerline.

The type II is found with shifted die, it being distinguished by a line of color running through the middle of the bottom inscription, and ornaments at lower left corner being double, showing multiplicity of shading.

An interesting variety of this is a single stamp showing a combination of types II and IV, the top line being recut into type IV, and the bottom line being that of type II and reversed.

Black, blue and pen cancellations are of about equal commonness. Red cancellations are rather scarce. Paid cancellations are not exceptionally rare, but carrier's stamp cancellations are not freely met with. I have seen only one or two cancellations in green. Cancellations showing year are very rare and worth a good premium.

Steamboat or railway cancellations are exceedingly rare.

Pairs and strips of three of types II and IV unperforated are not rare, and but for the fact that many have been separated by those who do not care to collect pairs, would be quite common. In type III of the perforated variety, pairs and strips of three are not worth much more than three singles.

Pairs showing combinations of the different types are rarities, and are worth seeking and treasuring. Some day these combinations in pairs will be worth a big premium over the others.

An interesting side line in this issue is the trial printings. The specialist might collect the vignette, vignette and inscription, the frame, and both die and plate proofs of the final plate. This gives the collector a complete pictorial history of the stamp from the beginning of the engraving to the stamp ready for use.

A check list containing all of the varieties, shades, cancellations, etc., would require too much space. Suffice to say an earnest student will collect at least one stamp of type I, type two in all its varieties, cancellations and shades mentioned above, one each of type III and type IIIa, type IV in shades, as well as pairs and strips of types II and IV.

The shifted die of type II should be obtained before it becomes one of the extreme rarities.

If possible to obtain it, at least add a pair showing combination of type II and IV, the commonest to be had.

To which may be added the proofs on India paper and card-board.

As this issue is found with double perforation both vertically and horizontally these may be added.

It might be well to use the perforation gauge carefully on the perforated variety. They are found perforated 15 and 15½ to 10 mm. Whether the difference will ever be recognized or not I will not say. I think it good policy to make the distinction, and trust to the future for recompense. Remember that the cataloguer was 55 years in recognizing the so-called two types of the 10 cent green of this same issue.

For the collector of ordinary financial means, I suggest the following check-list:

1 CENT BLUE—UNPERFORATED.

Type I.—Full scrolls.
  Intermediate; scrolls worn.
Type II.
  Shades, cancellations, top outer line.
  Shifted Die.
  Watermarked paper.
  Pair type II and III, in combination.
  Pair type II and IV, in combination.
Type III.—Bottom and top lines broken.
  Either bottom or top line broken, other full.
  Type IIIa.
Type IV.
  Shades and cancellations.
  Single showing type IV at top; type II at bottom.
  Single showing type IV at bottom; type II at top.
Horizontal pairs of each types II and IV, not in combination.
Horizontal strips of types II and IV.
Vertical pairs and strips, of each type.
Trial printings.
Die proof.
Proof on India paper.
Card board proof.
Types II and IV on cover.

1 CENT BLUE—PERFORATED.

Use the same scheme of check list, adding to shades of type III. Omit proofs, of course.
Perforate 15½ all around.
Perforate 15 all around.
Perforate 15 vertically, 15½ horizontally.
Perforate 15½ all around.
Perforate 15 horizontally, 15½ vertically.
Double perforate vertical.
Double perforate horizontal.

5,000 RARE COINS STOLEN.

Theft of Collection From Glen Island Museum Valued at $250,000 Discovered.

(Clipping from HUGO KUENSTLER.)

Discovery was made recently that a collection of more than 5,000 rare coins, valued at about $250,000 was stolen last winter from the museum on Glen Island, the summer resort. The collection was owned by the Glen Island Realty Development Company of No. 477 Broome street, and was made by John H. Starin and his heirs. The thieves took every coin and left no clue to their identity.

The robbery was reported to the Manhattan Police Department, which also was supplied with a list and description of the coins. Scotland Yard, the Berlin and Paris police and owners of pawn shops and police chiefs in the principal cities will be asked to keep a close lookout for the pieces.

Prince Henry of Prussia, who saw the coins, offered a large price for the lot, but his offer was refused. E. H. Harriman, George B. Widener and other wealthy numismatists also tried to buy it.

When workmen opened the museum for the annual summer cleaning they found the thieves made a clean sweep of the collection. The last time the coins were seen was on December 21, 1911, when the owners took an inventory of the collection with the intention of placing it in the Equitable safe deposit vaults. The coins were collected in all parts of the world, and it took three generations of the Starin family to get them together. They are of gold, silver, copper, bronze, nickel and other metals. Several of them were coined in 1300, and the last one placed in the museum is dated 1902.

EDITORIAL.

Again—A really prominent member of the American Philatelic Society writes to us: "I am enclosing a clipping which I commend to your consideration. Take up the proposition and view it from all the angles which your long service in the society and manifold experiences with other organizations would suggest and tell us in the WEEKLY whether or no you think the proposition is a good one. There is no interest in our annual elections and why? Because there are not candidates enough in the field." In the preceding number we had something to say on the subject that has been referred to by our correspondent and we shall attempt to amplify the opinion that was expressed on the question of one term for president. We believe that political activity in the American Philatelic Society should be encouraged and that any plan that accomplishes this end so long as it is a just measure is to be commended. A fault of a set rule is that in case of expediency or emergency it may not be set aside; and there are times when it is advisable that a president succeed himself. A year is not always a period long enough in which to execute an important project. A great president is an asset that should not be relinquished easily and it is our belief that the idea of one term should be the spirit rather than the regulation of the members.

Candidates are Scarce—As the situation now is there is no conclusive reason why there should not be more than one candidate for the office of president in the American Philatelic Society. It is true that the strength of the present incumbent is such as to make it equivalent to a sacrifice on the part of other aspirants to enter the contest as no doubt the reserve strength of the forces advocating the re-election of President Cornwall would invite rivalry; and it looks as if the restraint on the part of others is a consequence of the realization of Mr. Cornwall's position. Yet Mr. Cornwall himself would not frown on rival candidates; he has said that he respected the rights of others to enter the lists. Consequently, the question resolves itself: Has Mr. Cornwall's strength checked the aspirations of others for the office or is there a lack of interest on the part of members generally in the affairs of the society?

Up and Down—A society has its ebb and flow and by comparison usually there are periods of depression as well as elevation. A time of relaxation is apt to follow one of marked activity. Those who have studied the tastes and whims of the public—and to some extent the officers of a society bear the same relation to the members—know that a high pressure of interest is to be maintained only by ceaseless action and even manipulation; and when the changes embody the idea of novelty, the results are the happier. Sometimes men of straw are actually made so that entertainment may be afforded by knocking them down but, of course, chicanery of this sort has no place in the society of a standing of the American Philatelic Society. The officers must be tacticians as well as executives; and their interest and enthusiasm, if genuine, are likely to kindle that of the members. Of course, it is not easy to originate new methods and new diversions and amusements; the demand for features is greater than the supply but the members of the directorate of the American Philatelic Society should strive to lead the members into paths of industry made pleasant, by intently studying the conditions as applying to the membership. The convention should be the clearing-house for ideas of the subject.

It Is Well—We have been made aware that there is strong support of Everybody's Philatelist for the official journalship of the American Philatelic Society, notwithstanding that this excellent monthly is handicapped so far as the needs of the members of A. P. S. are concerned by reason that it is not a weekly and that it is removed from central postal conveniences. Our choice of the Philadelphia Stamp News was presented with the idea of not reflecting in any way against the chances of the monthly in question. Some of the members requested that the WEEKLY submit a bid for the privilege and we were on the point of doing so, regarding the matter wholly as one of business and charging a moderate rate each column of society matter. However, the tender was not made as we can realize how many members might not see the advantage of paying for the WEEKLY'S services when another paper makes no charge. We think that the time will come when the society will prefer to do its business with the official journal on a basis of this kind.

Morocco Joins—A question that often was asked by the outsider when viewing the album of the stamp collector, was: Let me see some stamps from Morocco. When told that Morocco as a nation had no postage stamps, the inquisitor wished to know why and the explanation of the collector usually was only partially satisfying. Now Morocco is to have a national set of stamps, the sultan having granted his permission, and as may be anticipated the stamps will show among other detail a mosque with minaret, as being grateful to the eyes of the faithful. Greenland now is the only country of familiar and fascinating name that has no stamps. It may be added that the values of the Morocco stamps will be expressed in mouzana and we trust that the philatelic jokesmiths will not too cruelly crowd us with the gleeful announcement that mazuma would have been more appropriate.

The 5 and 10 Cent 1847—The following news despatch was sent to the newspapers recently; and quite generally was published: "A record price for the 5 and 10 cent 1847 issue of United States stamps is shown in the summaries of an auction sale of rare postage stamps. An unsevered, uncanceled block of six of the 5 cent brown variety and a similar block of six of the much rarer 10 cent black variety, went for $815." The Chicago Post deemed the information of sufficient importance to moralize on it editorially, as follows:

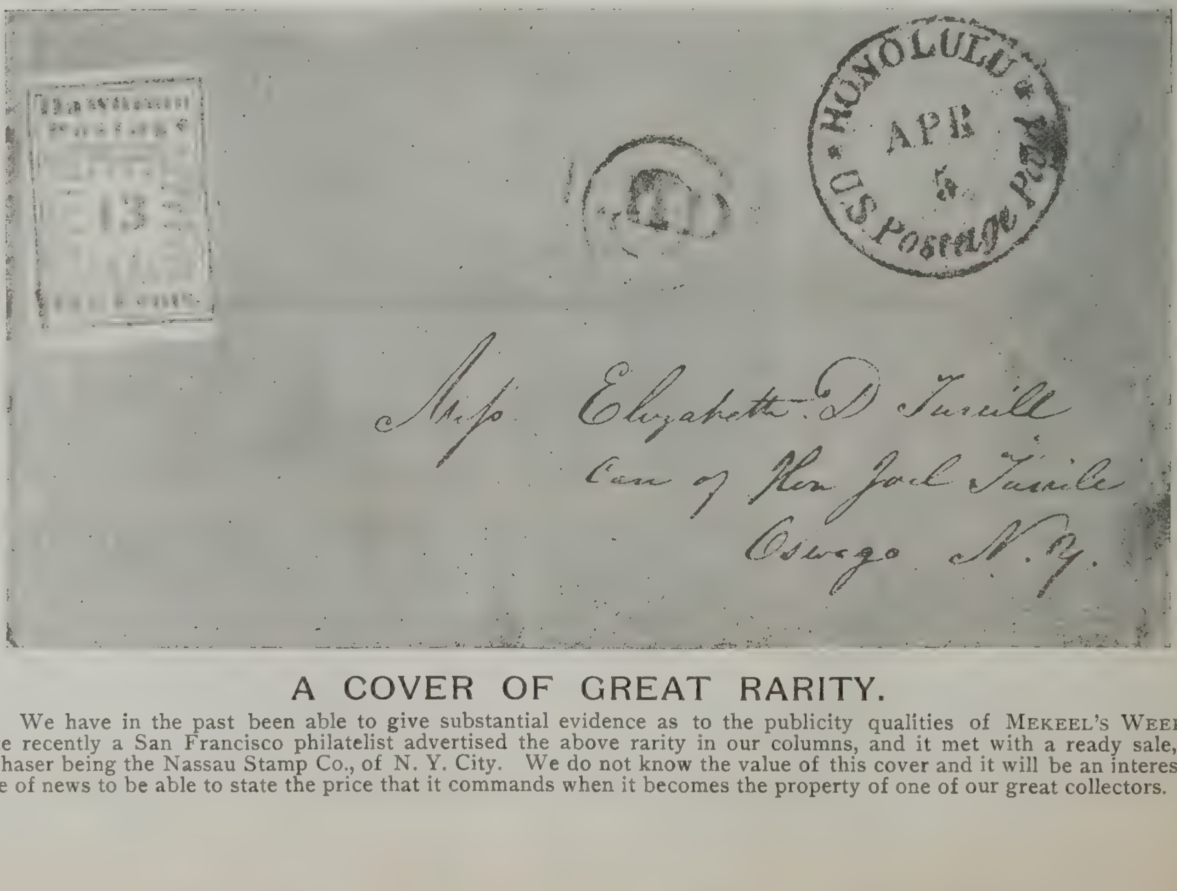
"At a recent auction sale of stamps an ambitious price, $815, was paid for the United States five and ten cent issues of 1847. They were said to have been bought for a rich Philadelphian, the owner of one of the world's finest collections.

The episode recalls the days of short-trousered boyhood, when birds' eggs and butterflies were summertime passions in the country and stamps a winter diversion in the city. The boy whose father had to do with foreign correspondence in a business house was envied. The rare issues of the prosaic revenue department did not appeal, and neither did many of our potal stamps because of their rather dull appearance.

But what delight was there in the hues and the eagles of Russia and Prussia! It was like looking at the flags of all nations among the last pages of the dictionary.

Many a stampbook has disintegrated and passed with the broken eggs and the faded butterflies. Making a science of a youngster's whim is worthy enough, but even in youth we never would have longed for the five and ten cent issues of 1847."

Of course, all this is better than nothing, even though the purity of the writer's philatelic instinct may be held up to suspicion; and we are afraid that he was a collector of stamps by proxy, else how would he, a brazen newspaper man of all things, make the statement: "Making a science of a youngster's whim is worthy enough, but even in youth we never would have longed for the five and ten cent issues of 1847."



A COVER OF GREAT RARITY.

We have in the past been able to give substantial evidence as to the publicity qualities of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY. Quite recently a San Francisco philatelist advertised the above rarity in our columns, and it met with a ready sale, the purchaser being the Nassau Stamp Co., of N. Y. City. We do not know the value of this cover and it will be an interesting piece of news to be able to state the price that it commands when it becomes the property of one of our great collectors.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.

A Strictly Business Communication from the Chief Postmaster.

By Courtesy of A. C. ROESSLER.

"I am authorized to deduct from all remittances accompanied by requisitions for stamps from persons who are obviously dealers or collectors a sum amounting to ten per centum of the amount of each remittance.

* * * * *

The cancellation of stamps, save on letters, is strictly forbidden.

The first issue of stamps, Gilbert & Ellice surcharged on Fiji, consisted of ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 5d, 6d and 1sh. This issue is completely exhausted.

The second or Pandanus Tree Issue consisted of ½d, 1d, 2d and 2½d only. A limited number of 2d and 2½d of this issue still remain. I can only supply these values. I cannot supply any more ½d or 1d of this issue to dealers or collectors as the remainder are required for postal purposes.

The third issue bearing the head of His Majesty King George V will, when complete, consist of the denominations ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 4d, 5d, 6d, 1sh, 2sh, 2sh 6d and 5sh.

Of these values only the 5d, 6d and 1sh stamps have been issued. I expect the ½d of this issue in two or three months, the remaining values in five or six months.

Philatelists are requested to state in their requisitions what they require in the event of my not being able to supply exactly their order. If this is not done, only that portion of their order will be attended to, the remaining balance will be forwarded in cash (or notes, etc.).

Envelopes, which are addressed and bearing stamps of these Protectorates, will be forwarded, by ordinary post or registered, according to instructions received, by the first mail available."

THE CUBAN INVERTS.

By A. B. FRAWLEY.

So many versions have been expounded as to the origin of Cuban 1910 inverts, some going as far as to say that they were ordered by Cuban Postoffice officials, that it may interest your readers to know what I have found out on my visit to Havana; which information, as far as I am aware, seems to be true.

Three sheets came out of the 1c with center inverted, and these fell into the hands of three different postoffice employees. One or two of these parties offered them extensively around some time ago to parties mostly in the States, and to this I attribute the cause of the version that "Cuban inverts were made to order and many existed of them."

Only one sheet to my knowledge came out of the 2c invert, and that was sold for face value to several parties, one of whom I personally know, being aware that he bought 20 copies for 40c, and then exchanged 19 of them at the rate of from $150 to $200 catalogue value for each copy. I have not been able to obtain any of this value, for he had disposed of them before I had a chance to make a deal with him. He is not connected with the Postoffice or in any way a Government official.

At least two sheets came out of the 10c Special invert, one of which was sold to a man in one of the Eastern towns of Cuba at face value; the other or other sheets I do not know to whom they were sold.

My idea of the value of these stamps is that they are selling below their actual worth and this I attribute to the reasons already given. The 1c and special ought to be worth the same, one as the other, and the 2c about three times that value. The French catalogue of Yvert Tellier prices the 1c invert at 250 francs ($50).

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:
Regular Government Issues U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps Confederate Provisionals
The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

PARCELS POST TO BE ESTABLISHED.

Hitchcock is Confident that the Bourne Bill Will be Made Law.

(Clipping from HUGO KUENSTLER.)

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Legislation providing for a general parcels post throughout the United States and its possessions, except the Philippine Islands, is almost certain to be enacted by the present Congress, perhaps before the end of this session, in the opinion of Postmaster General Hitchcock. He has urged insistently upon Congress the desirability of domestic parcels post because, among other reasons he believes it will aid substantially in the solution of the problem of the high cost of living.

In the judgment of the officers of the postal service, the Bourne bill represents the most scientific and businesslike plan yet devised for a parcels post. It provides for a parcels service both on rural routes and city carrier routes. It consolidates the third and fourth classes of mail matter—a reform long advocated by the Post Office Department—and raises the weight limit of parcels to eleven pounds, which is the limit of the international parcels posts.

The rate to be charged for articles carried in the rural route service and city carrier service is five cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and one cent for each additional pound or fraction of a pound. For the general parcels post service, which covers all mail transportation other than local delivery by rural or city carriers, graduated rates would be established, based on distance.

Six zones of distance would be established. The first would have a radial distance of fifty miles from the point of mailing; the second would include the area lying between fifty and 200 miles; the third, that between 200 and 500 miles; the fourth, that between 500 and 1,000 miles; the fifth, that between 1,000 and 2,000 miles, and the sixth, distances beyond 2,000 miles. The rate for delivery within the first zone is six cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound, and two cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

The rates would increase for each additional zone until in the sixth, they reach a maximum of 12 cents a pound, the rate now charged in the international parcels post. The rate on the consolidated third and fourth class mail matter is fixed at 1 cent an ounce for not more than four ounces. Distinctive parcels post stamps will be provided.

In a formal report forwarded to-day to the Senate Post Office Committee Postmaster General Hitchcock strongly urged the passage of the Bourne measure.

Small Ads Column.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell or exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world.

RATE.—20c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $7.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

SPECIAL OFFER.—Where an adv. is inserted each week, the 15c per line rate is granted and bill submitted the 1st of each month.

We shall use every possible endeavor to protect our subscribers, but we cannot undertake to be responsible for unsatisfactory trade relations. Advertisers against whom complaints are proven will be debarred the further use of these columns.

Advertisers sending out approval selections must take precautions to secure satisfactory references. We cannot undertake to settle all the petty disputes arising from the wide-spread scattering of approval selections.

OUR MAY PICTORIAL REBUS CONTEST.

PRIZE WINNERS.

1. FRANK C. CLARK

4. ALLEN H. BLAKE, M. D.

9. L. C. RICHARDSON

This contest was a remarkable one, from the fact that so many contestants were able to send in good lists of solutions. The contest was launched in our issue of May 25 and the list of answers as given by Mr. Hunt is as follows, reading from left to right commencing with the top row:—(1) Uruguay, type A73; (2) Peru, type A34 or D6; (3) Hawaii, No. 78; (4) Newfoundland A24; (5) Tierra del Fuego, No. 1; (6) Liberia, No. 57; (7) U. S. 50c Columbian; (8) Montenegro, Acknowledgment of Receipt; (9) Bolivar, No. 64-65; (10) Ceylon, 162-163; (11) U. S. 1869, 6c blue; (12) New South Wales, No. 81; (13) Dominican Rep., No. 105; (14) Mexico, No. 248; (15) Thurn and Taxis, 1859 15kr; (16) Salvador, 1895-1902 Postage Due; (17) Uruguay 1866; (18) U. S. No. 313.

Only two contestants were able to send in complete lists and this honor belongs to Frank C. Clark of Medford, Ore., and Thos. M. Riley, Eagle Point, Ore. Mr. Clark's entry is a model of study. Possessing as he does a copy of Burroughs' "Wonderland of Stamps" which was the first prize, we are sending him the second prize, feeling sure that this will be satisfactory to both contestants. While both lists are complete the one prepared by Mr. Clark is more meritorious.

Third honors go to Rev. Homer A. Flint of Montpelier, Vt., who named Roumania 1907, Scott's 267-270, as the solution for No. 7. This does not tally with Mr. Hunt's official set of answers, though we must admit that it is a very fair solution.

Allen H. Blake, M. D., of W. Somerville, Mass., will have fourth honors in the contest. He also named Roumania on No. 7 and failed on No. 4, naming Egypt A1.

The next five contestants all failed on three solutions each, Mr. Payne failing to solve Nos. 3, 14 and 17; Mr. Stockin, Nos. 3, 4 and 14; Mr. Carey, Nos. 4, 14 and 17; Mr. Morrison, Nos. 1, 14 and 18; and Mr. Richardson, Nos. 3, 4 and 14.

Believing that the several contestants will be glad to compare notes with Mr. Clark's verv excellent entry we publish the same herewith and we feel certain that it will be appreciated, especially by those who have participated in the competition. The entry follows:—

Mr. Clark's Entry.

With my microscopic eye I located No. 1 as Uruguay, 1900, 5c dull blue, Scott No. 152 and the left hand numeral. The right hand 5 seems to be slightly different in not having the slight angle to the end of the downstroke immediately above the ball of the 5.

No. 2. Peru. Being the lower part of the wrapped band around the pedestal at the right of the seated figure. This is a feature of the values 1895 issues, and part of 1899 issue and 1902 issue. It is most clearly shown on the latter, 22c green. Scott No. 164.

No. 3. Hawaiian Islands. 1894, 12k blue, Scott's No. 78, and is the corner ornament on the lower left corner. Some class to this flag.

No. 4. Well, well, well. Who would think it? In this late day, too. New Foundland, 1897, 1c green Scott's No. 61. The figure to the left upper corner being correct and to the right reversed. Now we may excuse the chap from Antioqua, who places all four figures 1 reversed (Scott's No. 20) but not the man from England. May be too much "old Scotch."

No. 5. Should be an emblem for Ireland, but I found it belonged to Tierra del Fuego and on its only issue. Perhaps it was too suggestive of hard labor, for not more issues.

No. 6 took me to Liberia, 50c, 1897 issue, Scott No. 57, also No. 71 and 286. It is the lower part of the corner ornaments to the scroll containing the words "Republic Liberia."

No. 7. The recall of Columbus has brought even the lame to see this great man. And huddled close to him is perhaps his nephew to assist him in getting around as his crutch is plainly seen under his right arm, even though he is resting on the fence or stone railing. U. S. 50c Columbian, 1893, Scott 240.

There are other unfortunates in stampdom, but using canes. No. 8. Montenegro, Acknowledgment of Receipt stamps, and is most clearly shown on Scott's No. 95, while it is similar on No. 96, 97, and is the side ornament to the left. Perhaps it is exactly the same on the right side, though not having the stamp for an exact comparison, will be guided by the illustration in Scotts which shows leaves over the fruit on the left side but not on the right side. These ornaments are the vertical drops from the arched label which extends from side to side above the head.

No. 9. Sounds like Spain, but it isn't. Colombia Rep. Bolivar 1903 1 Peso, orange and also grey green, sewing machine perf, and also same value imperf. Scott Nos. 64, 65, 74, 5, 6 & 7. Being the name of Fernandez Madrid. The name Madrid being to the right of the bust, just within the two circular lines and the State name just without.

No. 10. Ceylon. 1900 issue. Scott Nos. 161 and 162, and is the right side triangular scroll at the center of the stamp's border. Similar but reversed on the left side.

No. 11. Checkmate! Or are we playing checkers? Well here we are, U. S. 6c blue, 1869, and is the blocked background surrounding the head of Washington. I also got warm with Hungary, Newspaper and Oldenburg, but neither are "IT."

No. 12. At first thought it suggested Mexico, but it proved to be another kind. It is Luther Burbank's spineless variety and grows in New South Wales, on the 8p red violet and red lilac stamps of the issue of 1888-89, Scott No. 81, also No. 115. It is on the left side, outside of the oval containing the beautiful bird.

No. 13. Third lap, or third and last round. Might be the pugilist's chair in his corner. I note that it is visitor's chair on the stamp issued by Dominican Republic in 1889-1900, being the 20c value Scott 105, and is at the left of the table at the left side of the stamp. Very quaint.

No. 14. Mexico. 1895 issue, 10c rose lilac, at bottom and the "Z" to the word "DIEZ." Also 256e, and 1897, 278d, 1898, 284 & 293e.

No. 15. Germany, Thurn and Taxis, Southern District, and is the 1859 issue 15kr, value, and the particular one of the illustration is the value just above at to the right of the large figure 1. It is not the labeled value over the large figure 5 as there is a slight difference in the hexagon shaped lines.

No. 16. Salvador. United and confederated states got a good look. Even the Official seal stamps of U. S. The letter S on the seals is very similar but it lacks the curley-ma-cue on the tail. This Salvador breed must be of the French Bull-dog breed. Ever notice one? It is the Salvador postage due issues, 1895 to 1902 inclusive, and is the letter

British Colonials mentioned above distributed in W. H. Peckitt's New Issue Service, May and July.

Full particulars of this well-known 10% New Issue Service sent post free on application.

"S" to the word Salvador at the top of the stamp.

No. 17. Up on the mountain top, looking out to sea, down in Uruguay can be found this choice bit of architecture. It is on the early issues of 1866, and very clearly defined on the 10c and 5c values. Scott Nos. 31 & 30, being the right upper quarter of the central oval. It is also indicated on the other values, 15c and 20c, and quite small in size on the 1c. In the later issues I notice that the wind has changed as the flag is being blown to the right.

No. 18. I am taking a long chance on this one but I remember once seeing it on the $5.00 U. S. stamp. The only way I can locate it would be by this reasoning, that I have the $1.00 and $2.00 issues of 1894, and 95, and the dies show the same border. Therefore, I will have to state that it must be the 1903 issue, Scott 313 and is the figure on the right side.

We feel it a duty and a pleasure to record the work done by some of the other contestants.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—H. H. Hamed evidently overlooked the chronicle of the higher values of the current set, with portrait of Franklin, in No. 1104, as he kindly sends us information regarding the new stamps.

F. B. Eldredge has shown us a 1c wrapper of the current issue, 1907 watermark, of a very peculiar appearance. The color is a pale yellow green, and the whole stamp is vertically lined, the very fine lines extending through the frame as well as the background around the portrait.

F. B. Eldredge reports the following new precancels since last report:

St. Louis, Mo., 2c 1912, inverted; type V.
Riverton, N. J., 3c 1910, normal; type I.
Scranton, Pa., 1c 1912, normal; type II.

BERMUDA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the ¼d value in the ship or "Hog Money" type. Our readers will note the error made in No. 1119.

Adhesive.

¼d brown.

CHINESE REPUBLIC.—We are indebted to Theodore Siddall for specimens of the 1, 3, 10 and 20c of the surcharged issue. These stamps have however already been chronicled in this column.

COOK ISLANDS.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the ½d value, perforated 14, instead of 11 as formerly. The paper is watermarked Star NZ, placed normally, so that parts of two watermarks are on many of the stamps.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—The New England Stamp Co., Whitfield King & Co., and A. C. Roessler have shown us the three values of the King George set chronicled in No. 1115, on the authority of Lemaire's Journal. The colors were correctly stated.

NORWAY.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 15, 20 and 25 ore values of the current set in a redrawn type. The chief differences are in the inscriptions in the band surrounding the central oval, the new type showing more white, the letters and figures being strengthened and widened. There are also other minor differences, which can be discovered with a good glass and considerable patience. Can it be possible that these are Scott's re-engraved stamps, chronicled under date of "1910"?

Adhesives.

Redrawn type.

15 ore brown.
20 ore deep ultramarine.
25 ore red violet.

PORTUGAL.—Whitfield King & Co. send us the new value in the "Ceres" set.

Adhesive.

7½c bistre brown.

SEYCHELLES.—In No. 1115 we noted the issues of two values of the new set, with portrait of King George. The chronicle was made on the authority of one of our foreign contemporaries, the color of the 2c being given as brown and green. The New England Stamp Co. has now shown us this stamp, and we find that it is neither brown as then stated, nor the red brown or chestnut of the King Edward 2c value, but the orange brown of the 1900 issue.

Adhesive.

2c orange brown and green.

SIERRA LEONE.—An error was made last week in stating that the 3d value had been issued on chalky paper, an error which we are now able to correct through having been shown a copy by the New England Stamp Co. There has been something of a mixup between this stamp and the 10c value of Straits Settlements, the latter having been issued on chalky paper, where formerly it was on ordinary paper, while the 3d of Sierra Leone has been issued on ordinary, where formerly it was on chalky paper.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—The New New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new 8d and 1sh stamps, previously chronicled. The varieties of watermark were correctly stated last week, the 8d being on paper watermarked Crown and double lined A, while the 1sh value is on paper watermarked Crown and single lined A.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

HOW POSTAGE STAMPS ARE MADE.

We now have to consider another process of engraving—a process by means of which more stamps have been produced than any other and the method which is now most generally used. This is known as surface-printing or typography and it is just the reverse of line-engraving for in engraving the dies, the lines of the design are made to appear in relief, or épargne as it is called. From this die or matrix as many impressions as are required to compose a plate are taken in gutta percha, lead, papier maché, or other suitable material. These blocks or moulds have the design in recess and would be of no use for printing from. They are, therefore, clamped together in a "forme" in the exact manner in which the stamps will show on the finished sheets and by means of a galvanic bath a thin film of copper or steel is deposited evenly over the surface of the whole forme. This film receives a backing of type metal and forms the printing plate, the method of printing being similar to that employed in printing newspapers, circulars, books, etc., from ordinary printer's type. The plates, of course, vary in size and arrangement. Sometimes there is only one entire "cast" for the plate or it may be there are two, four, or more which are clamped together (generally with a space between) to form the plate. When there is more than one cast the resulting divisions on the printed sheets of stamps are known as "panes."

It will be understood from the foregoing that in both the line-engraved and surface-printing processes a die has to be engraved first of all. When, however, there are several values in a set all of similar design and only differing in the denotation of value one original die or matrix serves for all. This die has the scrolls or tablets for the values blank. From this original as many replicas are made as there are to be values in the set and these "secondary" dies are then engraved with the necessary particulars and serve as the dies from which the plates are made. Or it may happen, as in the case of the 1891, 1893 and 1896 issues for Hayti, that from the original die with blank tablets a plate of the desired size is made and casts from this are taken for as many different denominations as are required. These plates are completed by the engraving of the different numerals of value.

Stamps produced by both typography and line-engraving are frequently printed in two colors. This means that separate dies and plates are necessary for each of the two colors and also two printings. In the case of bi-colored stamps printed by typography one plate often serves for the production of the main portion of the design for all the values in a set. This plate is known as a "head-plate." As many other plates—called "duty-plates"—have to be made as there are different denominations in the set.

In the case of certain British Colonial stamps the same head-plate serves for the stamps of several different colonies. These "general" plates are used in the printing establishment of Messrs. De La Rue & Co. and their use by the smaller colonies materially reduces the cost of printing their different supplies of postage stamps. All they have to provide are the duty-plates and in many cases the same duty-plates have been used (by Seychelles for instance) for the stamps showing the portraits of Queen Victoria and King Edward VII and will doubtless be used again in connection with the new King George V stamps.

SHORT REPLIES.

R. H. J. (Hitchcock, Tex.).—The 1k, 2k and 3k stamps of the 1891 stamps of Finland can be at once distinguished from the same values of the 1890 set of Russia by the small circular ornaments on the background at each side of the central device. (2) You will find a description of batonne paper in a recent number of the WEEKLY. (3) The stamp you describe is a private local of Germany of no value at all.

B. B. (Woodsfield).—I cannot undertake to answer purely geographical queries in this column. Look it up in an atlas.

H. S. C. (New York City).—Your question relating to album arrangement would require considerable space for a proper answer but as the matter is of general interest I will try and find room for an article on this subect in an early issue of the WEEKLY.

S. M. R. (Fayettesville).—The reason so many sets of Nicaragua, Salvador, etc. are quoted in the catalogues unused at so much below their normal facial value is because these issues (known as " Seebecks") were supplied gratuitously by the manufacturers on condition that a new set of stamps was issued annually and that the remainders should be returned to the printers for disposal as they wished. In other countries large lots of remainders sold at much below face value may result in the same thing. (2) The Shanghai stamps are included in the catalogue for a variety of reasons. They were the first postage stamps issued in the Chinese empire and their use was not, I believe, solely confined to the town of Shanghai. They were issued for legitimate postal purposes and on the score of age alone are worthy of catalogue rank. The Chefoo, etc., labels were practically all made for sale to stamp collectors and few were bona fide used even in the localities issuing them.

VAN DIEMEN'S LAND.

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

Tasmania, or, as it was styled on the early stamps, Van Diemen's Land, is one of the Australasian Colonies in whose stamps the collector can make a good show, and in which some of the rarer varieties are to be had for the searching. The first stamps, engraved by Mr. C. W. Coard, and printed at the offices of the Hobart Courier in 1853, provide the advanced collector with an opportunity for reconstructing the sheets printed from three different plates. The twenty-four stamps on each plate were separately engraved by hand, and consequently show those differences in detail which appeal to the trained philatelic eye. There was only one plate made for the 1d stamp, but there were two for the 4d, the precise order of which is debatable, but the one generally considered to be the first appears to be better engraved than the second, and possibly the "finely engraved" (plate 1) and the "coarse lines" (plate 2) of the catalogue descriptions may be accounted for by the expenditure of but 25s per head (£30 in all) on the engraving of the second plate, as against 30s per head (£36 in all) on the first.

The "plating" or "reconstruction" of such stamps is in the nature of a luxury, as fine copies used are difficult to obtain, and unused ones are very scarce indeed. Unused, the 1d blue is catalogued £20, used £4; and there are few collectors who have the opportunity for obtaining the material to rearrange the stamps in the order of the original plate. Nevertheless, the plating of these first Tasmanian 1d and 4d stamps is in a large measure responsible for their scarcity in the market. There is a rare variety of the 4d (the red-orange shade) printed on a slightly ribbed paper, and copies of plate 2 are known on laid paper, though these latter may possibly be proof impressions.

A 6d stamp, which it had been intended to issue along with the 1d and 4d, was never printed, though one of the copper plates of the 4d bore traces on the back of an incomplete series of engravings, which were probably intended to form the plate of the proposed higher value. Before the locally engraved stamps were actually issued, the authorities were negotiating for a series of stamps to be engraved and printed in London by the same printers as were then printing the English stamps, Messrs. Perkins, Bacon, and Co. This firm produced the next Tasmanian issue of 1855, consisting of three denominations, 1d, 2d, and 4d, printed on paper watermarked "large star," the old name of "Van Diemen's Land" being still retained. The design is the beautiful and familiar Chalon portrait of Queen Victoria, engraved by William Humphrys from a drawing in water-colours by Edward Henry Corbould, R. I., after the mezzotint by Samuel Cousins, R. A.

Collectors would have been saved some of the complications of the early Tasmanian stamps had Messrs. Perkins, Bacon, and Co. not sent out the plates along with their first printings of the stamps to the Colony. The printers packed and despatched the steel plates in error, the mistake being attributable to the heavy and growing demand at that period, both by the home and the Colonial Governments for stamps, the great majority of which were then engraved and printed by this one firm. When the three plates were received in the Colony, they were handed over to Messrs. H. and C. Best, of the Courier, who printed the next supply of stamps from the London plates, but on paper which was without the star watermark.

Subsequently, in 1857, Messrs. Perkins, Bacon, and Co. engraved two stamps of the values of sixpence and one shilling, utilising the same portrait as before; but the design of the frame was quite different from that of the other denominations, being octagonal in shape. The inscriptions in large letters were "Tasmania"—the new name of the colony—above and "Sixpence" or "One Shilling" below. As the Tasmanian Government found it possible to have the stamps printed in the colony, the instructions to Messrs, Perkins, Bacon, and Co. were to print a supply of the new stamps, and send with them the plates and all necessary materials; and these were duly carried out, the consignment arriving early in January, 1858.

Later Messrs. Best (and subsequently their successors and other firms) printed the stamps on paper watermarked with double-lined numerals, corresponding with the face-value of the stamp. This plan of watermarking with figures, having reference to the denomination, has always led to errors in postage-stamp printing, and in due course (about 1869) the 1d carmine was printed on paper intended for the 2d stamp. Thus we get a penny stamp with the watermark of the twopence, in itself a rare stamp, but indicating that a corresponding error should exist of the 2d stamp with the watermark of the one penny. The known error is one of the perforated stamps of the London design, but locally printed and locally perforated. From 1857 to 1870 we get a great range of separation varieties, including a roulette measuring approximately 8½ cuts to the space of two centimetres, several variations of oblique roulette, pin-perforation, serrated perforation, and the ordinary kind of perforation.

In 1870, Tasmania began to use surface-printed stamps, getting the designs for them engraved by Messrs. De La Rue and Co., of London, but for the most part printing the stamps in the colony on paper which was at first "borrowed" from New South Wales. Later the special paper watermarked "Tas" was introduced. The surface-printed stamps, though not so interesting to the collector as their predecessors, include some rarities, the more noteworthy of which are the error of the "halfpenny" surcharge of 1889-1891, which error occurred in the second printing, and was promptly corrected; the double surcharge of the 2½d on 9d stamp (one of the overprints being inverted), of which there is supposed to have been only one sheet; and the 1s rose and green, perforated eleven, printed on the paper watermarked "V" over a crown.

In 1900, Tasmania issued its handsome pictorial stamps giving a series of views of the colony. They mark the colony's first experiments in utilising its postage labels as a means of advertising the scenic beauties of the island. The scenes are all duly labelled on the stamps. Finally, it may be mentioned that Tasmania used these stamps and certain of the Queen Victoria designs throughout the late reign; and it is, therefore, one of the few important parts of the British Empire which never gave us a portrait of King Edward upon its adhesive postage stamps.—London Telegraph.

DEATH OF DR. LEGRAND.

We learn with regret that the venerable M. le Docteur Legrand died at his residence at Neuilly-sur-Seine, near Paris, on June 6th, 1912, aged ninety-two.

Jacques Amable Legrand was born in Paris in August, 1820, and became a doctor of medicine in 1847, starting to practice at Neuilly in 1848, at which place he continued throughout the remainder of his lengthy career.

The name of the truly great doctor, appropriately named Jacques Amable Legrand, has throughout five decades been a name to revive youthful memories and to stir up old enthusiasms. His own name was not more gradiloquent than his nom-de-plume of Dr. Magnus, and the old stagers amongst us would readily enough accord him the title of Le Grand Timbrologue.

The Doctor's Claims.—Can it be that there are among the newer collectors those who knew not Joseph—or Jacques Amable Legrand? As to that I need pass no opinion, but methinks many of us may have long since forgotten wherein lay the great doctor's chiefest claims to philatelic distinction. Two score years and more have passed since the invention of the Odontometer, an instrument as indispensible to the philatelist as the thermometer must have been to Dr. Legrand in his profession of medicine. Have we forgotten that Dr. Legrand gave us, and so far as the French language is concerned, christened both the science and its chiefest instrument?

Longevity of Philatelic Pioneers.—There may be some credit due to the pleasures of philately that Dr. Legrand lived to the venerable age of ninety-two; I need but recall the names of Judge Philbrick, so lately taken from us, Dr. Viner, Moëns, Maury, Berger-Levrault, and many others as instances of longevity among the pioneers of philately. It is not easy to comprehend that he who has just been taken from us was a grown youth of twenty when the Penny Black came into being, and had taken his degree in medicine before the fall of Louis Philippe gave the new Government in his native country an opportunity for adopting amongst other reforms the system of the postage stamp. By the time philately was fairly started on its history—in 1862—Dr. Legrand was in his forty-second year.

Dr. Legrand's Chief Aims.—As it was in the beginning of our hobby, so it is to-day, the boy is father to the man. Dr. Legrand's eldest son, a lad of nine, brought home from school a little accumulation of stamps of several foreign countries, and the father raked out his old correspondence to add to the store of specimens. The younger Legrand's enthusiasm was fugitive, but it served to establish a perennial interest in the father, who thenceforth embarked on the unremitting labour of love in which his principal objects for the remainder of his life have fairly been summed up as

“2nd. To establish philately as a science, and for this purpose to enlarge the dictionary of its terms.

“3rd. To induce all collectors to examine the various points of stamps, such as the watermarks, perforations, types, characters, &c., and all such particulars of paper, gumming, shape, &c., of envelopes, as contribute to the history of stamps or envelopes, not only with a view to a proper classification of them, but also as a safeguard against those pests, the forgers, against whom he has always declared open war.”

The Study of Watermarks.—I have before me the work which brought “Dr. Magnus” into the active circle of philatelic writers. It is an “Essai sur les filigranes et les papiers employés a la fabrication des timbres-poste,” written for Le Timbrophile in 1865. At that time collectors distinguished between varieties of color, absence, presence or even mode of perforation (i. e., perforated or rouletted), and in the texture and colours of paper, but watermarks, though recognized as existing in many of the known stamps (principally of Great Britain and the Colonies at that period) were not studied or regarded in their possible relation to varying issues. Dr. Magnus, however, justly claimed that in this lengthy essay “we have demonstrated the interest and importance of this kind of study. At the present time every amateur seriously desirous of forming a complete collection, cannot dispense with the notice of watermarks, the character of which will so often establish a difference between two stamps apparently identical."

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

The Slackers of the 'Sixties.—There were "simple lifers," or perhaps they were merely "slackers," in those days, and in introducing the watermark as "encore une subtilite" to the notice of enthusiasts in philatelic study Dr. Magnus alluded to the questions of the school which was later to be championed by the Pendragonites. "Another nicety! Is it not sufficient to distinguish perforated from unperforated stamps; the use of the roulette from that of the machine; small dentelations from large ones, &c. ?"

The "Phsiognomy" of a Stamp.—A year later Dr. Magnus, this time through the columns of M. Moëns' paper, Le Timbre-Poste, carried philately into deeper minutiæ by his important monograph on perforations. "Dentelés et non dentelés" were distinctions already recognised but not everywhere welcomed, but Dr. Magnus made a powerful appeal for the importance of the perforation in his claim that this process completes the "physiognomy" of a stamp. "What," he asks, "would you think of a naturalist who, in describing an animal, neglected to mention the presence or absence of hairs on the skin, and their nature?" His analogy might have been worthy of Dr. Gray, the eminent zoologist and stamp-collector of the British Museum, who, bringing his zoological training to bear on his descriptions of stamps, gave more attention to minute (not necessarily minor) details than to more prominent distinctions of colour.

The Invention of the Odontometer.—The first Odontometer was printed in illustration of his reasoned and scientific paper under the title of "Dentelés et non dentelés" in the forty-sixth number of Le Timbre-Poste (October, 1886) and gave a series of gauges ranging from that of the Susse machine (7) to that of the first perforated stamps of Great Britain (16). Here, too, "Dr. Magnus" laid down the first basis of the terminology of perforations. Dentelés, he submitted, should be a generic term for stamps perforated or rouletted, and its use should not be taken as specifying any specific mode of separation, whereas he applied "timbres piqués" to what we now call perforated (i. e., where the "pins" punch out confetti) and "timbres percés" (where the pins or roulette cuts merely pierce but do not remove the paper).

The Measuring of Perforations.—In that pioneer paper on perforations the methodical doctor lays down once and for all the method of counting perforations. It is of no use counting the number of teeth on the several sides of each independent stamp, as he instances how variable these would be. So to establish a means whereby we can tell one another in exact terms the gauge of any perforations he laid down the convenient standard of a space of two centimetres, and the number of teeth or holes falling within that space, during nearly fifty years has been the index by which we know the perforations of our treasures.

An Invention Pro Bono Publico.—The Odontometer was a tentative name with which Dr. Magnus christened his échelle, but although many millions of this convenient device have been sold by dealers and stationers I wot not that the great doctor personally received one sou for his ingenious invention. Indeed from the outset he gave a table of stamps of known perforations from which his readers could prick out their own odontometers. The question of who was the first to print the Odontometer, or Perforation Gauge, as a commercial philatelic accessory I leave to the sages of the Philatelic Literature Society.

The Writings of "Dr. Magnus."—Dr. Legrand's pen, once it had set out to maintain and justify the science of the observateurs francais never seemed to rest. He was probably as prolific in his writings as the ubiquitous and delightful Mons. Hanciau, though his writings appeared in the periodical press and but few were separately published. Those few are, however, constant companions of the student of to-day. The paper on watermarks was reprinted in 1867, as also were his papers on the stamps of Moldavia and Roumania in 1869. Up to the period of the Franco-Prussian war, when M. Berger-Levrault and many of Dr. Legrand's Parisian contemporaries had little opportunity for the peaceful pursuit of the postage stamp, the Doctor wrote extensively for M. Mahé's journal, Le Timbrophile. In 1872 he started and edited the Gazette des Timbres, which was almost entirely written by him. From the beginning of 1874 to 1878 he was editor of Le Timbre-Fiscal, issued by M. Moens, of Brussels, as a companion journal to Le Timbre-Poste. In 1878 his "Les ecritures et la légende des timbres du Japon" was published in Moëns' "Bibliotheque Timbrologique." But the two most used works in booklet form were "Alphabets et chiffres orientaux" (1893) and the "Manuel de l'amateur de timbres" (1894).

The Doctor's £12,000 Collection.—Beginning so early in the history of stamp-collecting, indeed as one of the makers of modern Philately, Dr. Legrand had opportunities of forming a fine general collection rich in rarities, the bulk of which (excepting his French stamps and his great collection of fiscals) he sold to M. Lemaire, the well-known French dealer, in 1897 for about £12,000. He had an unused and a used Post Office Mauritius which M. Bernichon acquired for £1,920. In the other Mauritius and in early Hawaiian stamps there were some wonderful treasures, and no doubt the value of the collection at this date would be vastly in excess of what was, in 1897, a record figure for the outright purchase of a stamp collection.

Edwardian Stamps of the British Empire
BY DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG

This book is Volume II of the series inaugurated by Bright & Son and known as "Bright's Philatelic Library." In the volume before us the Edwardian issues of Antigua, Bahamas, Bechuanaland Protectorate, British Central Africa, British Honduras, Canada, Cape Colony, Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus and Dominica are illustrated and described.

In addition to the bibliography there is an appendix giving the colonial color scheme, and the entire volume is one that will appeal to the philatelist who makes any attempt at a philatelic library.

REPUBLIC STAMP CO., Frankfort, Ky.

The Collection of Fiscals.—Alas! for his fidelity to fiscal stamps; when they were sold a few years back, they did not bring much grist to the aged doctor's mill. No definite sum is known as having been paid for them; indeed, the collection was divided up into several parts, the traffic in fiscals probably not being sufficient for any one firm to undertake the whole of his vast accumulation. But, however deficient in investment value, I doubt not the doctor reaped much joy in the collecting of them. In his declining years he started a collection of philatelic literature, and it is very probable that he still retained from his early days some of the now rare early catalogues and other works of the first period of philately. This seems the more likely as he lived at Neuilly since 1848, when he began to practice there as a physician.

A Loss to the Exhibition.—Dr. Legrand, as one of the few remaining stamp collectors of the first period, would doubtless have adorned the Jubilee Committee of Honour of the forthcoming International Stamp Exhibition. This Committee, which was to be a connecting chain between philately in 1862 and 1912, thus loses an important link in the nonagenarian doctor who was for fifty years a philatelist.—Postage Stamp.

FOR A GOOD PHILATELIST.

Hugh C. Barr, whose long victory as a philatelist, began at an early age at Davenport, Iowa, and who is remembered personally by many collectors thru his attendance at the A. P. S. conventions at Clayton, 1895, Milwaukee, 1900 and Chicago, 1911, has just received a somewhat extraordinary mark of preference. Mr. Barr who has attained an uncommon proficiency in Spanish, through advanced study and years of residence in Mexico, has been given the editorship of La Hacienda, the great illustrated magazine, published in the Spanish language, at Buffalo, New York.

GODDESS ABOLISHED FROM 5c PIECE.

No More "Liberty"—A Buffalo to Take Her Place.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The 5c piece which has been jingling in the pockets of American citizens for many years does not coincide with the Treasury Department's conception of art, and it will be changed in its entirety.

Secretary MacVeagh has decided to replace the Goddess of Liberty on the face of the nickel with a buffalo. The reverse side of the new coin will contain the head of an Indian. J. W. Fraser, of New York, is making the design in collaboration with officials of the Treasury Department. All its details will be decided upon at a conference between Secretary MacVeagh and Mr. Fraser next week.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

> "And here we may say in all candor that we fear a mistake was made in taking the organship away from the Boston weekly."—Editor Quackenbush.

We do not need to answer in detail the article that we reprint from Redfield's Weekly, nor rehash the particulars of the contest in which the WEEKLY so prominently figured. Mr. Quachenbush is grieviously in error in maintaining that the A. P. S., or any other society, can permanently prosper on a diet of fight. It may add fire to the annual convention, but its reflex influence will spell discord.

Moreover the "fighting spirit" of the managing editor cannot be broken in any contest where a moral principle is at stake. He is always willing to abide by the will of the majority where the issue is one merely of business policy.

All three owners of the WEEKLY are loyal members of the A. P. S. and they had a right to resent the shameful treatment accorded them at the Chicago convention, where though the mail vote had declared emphatically in favor of the WEEKLY for official journal the convention decided that while the WEEKLY was the official journal any other paper might have the privilege of publishing the official matter by meeting certain conditions. Thus the statutes of the society were nullified, not amended, nor even suspended but nullified by a convention vote upheld by leading members who passively permitted this great injustice to be done us. We rebelled in good plain English and our correspondence with Messrs. Mudge and Cornwall is ample evidence that we could not be bull-dozed in addition to being unjustly treated.

In conclusion, permit us to state that it could not reasonably be expected that during the past year the same publicity could be given the A. P. S. as we had previously given it. Mr. Severn, editorially and the managing editor in the news department have been ready to serve the society as opportunity presented. If Gen. Apathy is in the saddle so far as A. P. S. matters are concerned certain members may well look back of the present twelve months in order to locate the trouble. Here is Mr. Quackenbush's article:

"What, in the name of all that is great and good, is the matter with the A. P. S.? The thing is going beyond a joke. The question is really becoming a serious one. In a philatelic experience of considerably over twenty years, we never recall a time in which the A. P. S. seemed so completely out of the public eye as in this present year of grace.

There have been times in the past when the A. P. S. was at pretty low ebb—when its membership was not half what it is at the present time. But even in those dark days, there was apparently a much livelier and more widespread interest in its welfare than there is to-day. There seems no enthusiasm or interest anywhere in the approaching convention—not even, sad to say, in Springfield itself. Our esteemed contemporary, the Philadelphia Stamp News, recently commented rather strongly on this phase of the situation, but not any more strongly than the case deserves. We are puzzled and amazed at the implicable lethargy of Springfield. Here is a city philatelically famous from one end of the continent to the other as a hotbed of philatelic earnestness and enthusiasm, and yet at this late date it has not, apparently, so much as thought of appointing a press committee to boom the convention in public print. We cannot help contrasting this unfavorably with the activity displayed by other branches in charge of other conventions of recent years—notably, the Columbus, Philadelphia, and Detroit branches in 1908, 1909 and 1910 respectively. For months beforehand, thanks to the activities of the committees in charge, the philatelic press was filled with matter booming the coming conventions. Everybody reading any stamp papers at all was perforce obliged to notice the coming affairs, and however little he may have been interested in the A. P. S before, to realize in his heart that this must, indeed, be a great and influential organization. The only chance of really stirring up great interest in the A. P. S. seems to be in the three or four months preceding the annual convention. There is, of course, all through the year a deep, steady, abiding interest in the affairs of the organization on the part of a small minority of its membership. But the great mass of its membership takes during the greater part of the year but a mild interest in its affairs. Such part of them as do not participate in the Sales Department (and we presume that the users of the Sales Department amount to not over twenty-five per cent. of the entire membership) have the Society's existence but faintly and occasionally called to their notice. We, therefore, regard it as especially deplorable that so little is being made of the convention this year. The fault does not alone lie at the door of our Springfield friends. They are simply, we presume, affected by the general lethargy resulting from there being nothing in particular to fight over at this year's convention. No one cares a rap about the convention because there is no difference of opinion as to leaders or issues, and because the meeting promises on that account, to be about as exciting as an old ladies' tea party. It is a great pity that the leaders of the A. P. S. have been lulled into such a complete state of concord and harmony. If there was a prospect of a good, lively, old-fashioned scrimmage at the convention, everybody would prick up their ears and a good many would pack their grips for Springfield that will not do so otherwise. We are inclined to believe that the Society lost a great deal when it broke the fighting spirit of Mr. Willard O. Wylie and his Boston confreres. What lovely tilts the East and the West used to have in Mr. Wylie's militant days. With what eagerness and zest people looked forward to the conventions then. We ourselves have felt lost and out of our element since our olden adversary laid down his arms. We cannot very easily get into an altercation with the mild and gentle Mann; though we may be driven to attempt even that if this spell of deadly stagnation continues another year. But Mr. Wylie was a foeman worthy of our steel; and we hugely enjoyed the two or three years of running combat for the A. P. S. organship, which finally terminated in the victory of a newly entered dark horse and in Mr. Wylie's throwing up the sponge in great disgust. What a battle royal it was the year of the Atlantic City convention; how the whole Society took sides and felt a live, active eager interest in the election and convention.

Alas, those days seem to be gone. There is not this year the feeblest ghost of a contest. The Presidency is to go by default to the present incumbent. An attempt to stir up a contest for the Secretaryship has failed dismally, by reason of unfamiliarity with the constitution on the part of those who sought to set up an opposition candidate to Mr. Ault. There is no contest over the official organship, for our Boston contemporary, after making a bid, changed its mind and withdrew from the race. And here we may say in all candor that we fear a mistake was made in taking the organship away from the Boston weekly. Mr. Mann has given the Society good service, but it would be idle to pretend that his journal has by any means the circulation or prestige of the Boston weekly, which, had it retained the organship would doubtless have continued to push forward the Society to the full extent of its power. Mr. Mann would in any case, official organ or no official organ, have done his whole duty to the Society. So, we think we need scarcely say, would Redfield's Weekly. But so would not, and has not, our Boston contemporary. It might have been well to placate it by handing back the official organship but, now that it has withdrawn from the field, that is, of course, impossible.

We hope by next year the Society will be able to develop some sort of good healthy schism, to make things exciting. We fear it is too near the eleventh hour to "start anything" this year. If we had a philatelic Roosevelt or a philatelic Bryan in our ranks something might yet be done."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Geo. E. Lobdell (2); J. Doemich.

—Frank E. Goodwin, whose articles on U. S. stamps in the WEEKLY are receiving much favorable comment, has purchased several collections and stamp stocks and is preparing to do an extensive business from Webster Groves, Mo. Mr. Goodwin has purchased the collections of Theodore Fairchild, Minneapolis, Minn., and Andrew Caudell, Portland, Ore. The latter is a fine specialized collection of U. S. adhesives. Mr. Goodwin wishes to express his thanks to our readers who have favored him with stamps and offers of others but it has been impossible for him to reply to all letters he has received.

A STAR SECRETARY.

At the last meeting of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society, the office of Secretary and Treasurer was declared vacant by unanimous vote, whereupon Frank E. Goodwin, 804½ Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., was named to serve until the next election of officers. All communications will have due attention from Mr. Goodwin, who, we may add by way of digression, has enjoyed a high reputation through his enlightening studies of United States stamps; and his celebrity is becoming the greater through his present series in the WEEKLY.

EDITORIAL.

Protest—From Mr. Willard B. Savary, Somerville, Mass., we have received a letter as follows: "Being a constant and deeply interested reader of the WEEKLY, I would appreciate an opportunity to learn, either personally, or through the columns of your valuable paper, your views regarding the reprinting of stamps from the original plates by private parties, as in the case of those of the Transvaal, recently noted in the Philatelic Gazette. It is my opinion that, whatever may be the object, the reprinting of stamps by private parties is a menace to philately and all the noteworthy philatelic societies should co-operate in the prevention of the practice by all powers within their means. Etc. ." The original plates of any stamp issue in the hands of a private person are a demoralizing factor on philately, actual or anticipatory, in so far as the issues of the countries involved are concerned. The possessor of an original plate of a country, even that no longer has a national identity, or whose government has been changed, is an irregularity that disturbs philatelic equity by giving into undeserving hands an instrument to be used only in a public sense. It is wholly unfair that all philately should be at the mercy of the unofficial owner of the original plate. Moreover, any country whose stamps have been cheapened by any such reprinting suffers through the existence of such conditions. Heligoland has lost its interest and freshness for the average collector by the reprintings of Mr. Goldner, who acquired the plates of the schilling values. The Otto reprints of the first republic Transvaal stamps have complicated the collecting of the stamps of a country teeming with interest, to the extent that many an every-day collector says that a plague be on all these stamps. An original plate in the hands of anyone except the established and reputable engraving firm or the government itself is sadly out of place; and then the circumstances may not be above suspicion. The dies and plates of a stamp issue should be destroyed when the stamps are retired and made obsolete; and if this was a requirement observed universally, an added feeling of safety would be felt by collectors. The question is one that properly could be considered by societies that should institute steps to preserve the sanctity of the original die and plate.

Involved—Some time ago, the presence on the market of parcels of Transvaal stamps, including the V. R. I. and E. R. I. surcharges at prices under face was commented upon but the reassuring effect of the following letter lulled inquirers into a sense of what may prove to be false security. "London, January 23rd, 1912. With reference to your letter of the 15th December addressed to the Crown Agents, of which a copy has been forwarded to this office, I am directed to state that all the issues of stamps of the late British Colonies of South Africa are still current and it is not understood how any unused specimens of these issues can be offering for sale at less than their face value." Writing from the Transvaal, under date of May 21st, 1912, a correspondent of the Philatelic Gazette says that the "former contractors for the printing of the old Transvaal stamps, Messrs. Enchede & Sons, of Haarlem, Holland, to reprint huge quantities of the issues of 1885, 1894, 1895, 1896" had been corrupted by a large firm of stamp dealers in Paris. These reprinted stamps have been sold as genuine remainders, it is averred; and it is charged that they have been "used" with fraudulent postmarks and that the surcharges for the 1885 issue have been forged. The V. R. I. and E. R. I. surcharges have been included in the lot, it is said, and here is where the case becomes somewhat mysterious. In the letter from the secretary of the London office of the Union of South Africa that we have quoted in part there was a statement that we now add and it was to the effect that the office that he represented would be pleased to take necessary measures should it be shown that any unapproved methods entered into the merchandizing of the stamps. If as is said, "all the issues of stamps of the late British Colonies of South Africa are still current" it would seem to be a very serious matter for the purveyors of unauthorized V. R. I. and E. R. I. surcharges to handle what may be termed current postal certificates. It is possible, of course, that "all the issues" mean only those on from the permanent 1902 set, in the estimation of the authorities.

Given the Go-By—Mr. A. W. Dunning in an interesting letter comments on Mr. Poole's article on the Philippine Islands local stamps of 1898-99 and points out that from the context, it might be understood that the revolutionary stamps were included in the supplement containing U. S. and Chinese locals issued by the catalogue publishers as an addendum to the Scott catalogue, when such is not the case. Mr. Dunning resumes: "For reasons best known to themselves, the publishers of the Standard Catalogue have consistently refused to follow the example of Yvert-Tellier's and Senf's catalogues in listing these stamps, in spite of the convincing evidence that has been published of their legitimate issue and use." The files of the WEEKLY will show that this paper was the first to cite a case of legitimate postal use of one of the Aguinaldo stamps, as they were popularly called, and thus prove the philatelic value of the stamps; and we have had the cataloguer's reasons for not recognizing these locals. As we remember, the publishers feel that they are conserving philately best by adopting a policy of repression within reasonable bounds; and in consequence, they are more exacting than before in the requirements of a stamp for admission. The instability of the insurrecto government and its lack of a permanent base were counts against the stamps, we believe. However, it would be a graceful move to include the stamps in question in the local supplement and this could be done with clear conscience as stamps that a dozen years ago every collector had in quantities could scarcely have been issued primarily for speculative purposes. Indeed, there seemed to be a marked absence of speculative taint in the handling of these issues.

Early Cancellation—Mr. Wm. L. Stevenson whose studies of early United States cancellations have merited much praise calls attention to an imperforate pair of the 1851 one-cent canceled "twice with the U. S. Mail-City Delivery, with Paid above and outside the circle and differing from the most I have seen in that it has a large 2, where the large 1 is usually shown." Mr. Stevenson assumes naturally that the existence of such a cancellation stamp would indicate that there was some use for it but he is puzzled to understand just what payment it represented, unless it should have been a prepayment of the drop letter fee and the delivery charge combined. He adds: "Postage stamps so canceled would seem to me to take on a new status and become carrier stamps, especially as they apparently represent a prepayment rather than a fee collected on delivery. They scarcely would seem to be cancellations simply."

M. P. A. AND S. P. A. CONVENTIONS.

The M. P. A. and S. P. A. will meet in joint convention at Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 15-16-17. Headquarters, Hotel Russ. Rates, $1.50 per day, European plan. Thursday afternoon the first business session will be held, in the convention hall of the Hotel. In the evening, an informal reception will be held at a Japanese garden on the Susquehanna; there will be addresses, cards, music, refreshments, etc. On Friday morning guides will conduct the delegates thru the thirteen million dollar State Capitol. The State Library and Museums will also be visited. In the latter, there will be a large number of cases of stamps on exhibition, for the occasion. On Friday evening a Stamp Bourse and Auction will be held on the river. Saturday morning, "seeing Harrisburg." All unfinished business will be disposed of Saturday afternoon. The Capitol City Collectors Club are the hosts, and the members expect a large attendance. Prospective delegates will please communicate with L. P. Miller, 262 Broad St., Harrisburg, Pa., Chmn. of Arrangements Com. All delegates are requested to bring cameras and duplicates along.

A FIND OF SIDNEY VIEWS.

During a lifelong acquaintanceship with these interesting stamps it has been our fortune to have recorded many a lucky discovery, but we think that the comble de bonheur has been now attained in this direction. This remarkable find consists of no less than nineteen specimens, in brilliant unused condition, of the 3d Sydney. They consist of 1 block of 13 in two vertical rows of 5 and one of 3, being the right-hand portion of the sheet, with full side margin, a vertical pair completing the forenamed row of 3, and a vertical strip of 4 from the left-hand of the sheet. The plate of 25 varieties is thus complete except Nos. 1, 2, 7, 12, 17, and 22. These stamps, judging by their fine condition, with full gum, must have been carefully preserved, possibly between the leaves of a book. We are glad to think that they will remain in this country, having been purchased by one of our foremost collectors, Mr. H. J. Duveen. There can be no doubt that this is the finest philatelic block in the world as regards Australian stamps, and it is doubtful if it is surpassed in philatelic or intrinsic value by any known specimens of any country.—London Philatelist.

SPECIALIZED UNITED STATES.

It is not given to any one man to know everything. This is true of stamp collecting and particularly true in the study of United States stamps. As the series of articles written by Mr. Goodwin appears in the WEEKLY we shall be glad to hear from any of our readers who desire to add additional information or who may possibly desire to correct any inaccuracy that might occur. It is the desire of all concerned to have this work on "Specialized United States" authoritative.

FOR U. S. SPECIALISTS

I have purchased an immense stock of United States stamps owned by Frank H. Davis, Steger, Ill., also two specialized collections. These deals give me, without doubt, the largest stock of U. S. stamps in the middle west, if not in the country.

The stock will be made up into books for specialists and disposed of at live-and-let-live prices—mostly at half catalog for fine stamps. Others not in as fine condition, but good, collectible stamps, at larger discounts.

I will fill almost everything in want lists at reasonable discounts.

I solicit requests for books of any issues, on approval, from responsible collectors. Acceptable references must be furnished by applicants.

Fine Stamps, Fair Profits, is my slogan.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

CHAPTER III.

Three Cent, Issue 1851-1860.

Approved by Congress, March 3, 1851.
Issued, unperforated, July 1, 1851.
Printed by Toppan, Carpenter, Casilear & Co., Phila., New York, Boston & Cincinnati.
Number of plates, 28.
Stamps delivered to post office department, June 30, 1851, to July 6, 1855, 185,371,800.
No record of balance.

SAME ISSUE PERFORATED.

Issued, perforated, February 24, 1857.
Number printed, not known—no record kept.

The collector of United States stamps can make as much, or as little, as he pleases of the three cent, first issue. If he is diffident, and holds close to the catalog, or the printed album, he will have a collection of three types and five shades. On the other hand if the collector loves the study of stamps this issue (the commonest and cheapest of the unperforated stamps) with its two perforated varieties, possess possibilities of research which are almost unlimited.

The remarks made in the last chapter about classing the unperforated and perforated stamps as one issue, apply to this denomination, as well as to the entire series.

The student of stamps will first be struck with the multitude of shades found in all varieties. In color they range from a very light rose to a deep black. But it is certain that the stamps were never printed in the darker colors, they being the result of oxidizing, or chemical changes, and usually a bath of peroxide of hydrogen will restore these discolored stamps to their original color.

Mr. Luff, in his admirable book on the stamps of United States designates the colors as:

Perforate—type I—pale rose red, red, rose lake, lake, dull red, Indian red.

Perforate—type II—pale rose red, rose red, rosy lake, lake, orange red, red, brown red.

Surely here is enough shades and colors to employ the specialist for a long time, and certainly sufficient to thoroughly confuse any but a man with a strong understanding of colors. Personally I would not attempt to designate the different shades by their color name, but would,—unless so situated that I could compare stamp by stamp the shades with a collector who knew his colors to be correct,—use my own best judgment as to shading, beginning either with the darkest or the lightest shade obtainable, shade up or down to the other extreme.

Attention should be given to the different printings of the unperforated, and perforated, varieties. The first printings show every detail of the engraving, especially in the groundwork surrounding the face, and the profile itself. The color is invariably dark, sometimes almost brilliant, dark rose. The second printing is lighter in shade and less distinct in printing.

Collectors who desire to be certain of their printings and shades, can secure a sample of each from a dealer in specialized stamps, at a very small outlay.

Specialists are paying considerable attention to the different kinds of cancellations. Pen struck, black, blue, red, and green colors are collected, and rank in that order in commonness.

Carrier, railroad, steamship, paid and U. S. Mail cancellations are rather scarce, and seem to be worthy of collection. Cancellations showing date of year are very rare and should be worth a good premium.

Pairs, strips and blocks of four should be collected by all means.

There are numberless line varieties of this issue, and a collection can be made quite formidable if the collector will study the almost limitless varieties of the issue. I do not think that many collectors will ever succeed in plating any number of rows of the stamp, owing to the fact that there were 28 plates employed in the printing, and varieties are found in some which do not occur in others. Some of the stamps can be placed according to row and plate, by certain characteristics. This will be made a feature of an additional chapter when the regular series on specialism is ended.

There are at least three varieties of shifted die (double strike). These may be located by a line of color running through the words "U. S. Postage" or "Three Cents." The latter is found in two varieties. The most common shows the dot of the left rosette duplicated directly over the true dot. This I will call Type A. The second variety has the dot to the right of the true dot, Type B. The shift at the top of stamp I will call Type C.

I believe the so-called watermark exists only in the unperforated variety. By some it is said to have been a mark placed in the paper by the manufacturer to identify his paper in case other should be substituted. Whether that be so or not one cares little. It is a true watermark, however. It is found in both the first and second printings of the unperforated stamps. The color of the first is a handsome shade of dark orange, while the second printing has a coppery look. The printings are quite unlike the others without the watermark, in color.

Type 1, of the perforated variety (the outer line), is hard to find well centered. Pairs are scarce. Unused are very rare. Only a novice would accept a cleaned specimen, for they are easily recognized—the acid of the cleaner leaving the design with a blurred and washed out appearance.

Type 2 is not rare in either pairs, strips, or even in blocks of four. My advice to collectors would be to examine every pair or strip for minor line varieties. If there is a difference showing under the glass it can be taken with safety of its being a most collectible addition.

I have in my collection a block of 30, 6x5, with marginal paper bottom and left. Unfortunately there is no plate number or imprint. This block is double perforated horizontally, the perforations not being exactly true in line with each other—being farther apart at left than at right.

Like the one cent of this issue the three cent is found in different perforated combinations. The most common is perforated 15 on all sides. The next is 15 at sides, 15½ top and bottom. The next rarest type of perforation is 15½ at sides and 15 at top and bottom. The rarest of all is perforated 15½ all around.

Both type I and type II are found in all of these perforation combinations.

These are known to be imperforate both horizontally and vertically. As abnormal margins are found a part perforated stamp should not be accepted singly—but if found in unsevered pairs are a rarity much to be prized.

The perforate type II is occasionally found in close lined laid paper, appearing on the reverse to be almost a "ribbed" variety. This is a desirable rarity.

Stamps showing margins of sheet, corner margins, imprint and center guide line are worthy of a place in the album.

The following check list will prove a fair guide to the collectible sub-varieties and stamps with minor differences. For a deeper study of the line varieties I refer the reader to Tiffany's history of the United States stamps; Dr. Chase's book on plating the 3 cent 1851; his chapters upon the same subject in the Philatelic Gazette, and my own study in line varieties in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS of April 13, 1912.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

BOSNIA.—The New England Stamp Co. has now shown us the three new values of the Jubilee issue, chronicled in No. 1123, on the authority of Ewen's Weekly. The new designs show scenes in the country, highly picturesque and admirably drawn and printed. We are not yet able to put a title under the various pictures. These three new stamps are without the dates of the Birthday issue, and revert to the original type of 1906. The colors are such to bring out the full beauty of the engraving though the colors of the two higher values are slightly different from those given in Ewen's Weekly.

Adhesives.

12h ultramarine.
60h slate blue.
72h deep carmine.

CHINA.—The Philatelic Journal of Great Britain has received the following interesting letter from Lt.-Col. Norris-Newman, dated Tientsin, April 9, 1912:

"The first lot of Chinese stamps to be surcharged were done in Shanghai, and sent to Foochow (and perhaps other southern treaty ports) surcharged in red horizontally with 4 characters meaning "Provisional neutrality." There were only 3 cents, 1, 2, and $5, as far as I can ascertain, and were only on sale and issued on Feb. 7th, 8th and 9th, being then recalled and sent back to Shanghai. Of these I have a few used 3 cents and one each of the others.

The second lot were surcharged in Nanking, but as the U. S. Consul there, Mr. T. Gracey, practically cornered the market, getting 1379 out of the total of 1839 issued, and has left with them for the United States, on leave, I have not either seen one or been able to get one. They run from ½ cent to $5 all values.

Another lot is surcharged with characters in red and in black, vertically, reading "Chinese Republic" and were done by the Statistical Department of the Chinese Maritime Customs, Shanghai, and sent out to all the big offices; but so far they have only reached me from Hankow, as the orders are to use up the present ordinary stock before putting the others in circulation. Here in Tientsin, I have seen the surcharged stock, but can get none at present. There seem to be a few varieties and reversed and double surcharges, of which I have a few from Hankow, and, naturally, shall look out for them when issued here."

ECUADOR.—Two new provisionals have appeared from Ecuador, specimens having been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. The one sucre and two sucres Consular stamps have been surcharged so with new values in such a way as to make them available for postal use. The overprint is the same on both, with the exception of the change in values, that on the 1s reading "Postal—Un—Cent." and that on the 2s reading, "Postal—Dos—Cents." Both are in black.

Provisional Adhesives.

On Consular stamps, undated.
"Un Cntv." on 1s green.
"Dos Cents." on 2s carmine.

GAMBIA.—The Postmaster at Bathurst has issued a notice to the effect that the new stamps, with portrait of King George will be issued Sept. 1, and that the King Edward stamps remaining in stock on that date will be destroyed, says Ewen's Weekly.

A. C. Roessler sends us the official notice from the General Post Office, noted above, regarding the issue of the King George stamps, and the destruction of the King Edward remainders.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the three values of the King George set, chronicled some time since.

SIERRA LEONE.—We are indebted to A. C. Roessler for a copy of the new 1d stamp, with portrait of King George. The design is the new Colonial key plate, the portrait being in an octagon frame, with "Postage" at the left, and "& Revenue" at the right.

Adhesive.

1d carmine.

SOUTH AFRICAN UNION.—South Africa states: "We understand that in connection with the tenders recently called for by the Union Government for a supply of postage and revenue stamps and stamp stationery of the Union, the tenders of Messrs. De la Rue & Co., who have for a great number of years past contracted for all the stamps in the South African Colonies, has been accepted. The stamps will be printed by the surface plate process similar to existing postage and revenue stamps with the exception of the 2½d stamp issued in October, 1910 (the only stamps which have been up to the present printed specifically for the Union). The values of the new stamps will range from ½d to £50. The stamps will not be available for issue for at least another 12 months."

SPANISH GUINEA.—Champion's Bulletin notes the issue of the remainder of the 1909 set, overprinted "Guinea—1911," in an oval frame. Champion gives the date of the issue used for surcharging as "1900," evidently a misprint for "1909."

PARCEL-POST CONVENTION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND PANAMA.

Office of Second Asst. P. M. Gen.,
WASHINGTON, July 5, 1912.

A Parcel-Post Convention having been concluded between the United States and Panama, to take effect August 1, 1912, parcel-post packages for destinations in the Republic of Panama will be admitted on and after that date to the mails for Panama made up in and dispatched from this country.

Parcel-post packages exchanged between the United States and Panama must not weigh more than eleven (11) pounds (or 5 kilograms) nor measure more than three (3) feet six (6) inches in length and six (6) feet in length and girth combined.

Postage must be paid in full at the following rates, viz:

In the United States, on parcels for Panama, 12 cents for each pound or fraction of a pound; in Panama, on parcels for the United States, .12 of a balboa for each pound or fraction of a pound.

Parcel-post packages for Panama may be registered.

The Parcel-Post Regulations on pages 144 to 149 of the Postal Guide for July, 1912, apply to parcel-post packages for or from Panama.

Parcel-post mails for Panama will be made up at the post offices of New York and New Orleans.

Postmasters will cause due notice of the foregoing to be taken at their offices.

CIVIL WAR ENVELOPES.

By J. H. FOUNTAIN.

(This interesting article appeared in the Collectors Journal of Chicago, Ill., one of our brightest and best monthly papers. The article was illustrated as is shown by the references to the designs pictured.—ED.)

Everyone today knows what a picture post card is. Do you know that the original of them was issued about fifty years ago, but that in those days the "picture" was on the front side of envelopes instead of on cards? This was nearly ten years before postal cards were issued. The majority of them were wood cuts and the coloring crude. They did not have photography to give the endless variety we have today, but there were quite a good many even then.

From the best information I can pick up there must have been over 3,000 varieties. My own collection has some 2,000 and from many "sets" not being complete and others I have heard of I think there must have been at least 50 per cent. more than I own.

The largest collection I have ever heard of is that of Robert P. King of Erie, Pa., who has 2,500. Then R. F. Chambers, Providence, R. I., had 1,800 the last time I heard from him and J. P. Kelley, Concord, N. H., has 1,500. Half a dozen others of from 200 to 1,000 are all the rest with whom I have exchanged, or that I know of as having any.

I have my collection in eight volumes made to hold about 350 envelopes in each, put in with hinges three to a page. They are sorted to some extent for convenience of reference and preventing duplicates.

Volume one starts out with Zouaves bearing a flag (in colors, red, white and blue) near a sign post marked "To Richmond"—"Washington via Baltimore"—"Remember Ellsworth," "Victory," etc. Then follow soldiers with flags, camp scenes, on guard, sailors nailing a flag to the mast head (illustrated) etc. Women with liberty caps (illustrated), flags, guarded by eagles, cannon, etc., with various inscriptions—"Liberty and Union," "For Union" and as one honestly says, "I am for union TO A MAN!" One "If I cannot fight, I can feed those who do" (illustrated), shows a girl mixing bread, while another is at a wash tub and a third says, "I'll go myself and nurse the sick."

Volumes two and three are caricatures of the time—everything you can imagine. Gen. Scott as a big dog guarding a roast of beef labeled "Washington" asking a small dog named "Jeff" "why he don't come and take it?" I have fifteen different varieties on this subject.

Then there are "contraband" over 60 kinds (illustrated). Over two dozen represent "John Bull" and the cotton industry, cannon balls, bombs, bullets, etc., are labeled "Lincoln Pills" and "Pills sure to cure rebellion." "Fate of Traitors" represented by a gallows and generally "Jeff" hanging thereon, is shown in over forty styles.

Volume four has thirty varieties of southern shipping—Jeff's Navy—and as many suggested designs for confederate coins, currency, bonds, loans, etc., among the many other curious illustrations.

Volume five is a favorite in being full of cuts of Lincoln, Washington, Scott (illustrated), Anderson, McCellan, Douglass, from a dozen to twenty of each with from one to half a dozen of lots of other generals and prominent men and over thirty of Ellsworth showing him being shot and Brownell killing his murderer, etc.

No deposit, the simplest of accounts, complete distribution to all subscribers alike and free subscription to my twelve page circular every month, giving the latest market values of Kings Heads, serial catalogue of general issues, and notes for new issue subscribers.

Volume six has cannon—"cannon to right" of you, to left, in front, and everywhere—big and little—as well as shields, stars, eagles, flags—and more flags, in every style and shape, union and confederate.

Volume seven is the quaint one of the lot having bird's-eye views of Fredericksburg, Newport News, Yorktown, Washington and of Alexandria, whose funny little colored homes look like a child's Noah's Ark of wooden play houses. There are also lots of "views" of battles, naval expeditions, etc., and a half a dozen varieties of coats of arms of the states from half a dozen to complete sets of the thirty-five states, with one or two sets of the "confederate states," "We are seven," etc.

The last volume has envelopes that were directed, stamped and passed through the post office, both union and confederate, with Northern and Southern stamps as well as no stamps but "due" or "paid" on them. In this volume are fifty kinds of C. S. A. flags; cuts of Jefferson Davis—also envelopes, home-made from writing paper and from cheap wrapping paper, and to finish this volume are forty varieties of Cuban-Spanish war envelopes.

Nearly all the old ones—except part of the caricatures, are in colors and on various colored paper and all sizes of envelopes. One volume of caricatures is arranged to show "The original cause of the Rebellion" (Old Nick), (illustrated), the persuading of the states to "go out," the "longing" for Washington (city), the "advance guard," the "flying artillery"—contrabands. John Bull's interest in cotton, the "results of playing with dangerous weapons," "treason being a hard road to travel," the difficulties of Jeff, Scott's "extinguisher," the gallows, the coffins, tombstones and finally the "warm reception" given on arrival "down below."—Collectors Journal.

UNDOOLEY VISITS ENGLAND.

By Charles H. Fowle.

Ballywhackem, County Meath,
Ireland.

My Dear Distant Finn—Whin this raches ye, ye will resave the first news that I am revisiting me childhood's happy home.

I left Chicagy—sorry I cudden't hav' taken it wid me—on April 1, at 2 g. m., by the Wabash to Detroit, where I crossed over into Canady by aid of a ferry-boat an' me extreme nerve.

As no wan knew that me father were a Faynian, I was permitted to pass through His Majesty's territory without a tag.

On the train in Canady I met a very nice-appearing young mon, who told me in confidence that he was wanst a sthamp collector, but had repinted, an' by the aid of kind frends was leading a better life. He said the mere sight of a sthamp giv' him a cold chill.

I always respict a mon who is trying to do right, an' whin he asked me for the loan of a dollar to buy lunch at Niagary, saying he wud run in an' pay me whin next in Chicagy, I giv' him a tin dollar bill to get changed, an' somehow or other the train wint off without him. He has your address; hold the munny for me till I get back.

Niagary is the whole thing, an' I wud advise ye to see it if it is still running whin yez resave this.

It's a contiguous performance, an' they let it run all night.

New York is a great place—for the Irish—an' I wish I cud hav' stayed there a week. I did the town for two days, an' I think if I had stayed wan more I wud not be here writing this.

The trip over was not very exciting. I was say-sick about three-fourths of the way. They told me yez hav' four meals a day, but its not so, Finn; ye ate wan, an' heave up three.

The weather looked about the same as whin I kim over many years ago. It didn't seem as if there was quite as much av it as thin, but av course that was before I saw Lake Michigan.

I hav' bin in Paris—"Gay Paree"—that's English you know, an' "dear old Lunnun;" that's French, me boy, an' in Dublin, which bates thim both; its so American. An' here I am, sitting under the same old tree from which me poor old father used to cut switches whin I wint fishin' instead av to school. Me poor old mother is sthill alive an' sits shmoking her pipe in the dure-way as I write. It wud do yer heart good to see her, an' it wud kill all the microbes at the stockyard to smell the tobaccy she uses. I don't think the pipe has been claned since I left Ireland forty years ago.

I called on siveral sthamp min in Paris. Brissard in the Ruey de Varonney (ruey is Italian for street) is a fine fellow, a true Frinch gintleman, an' I think his folks kim from the nixt parish to ours in County Meath.

Another dealer whose name, at his request, I will not mention, tuk me to a "petite souper." I think that's what he called it, anyway; it's Frinch for a small wee bite with plinty to wash it down. Thin he tuk me 'round to see the town.

Oh, Finn, this town is wide open,
While Chicagy is only ajar;
An' if ye wance kim to this city
Ye'd niver get away very far.

That's poetry, Finn, an' I did it meself whin I was sober. Finn, its lucky ye didn't go to Paris. Shtepping on a live wire aint in it with this town after dark. I'll till ye about it, but if ye read this letther to yer wife skip this part. On second thought I won't write it, so ye needn't skip. I will only say that he tuk me to me hotil afterwards an' tucked me in an' I forgot to git up the nixt day. Its a great city, but I fear it's too rapid for me wild wistern blud. I shall go back before I go home. I thin wint over to London. I felt more at home in London, for they understood part of what I said there.

I tried to see Stanley G. Limited, but they said at the office that there was no such man as Mr. Limited, an' showed me in to Mr. Phillips. It says "Stanley Gibbons Limited" on the paper, but ye mustn't belave all ye read in the papers. Mr. Phillips resaved me very kindly. He does an' enormous business, but tuk time to show me round the building.

I also attinded a meeting of the "London Philatelic Society" an' met some very pleasant min. They giv' me a royal reciption, though the president was unavoidably detained at home whin he heard I was to be prisint. I was introduced to the society by Mr. Percy Bishop—as fine a mon as I met in London.

They were an' intilligent lot av bhoys, but they were lost whin they struck Amerika. Wan big Britisher asked me "if the new bridge was finished between New York and Chicagy?" Another asked "if we caught whales off the lake front." An' wan mon told me he sint some sthamps to a mon in Key West an' wud I mind whin I got back to Chicagy shtepping round there some morn on me way to work an' asking him why he didn't pay for thim or return thim? Said if it was out of me way he wud pay the bus fare.

After the meeting we had a light banquet in me honor, an' I was not ashamed to drink to England an' Amerikay. May nothing ever come between thim but the ocean.

Thin I giv' this wan:

"Here's to the roast beef of old England
And to her foaming beer;
The beer I'll admit is brewed at home,
But the beef is the Texas steer."

That wint down in good shape, so they called on me for another, an' I giv' thim:

"Here's to America an' England,
May their friendship niver stop;
But if it does take a tumble
May old Ireland land on top."

This wint down rather hard, but they swallowed it to be perlite an' thin called on me for a spache. I says: "Gintlemin and Sthamp Collectors—I little thought whin I lift England in the steerage I should return to be resaved by the peerage, though a Chicagy mon is the equal of any mon in the world, if I do say it. If London only had the stockyards on the lake front it wud be the grandest city in the world. I thank you, gintlemin, for this royal reception. You are all royal good fellows, an' I wud make a spache if I knew a blissid thing to say. If any of ye iver come to Chicagy remimber the 'Undooley Company, Unlimited,' gives a free lunch iviry avening an' steamed clams iviry Thursday. Mintion the London Philatelic Society an' the bist the house affords is yures an' welcome. In closing I propose the health of the King, the Queen an' all the royal push."

After a few remarks from others we dissolved.

The nixt day I called on Mr. Ewen, near the Crystal Palace, an' on Mr. Peckitt, at 47 Strand. I visited the Bank of England, where they hav' the rale old stuff, but no samples to giv' away. Took in the parks, British Museum, visited Parliament looked at the Thames, which ain't a bit like the Chicagy River, and, in fact, wandered round an' saw all the sights. Was nearly suffocated by the London fog and swallowed about a ton of soft coal, thin ran over to Ireland for rist an' to breathe the free air of hivin. Air is about the only thing that's free here, even in this land of free trade. I expect to visit the Continent before I return. I may go to see the Suez Canal; perhaps I'll go to Chiny or Japan, but of this there is some doubt. I don't want to walk back, so I won't go too far. I wud like to see the Wonders of the East an' I may do them, if I aint done meself, before I get the chance.

I started a little poem the other day, but hav' not finished it. I sind you the first two verses not for publication, but as a guarantee that I am sthill in me right mind. Here they are:

I'd like to be a Hindu;
And with the Hindustan;
I'd like to be a midnight son
In far off Norway land.
I'd like to be a gum arabic
In Araby the blest;
I'd like to be a bloomin' Greek
In Griqualand—West.

If ye can't make sinse of this,, hold till I come an' explain it. Hopin' ye hav' seen the error of yer ways an' wishin' ye manny happy returns of the same. Giv' half to the bhoys. I am yours to command with all the implemints of the season.

Your dear friend,
Undooley, K.B. and T. D. A.

P. S.—All the big bugs here hav' titles an' initials after their names, so I hav' adopted these. No wan knows what they stand for, but in confidence, Finn, it's "Knight Before" an' "The Day After."

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

BOSTON, MASS., July 15, 1912.

To the stockholders of preferred stock in THE AMERICAN COLLECTORS' COMPANY. Some ten years ago you were offered and bought this stock at $85.00 per share. It was represented that all connected with the company considered it "gilt edge" investment, and the earnings were $60,000 per year or three times the dividends on preferred. For eight years you have had no dividends, and in the meantime your stock has depreciated about 80%.

NEW ENGLAND STAMP COMPANY. This company received for its stock, good will, etc. $100,000 preferred, $50,000 common, worth at the then selling price about $95,000. It is now proposed to sell it back to the original holders, who have managed it in the meantime, for $90,000 preferred and $18,000 common; this is worth at present prices say $16,200. The reason for the sale is that your directors are unable to secure men of business ability to run the business "successfully"; —if no dividends and 80% shrinkage is successful, don't you need unsuccessful management?

SCOTT STAMP AND COIN COMPANY. Mr. H. L. Calman received for this company ten years ago the equal of $150,000 cash. If this sale goes through there will be outstanding $134,000 preferred and $94,000 common, having a nominal market value of $24,000. What are you going to do about it? At the request of a number of stockholders and provided enough of them join to make any protest effective, I will undertake the formation of a protective committee of stockholders to see if anything can be done to improve the value of preferred stock.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

We have now described the two chief methods of engraving by means of which (1) most of the earliest stamps were produced, and (2) most of the modern stamps are printed. The main characteristic of the former is that the lines of the design are cut into the plate (in recess), while in the latter the lines of the design are in relief. We now have to consider another important method that has been fairly extensively used in postage stamp production—that of lithography, or printing from the flat and polished surface of a special kind of limestone. Where this method is used the lines of the design are neither in recess nor relief but are quite level with the printing surface of the limestone so that the "flat" appearance generally ascribed to lithographed stamps is perfectly correct.

The fundamental basis of lithography is the well known scientific fact that grease will not combine with water and, as we shall show later, the inks used in drawing or transferring a design or for printing are all of a fatty nature.

The limestone used in lithography has to be close-grained and free from chalk and other impurities and the better sorts all come from German quarries. To lose as little as possible of the valuable surface suitable for printing this limestone is quarried with saws. Before leaving the quarries the stones are roughly finished and on reaching the lithographic establishment each stone is ground and polished, great care being exercised that the undersurface is exactly parallel with the printing surface. If the bottom surface were left uneven the stone would be liable to crack or break under the pressure applied during the process of printing.

When the stone is ready the design may be drawn direct (in which event it has to be drawn in reverse) or it may be drawn on a specially prepared paper from which it is transferred to the surface of the stone. The latter is the method generally used so far as the production of postage stamps is concerned.

The drawing is made with a special ink in which wax and tallow (both greasy or fatty substances) are important constituents. When ready for transferring the paper is wetted and laid face downwards on the surface of the stone and under pressure the drawing is transferred from the paper to the stone.

A sheet of postage stamps consists of a number of identical copies of the same design so that, as a rule, the impressions are not transferred one at a time—a process at once tedious and presenting difficulties in the way of correct alignment—but in strips or groups usually consisting of from four to ten copies. The original design is transferred to the special paper as many times as are necessary to make up the desired group and this group is re-transferred to the stone as many times as are required. The best and most careful work is done when an engraved die is used for reproducing the design. This is inked with the special greasy composition, impressions taken on the transfer paper, and these are then transferred to the stone. Or an impression from an entire engraved plate may be transferred to a stone in the same manner. But whichever of these several methods is employed the results are the same—i. e., a design is transferred to a stone with a greasy ink which sinks into the pores of the stone and is perfectly level with its surface. The ink would spread and spoil the design but for the fact that the stone is at once covered with a dilute gummy solution which fills the pores of the surface untouched by the ink. The superfluous gum is washed off after the amount necessary for stopping the pores has dried in.

When printing commences the surface of the stone is dampened and as water has no affinity with grease the inked portions are not wetted. A greasy ink is used for printing and when the roller is passed over the stone the ink only adheres to the greasy parts of the stone (those covered with the design) and fails to "take" on the wetted parts. A sheet of paper is laid on the stone, pressure applied, and the result is a properly printed sheet of stamps. The surface of the stone is kept uniformly damp during the whole operation of printing.

The chief point to note is that the impression is perfectly flat in which it at once differs from both line-engraving and typography. Those of my readers who have closely followed previous articles of this series will understand that as the ink is forced into the lines of the design on a line-engraved plate the ink in resulting impressions stands up in slight ridges and frequently corresponding depressions can be traced at the backs of the stamps. In typography the lines of the design are forced into the paper (being in relief on the plates) so that typographed stamps can generally be distinguished by the manner in which the impression shows at the back. But in lithography there are no ridges or depressions, the paper being quite smooth and flat on both sides.

Owing to the bulk and weight of the stones used in lithography other bases have been tried with more or less success, such as zinc and aluminium, but as we cannot call to mind any stamps having been printed from these mediums they do not call for further notice.

THE KINGDOM OF HUNGARY.

By Fred. J. Melville.

It was not until 1871, twenty-one years after Austria had adopted the postage stamp system, that the first separate stamps for letter postage were issued for the Kingdom of Hungary. The sister kingdom had all along been treated by Austria as a province, and it was only after the war with Prussia in 1866 that, faced by the threatened disintegration of the Empire, the separate administration of Hungary was conceded to the Magyars. Ferencz József, to give the aged Emperor his Hungarian name, was crowned King of Hungary at Buda Pesth on June 8, 1867. The Hungarian postal service, with the adoption of the postage stamp system followed. It is noteworthy that the first postal issue of Hungary was then a complete novelty, I refer to the postcard of 1869. It was only in January of that year that Dr. E. Hermann, of the Neustadt Military Academy of Vienna, had proposed the idea of an open card for short messages passing through the post, and, in adopting the scheme, both Austria and Hungary preceded Great Britain in the issue of this form of postal commodity, over which Mr. Gladstone waxed so enthusiastic.

The first adhesive postage stamps of Hungary were issued on May 1, 1871, and bore a laureated profile of the Emperor to the right. In the border is a representation of the national arms. The stamps were at first lithographed, but later on in the same year some of the values were already being printed from recess plates. The lithographed stamps were evidently but a temporary makeshift to serve until the line-engraved plates could be prepared for all the six denominations. We thus get two series of stamps in the same design, one set being the lithographs, which are scarce, and the other being the engraved series, which, excepting some rare shades, are quite easily obtained. Both series were printed on plain white wove paper, and were perforated 9½, but the lithographs can generally be told by their blurred, flat, dull appearance, while the engraved stamps are clear, well-defined, and generally brighter in colour. The engraved stamps were reprinted in 1885, but the reprints differ from the originals in such important details as perforation (gauging 11½ instead of 9½) and paper, which in the reprints is watermarked with the letters "kr" in interlaced ovals.

In 1874 the Emperor's head stamps gave place to a new engraved series bearing the numeral of value imposed upon a drawing of an envelope, with the Hungarian Crown above and the inscription Magyar Kir. Posta (i e., Royal Hungarian Post) below. It used to be thought that the values were printed in separately and that general key plates were used for the design of all the values, but the apparently varying depths of colour in the figures are now attributed to the cutting of the figures deeper into the die than the lines of the surrounding design. In this type the stamps of Hungary remained for many years, there being a considerable range of different perforations, and in 1881 a watermarked paper was introduced; both perforations and watermark serve to complicate the formation of a complete collection of Hungary's stamps. The watermarked paper, the first kind used for the Hungarian issues, shows the letters "kr," the abbreviation for "krajczar," equivalent to the Austrian "kreuzer." These letters are enclosed in interlaced ovals, and only a portion of the complete device can be seen on single specimens.

The design of the stamps just described was not changed for fourteen years, and even the new denominations introducing the next series of 1887 were close copies of the 1874 set, but produced by surface-printing, and having a separately printed background of lines, and separately printed figures of value. Of these several are known with the numeral of value printed twice, viz., the 1, 2, 5, and 8 krajczar, and some with the value entirely omitted. The keen collector will also distinguish between the distinct printings of several values. The black figures of value were normally printed over the fine lines of the background, but in several cases printings were made in a different sequence, the figures being printed before the background instead of after. The high values of the stamps of this set are of peculiarly effective but delicate coloring; the 2 florin stamp being printed in blue and silver (value in black) and the 3 florin in purple-brown and gold (value in red).

The next change was one of watermark, the paper from 1898 being marked with a device representing the crown of St. Stephen, the first King of Hungary. The crown is within interlaced circles, and is repeated throughout the sheet. This watermark, coming into use late in the career of the "envelope" design, overlaps into the next series of stamps, a series brought about by a complete change in currency. From 1900 the currency has been expressed on the stamps in "filler" and "korona." Of these new stamps the lower values show the "Turul" or sacred bird of the Magyars, an emblem which is said to have figured on the shield of Attila the Hun. The korona values depict the present Emperor wearing the Hungarian crown. Key plates were used for printing these stamps, the numeral of value being printed in afterwards. From 1905 the stamps have been printed on paper watermarked with smaller crown devices arranged so that one complete device falls to the lot of each stamp in the sheet.—London Telegraph.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

UNITED STATES SPECIALIST'S ALBUM.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

Before taking up the study of the issue of 1861-1868 stamps I beg to disgress somewhat, and discuss a topic foreign to any issue, and yet one which is pertinent to Specializing. The writer has received a considerable number of letters from readers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS asking which is the best way to arrange a specialized collection.

It would require more time than I can afford, to answer each one of these inquirers in detail. Besides, there is no Best way that I know of. The collector usually chooses the way which pleases him best, and quite naturally declares that his plan is far ahead of those of his brother collectors. But for the benefit of the younger readers who are not very well advanced in specializing, I will give a description of my albums and how I have mounted the 1851-1860 issue.

It goes without saying that I use blank albums. A specialist can use nothing else. After trying several makes, with more or less disappointment, I had albums made to my order, with pages somewhat smaller than the usual size. They have a very simple lock for the pages, allowing any sheet to be taken out and replaced at will and quicker than it takes to tell it. Every page lies open perfectly flat, with no bulging. A muslin reinforcement to the hinge enables the album to be entirely filled without bulging the pages in any position. Each page is printed with quadrille blocks, six ruled lines to the width of an ordinary stamp. By allowing one line between stamps, a page will hold 30 stamps—5 across and 6 downward. I do not believe in crowding pages to this extent, however.

My albums are made up exactly opposite from a majority of collections. I have adopted the "left-hand" plan, having the page printed face up on the left hand side of the album. My reason for this is that stamps hinged on the right hand side, especially pairs and blocks, are liable to be doubled, creased and broken in turning the pages, as they naturally drop down when the page is turned over. In my method each stamp lies flat when the next page is turned, and if any stamp, or block, should become doubled or disarranged it will be discovered before the next page is turned.

Sheets of onion-skin bond paper have been cut same size as the blank pages, and punched like the others. Facing the page of stamps I write with typewriter a description of the stamps, the lines being opposite those stamps which are described. This saves disfiguration of the pages, and makes additions, or corrections easy without destroying the blank pages.

With this description of the album, I will take up just one denomination to show how an intensive specialist can arrange his stamps for study and comparison. Perhaps my 3 cents 1857-1860 will do as well as any other, although I am rather more proud of my 1 cent same issue, or my 1867 grilled varieties.

First, naturally, I begin with the unperforated. But I complete with the perforated variety before going to the next higher denomination.

The first page contains the trial printings, consisting of vignette, same with inscription, frame added and figures removed.

The India paper and card-board proofs complete the page.

Then I take up the plate varieties, with pairs and strips showing spacing between stamps of ¾ mm., 1 mm., and 1¼ mm.

The next page is devoted to the different printings—the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th printings and worn plates filling the space.

A page of line varieties, showing normal type, two and three lines to left, and extra line to right, with lines entirely removed is next.

Then follows a page of die errors, such as shifted die, 4 varieties, the word "Three" spelled "THEEE," "T" of Three broken at bottom, "T" of word Cents also broken at bottom.

Paper varieties, in both unperforated and perforated makes up the next page. On it I include the variety watermarked with band of curved lines across the stamp, watermarked with three vertical lines wide apart, quadrille lines impressed into the paper, close lined vertical laid paper, and a very thick paper variety.

Next I devote a page to margins,

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

LIST OF ALBUMS

No. 1	Abyssinia to Colombian Rep. inclusive.. Net.	$325.00
2	Congo to Funchal inclusive	315.00
3	Gambia to Liberia inclusive	400.00

The last shilling stamps we received from Antigua were a rich brown and dark blue, instead of the violet and ultramarine. Whether this is a "change of color" or an "error" we do not know, but at all events it makes a very handsome stamp and a big improvement over the regular one. As we sent them out on our Mailing List, (at regular price of course, most dealers get an extra price for "errors"). We have none to sell. The only way to get the good things as they come along is to get your name on our Mailing List, and remember if your name is not on our Mailing List showing stamps with imprint, stamps from right and left middle of sheet with guide lines, with marginal paper, top, bottom, right and left sides of sheet, and corner margins.

H. F. COLMAN,
Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

A page of cancellations follows, being arranged in pen marked, black, blue, red and green colors, in the order named, and that being their order of scarcity.

Following is a page of Paid, Carrier, Year Dated, Steamboat, Railway, and other scarce cancellations.

Then I devote two pages to shades.

This completes the unperforated 3 cent stamps with a few perforated scattered here and there. Taking up the perforated I show Type I, in a pair and shades.

The following page shows different kinds and colors of cancellations.

An interesting page follows, showing the different perforations, such as 15 holes to 20 mms., on each side; 15½ on each side, 15½ vertical and 15 horizontal; 15 vertical and 15½ horizontal. This page will keep one studying and hunting for some time before it is completed.

Taking up Type II, I show the 1st and 2d printings, worn plates and imprints.

Four pages are devoted to the different line varieties.

One page is taken up with position dot varieties.

It requires seven pages to show the different cancellations. One page is given over to different year dates; one page to carriers, etc.; one page for the different kinds and colors of Paid cancellations, and 4 pages for pen, black, blue, red and green cancellations, in different shades and printings.

For straight shades I require two pages.

Two more pages are devoted to blocks, strips and pairs.

There is a page of double and freak perforations, etc.

A page of perforations, arranged same as for the Type I, closes the list.

It will be seen that with just one stamp alone, and it one of the common ones of which a thousand can be had for a very few dollars, requires 31 pages. In fact, my 1847 and 1851-1860 issues require about 75 pages to properly display and study the different collectible stamps.

This is Intense Specialization, to be sure. But it is well to remember Lord Crawford's remarks on philately: Said he: "Stamp collecting is no longer a child's game." It requires the deepest study possible for a man to give to anything, and succeed.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Harry C. Bradley reports that H. W. Spanier, 53 Lewis St., N. Y. City, pays no attention to requests for return of an approval selection.

—Leon V. Cass has removed from Morganton, N. C., to Dalton, Pa., as will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

—J. T. Cortelyou, inspector in charge at the Philadelphia, Pa. postoffice, would be glad to receive "papers, letters or other matter" that would indicate the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes by Walter R. Lindsay of Ardmore, Pa.

—S. W. Holmers advises us that he has recently seen a set of moving pictures illustrating the engraving and printing of U. S. stamps. The process is shown from the beginning to the end.

—Ben Hilbert, Hamilton, O., favors us with an aero mail postmark under date of July 13, bearing the following inscription in three lines, "Aero Mail Service.—July 13, 1912.—Hamilton, Ohio." The aviation meet lasted two days, July 12-13.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from C. M. Breder (4); Geo. Kump (5); M. C. Karlitsky (2); Hugo Kuenstler (3); Rev. Louis Voss (3).

—We have a letter at the office for Earl F. Campbell. Please favor us with address. Subscribers will please note that our mailing list is arranged by states, cities and towns and not alphabetically.

—C. V. Webb, Perry, O., informs us that he has purchased the Vest Pocket Philatelist and will change the page size to 6x9 ins.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

ST. LOUIS, MO., July 17, '12.

TO THE EDITOR:

Enclosed is change of copy for issue of July 27. The more I use MEKEEL'S WEEKLY the more I am satisfied that it is a wonderful medium through which to reach stamp collectors. I am three weeks behind in my correspondence as a result of the flood of business and personal letters which have resulted from recent advertising and articles on "Specialized U. S." in that paper.

Yesterday I answered six telephone calls from city collectors who wanted to say a good word about the second chapter on U. S. which you published from my typewriter.

Please say, in your columns somewhere, that I will answer all correspondence in its regular order, and that I wish all who have written and received no reply, to have a little patience. The work of arranging my stock for sale, writing for the press, and other duties, together with the hot weather, keeps me burning the midnight oil most of the time.

Edwardian Stamps of the British Empire

BY DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG

This book is Volume II of the series inaugurated by Bright & Son and known as "Bright's Philatelic Library." In the volume before us the Edwardian issues of Antigua, Bahamas, Bechuanaland Protectorate, British Central Africa, British Honduras, Canada, Cape Colony, Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus and Dominica are illustrated and described.

In addition to the bibliography there is an appendix giving the colonial color scheme, and the entire volume is one that will appeal to the philatelist who makes any attempt at a philatelic library.

PROOFS SPECIMENS AND ESSAYS.

J. W. SCOTT in Metropolitan Philatelist.

We have frequently called attention to the growing demand for proofs, specimens and essays. The wise ones have secured all that their scheme of collecting called for, those who are trailing along behind will find it extremely difficult to fill their wants. Practically all specialists now commence the country with the essays following by the accepted design and the trial colors. With proof impressions of the original plate, retouches are easily seen and errors and faults accounted for. The happy possessor of the proof showing the "capped 2" in the 1890 U. S. issue has one of the rarest stamps yet found in this country. What does the minute figure "1" on the center dome of the 5c Italian Campanile, or the "1" on the 15c which is enclosed in a rectangular space on the shaft, stand for? The die proof would probably tell the tale. Turning back to our own country we find the 1869 series very prolific in essays or variants of the adopted design. The set as originally made all had the figures of value in small numerals and some old collectors are ready to swear that they bought the 12c in this shape at the post office and have had them used. It is certain that they were prepared printed in sheets gummed and grilled ready for use. The 1, 2, 3 and 12c in various colors could until lately have been secured at very reasonable figures but like many other good things they have now advanced in price. The 6c was originally prepared as a 5c with numerals in lower corners; it can be found in several colors. Of the 10c no vestige of the original design remains in the adopted stamp. The essay for this value bears a three-quarter face to right of Lincoln with lictor's fasces at sides. The 15c although retaining the original design had the numerals enlarged and various attempts were made to make the value more conspicuous, such as overprinting it with large outlined figures, printing it on mottled papers, etc., but it stands practically as first made. The 24c retains its pristine beauty, all the alterations being below the words of value the numerals being enlarged and the ornaments at their sides made to correspond to the new figures. The loss of the original 30c is the most regretted by American collectors, the first design being a companion piece to the 24c, the central picture depicting the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga. As this value was the current postage to England the design was withdrawn and the U. S. shield and flags substituted. The essay can be found in various colors. The remaining and highest value originally bore the portrait of Washington but Lincoln having been removed from the 10c was given the place of honor on the 90c. The frame was unaltered except for the enlarged numerals. An entirely new head of Lincoln was engraved, it being quite different from that used on the ten cent essay. This essay can be found in four colors and the frame printed separate in about twice that number of shades. This is only a rough sketch of what can be found to illustrate a single set of U. S. stamps. The field is an open one and he who hunts the longest will get the biggest bag, but every day makes the pursuit if not more difficult, certainly more expensive.

COLUMBIAN STAMP CO., Arlington, Mass.

BR. SOLOMON ISLANDS, FIRST ISSUE.

UNAUTHORISED PRINTS.

It was the boast of the Solomon Island authorities that the first stamps issued by them were above suspicion. No irregular practices were indulged in. All purchasers were treated alike, and no stamps were sold either above or below face value. No varieties were "manufactured" for collectors, and no commission was charged on orders received through the post.

It was consequently a shock to us to learn a few months ago that certain imperf. stamps in the design and colours of the first type printed on thick paper, in all some three or four hundred sets were put on sale on the local market and in London. Shortly afterwards the Chief Postmaster of the Solomons paid us a visit, and we interrogated him on the subject. He denied all knowledge of the matter, and said that he was not previously aware of the existence of any proofs. We published words to this effect in our January number, and on the assertion being challenged, the gentleman above referred to reiterated this statement in writing.

Mr. W. E. Smith, the printer of the stamps supplied to the Solomon Island authorities, also denies all knowledge of their previous existence. That gentleman is, under the peculiar circumstances, entitled to the sympathy of the philatelic community. When he undertook the work he is stated to have given a bond to the B. S. I. authorities guaranteeing not to print, sell or dispose of any stamps other than those supplied to them.

At the time these stamps were being printed, the latter end of 1906, Mr. W. E. Smith was the sole proprietor of his concern. A few years ago he floated his business into a limited liability company, still retaining the active control of affairs, but last year reorganisation was effected and Mr. Smith retired. He left Sydney last month for Europe, where he intends residing in future, and we regret to have to add that he is in delicate health.

The manager of the present limited company knows nothing of the affair, the stamps having been printed five years before the present company came into being. Search has failed to throw any light on the mystery, and he cannot understand why it would be necessary to print as many as half a dozen sheets of each value as "proofs." It may be stated here that these so-called "proofs" are, we are informed, all identical in colour for the various denominations, and the colours are the same as those of most of the stamps which were consigned to the Solomon Islands. The fact, however, seems to have been overlooked that there were two shades of most of the values. This fact was announced in the Australian Philatelist (1/6/07, p. 117), and we have a distinct recollection of having seen some early sheets numbered 50 to 60 or thereabouts, the colours of which were paler than those which came along subsequently. This can be verified, for both shades are to be seen in several collections. It may be assumed, therefore, that if the stamps now being discussed were really "proofs," i. e., first printings, that they should be in the paler shades. So far as memory serves us, these paler shades were more noticeable in the ½d, 5d, 6d and 1sh denominations.

After carefully thinking the matter over, our opinion is that the so-called "proofs" were printed concurrently with or subsequent to the bulk lot, but not until after the inks had been intensified (made deeper) and further, that they were printed surreptitiously—without the knowledge or sanction of either Mr. Smith, his overseer, or the British Soloman Island authorities.

Some persons have expressed a doubt that these stamps were even printed in W. E. Smith's establishment at all. In this connection the following, which appeared in the Australian Philatelist (10/5/09, p. 105) is of interest:—"La Circulaire Philatelique states that the whole of the first set has been dangerously forged." A dangerous forgery means such a clever imitation as would deceive most people. The question therefore arises, Are these "proofs" some of the forgeries above referred to? We think not.

The main point is, are they entitled to rank as "proofs"? We say, No! All that they can claim to be is "unauthorised prints."

We wish it to be distinctly understood that we cast no reflections on those dealers or collectors who have purchased these stamps. Had they been offered to our firm we might likewise have bought them. We, however, consider it our duty to the philatelic world to publish these facts, and should any of our friends feel disposed to express their opinions on this matter we shall be happy to publish them.—Australian Stamp Journal.

CURRENT UNUSED ENVELOPE STAMPS FOR POSTAGE.

It is only by some popular form of agitation, such as the lecture rostrum or through the columns of a newspaper or magazine, that reforms are brought about. The Post-Office Department is one of the great arteries of this as well as every nation. If some one brings about an economic reform in this U. S. Department, he not only helps the Government to cut down unnecessary expenses, but he is conferring a silent blessing on his fellow man. The Gazette does not here pose as a reformer to any great extent, but acting on the suggestion of one of its subscribers, it has a few words to say on the disposal of spoiled U. S. Government envelopes and postal cards, which are offered for redemption. In Great Britian and we believe in Switzerland as well, unused cut square envelopes and postal cards are good for postage. Here they are not valid for postage unless in an entire condition. There are clerks in every large post office in this country whose sole business it is to look after the redemption of spoiled envelopes and postal cards. Both are redeemable in postage stamps—the envelopes at face value and postal cards at 75 per cent. of face. The handling of these requires a large amount of detail work involving considerable expense. The envelopes are sent to the factory at Dayton, where the embossed stamps are supposed to be destroyed, and then with the paper turned over to the envelope paper manufacturers. It is evident that much unnecessary expense is thus incurred by the Government. Mr. Hitchcock, our worthy Postmaster-General, has made good and economical reforms in the conduct of his department. Let him consider the abolishing of the costly redemption procedures and allow the public to use a current envelope stamp cut from a soiled or misdirected envelope. We copy lots of fads from our English cousins, but here is one of their practical ideas which we could emulate consistently. Furthermore we think the great letter writing public would agree with The Gazette in advocating this money-saving scheme to the Post Office Department. We believe it is only a question of time when you may often see in your mail an embossed envelope stamp which had been cut from a spoiled entire one doing postal duty. At any rate it would be more economical and practical for the Government to recognize the same as adhesives, all current unused envelope stamps and thus greatly reduce the expense caused by the present method of redemption. By permitting only current envelope stamps to be used, the many thousands of "specimens" envelopes and "bidders samples" of 1864-1893 would not be available for postage.—Philatelic Gazette.

EDITORIAL.

"As Is"—A reader has sent for inspection, a curiosity in the shape of a cover, whose status we shall not attempt to determine in the absence of any corroborative testimony. The cover is one of the patent line varieties—Pat. Nov. 20, 1855—such as were used for the government stamped envelopes but it bears no envelope stamp impression. Instead, in the upper right hand corner, are two lines of type-printed impression in black: Paid One Cent—Maspeth, N. Y. The flap of the envelope is ungummed as if the envelope were intended to enclose circular matter, for instance. This envelope was addressed to a western state and was found in a batch of old correspondence there which had remained undisturbed for for many years. If the envelope served as a carrier through the mails, it must have been used at a time after the prepayment of postage by stamps was made compulsory. As the envelope stands, it furnishes the basis of various theories.

Every Little Helps—From Mr. James Musick, Lohman, Missouri, we have received the following letter, with exhibit: "I am sending you herewith, a block of ten of the one-cent, 1910, each stamp of which shows a defect that is rather unusual. On each of the stamps of the block, one of the lines forming the hair at the lower bottom side of the head is distinctly broken. I have another block exactly like the one enclosed only slightly plainer. Such defects are common but generally are not repeated with such uniformity." This variation is one to delight the eye of the minor variety enthusiast and when once detected becomes plain enough but its discovery by Mr. Musick is a tribute to his keenness of scrutiny of stamps.

Another Brand—From many readers, including Mr. Howland Speakman, Chicago, who is on his vacation trip at Lake George, New York, come samples of the enclosures in a popular brand of cigarettes. A waxed envelope, containing a few foreign stamps and half-tone engravings of celebrities, is inscribed: "Philately. The popular European rage. Foreign postage stamps," etc. Previously, attention was called to the cards of stamp engravings in certain packages of "little cigars."

Novelties—We have seen two postally surcharged fiscals of Ecuador on cover from Quito: "Postal-Un-Centv." on the one sucre "timbre fiscal" and "Postal-Dos-Cents." on the two sucres of the same set.

Enough Said—A gentleman, who, from certain earmarks that remain unrevealed to those who do not hold communion in the sacred circles of sublimated scribes but which to fellow craftsmen loom large, speaks of our Peristyle of Philatelic Purity in Mack's Monthly Philatelist: "Now to proceed with Class I, Section a, to-wit: MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS. MEKEEL'S isn't placed at the head of the weeklies by accident, nor again by design. Ben deposits it there because it belongs there. He considers it the best U. S. every-seven-day stamp paper, and begs everybody present to swallow this statement verbatim, as it will be needed to alleviate the intensity of further statements." Up to this juncture, we heartily commend Cupp's outpouring, but here the critic who takes refuge under the nom-de-plume of Ben Zine Cupp becomes strangely pointless in his ruminations and wholly uninteresting in his observations unless we except the remark: "Mr. Severn, the famous juggler, writes editorials, and he can't be beaten at it." Really the credit is all Penflip's. It provokes us that the high promise of Cupp's opening flow were so sadly spilled in his pursuing sentences; and we grieve that he could not have written in a way to have sustained interest to the end.

A Rebuke—A reader wants our "valued co-operation" in an attempt to recover the price of subscription paid to the publisher of a philatelic paper whose birth and death were encompassed in Volume One, Number One. Fie on our correspondent to begrudge the poor, deluded progenitor of any "magazine devoted to the best interests of philately" a paltry quarter, which, after all, is no more than a single drop of unguent to assuage the sting of disappointment. Let our reader peruse the following recital and feel duly chastened. Some time ago, we received a quarter from one of our readers with the request that the amount be applied to a subscription for a paper that had been mentioned in the WEEKLY. We sent the money on but soon the subscriber through us complained that he was not getting the paper; thereupon, we wrote the publisher who said that he had not received the quarter from us. We sent in a quarter of our own rather than argue the matter and it happened that at this critical period, the paper suspended publication. Our reader was now irate and he wrote so caustically that fearful of another blast, we sent him a second quarter from our depleted purse. He acknowledged its receipt in a letter so suspiciously courteous that we wondered if he suspected that we had retained the quarter, trusting that he would forget that he had sent it to us. Did we bother the publisher who was gazing so mournfully upon the ruins of his fondest hopes? No,—we raised our advertising rates.

Sad But True—The awakening of the philatelic publisher sometimes is one in which resentment and amazement are commingled. Usually, the publisher of a philatelic paper is a hopeful, enterprising youth who prepares his first number with much pride and sends out from 500 copies, upwards. The copies go to a carefully selected list of names and the advertisers are billed promptly. One out of every two who receive the first number will subscribe, he hopes, and expectantly he waits several days for the deluge of subscriptions; but at the end of the week he has garnered exactly eleven paid up subscriptions and a batch of letters congratulating him upon the appearance of the first number,—oddly enough these friendly correspondents neglect to send in the subscription price. Ah, thinks the subdued and puzzled publisher, Monday will bring the inundation of mail; and he stakes his hopes on the fateful Monday with its two days' mail. Black Monday comes but it brings no checks from the advertisers nor any number worth while of subscriptions; perhaps, the mail has been delayed but the worst soon is proved to him. Other numbers of the paper are published in accordance to the perseverance of the publisher but the end it seems is inevitable. Some ex-publishers quit philately in disgust with hard words for the parsimony of its followers but the others soon forget their fling and continue in philately with more enjoyment than before and in time find amusement in recalling their philatelic publishing experience. Prospective publishers sometimes ask our advice about issuing a stamp paper and we always answer that while the chances greatly are against making a success of a venture of the kind, yet there are always a few stamp papers on a permanent basis and that it is possible to make room for one more. It must be admitted without argument, however, that all the deserving philatelic papers do not succeed; and that is a disappointing feature of the game.

THE BOY SCOUTS AND THE "SIEGE OF MAFEKING" LOCAL STAMPS.

By VINTON E. MCVICKER.

The connection between these two seemingly widely different subjects is not clear at first glance but on looking behind the scenes we see that they are in reality closely retated.

From October 15, 1899, to May 18, 1900, the town of Mafeking, Bechuanaland, garrisoned by a British force of 1200 men under General Baden-Powell, was besieged by the Boers. Communication with the outposts was difficult for the defenders and, besides, men could not be spared from the small force to carry messages. Just at the time of need, however, a number of boys volunteered for this perilous duty and after that they sped over the city on bicycles to carry messages between the defending forces. The local stamps were issued to pay postage on the letters carried by this "bicycle post." Most collectors probably are familiar with the design—a boy on a bicycle on the 1d and a head on the 3d.

The lads showed great courage and seemed to bear charmed lives as they rode recklessly but unharmed among the whistling bullets. After the siege was raised the memory of their good service and the knowledge of the possibilities of the English boy remained with the general and furnished the germ of the idea which later blossomed forth in the organization of the "Boy Scouts" with Baden-Powell at their head.

WASHINGTON STATE SOCIETY.

The newly organized and incorporated State Society held its first meeting July 2nd with a charter membership of 38. The following officers were elected to serve until Jan. 1, 1913: — Pres., C. J. T. Utermark, Seattle; V. Pres., LeRoy Pratt, Tacoma; V. Pres., L. R. Lounsbury, Olympia; Sec., D. C. Bartley, Seattle; Treas., Dr. Carl Hoffman, Seattle.

The five officers will constitute a board, to manage the affairs of the Society, the following appointive officers were named by the Board:—Sales Supt., John Terry, Seattle; Librarian, D. C. Bartley, Seattle; Attorney, P. Thomas, Seattle; Auctioneer, Carl Reeves, Seattle.

The Society has two branches started, one in Tacoma, V. D. Tomlinson, Sec., and another in Olympia, Sidney Rankin, Sec. The Seattle Philatelic Club has ceased to be, as nearly all members joined the State Society. The official organ will be Everybody's Philatelist, Astoria, Oregon. Meetings will be held every Tuesday evening at 206 Walker Building, Seattle, until further notice, address all communications to Secretary, 372 Arcade Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

A. P. S. PROXIES.

It is the intention of the Managing Editor of the WEEKLY to attend the convention at Springfield. As in the past he will be pleased to hold the proxies of his friends who cannot be present and will execute any commissions placed with him.

CHAPTER IV.

5 Cents 1851-1860, Imperforate.

HISTORICAL.

Date of issue, January 5, 1856.
Number of plates, 2.
Issued, perforated, February ——, 1857.
Number of plates, 2.

(As it is impossible to secure accurate data regarding the number of stamps of each denomination issued, I will omit all mention, at this time, of the probable output. Diligent inquiry is being made, and research of the files of philatelic literature may give sufficient information which will warrant at least an approximate estimate. If this be so the statistics of numbers of the 5, 10, 12, 24, 30 and 90 cent denominations will be given later.

During some time between 1851 and 1856 the name "Casilear" was omitted from the plates. The exact date has never been learned. In view of this fact no mention of the firm of Toppan, Carpenter, Casilear & Co., or Toppan, Carpenter & Co., will be made in the rest of the historical description. Suffice it to say that all of the stamps of this issue were engraved and printed by one or the other of these concerns.—AUTHOR'S NOTE.)

One of the hardest stamps of the second series to study is the 5 cent imperforate, and its perforated variety (for I cannot separate these into distinct issues). This for the reason that it requires quite a little money with which to purchase even one fairly good copy, and the fact that the catalog distinguishes four varieties and nine shades.

Notwithstanding this, a specialist can fill a number of pages of his album with the stamps of this issue alone, if he cares to pay the price, and gives heed to the sub-varieties, perforations and different cancellations. I would say that 100 stamps of the 5 cent kind can be accumulated, and each with some distinguishing feature to make it collectible.

Unless we accept the three higher values—24, 30 and 90 cent stamps—as having been postally issued imperforate, the 5 cent imperforate is the highest priced stamp of this issue. From the number known to be in the hands of dealers, found in collections, and located in the auction sales, it seems to the writer that this stamp, together with the perforated varieties, is priced entirely too high, when compared with the price and scarcity of some other stamps.

The catalog suggests two shades in the imperforate—red brown and brown—to which should be added a dark red brown and carmine brown. The latter is a scarce, handsome stamp, worth full catalog or more. There are no distinguishing varieties of this stamp, and when one has secured copies in the four shades, a used pair, and black, blue and red cancellations, together with one "Paid" and one year-dated cancellation, he has gone about the limit in the imperforate stamp. Trial printings and the proofs close the list.

Good margins should be insisted upon, for the reason that clipped perforated stamps are palmed off on younger collectors, a fact which, owing to a distinguishing difference in paper, will cause their elimination when one wants to dispose of them to a customer who knows postage stamps.

The field for study is much larger in the perforated variety, there being three catalogued types and seven catalogued shades. The types are called—full ornaments, top and bottom ornaments partly cut away, top and bottom ornaments wholly removed.

There are, however, two sub-varieties, or difference in the cutting away of the ornaments—type IIa, I will call the first. It has the ornaments at top or bottom cut away further than type II, and I believe is collectible. It is easily distinguished from either types II or III. Type IIIa not only has the ornaments entirely removed, but has been so fully removed as to cause a depression in the frame to almost as great a depth as type II is raised.

Type I is catalogued in brick red, red brown and brown shades. To these should be added rose brown, pale red brown, dark red brown, carmine brown and gray brown.

Type II catalogued in orange brown and brown, have also shades of dark brown and gray brown.

Type III, orange brown and brown, are also found in dark brown, gray brown and bistre brown.

Pairs are rather scarce, especially horizontal pairs. Vertical pairs are more common than the other. Strips of three and blocks of four are very rare. Black and pen cancellations are the most found. Blue are rather scarce, and strange to say red are more rare than the blue. A 5 cent stamp of this issue, with legible year date is very rarely met with. I have yet to see one with carrier, railroad or steamboat cancellation, which is not saying they do not exist. Paid cancellations are not very common, and yet not rare.

I do not believe they exist in watermarked or laid paper varieties, although I may be mistaken.

An interesting combination is a pair showing type II and type III.

DAMAGED STAMPS

We are eliminating damaged stamps from our stock and have made up several books containing scarce stamps of all countries, (U. S., Old German States, Europe &c.) Prices are a fraction of catalogue, in fact absurdly low, real summer bargains as space-fillers. Send references when requesting approval selection.

OUR REVIEW.

St. Helena.—Published by the Melville Stamp Books, 47 Strand, London, England. Uniform with the remainder of the series, we have here a very handsome handbook dealing with the interesting stamps of this island colony.

The frontispiece shows the post office at St. Helena, it being nothing else than a room in the castle. In the introductory note Mr. Melville calls attention to the fact that this book completes the second series of these popular handbooks. Admitting the fact that the issues of this colony seem easy of comprehension, the author maintains that St. Helena stamps are deserving of much study.

We shall not undertake to criticise the text of the book. Suffice it to say that no collector of the stamps of St. Helena can afford to be without this book, which is a model of both beauty and cheapness.

Small Ads Column.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell or exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world.

RATE.—20c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $7.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

SPECIAL OFFER.—Where an adv. is inserted each week, the 15c per line rate is granted and bill submitted the 1st of each month.

We shall use every possible endeavor to protect our subscribers, but we cannot undertake to be responsible for unsatisfactory trade relations. Advertisers against whom complaints are proven will be debarred the further use of these columns.

Advertisers sending out approval selections must take precautions to secure satisfactory references. We cannot undertake to settle all the petty disputes arising from the wide-spread scattering of approval selections.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by Henry A. Kidder.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

Australia Commonwealth.—Mr. Schachne has received a reply letter card carrying the same stamps as those noted in No. 1112. Between the stamp and arms are two headlines and one line of instructions, also another line of instruction near lower edge. The perforation is a continuous wavy cut which goes only partly through the paper. As this paper is rather heavy and tough, this style of perforation may serve the purpose but we venture the prediction that it will not be generally adopted. Perf. D; size 152x93 mm.

Letter Card.

1x1d brown-violet on yelllowish buff.

Belgium.—Three more values of the new King Albert set have been shown us by Whitfield King & Co., the size and design being the same as the 10c value, issued some time since. The 50c and 1f values are in the same color as the previous issue. The 40c value is new, that denomination not having been issued by Belgium since the issue of 1870. Maury's Collectioneur reports the issue of an envelope, with portrait of King Albert, similar to that on the 10c stamp. Presumably the color is white, though the chronicle is silent on that point.

Adhesives.

40c yellow green.
50c blue gray.
1fr orange.

Envelope.

10c red on white.

Bolivia.—The L. L. Albright Co. has shown us two split provisionals from Bolivia, both on the original covers, and used in connection with other stamps. One of these covers has two of the 10c on 1c blue fiscal stamp, chronicled in No. 1118, and half of a third stamp cut diagonally and used as 5c. The other has a copy of the 20c violet and black of 1909, with a diagonal half of the 5c on 2c green provisional of 1911, Scott's No. 96, so cut as to show only the tops of the letters of the upper part of the surcharge, "5 Centavos." This would appear to make the postage on this letter 22½ centavos, while on the other it is 25 centavos.

British Colonies.—According to the Colonial Office Journal, the following stamps have recently been issued for the various Colonies named, with portrait of King George:

Bahamas, ½d, 2½, 4d, 6d, 1sh, 5sh, £1.
Ceylon, 3c, 6c, 10c, 15c.
East Africa and Uganda, 3c, 6c.
Falkland Islands, ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 6d, 1sh, 3sh, 5sh.
Fiji Islands, 1d, 5sh, £1.
Gambia, ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 6d, 1sh.
Gibraltar, ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 6d, 1sh.
Gilbert & Ellice Islands, ½d.
Leeward Islands, ¼d, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
St. Lucia, ½d, 1d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1sh, 5sh.
Sierra Leone, 1d, 2d.
Southern Nigeria, 2d.

Hayti.—Hermann Focke sends us a new stamp from this Republic, but we are unable to state whether it is the first of a complete new set or not. The stamp is an upright rectangle, about the size and shape of the 1898-99 issue. It is intended for international postage, as the value is expressed in "Centimes de Piastre," gold dollar, as distinguished from "Centimes de Gourde," silver dollar. The latter values appear on the stamps used to pay the domestic rates. The stamp was printed by the American Bank Note Co., New York, in design suggesting issues for Chile, Peru, and other countries. The portrait is labeled "C. Le Conte, 1912," but who Le Conte is we are unable to say. Like all the American Bank Note Co.'s work, the stamp is finely engraved and printed, and presents a handsome appearance. It is perforated 12.

Adhesive.

5c dark blue.

Japan.—A double 1½s postcard has been issued in the new type chronicled some time ago.

Post Card.

1½x1½s rose on white.

Mozambique.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the King Manuel set for this Colony, surcharged "Republica." There are 11 values, from 2½r to 500r.

Norway.—Further values of the re-engraved set as noted in No. 1124, have come to hand, and have been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. The same differences existed as noted in the other values. The colors of these re-engraved stamps all seem brighter and stronger than in the previous issue.

Adhesives.

1 ore gray.
2 ore brown.
3 ore orange.
5 ore green.
10 ore deep carmine.
15 ore brown.
20 ore deep ultramarine.
25 ore red violet.
50 ore claret.

Surinam.—This Colony has issued a set of provisionals, which were printed hastily and put into temporary use, pending the arrival of a new supply of stamps from the mother country. Our information comes from Edwin W. Fuss, who kindly sends us specimens of the new stamps. Mr. Fuss is informed that the remainders of the provisionals, of which only a very limited quantity was issued, will be destroyed as soon as the new stamps arrived. The provisionals are type set, very crudely printed on white wove paper, and perforated 11½. The design shows a border of rule work, with "Suriname" above and "Cent" below, the figure of value being printed in a tablet imposed on the border and extending beyond it on each side. The stamp is an upright rectangle, 21½x26½mm. As we have not seen sheets of these provisionals, we are unable to say whether they are printed tete beche like the 5c provisional of 1909 or not. Mr. Fuss understands that a ½c value has also been issued, but this has not yet come to hand.

Provisional Adhesives.

5c dull red.
12½c dark blue.

J. N. Morse has shown us a new provisional card, issued because the stock of 2½c and 5c cards was sold out in June. These of course are of local manufacture and the one before us differs from the last 2½c as follows: The card is a paler blue and lacks the quality and finish—the arms are similar in general design but smaller—the same two headlines but in slightly different type—the stamp is an upright rectangle (type set) 20½x27 divided into three parts and contains (1) Suriname (2) 2½ (3) cent in colored letters.

Post Card.

2½c green on grayish blue. Divided face.

Mr. Morse also sends us information of the provisional adhesives, chronicled above.

Venezuela.—In No. 1121, we noted the fact that the 50c value of the current issue had been found with the centre in blue and the frame in violet. The Philatelic Gazette has the following from a correspondent in Venezuela to one of its advertisers:

"In regard to the odd blue color of the 50 centimos value, I can state that all values of the current set are printed in two kinds of ink. They are supposed to be uncleanable, and I would not be surprised if with a few chemicals you can make gay stamps in two colors of the whole set. I have seen them changed by ordinary use and sunlight."

This means that the whole set has been printed at two impressions, thus adding materially to the difficulty and cost of printing.

Maury's Collectionneur notes the issue of a new set of official stamps for this country. The design is similar to that of 1904, though with many differences. The letters in the inscriptions are thicker, the figures of value appear in all four corners, the horse in the Arms has the head turned to the right, instead of turned to the rear, and the horns of plenty, which form the top of the arms, are better drawn. The three lower values are in the same colors as the 1904 set, but the others have the frames in new colors. The centres are all in black.

Official Adhesives.

5c green and black.
10c rose and black.
25c blue and black.
50c violet and black.
1b yellow and black.

A VARIANT.

A. G. Johnson, of Cleveland Ohio, has shown me an interesting plate variety of the 2 cent black, issue 1862, Scott's number 73. The variety exists in the triangular point formed by the part in the hair, directly under the letter "E" in the word "Postage." In the normal type a point of hair extends sharply out toward the end of the label, which is clear cut and only slightly marked with two vertical lines of shading. In the variety shown this point of hair is almost entirely obliterated by heavy vertical shading which causes the part of the hair to show an almost perfect right angle, with the point at the break of the hair.

That this is a scarce variety is evidenced that an examination of 260 copies in my own stock showed only one stamp containing it. This proved, however, that it was a variety in the plate engraving, and not a slip in printing, or due to some foreign cause which would prevent the discovery of other stamps containing the same uniqueness.

Mr. Johnson also furnishes the writer with a variety of the 10 cent green, 1861 issue, Scott's number 68, which will be carefully studied and the results noted in these columns.

THE POPULAR NEW ISSUE

POPULAR—Because the outlay necessary for a representative collection, can be limited to such a very small sum, ranging from the low average expenditure of a few shillings per week.

INTERESTING—Changes of colour, perforation and watermark, as well as the actual new issues of the Colonies, Provisionals and the like, provide frequent variety.

ECONOMICAL—A supply at 10% over actual face value, not an extravagant premium to ensure an efficient supply.

COSTA RICA.

The Land of the Three Volcanoes.

By The Rev. J. W. Graham.

The first issue of Costa Rican stamps took place in 1865. The design consisted of the coat-of-arms of the Republic which might be described in non-heraldic language as follows:—in the centre of the shield are the three volcanoes of the Republic—Turrialba, Irazu, and Poas. In the foreground is seen the Pacific Ocean, whilst the background represents the Atlantic. A ship is seen on the Pacific side, and the careful observer will also notice the masts of another vessel on the Atlantic horizon, prophetic of the development of the then new Atlantic trade. The rising sun of the nation's independence may also be observed. Above are five stars, symbolic of the five Comarcas or Provinces into which the Republic is divided,—San Jose, Caratago, Limon, Guanacaste, and Alajuela. Below is a cornucopia, emblematic of the abundant wealth of the country, whilst the cannon on which it rests is a gentle hint of the determination of the country to maintain her liberty to the death if necessary. The whole is draped with three national flags on each side, with an accompaniment of spears and battle axes, and laurel wreaths reminiscent of the victories by which independence was secured.

The Man with the Flaming Torch.—On the present One Cent stamp is a representation of the monument erected in the town of Alajuela in honour of Juan Santa Maria. It was on the 11th April, 1856, that the Costa Rican army tried conclusions with the notorious American buccaneer, William Walker, in the town of Rivas. Walker had resolved to conquer the whole of Central America, and had already succeeded in subduing Nicaragua, and was now on the same mission to Costa Rica. The Costa Rican army found him strongly fortified in an inn, while his men were quartered in the church and other buildings in the town. In order to obtain a decisive victory, it was necessary to dislodge him from his stronghold. Every inch of the intervening space was covered by the rifles of the enemy. General Canas, who was in command, conceived the idea of setting the inn on fire. "Is there no one brave enough to risk his life to save his compatriots." asked the General. Forthwith there sprang from the ranks a soldier. "I will go," he said, "but I charge you not to forget my mother." A torch was prepared; he started on his perilous journey; he drew near to the inn; a bullet shattered his right arm; he took the torch in his left hand; he reached the inn; another bullet gave him his death wound; but, before he died, he was able to apply the torch to the wooden building, which was soon a mass of flames. The filibusters fled in terror, and the Costa Ricans were the masters of the situation. That soldier who gave his life for his country was a native of Alajuela, and his name was Juan Santa Maria, commonly known as El Erizo, or The Hedgehog. In the picture he is still grasping the fatal torch in his right hand.

The Model Costa Rican.—The Two Cents stamp bears the effigy of Juan Mora Fernandez, the first President of the Republic, a man who still lives in our memories as the model Costa Rican. He was born in San Jose on the 12th July, 1784, and began his public career at a very early age as sub-lieutenant of the first battalion of cavalry organised in that city by Senor Ayala, the last but one of the Spanish Governors of the then Province of Costa Rica. Afterwards Mora occupied the position of Secretary of the Municipality which was formed during the last years of the Spanish domination. He then filled the Mayor's chair, and in December, 1821, was appointed a member of the Commission to make the draft of the first constitutional law of the new Republic. We next find him the Secretary of the Governing Board in 1822 and 1823, and as elected member of the General Assembly in the latter year, from which position he passed to that of President in 1824. At the end of his first term of office, he was re-elected and guided the destinies of the infant State until 1833. During the administration of General Morazan in 1842 he filled the position of Vice-President, after which he retired from politics. For a long time he discharged the duties of Chief Justice, a post which he occupied up to the time of his death in September, 1854. In the Congress Hall in San Jose, his portrait hangs over the Presidential chair, and underneath it this inscription:—"Ocupa este lugar el ciudadano ex-jefe, Juan Mora, por sus virtudes, y le ocuparan sucesivamente los que en el mismo destino se hagan dignos de el." (The citizen ex-chief, Juan Mora, through his virtues occupied this place, and there shall follow him those who are worthy of a similar dignity.)

The Man Who Baffled the Buccaneer.—On the Four Cents stamp is seen the portrait of Jose Maria Canas, the hero of the Walker campaign already referred to. After his exploits in this struggle, he was chosen by the Government as their representative in settling the boundary dispute between Nicaragua and Costa Rica. The province of Guanacaste was the disputed territory, and the claim on each side was the more vigorously pushed, owing to the fact that a serious proposal was on foot to cut a canal through Nicaragua, on the borders of which Guanacaste is situated. Through the friendly intervention of El Salvador, the matter was peaceably arranged in favour of Costa Rica, and Canas signed the treaty on behalf of his Government. In 1859 Rafael Mora was re-elected to the Presidency for a third term; but there was a strong feeling against such a monopoly of the chief Magistracy, and his enemies were not slow in taking advantage of it. He was banished with many of his relatives and partisans. In El Salvador he made plans to regain his position, in which he was assisted by Canas; they were, however, overthrown on invading Costa Rica the following year, and were put to death—to the great sorrow of the people who had not forgotten that as President and General respectively, they had saved the State from foreign domination.

A Minister of Education.—The Five Cents stamp bears the picture of Mauro Fernandez, who, in 1886, was the author of the Elementary Education Law of the country. He was born in San Jose on the 19th December, 1843, and on the 8th May, 1886 (the day on which the new President is inaugurated) he was entrusted with the portfolio of Public Instruction. One of the finest buildings in San Jose is the "Mauro Fernandez School" which was opened on Independence Day (15th September) two years ago.

A Costa Rican Premier.—On the Six Cents stamp is a portrait of Julian Volio, who was the chief Minister during the first administration of Jesus Jimenez, 1863-1867. In 1864 the Governments of the other four Central American Republics demanded the expulsion from Costa Rica of General Barrios, ex-President of El Salvador and Liberal leader, who was working with great diligence for the re-establishment of the Central American Union. Jimenez, supported by Volio, vigorously opposed the demand, and refused to yield even when threatened with war. On this account the others cut off all relations with Costa Rica. In 1870, the retiring President supported the candidature of Volio for the Presidency, but a revolution was the result, and Jimenez, his old chief, was again put into office. Volio's portrait also figures on a Twenty Cents stamp, which is not listed in Bright's last catalogue.

The Murder of Carillo.—We now come to a man who, perhaps, looms larger in Costa Rican affairs than any other of his compatriots, and whose face seems to be endowed with life on the Ten Cents stamp,—Braulio Carillo. Rafael Gallegos, who was elected President in 1833 to succeed the illustrious Mora, found the task a more difficult one than he was by nature or inclination prepared to undertake, and resigned after his second year of service. To complete the unexpired term Braulio Carillo was chosen, and in that same year the Assembly enacted laws which were fraught with serious consequences to the country. The old system of indirect taxation was abolished and a direct tax imposed. Costa Ricans have always resented direct taxation; and in addition to this, Carillo passed a law to establish the Capital in San Jose. Cartago, the then Capital, took up arms in which she was assisted by Heredia and the older towns; but they were defeated. In 1837 the electors placed Aguilar at the head of the State and he annulled the statute by which the transfer of the Capital was ordered. Carillo, however, had a strong following and these now seized the cuartel in San Jose, and drove Aguilar and Juan Mora, then Vice-President, into exile. He then assumed the supreme power and the army and the Congress declared him President. Then he summoned a meeting of the General Assembly, in which his supporters had an overwhelming majority, and he was made Dictator. Carillo was a strong ruler, and under his iron hand the country made rapid strides. Then came the invasion of the country by Morazan, when the army sent out to meet him joined forces with him, and Carillo was himself exiled. He retired to El Salvador, where he carried on his business as a lawyer until, one day, while sitting in a hammock suspended from two trees, he was set upon by enemies and murdered.

In Jesus Jimenez's second administration, his chief Minister of State was Eusebio Figueroa, and this officer ably assisted his chief in suppressing the revolution referred to during Volio's candidature. His portrait supplies the design for the Twenty-five Cents stamp. When Prospero Fernandez was President, 1883-5, a Forty Cents issue was made. In that administration the Jesuits were expelled from the country, but the President died before the conclusion of his term of office. Dr. Jose Maria Castro was President from 1847-9. It was in his time that the final separation of the Republic from the Central American Federation took place. Castro resigned after two years of service, but was again placed in the chair in 1866 as the successor of Jimenez. His picture will be seen on the Fifty Cents stamp.

President Soto.—Don Bernado Soto was Vice-President during the short administration of Prospero Fernandez and assumed the reins of office on the death of his Chief. He already graced the Ten Cents stamp of that period, and in 1889 a full set of stamps was issued with his portrait. It was the only time in the history of the country when there was such uniformity in the stamps. It was during his administration that Mauro Fernandez carried out the reforms in the Education Law to which reference has already been made. Don Bernado is still alive, although when last seen by the writer, he was in very poor health. He still enjoys the confidence of the nation over which it was his privilege to rule for four years. The object of this sketch is not to study the various changes or issues which have resulted in nearly 300 varieties of stamps. For that information, the reader is recommended to consult any one of the catalogues annually published by reliable firms in England or elsewhere.—Jamaica Gleaner.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

In quite a number of instances embossing has been used wholly or in part in the production of postage stamps. Embossed stamps are those in which the whole or some portion of the design is in relief as in the case of the United States envelope stamps now in use. Stamps are embossed in much the same way as letter-headings, seals etc., and the embossing may be perfectly plain on colored paper or the raised portions may be in white with the rest of the design in color.

The first stamps issued in Natal in 1857 were embossed in plain relief on colored wove paper and, except in sharply defined specimens the designs are somewhat difficult to decipher. These and the Scinde District Dawk stamps of India are the only postage stamps we can call to mind issued in colorless embossing.

The usual method followed shows the embossed parts surrounded by color and by this process two plates are necessary—one, on which the paper rests, which forces the parts that are to be in relief upwards, and the other applying the ink. Envelope stamps of numerous countries have been produced by this process each impression being struck separately. The first 6d, 10d, and 1s, stamps of Great Britain were embossed from the ordinary envelope dies and as each single stamp had to be struck separately they were issued in but small sheets. Printing sheets in this manner made alignment a matter of difficulty and specimens overlapped with portions of other impressions are by no means uncommon. The 10d and 1s stamps can be at once distinguished from envelope stamps of the same or similar colors by the paper which has silk threads running through it. The 6d value may be identified also by the paper which is watermarked with the letters "V R" for each stamp.

A makeshift issue of 1d stamps was produced in British Central Africa in 1898 by a combination of embossing and typography. By means of ordinary printers' "rule" and type a frame enclosing the inscription "INTERNAL," at the top, and "POSTAGE" at the bottom, was set up thirty times in two horizontal rows and then in the centre of each frame an impression was struck from the 1d stamp ordinarily used for stamping checks.

The above instances represent more or less make-shift issues but some countries have made extensive use of embossing in the production of postage stamps. From January 1869 until January 1898 Gambia's stamps were all embossed, the series making one of the most attractive known to the stamp collector. In this case the stamps were embossed and printed in entire sheets of 20 at a time. On all the stamps of Heligoland showing Queen Victoria's portrait the head is embossed in colorless relief while Switzerland furnishes numerous examples of embossed stamps. As an ultra-modern example we may point to the new issue for Iceland in all of which the portraits and inscriptions are embossed in white on a ground of solid color.

Another process which has been frequently adopted, generally in producing temporary issues, is that known to philatelists as type-set. This is typography in its simplest form; ordinary printers type, rule, and ornaments being used in setting up the design and the stamps being printed in an ordinary magazine or newspaper press. The interesting "numeral" stamps of the Hawaiian Islands were set up from ordinary type with straight rules. The first postage due stamps issued in Guadaloupe are equally simple in origin but have the added dignity of an ornamental border. British Guiana adopted this process of manufacturing temporary issues on several occasions and most of these products of the printers' office are extremely rare. The rarest of the lot, the "circular" issue of 1850, is also the crudest. These stamps were formed of pieces of rule bent into a rough circular outline inside which the name and value were inserted and the whole then printed on colored paper. Colombia, Bamra, Uganda, and Madagascar are other places that have issued type-set stamps.

Perhaps the most simple and primitive method of all was that employed by the Postmaster of Hamilton, Bermuda, in 1849 for producing 1d stamps. He used the ordinary postmarking stamp, with the date removed, stamping impressions on odd pieces of paper and then writing in the value "One penny" and his name "W. B. Perot" with ordinary pen and ink.

The stamps of the New Republic furnish another quaint and simple method of typography. The "design" consisting of the name of the Republic, value, and (usually) date was printed with a rubber hand stamp on paper bought in Europe and sent out all ready gummed and perforated. At first they were issued with the paper quite plain but after a time, when the dating of the different supplies was discontinued, the Arms of the Republic were embossed in colorless relief on each specimen.

Lastly stamps are known which were "printed" by means of a typewriter. When the Deputy Commissioner of the British Protectorate of Uganda desired to establish a postal service in 1895 he was in difficulties with regard to providing stamps for there was no printing press or printer's type to be found in Uganda. The Rev. E. Miller, a missionary of the Church Missionary Society, being the proud possessor of the one and only typewriter in the Protectorate was prevailed upon to assist by producing the stamps on his machine. The first set consisted simply of the letters "U G" with numerals to denote the value in cowries surrounded by a border of hyphens. The second issue was a little more pretentious in design the name "Uganda" being written in full at the bottom and "V 96 R" inserted at the top. Naturally, as each letter, figure, dot, etc., had to be struck separately errors and varieties are particularly numerous.

STAMPS OF GREECE—EARLY PRINTINGS

By Capt. T. H. Howell-Jones.

Greece has been, and still is, a very poor country nationally, whatever may be the financial condition of individual members. One of the last European countries to adopt a postage system, the Government ordered the first issue, after a number of proofs, from Mr. Ernest Meyer, of Paris, which issue constitutes the well-known "Paris Print" and, if I may say so, the first period of the Greek stamps of the last century, which may be divided into six distinct periods:—

1st Period.—Paris prints 1861. On tinted paper.

2nd Period.—Athens 1861. On tinted paper.

3rd Period.—Athens prints 1876. On white or buff paper, including Paris prints of 30 and 60 Lepta 1876.

4th Period.—Athens prints 1879. On white or buff paper, without control number.

5th Period.—Belgium prints 1886. Small heads of Mercury.

6th Period.—Athens prints 1889. Small heads of Mercury, including Olympian Games issue of 1896.

I do not propose to go into a detailed account of all the printings of these various periods, the first four of which are put forward clearly in Mr. Dorning Beckton's list but only to touch on points which I hope will interest you and explain the causes which led to such a very large variation of printings.

In the first period there were two distinct issues of the Paris prints, the first with thin colourless gum laid on very smoothly, and the second with thick yellowish gum of good substance. The stamps of the latter issue vary considerably in shade.

The Greek Government, however, found that buying stamps in France was an expensive luxury, consequently the next issues were printed in Athens, and constitute the Second Period. This Period is divided into three divisions.

1st Division.—Stamps printed in Greece by French workmen using ink and paper brought from Paris 1861-2.

2nd Division.—Stamps printed in Greece by Greek workmen with local paper and ink, 1862—1870.

3rd Division.—The stamps printed after the plates were cleaned, 1870 onwards.

Economy was the cause of the French workmen being dismissed in 1862 and Greeks being employed, with the result that the stamps rapidly deteriorated. No care was exercised in matching the colours previously existing, and any job lot of paper seems to have been made use of, causing the very large number of printings of the same face value.

In 1870, however, the commencement of the third division of this period, an attempt was made to improve matters, and the plates were cleaned, with the result that two flaws occur, both in the 1 lepton and 40 lepta plates due to the careless manner in which this was done. The paper of this division was at first thin and transparent and the printings well executed, but in later printings the paper used was opaque though still thin, and the execution was atrocious.

The general poverty of the country was also responsible for some very interesting forgeries during this period, due, not to the greed of the philatelist, but to a desire to make an "honest" penny out of the Government. As a rule they are crude and easily discernible, though one or two are clever.

The philatelic forgeries of all the six periods are mainly confined to the control numbers on the back of the 2nd and 3rd period printings.

Of the 3rd and 4th periods there is little of special interest.

In 1886 the Government ordered another design of stamp by Mr. H. Hendricks to be printed by Dorns, in Belgium, and these constituted the 5th period. My previous remarks apply equally to this new issue. Too poor to continue paying the price asked by Dorns, the plates were transferred to Athens, commencing the 6th period with the same result as before. Innumerable variations of colour and paper occur, and also forgeries, in which the collection shown before the Society shows no attempt at specialization. I would venture to submit to you that there is an excellent opening here for investigation which would well repay all time and trouble spent on it, and on a subject about which very little is known.

A few words as regards varieties may not be out of place. The 10 lepta Paris print occurs on thick and thin paper; the former is seldom found. Also there are two varieties of printings of the control number. All stamps of the 1st division of the 2nd period, namely, those printed in Athens by Paris workmen, are rare; the 10 and 20 lepta in particular are most uncommon.

The 1 lepton of the 2nd division, 2nd period, on ribbed paper, is to be treasured, particularly the horizontally ribbed specimens; this latter variation has apparently escaped Mr. Dorning Beckton's notice. This ribbed paper also occurs in the 5 lepta, but I have only seen one specimen in the collection made by Mr. Hodgkin, who told me that he had several 10 lepta also printed on this paper, and had heard of a 40 lepta as well. All ribbed and perforated stamps are rare, and some extremely difficult to find used. Unused specimens, generally, are also not easily picked up, and they are urgently required by the would-be specialist, because nearly 70 per cent. of the used stamps one ordinarily comes across are faded, some to quite impossible colours, as in the 40 lepta.

The result of this is to force the would-be collector to obtain unused specimens, or else to be a nuisance to his friends in order to be certain that any particular specimen is correctly placed in his collection. The latter, unfortunately for my friends, and Mr. Dorning Beckton in particular; has been my method. It has also been my experience to find that the large majority of unused specimens are in the hands of dealers, and a limited pocket is not conducive to extensive business of this nature.

Another point I would like to emphasize is the fact that most of the stamps of these periods are imperforate. I know nothing more annoying than to find that a first-class specimen spoilt by being badly cut; quite 50 per cent. of the stamps are useless for this reason, and adding to this 25 per cent. spoilt by the cancellation, it only leaves the collector one stamp in four of those issued which is fit for his collection, and I think this percentage errs on the high side.

One final point to note is that Mr. Dorning Beckton admits that his catalogue is not complete, but, if I may say so, it is a very useful basis on which to commence arranging a collection.—The South African Philatelist.

IN REPLY TO MR. PRETZEL.

Fritz Pretzel expresses his opinion in the Philadelphia Stamp News that it would be well for the M. P. S. to discontinue the use of Mack's Monthly Philatelist and take up with the Philadelphia weekly. He writes as follows:—

"Vat, oh, vat can prewent dat Offishul Organ Ship from being anudder time a monthly? Reply iss, by being a veekly. Und der Boston von iss too shtuck up, und der Shmetpordt purty much der same vay, but der Philadelphy iss noddings more for to be desired, so vhy not?"

To this the publisher of the Stamp News replies:—

"Owing to lack of space in our own publication, under no consideration will we consider the publication of the official matter of the M. P. A. or an amalgamated society, unless the space is paid for at our usual advertising rates."

The Weekly will be very pleased to represent any society of standing as official journal, and instead of charging its usual advertising rates will make most liberal concessions. All of which should convince Mr. Pretzel that even though Mekeel's Weekly is "shtuck up" it is not in a class all alone by itself.

CHAPTER V.

10 Cents, 1851-1860, Imperforate.

HISTORICAL.

Issue authorized, May 4, 1855.
Number of plates, 1 (No. 1).
Issued Perforated, Feb.   , 1857.
Number of plates, 2 (Nos. 1-2).

There are thousands of stamps of this issue sleeping between the covers of a fourth as many albums which owe their places to "false pretences." The owners fondly believe they have the true type I and type II, in both the imperforate and perforated varieties, when they are about as far from that as Hong Kong is from 'Frisco. True it is that these stamps are correctly classified, so far as the catalogs are concerned. But there the distinction ends. These 10 cent green stamps never ought to have been termed types I and II at all, or the other types, known to specialists, should have been added so that even the tyro would not have been mortified to find, some day, that he did not possess what he thought he had, and probably hundreds of the other types had passed through his hands unnoticed, for the reason that (not knowing there were other types) they no longer interested him. For verily we are slaves to our catalogs, and obey their dictates without question.

Type I, of the catalog, is designated as with full scrolls, and pictured as having these scrolls full at the right side.

Type II is supposed to be with side scrolls cut away.

The true type I is a hard stamp to find. Besides having the side scrolls complete, and the bottom scrolls but little injured, it has a faint line of color arching over the inscription "U. S. Postage." It also has an unbroken deeper line of color following the arch downward, from left to right scroll, under the words "Ten Cents."

If either of these lines be removed, or broken, then the stamp becomes type II.

These broken lines were caused, either by insufficient rocking of the die in making the plate, or to an accident to the die before transferring. Experts differ on this point.

Type III is a stamp printed from one of these incomplete plates, in which the omitted, or broken, line has been recut.

Type IV is the same as type I, with the side ornaments, or arabesques, cut away to facilitate perforating.

Type V is the same as type II, with ornaments cut away.

Type VI is like type III, with ornaments removed.

As types IV and V were formed with a view to making the stamps easier to perforate without cutting the design, they are the rarer of the types in the unperforated varieties, and the commonest in the perforates.

Type VI is not known to honestly exist perforated. And I am certain, in my own mind at least, that any stamp showing type III unperforated is a perforate which has been clipped. At least I have never seen an unperforated pair of this type, while other types are to be had for a reasonable premium.

The supposed test with the naked eye of the so-called types I and II is that the former has three pearls above the lower ornament, or shell, while the latter has the pearls entirely removed, but this is not the case, as I have varieties with one pearl removed, leaving two pearls intact, and two removed, leaving one. These can be reasonably called sub-types, and are as collectible as any of the minor varieties. I should be inclined to classify these as a and b, under types II, IV and V.

The collector need have but little trouble in classifying his shades, as they come in light (or yellow) green, dark green and bluish green.

These stamps have been found bisected and used as five cents. Counterfeiters have made these up for a profit so care must be taken to prevent imposition. If a bisected ten cent is offered, submit to a specialist before accepting it as genuine.

I have never seen trial printings of this stamp. If it exists I would like to see a copy. Until I do I shall not list it.

The same combination in perforations exist in this as in the previous described denominations, namely, 15 and 15½, either all around, horizontally and vertically.

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

PROCTORSVILLE, VERMONT

The stamp was reprinted in 1875 for exhibition at the Centennial. I believe a new plate was made for that purpose. The reprint is a peculiar shade of green, on hard, white paper, perforated 12, without gum.

Pairs, strips of three and blocks of four are not great rarities, especially in the perforate varieties.

The same characteristics in cancellations as have been mentioned in previous articles, are noted, except that red cancellations are about as common as black, while Paid and year dated cancellations are quite rare.

Pen marked stamps cleaned into unused almost if not always leave a bluish tint which proclaims the fraudulent intent.

The following check list is suggested:

FOR THE SEASON 1911-12.

Report Read at the Annual Meeting of the Royal Philatelic Society, London.

By J. A. TILLEARD, Honorary Secretary.

The year that has elapsed since our last Annual General Meeting, although unproductive of any matter of absorbing interest in relation to the doings of the Society, has been marked by much quiet and unobtrusive work comparing favourably with that of past years.

It is with much pleasure that I am able unhesitatingly to report that the affairs of the Society have been fully maintained on a sound and satisfactory basis, notwithstanding the fact that for the first time for some years the register of members shows a reduction in our numbers, owing to the deaths, resignations, and removals from the list during the season 1911-1912 being in excess of the elections to membership during the same period.

With regret I have to record the loss by death of four Fellows, viz. the Rev. A. Atkinson, D. D., who joined in 1903; Mr. F. Breitfuss, whose association with the Society had extended over a period of nearly forty years; Mr. D. Ellis, a member since 1896; and Consul Steudel, whose name has been on the register since 1886.

Of these, the first and last named were not able to take any active part in the work of the Society, but both had rendered good service to Philately, and, although few of us had the opportunity of making their personal acquaintance, our feelings of regret at the loss of their association with the Society are none the less sincere.

Mr. Douglas Ellis, until his health failed, was a regular attendant at our meetings and was well known to many of us. He was held in universal esteem, and he will be much missed by those of his fellow members who were personally acquainted with him.

Mr. F. Breitfuss, who at the time of his death had been longer on the roll of membership than any other member, was the acknowledged head of philatelic circles in Russia. He had attained a world-wide reputation as a collector and expert, and his valuable services were often enlisted to serve on the jury at International Philatelic Exhibitions held in recent years.

A frequent visitor at the Society's meetings prior to 1875, he was early in that year elected to membership, and his pride and interest in the Society and its work continued unabated to the end. Personally known to a large number of our members, he was held in the highest esteem bv all who were privileged to claim his friendship, and his name will always be honoured in the records of the Society as one of those of whom so few remain with us now, who helped to establish the Society on a sound and lasting foundation.

The retiring members whose resignations were accepted with regret were: Messrs. E. Alexander, U. H. Alsop, V. L. Henderson, W. A. R. Jex Long, A. McKechnie, W. A. Sisson, W. B. Price, R. M. Reid, W. W. Sanderson, E. A. Wiedemann, Mrs. W. E. George, the Rev. G. H. Raynor, and Capt. A. E. Stewart.

The names of five other members were removed from the register under the provisions of the Articles of Association, whilst of the three Associates on the list at the end of last season, one, Mr. W. G. Campbell, resigned, one was removed under the rules, and the third, Mr. G. E. V. Crutchley, exercised his right of becoming a Fellow on attaining his majority.

The elections to membership during the year have been: Captain Eugen Bayer, Dr. A. Chiesa, Captain E. S. Clarke, and Messrs. H. L. Churchill, G. E. V. Crutchley (formerly an Associate,) J. L. Green, Ivy L. Lee, T. W. Peck, H. L. Tidy, A. Weinberger, C. R. Wickins, and A. M. Youngmarker, in addition to one Associate, Mr. G. Papier the total number of members now consisting of 274 Fellows and one Associate.

Up to the present time very little advantage has been taken of the provisions of our Articles of Association enabling young philatelists to join the Society as Associates. The privileges and advantages of this right do not appear to be so widely known and appreciated as they should be, and I should like, in the coming season, to see an effort made by Fellows to induce such of their younger friends and acquaintances as are inclined to the serious study of Philately to join our ranks as Associates. To all such we offer a cordial welcome, and the assurance that their co-operation in our work will be fully recognized and appreciated.

The usual number of fortnightly meetings have been held during the season. At most of these visitors have been present, and the average number of members attending has been twenty. This is a slight advance on the average for the previous season, but the attendance is still considerably below what it should be, in view of the importance of the work done for our benefit by those who are good enough to prepare and read valuable papers and to give such fine displays as have been seen during the present season.

The apparent lack of interest disclosed by the attendances has been the subject of comment by some of our country members, who are discouraged at finding only a small meeting to welcome them on their coming amongst us from distant parts, and often at some personal inconvenience, to give us the benefit of their experiences, or to show us their philatelic treasures.

I am fully aware that, in such eventful times as have been experienced during the past season, there have been many causes operating against the success of periodical meetings, and the fact that notwithstanding these causes the average attendance has been increased, encourages me to hope that we may see a considerable improvement in the coming season.

A feature of the meetings has been the interest evinced by members on the two occasions, when Fellows were invited to join in the displays, in the one case of "Pairs, blocks, and stamps on Entires," and in the other of "Stamps of one or more values or an Entire Issue of any country." A large number of Fellows assisted in each case, and it is hoped that the arrangements for the business of the new season will be found to contain some similar means of enlisting in like manner the services of a combination of members jointly contributing to the success of the meetings.

During the season 1911-12 papers were read at ten meetings, and in each case they were illustrated by important displays of the stamps dealt with by the papers. These consisted of "Notes on the Stamps of the Cape of Good Hope," by Mr. G. F. Bainbridge; "The 1860-75 Issues of British Guiana," by Mr. M. P. Castle; "The Early Issues of the Argentine Republic," by Mr. T. W. Hall; "The Liberty Heads of Hayti," by Mr. L. L. R. Hausburg; "The Stamps of Sweden," by Baron Erik Leijonhufvud; "The British Stamps of the Reign of King Edward VII," by Mr. C. F. Dendy-Marshall; "Further Notes on Brazilian Stamps," by Captain G. F. Napier; "The Stamps of Bosnia," by Mr. H. R. Oldfield; "The Automatic Franking Machines of New Zealand" and "The two types se tenant of the 'Peace and Commerce' designs of France," by Mr. Franz Reichenheim; and "Varieties of Stamps of New South Wales and Tasmania," by Mr. R. B. Yardley.

In addition to the occasions of the two joint displays by Fellows before referred to, three further meetings were devoted to displays unaccompanied by papers or written notes. At these the collections of "New Brunswick" and "Nova Scotia" belonging to the King were shown by the gracious permission of His Majesty, while the President, at the first meeting of the season held by his invitation at his residence, gave a most interesting display of "Philatelic Literature" from his wonderful library, and, at the remaining meeting, a display of the "Stamps of Switzerland" was given by Mr. H. J. Duveen. The papers read have added considerably to the knowledge of the stamps to which they related, and, equally with the displays, have been fully up to the high standard attained in recent years.

Before leaving the subject of the meetings, I would venture to suggest to the consideration of the Council and the Committee responsible for the business of the meetings, the possibility, in making the arrangements for the next season, of some evenings being devoted to settling the lists of the issues of the countries remaining to complete the Society's work on the stamps of the British Colonies and Possessions.

It is some time since any volume was presented to members, and the greater part of the British Empire having been covered by the books already published, it would seem a pity that the work, which was started so many years ago, should not be brought to a completion.

The stamps of the British Possessions in Europe would provide sufficient for a commencement, and it should be found possible to complete one small volume during the season. The risk and expense of the publication of the remainder

BY DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG

This book is Volume II of the series inaugurated by Bright & Son and known as "Bright's Philatelic Library." In the volume before us the Edwardian issues of Antigua,Bahamas,Bechuanaland Protectorate, British Central Africa, British Honduras, Canada,Cape Colony,Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus and Dominica are illustrated and described.

In addition to the bibliography there is an appendix giving the colonial color scheme, and the entire volume is one that will appeal to the philatelist who makes any attempt at a philatelic library.

of the work in small parts could well be undertaken without necessarily encroaching to any great extent, if at all, upon the Society's funds, and if the suggestion were adopted and members were invited to submit their collections of the stamps forming the subject for the meetings, these collections would provide an interesting display in which many members would be able to join.

Although there has been nothing in the past year requiring any very serious consideration by the Council, a number of meetings have been held, all of which have been attended by a large majority of the members of the Council, and at which matters of importance in connection with the general business of the Society have received attention.

Progress has been made with the work of arranging the Society's library, for which a number of additions have been received, and a sum of £20 has been voted out of the funds of the Society for binding purposes.

The Expert Committee have had an arduous season involving very long sittings, and the large number of stamps submitted for their adjudication is evidence of the great appreciation of their services by the general body of philatelists. In addition to their general work they have undertaken the task of an inquiry into the doubts and questions surrounding some of the varieties of the Niger Coast "Provisional" stamps. Although, in the absence of documentary evidence, no definite conclusion could be arrived at as to the majority of the questions raised, the Committee have been able to establish the authenticity of some of the varieties dealt with. The sincere thanks of the Society are certainly due to the members of the Expert Committee for their very strenous work during the past season.

Numerous additions, some of considerable value, have been made to the Society's stamp collection through contributions made by various members and friends, and in this connection I may specially mention that we are indebted to the generosity of His Majesty, as Patron to the Society, for arrangements under which we are, and have for some time past, been in receipt of specimens of practically all the stamps issued from time to time by the various countries comprised in the Postal Union, within a short time from the dates of issue.

It is hoped that in the coming season a special effort will be made to make provision for the proper arrangement of the collection in such a form that it may be available for reference by all members desiring to inspect it.

His Majesty the King has also been graciously pleased to present to the Society the two original copper plates on which the two values of the first "Post Paid" stamps of Mauritius were engraved, same plate being afterwards re-engraved with the stamps of the type known as the "Large Fillet," of which only the 2d value was issued for actual use.

This interesting relic of the past will always rank as one of the most important and valuable of the Society's possessions.

The financial position of the Society continues on the sound basis on which it has been established in recent years. The income has fully sufficed for all purposes, and the accounts to be submitted this evening with the report of the auditors will, I believe, be found to be eminently satisfactory.

No nominations for office having been received, there will be no necessity for a ballot for the election of officers or members of Council for the ensuing season, the Articles of Association providing for re-election of the existing officers and Council in the event of notices of retirement or fresh nominations not being received before the 20th May in each year.

The ill-health of the Vice-President has called forth numerous expressions of regret amongst the Fellows and members, who have missed the benefit of his ripe experience and his assistance in the deliberations and meetings of the Society during a considerable part of the season. Much sympathy with Mr. M. P. Castle has been felt by all, and the fact that, notwithstanding his sufferings, he has carried out his work as editor of our journal, The London Philatelist, in so able a manner as to fully maintain its prestige as one of the most important of philatelic journals, has been greatly appreciated, and speaks highly for the courage of our Vice-President and his devotion to the best interests of the Society. That he may make a speedy recovery and be able, in the coming season, to give us the full benefit of his invaluable services is the ardent wish of all his fellow members.

Two meetings of the Philatelic Congress of Great Britain have been held during the year under review. At the Congress at Birmingham, the third of the series, held in 1911 from the 7th to the 9th June, the delegates representing the Society were Mr. M. P. Castle, Baron A. de Worms, Mr. R. B. Yardley, and Mr. L. L. R. Hausburg. The principal matters dealt with were the reports of the Philatelic Terms Committee, whose services were continued for the purpose of the completion of the proposed "Glossary," and the Report of the "Forged Stamps Committee," showing the steps taken with a view to preventing the manufacture and sale of forged postage stamps. Proposals for "linking up" Societies were also considered, but were negatived by a large majority, the general view being that the holding of a Congress and the institution of a Permanent Congress Committee, which was appointed by the meeting, met all requirements in this direction. The suggestion of our Society for holding triennial in lieu of annual meetings of Congress was found to be unacceptable to the general body of delegates, and was accordingly withdrawn.

An interesting exhibition was held in connection with the meetings, and the entertainments provided for the delegates left nothing to be desired to render the Congress the success that it was admitted to be.

When it was announced that the Isle of Thanet Philatelic Society had invited the Congress to meet at Margate in the present year and were prepared to make all the necessary arrangements, it was felt that the undertaking was one of great responsibility for one of the youngest Societies in the kingdom. That there was no occasion for any misgivings as to the ability of this en-

WE WANT TO KNOW!

By W. C. STONE.

Are you coming to the A. P. S. convention at Springfield? Every member should have received their program by this time and now it is up to you to write Mr. Mann and have him put your name on his list of those who are coming to the City of Homes.

What do you think of the program we have laid out for you? We are only a small club and have no wealthy members to draw upon but we think you will not regret coming. Humboldt the great German writer pronounces the view from Mt. Tom to be superior to anything of its kind in Europe. The picnic is a new feature and will be lots of fun. It will be a good chance for "fans" like Wylie and Wolsieffer to show whether they can play base ball as well as they can talk it. Chairman Kitson has also some events which will give the ladies a chance to show if they are sports.

But the "Bourse" is not to be forgotten. We have made arrangements with the hotel people for rooms where collectors and dealers can show, sell and trade stamps of all kinds to their hearts content. Possibly an auction sale (impromptu) may be introduced to enliven the occasion.

EDITORIAL.

Close Watch—They are studying their stamps; and the time-honored injunction that has served as the rock of refuge for many a philatelic scribe is being obeyed as never before. Collectors are noticing differences nowadays that a decade ago they would have passed by unheedingly. Young and old are qualifying as philatelists by examining their stamps with studious care and recording small variations. Frankly, the discoveries, as a rule, are of no great significance in themselves but they are important as an indication of the manner in which the present generation regards its stamps. For instance, a young reader, Mr. Charles Palmer, Urbana, Illinois, writes to tell of a small mechanical difference, a little matter in itself but which is to be accounted for only by a word of explanation. "I enclose two copies of the United States registry stamp that show differences. Look at the right-hand figure 10. In the first copy, there is a small curved line to the left of the 1 of 10. There is no such line in the second copy. In the first copy, there is a line between the Y of Registry and the white dot, which is incomplete, leaving a small white space. In copy two, this line is complete. Is this due to freakish printing or different plates?" These white lines and patches are due to the "refusal" of the ink of the plate to take the paper, for any one of a number of reasons, at the places they occur.

Coarse—It is a mistake for well-meaning members of the American Philatelic Society to attempt to stimulate political activity in the present campaign by means clumsily artificial. We do not refer to the election so much as to the character of proposed legislation at the convention at Springfield. If a fair degree of political activity is favorable to the development of the society, such is the case only when the interest is a natural and spontaneous one, and is not forced in any way. It is a waste of ammunition to shoot at a scare-crow and intelligent members of the American Philatelic Society resent the attempts of fumbling and incapable members to create a fictitious atmosphere, to speak in the manner of the stage. If the stimulus of a few moments is to be followed by a reaction of a year, let the work of misrepresentation proceed; otherwise the society will work out its own destiny without a handicap.

Hear—Mr. Poole was right and Mr. Dunning was wrong. The latest supplement to Scott's Standard Catalogue including the local stamps of the United States, China, etc., does list the Aguinaldo or Philippine revolutionary stamps. The supplement that we examined was the one accompanying the preceding edition of the catalogue and not the one that is the addendum of the present work. We wish to make amends for the impression that was given and while our remarks were prophetic of the action that now has been so fairly taken by the publishers, yet the observations did not do full justice to the conditions at the time the paragraph was written. On page thirty-three of the catalogue of the local stamps three of the Philippine insurrectory stamps are illustrated and five specimens are listed; and with a single exception, all are priced used and unused. Mr. Dunning who long has been a champion of the rights of these stamps no doubt will feel that an apology is due the Scott catalogue publishers for his statements.

To Classify—While on the subject of the stamps of the Philippines, we must mention the receipt from an esteemed correspondent of several documents of a fiscal nature that prove that in this branch the revolutionary government must have been well established. Further, a crude looking sheet of stamps was sent for inspection and while the specimens have a reminiscent look, we are unable to verify any recollections. The stamps are impressed in black on white paper and are perforated. At the top is "Correo" and just below, "1899." The central design is that of the arms of the insurrecto government in triangle, with "E" at left, "F" at right and "B" below. The bottom label reads, "P. Filipina" and above is the denomination, "4 Cuartos." The stamps and documents referred to were captured by an American army officer in the course of his soldierly duties, from whose hands the present owner received them. We should like to have confirmation of our idea that this stamp has been discussed as a candidate for recognition during those well-remembered days when the general interest as well as philatelic interest in Philippine developments was at a high tension.

Stamp Label—A reminder of the past comes to notice in the shape of a label that has some claims for attention from philatelists to-day who care for side-lines. The label which has been sent for inspection by Mr. M. J. Luce, New Orleans, is lettered in dark blue in four lines in center: "½ Cent—Stamps Sold Only by—Gordon McKay—Boston." In the upper label is the line: "Patented Aug. 14, 1860," and the same inscription is repeated at bottom. On either side is: "Half Cent." In each corner is: "½." The impression is on a groundwork of ten lines, each one of which reads in minute letters: "Half Cent Half Cent Half." We have no information regarding the purpose that this label served but it is probable that the "stamp" is known to a few old-timers and that Gordon McKay easily will be identified. It is needless to say that any advertising device or convenience intended to supply the accommodation afforded by the half-cent, whose coinage was stopped several years before the date on the label under notice, such as this would be immediately squelched by the postal authorities to-day.

Shy—Mr. W. H. Zimmer, Portland, Oregon, in a very interesting letter, inspired by Mr. Goodwin's article, comments upon the proverbial scarcity of the five-cent 1847, United States. Although he has collected stamps "from childhood up" (and been a subscriber to the WEEKLY for over fifteen years) he has been impressed by the coyness and self-effacing qualities of the stamps. Mr. Zimmer says it is difficult enough to get one of each of the stamps let alone all the varieties mentioned by Mr. Goodwin but he ends his little homily by the comforting words: "Hoping however, that Mr. Goodwin does not discontinue his series of articles on account of a little thing like this, and wishing you all possible success." etc.

Cent or Nothing—A correspondent unburdens himself: "The other day while in a dealer's establishment, a chap actually bought before my very eyes, a current ten pfennig, Germany for one cent and the dealer took the money. Isn't this worth an editorial?" It is supposed that it is intended that intense indignation be heaped on the head of the dealer but somehow when we realize that dealers must live on the difference between his income and his expenses, we have not the heart to berate him,—and anyway, the half-cent has not been coined yet (for the second time.)

It is the intention of the Managing Editor of the WEEKLY to attend the convention at Springfield. As in the past he will be pleased to hold the proxies of his friends who cannot be present and will execute any commissions placed with him.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

JUBILEE INTERNATIONAL STAMP EXHIBITION.

Latest Notes and News.

The Patrons.—The Right Hon. Herbert Samuel, M. P., His Majesty's Postmaster General, has kindly consented to become the Patron of the Exhibition.

Vice-Patrons.—The Rt. Hon. Sydney Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, Sir Joseph Ward, Bart., Sir J. Henniker Heaton, Bart., and the Hon. Harry Lawson, M. P. (of the Daily Telegraph) are Vice-patrons.

Many Visitors coming from Abroad.—Owing to the large number of notifications received from collectors abroad of their intention to personally visit the Exhibition, it has been deemed advisable to enlarge the scheme of entertainment. In addition to the usual attractions of the Exhibition, an interesting programme of festivities is being arranged for the entertainments of visitors.

Modifications in the Competitions.—Several modifications of the original draft of the scheme of Competition have been adopted on the numerous suggestions received from friends of the Society.

In the first place the Championship Class will be open to anybody, but in cases where exhibits have already gained gold medal awards at any international philatelic exhibition in Great Britain they can only be entered in the Championship Class.

The three sections of Class G for "Single Issues Specialised," have been levelled up as regards the awards. A gold and silver medal is now offered for a typographed issue (instead of a silver and two bronze medals as in the draft). This advance may be regarded as the outcome of very recent highly specialised studies of certain stamps of this class.

In Class I two additional sections have been added covering General Collections of British Colonial Stamps, unused (Section 4); and used, or unused and used together (Section 5). One Gold, one Silver and one Bronze Medal is offered in each of these two added Sections.

The Model Stamp Factory.—Important announcements concerning the establishment of the Model Stamp Factory at the Exhibition will be made during August. The promoters of the Exhibition confidently anticipate that this section of the display will be of a most practical and instructive nature and will be the means of attracting many thousands of visitors to see the latest stamp-printing processes in full operation. Visitors will have the opportunity of seeing the processes used for rapid modern stamp printing on a gigantic scale, especially as used for the stamps of Great Britain. Such an exhibit has never been presented to the philatelic public before.

The Art Contest.—Probably the exhibition scheme which has aroused the greatest enthusiasm so far, is the Contest for a Prize Design for an Improved British Stamp. From the correspondence that this competition has brought in from all parts of the world, it is expected that important and practical benefits may result from the experiment. Artists and others who desire to compete have still some weeks in which to complete their designs and may obtain full particulars of the competition and prizes from the Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. F. Johnson, 44 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

Invitation Cards.—Owing to the long distance from which many of the Visitors are coming to attend the Exhibition the invitation cards have already been prepared, and are now being circulated. Visitors from abroad are especially requested to put themselves in communication with the Central Office of the Exhibition immediately on arrival, and to notify the Hon. Secretary of their London addresses, that late notices etc., may be duly forwarded to them.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

UNITED STATES QUERIES.

During the last few weeks my mail has contained a number of questions relating to United States stamps and in answering many correspondents this week I cannot do better than take these first.

No. 1. "What and where are the secret marks of the 1c, 2c, and 3c stamps of 1873?"

This is a query that should not have to be answered here for the explanation given in Scott's catalogue is clear and ample and every active collector should certainly possess a catalogue. The 1c has a small dash in the pearl immediately to the left of the large numeral "1" at the base. The 2c has a tiny diagonal line under the scroll at the left of "U. S." The 3c has heavy shading below the lower part of the tail of the ribbon under the letters "RE" of "three."

No. 2. "I lately came across a 6c of 1879 which seems to have been surcharged in red with wording inside a frame. What is this?"

I cannot say without having some idea of the lettering in the frame but one thing is quite sure—it is not a surcharge. It is a mark which has probably been struck on the stamp purely by accident.

No. 3. "Are the Banks to be allowed to give the Postal Savings stamps out or will it be prohibited?"

As the Savings Bank is a "Postal" one with its offices at the Post Offices in various towns it is hardly likely that private concerns will have anything to do with distributing the stamps.

No. 4. "Will you please tell me what business any self-respecting U. S. 2c stamp, style of 1908-9, has to be parading on paper with a well-defined Crown watermark It is carmine and imperforate, rather a dark shade."

I do not know anything about this and would like to see the stamp.

No. 5. "What is the Shermack perforation?"

A private perforation applied to stamps used in a certain make of automatic stamp-vending machine.

No. 6. "Is there any commemorative issue of U. S. stamps in sight. If so of what event?"

Yes, a set of special stamps is to be issued to commemorate the opening of the Panama Canal and the World's Panama-Pacific Exposition to be held at San Francisco in 1915. The stamps are likely to be ready and placed on sale some time before 1915, however.

SEDANG.

Mr. A. Asscherick sends a sketch of a stamp inscribed with the name "Sedang" and asks to what country it belongs. This is a well known imposter that turns up periodically and generally puzzles inexperienced collectors. The stamps are bogus and were "issued" in 1889 at the instance of a French adventurer—an ex-officer of the French navy named De Mayrena—who endeavored to make people believe he was emperor of the kingdom of Sedang. Sedang is a small tract of land adjoining the French possession of Annam and one day De Mayrena turned up at Hong Kong and announced he was King Marie I of the Sedangs. He was a man of fine appearance and as the French Consul vouched for his credentials he was soon made much of. He instituted the "Order of Marie I" and was such a plausible individual that he succeeded in conferring this "decoration" on the then Governor of Hong Kong. King Marie had a set of seven stamps printed in Paris, ostensibly for use in his dominions, but in reality for the exploitation of stamp collectors. These were in a currency of "maths" of his own invention and that a large number were sold is evident from the frequency with which the labels turn up in old collections. Shortly after the stamps were put on the market their history became public and De Mayrena fled from Hong Kong.

SHORT REPLIES.

Mrs. C. F. B. (Berkeley, Cal.).—Your Japanese and Straits Settlements stamps with the alleged "surcharges" are merely stamps that have been marked with the initials of the firms using them as a small protection against the petty pilfering of employes. (2) I don't think you should have any real difficulty in distinguishing between the U. S. 3c stamps of 1870 and 1873. The catalogue illustrations and explanations are clear and comparison of a number of copies should soon put you on the right track.

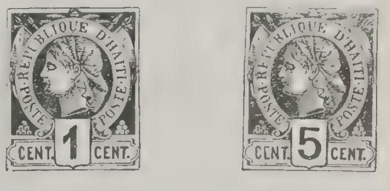
Dr. C. F. R. (Garrison, Neb.).—I fancy the Aguinaldo stamp of which you send a sketch is a bogus variety.

A. E. L. (Albany, N. Y.).—The Nicaraguan stamps can be sold at such a tremendous sacrifice from their nominal facial value simply because they are demonetised remainders. (2) An explanation of precancelled stamps appeared in these columns only a few weeks ago. (3) I really cannot "pierce the veil of the future" and tell you whether or no the U. S. Government will allow stamp papers to illustrate United States stamps in this country. (4) No, the Special Delivery stamps of other countries will not secure the special delivery of a letter in the States. (5) The private stamps of the Red Cross Society, Civilian Rifle Clubs, etc. of Portugal frank the domestic mail of the Societies accorded the privilege of issuing the franks. (6) Though Lisbon is the capital of Portugal it has no connection with the "Lisbon Superfine" paper used for printing certain New Zealand stamps. It is merely the trade name under which a certain paper is sold. (7) The Life Insurance stamps of New Zealand are an official issue and frank the mail of this Government department. (8) The word "Provisorio" simply means "Provisional."

H. H. (Valley Bend, W. Va.).—The marks you describe are all postmarks and have no particular interest or value.

LIBERTY HEADS OF HAYTI.

Various theories have been put forward as to the method of production of the "Liberty Head" stamps of Hayti. At first they were thought to have been lithographed, but any specimen, when closely examined, points to another process having been employed. There is none of that smooth appearance which is essential to a lithograph, and in many cases the paper is very deeply dented by the figure of value. In Le Timbre Poste of May and July, 1899, M. Moens gives some interesting data with regard to the production of these stamps. A Haytian sculptor (M. Laforesterie) is said to have designed them, and a die was engraved on wood by M. J. Richard, of Paris. The plates were made up of electrotypes. The shield which contains the figure of value in the completed design was at first left blank. It is stated by M. Moens that these shields were filled up by moveable plugs, thus indicating that there was only one plate, and that the plugs were altered for each value. This theory I am afraid I do not agree with. In every one of the fifty stamps on the plate of each value the position of the figure of value varies, and the edges of the plug in the shield are more or less defined by lines of colour. But taking a stamp of any one value in any particular position on the plate, it will be found that in all copies of that stamp the figure in the shield is always in exactly the same position.



This shows that if the plugs were altered for printing each value, and only one plate was used, the whole number printed of each value must have been done in one printing. This is hardly likely, and a study of the stamps will, I think, show that it was not the method employed. Supposing the 1c were all printed first and the 20c last, it would mean that the 1c would be only from the early state of the plate and the 20c from the last, but this is not the case. It is posible to find both these and all the other values in early and late states. There is another point against the use of one plate only, and that is that in each value it is possible to find flaws and defects in the design itself, apart from the shield, which are peculiar to each value. My idea is that a separate plate was made for each value from the original plate with vacant spaces in the shield for the value plugs. Some of the values exist in such different shades that there must have been more than one printing of these values.

The next point to be considered is the number of panes on the sheet. M. Moens says that there were six panes of fifty arranged in three rows of two panes. Before the stamps were printed the paper received a lithographic impression in colour. It will be seen that on the margins of the panes there are certain more or less circular marks which were on the extreme edge of the coloured impression. These will help us to decide how many panes there were on each sheet of paper. At present it is possible to say that there were at least four, as in the collection you will see two panes tête-bêche of the one centime, and there are others with the circular marks on the margins which show that there were at least two more different panes.

As a matter of fact, the probabilities seem more in favour of the sheet containing four panes instead of six, as the numbers given for the printings of each value are divisible by two hundred but not by three hundred. In any case, if the sheet contained six panes of fifty, it would be more likely that there were two rows of three panes instead of three rows of two panes, as all the so-called tête-bêche pairs and sheets have the lower parts of the stamps towards each other.

The numbers printed were:—

1c, 300,000	5c, 150,000
3c, 150,000	20c, 25,000

According to these figures one would expect the 20c to be by far the scarcest value and this is borne out by experience. The 5c is very nearly as rare as the 20c in unused condition, but very much more common used. One would expect the 7c to be a good deal commoner than the 2c and 3c, but this is not the case.

The 1c and 2c are known tête-bêche owing to the panes of fifty being printed tête-bêche. The other values should also be found in the same condition.—London Philatelist.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by Henry A. Kidder.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

United States.—E. D. Shove reports finding a size 5 envelope, 2c carmine on amber, Die C, old knife, watermarked "U S 1911."

Colombia.—The Diario Oficial of April 16, gives a full account of the destruction of old issues of stamps, which took place at Bogota on Sept. 28 and Nov. 23, 1911. The number burned was 10,903,460, but the definite issues is not known.

Denmark.—The 5 ore value has now been printed in the figure type made familiar for the low values of the current set since 1905. The paper is watermarked crown and the stamps are perforated 13.

Adhesive.

5 ore dark green.

France.—Offices in Morocco.—The new set of stamps announced some time ago has been issued, specimens of the six lower values having been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. As previously announced the design is similar to the smaller stamps of the Somaliland Protectorate, in that it shows a Moorish arch and opening out beyond it a town with a tower, houses and a palm tree. The stamps are of small size, like the earlier Colonial issues, and the colors are of the nondescript character so much affected in the latter day French stamp printing. The effect is mediocre, and not at all pleasing. The inscriptions are all in Arabic Characters, the values being expressed in mouzanas.

Adhesives.

1m gray.
2m pale violet.
5m blue green.
10m brick red.
25m blue.
50m gray violet.

Gilbert and Ellice Islands.—Credit should also have been given to James A. Galbraith in No. 1124 for having shown us the 5d, 6d and 1sh values with portrait of King George.

Great Britain.—Marsh's Circular reports having found a plate variety of the current 3d King Edward stamp, Harrison print, in which the outer line of the design is missing in two places at the right side, the first being just below the square at the right top corner and the second the lower third of the tablet block. There can be no doubt as to its being a regular variety, as both used and unused stamps showing the variety have been found. In some examples there appear fine lines or hairlines in place of the two breaks, but most of the examples show the two breaks very distinctly.

Guatemala.—The Guatemalan authorities are to return to the use of special stamps for official correspondence. It is not proposed, however, to issue a special series of stamps as in 1902, but the current stamps will be surcharged with the word "Oficial." The official stamps will not be sold to the public, according to the official decree.

Kedah.—The new stamps have now come to hand, specimens having been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co. There are two sizes and three designs. The values from 1c to 8c are of small size and show a shock of padi, or newly cut rice. The values from 10c to 50c are a large oblong, 24x29 mm., and show a native plowing with a yoke of bullocks. The dollar values are of the same size and shape as the higher cent values, the central picture showing the Government Council House. The whole set is beautifully engraved and printed, on multiple CA paper, and perforated 14. The smaller design has the figures of value in all four corners, with "Postage & Revenue" at the left, "Kedah" at the bottom and native characters at the top and right. The higher cent values show an oblong oval, with the figures of value in the lower corners, and the inscriptions arranged as in the lower values. The dollar values have the frame square at the bottom with an oval top, the arrangement of figures and inscriptions being the same as in the previous design.

Adhesives.

1c green and black.
3c carmine and black.
5c yellow brown and gray green.
8c bright ultramarine and black.
10c sepia and blue.
20c green and black.
30c carmine and black.
40c red lilac and black.
50c blue and brown.
$1 carmine and black.
$2 brown and green.
$3 blue and black on blue.
$5 red and black on blue.

Newfoundland.—Harvey E. Nichols writes as follows:

"While much has been said regarding the error of the 6 cent stamp of Newfoundland, Guy issue, in spelling 'colonization' with an 's' instead of a 'z'. I have never seen chronicled in the Weekly the fact that the word 'colonizing' in the inscription at the bottom of the 2 cent of the same issue is misspelled 'colonising'. I do not know whether the error was corrected in later printings or not."

Philippines.—The 2p on the watermarked paper has been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. It was announced some time ago that this stamp had been printed and supplied to the Philippine Government, but that there was still on hand a good supply of the old 2p black, and therefore the new stamps were not to be issued until the old stock was used up. However, a few seem to have leaked out, as usual in such cases.

Adhesive.

2p brown violet.

Russia.—The Ames Stamp Co. sends us the following information, just received from a correspondent in St. Petersburg:

The new set of stamps, that is to be issued to commemorate the tercennary of the reigning dynasty of the Romanoffs, has been approved as follows:

1k orange; Peter the Great.
2k green; Alexander II.
3k rose; Alexandre III.
4k red; Peter I.
7k blue; Nicholas II.
10k blue; Nicolas II.
14k olive; Katherine the Great.
15k light brown; Nicolai II.
20k brown; Alexei Michailowitsch.
25k olive; Alexander I.
35k dark blue; Paul I.
50k brown; Elizabeth Petrowna.
70k light green; Michail Tedorowitsch.

On the rouble values the winter palace will be represented.

St. Lucia.—Our English contemporaries report having seen the 6d, with portrait of King George. It is printed on chalky multiple paper.

Adhesive.

6d lilac and mauve.

Surinam.—We are indebted to Hermann Focke for a cover, with a specimen of the 12½c provisional chronicled last week, also for information regarding the same, confirming that sent by others.

FOR THE SEASON 1911-12.

terprising young Society to perform the work has been amply proved by the complete success that, as is admitted on all hands, attended the Congress held at Margate from the 1st to the 3rd May in the present year. The meetings were attended by nearly one hundred philatelists representing upwards of forty Societies, and, for the first time I believe, ladies were to be found amongst the delegates. The representatives of our Society on this occasion were Messrs. R. B. Yardley, Baron Percy de Worms, Mr. L. L. R. Hausburg, and Mr. L. W. Fulcher, the last named taking the place of Mr. M. P. Castle, who was unfortunately unable to attend owing to ill-health. The arrangements, both for the business of the meetings and for the housing and entertainment of the delegates, were all that could be desired, and our congratulations are due to our fellow member, Mr. Leon Adutt, as the Chairman, and to his able assistants on the Committee of the Isle of Thanet Society on the success attending the Fourth Philatelic Congress.

Amongst other business transacted the Permanent Committee was continued and the hands of the Forgery Committee were strengthened by a vote of funds to provide the expenses necessarily incurred by that Committee. The Committee on Philatelic Terms reported the completion of the Glossary to which they have devoted so much time and trouble, and it was decided to accept the offer made by Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., to publish the Glossary, which will accordingly be available at an early date for consideration and criticism by philatelists, if and so far as this last may be necessary. A proposal for the establishment of a Postal Museum and a Central Philatelic Rendezvous in London was discussed and referred to a Committee for consideration of the possibility of the necessary arrangements being feasible, and for report at the next Congress.

The places for future meetings of Congress have been fixed for several years to come, and that for 1914 will be held in London at the invitation of our Society.

The holding of the first Philatelic Congress of Australasia is worthy of note as evidence of the continued increase of interest in Philately in distant parts of the Empire.

There have been several Philatelic Exhibitions during the period covered by my reports. Of these the most important was the International Exhibition held at Vienna, which proved so great a success that it was prolonged for some days beyond the time originally allotted to it. It is gratifying to be able to record that several of our members succeeded in carrying off a number of gold and other medals and awards in the various competitions arranged.

A section was also devoted to stamps at the International Exhibition at Turin, and proved attractive to a large number of visitors, as well as securing the useful purpose of increasing the popularity of Philately in Italy.

The British Guiana Philatelic Society also organized an Exhibition at Georgetown which, under the able management of our friend and fellow member, Mr. A. D. Ferguson, proved a very great success, and another Exhibition was held in Sydney in connection with the Congress. The holding of these and other Exhibitions in America and elsewhere all tends to show the world-wide interest taken in the pursuit to which we are devoted.

Exhibitions of an international character have already been announced to be held in New York in 1913, and in San Francisco so far ahead as 1915.

It was with some regret that it was decided that the Royal Philatelic Society was unable to accept an invitation to join one of the Committees of and to assist in other directions in the forthcoming Jubilee International Philatelic Exhibition to be shortly held in London under the direction and management of the Junior Philatelic Society. Although we entertain the friendliest feelings for that Society and every wish for its continued success in its undertakings, it was felt that there would of necessity be some misunderstanding as to our Society's position and intentions in regard to its own periodical International Exhibitions, and especially as regards the competitions in its championship class, if the name of our Society were used in connection with an exhibition of a professedly similar character held under the auspices of another London Society.

In my last report I called attention to the signs of increasing public interest being taken in Philately. In this respect the inclusion in the list of the recipients of Coronation Honours of the name of our Vice-President, Mr. M. P. Castle, was a source of peculiar gratification to all, both as marking the first public recognition of philately, and as conferring distinction upon one who has for so long a period rendered such valuable services to the Royal Philatelic Society, London, and to the whole community of philatelists. It is fitting that I should record the hearty congratulations of his fellow members to Mr. Castle upon the honour thus conferred upon him.

The good work done by the Manchester Philatelic Society is recognized and appreciated by all, and I may, I am sure, be permitted to offer our congratulations to that Society on the attainment of its majority in the present year, together with the expression of our sincere hopes that it may long continue its career of prosperity and usefulness.

Our congratulations are also due to our esteemed fellow member, Baron de Reuterskiöld, on the well-merited recognition of his services to Philately in the award to him of the Lindenberg medal for last year.

The most important sale of stamps in the past season has been that of the various collections formed by our President, with the exception of those of Great Britain and the United States of America—universally acknowledged to be the best in the world—which are still retained by the owner. It is gratifying to know that many of the collections will not be broken up, and that several of them, having been secured in their entirety by English collectors, will still remain in this country.

Amongst the philatelic discoveries of importance during the season special mention may be made of the finding of an unused copy of the 1d error (blue) Cape "Woodblock," to keep company with the 4d (red) stamp of the same issue, which has been known for some time past, these two being so far the only known copies of the "Woodblock" errors that have yet been discovered in unused condition.

The destruction of a large portion of the notorious "Seebeck" plates has removed from Philately an objectionable feature in regard to the issues of stamps, which it is trusted may never again be imitated in the future history of any stamp-producing countries.

To our regret several connections with the past have been severed by the deaths during the year of Mr. T. W. Chevely and Mr. C. H. Nunn amongst others of our own compatriots of M. Bernichon and M. Dorsan Astruc of France, Herr Haas of Germany, and Herr Kropf of Austria (both Lindenberg medallists), and Mr. W. J. Gardner of America, all of them philatelists held in high esteem in their respective countries throughout the long period devoted bv each of them to philately.

The development of the new process of surface-printing from steel plates, as employed by Messrs. Perkins Bacon and Co. for some of the New Zealand stamps will be watched with some interest. The advantages claimed for the system remain to be proved, but if, as I am credibly informed, upwards of one million impressions of entire sheets have been already taken from one of the plates in use in New Zealand, there can be no doubt that the increased life of the plates of itself forms a point of considerable importance in favour of the new system.

In regard to public matters affecting the postal administration, the experimental introduction of the use of aeroplanes in the postal service is deserving of passing comment. The reforms proposed in the postal relations of Great Britain and France have not yet matured, chiefly owing to financial considerations, but I am pleased to note that M. Chaumet, the French Postmaster-General, who has recently been on a visit to London, is hopeful of a practical solution being attained by easy stages, commencing with a three-halfpenny tariff between the two countries.

I have left to the last the question of the issue of the postage stamps of our own country for the present reign. At the date of my last report we were eagerly anticipating the advent of the new stamps, and the two lowest values were placed on sale on Coronation day. Our hopes and expectations were doomed to disappointment, and the appearance of the stamps was universally greeted with a chorus of disapproval. It is generally admitted on all hands that, alike in design and execution, the stamps were unworthy of the reputation of the nation, and that we were entitled to expect something vastly superior, especially as great economy was not an absolute essential in view of the enormous trading profits earned in the operation of our postal administration. We had been led to believe that at least a faithful and pleasing likeness of the King would have been provided, and it should not have been difficult to properly reproduce the excellent portrait chosen for the purpose, but even in this respect our expectations have been unfulfilled.

There were many misgivings when it became known that the production of the new issues were to be undertaken under the joint control of three separate departments instead of one as heretofore, and that the preparation of the dies and plates were to be entrusted to the authorities of the Mint, who, however, competent in their own proper work, were without practical experience in the requirements for the manufacture of postage stamps, but, at the same time, it was never for one moment anticipated that so complete a failure would have resulted.

It is fair to say that the authorities are themselves far from satisfied with the results attained, and that after strenuous endeavours and numerous experiments in various directions, some slight improvements in the appearance and workmanship of the stamps have been effected.

It was intended to complete the other values of the series to be employed as speedily as possible after the issue of the first two stamps, but, although I believe the necessary preparations were long since made, the issue was postponed in consequence of the difficulties encountered over the ½d and 1d stamps, and a further postponement became necessary on the decision being arrived at to employ an entirely new head die. It has recently been announced in Parliament that the new values will be forthcoming during the present month, and it is sincerely to be hoped that they may show a marked improvement in all respects, and so make some amends for the disappointment experienced on the appearance of those first issued.—London Philatelist.

MID-SUMMER CLEARANCE SALE

In order to increase business during a dull month, to make new friends, to obtain new names, to know more collectors as well as to raise cash for a particular purpose, we offer the following at greatly reduced prices, in many cases for less than similar items have brought at auction this past season.

TERMS:—CASH WITH ORDER; 3% discount on purchases exceeding $20.00 at one time. We say nothing about CONDITION because you may return AT ONCE anything you do not consider worth the price, and have your money back without comment. In many cases we have several of a kind, in others only one to offer; in any case it is well to send in a supplementary order to avoid possible disappointment. No goods will be sent unless ordered.

GET YOUR ALBUM OUT, and let us hear from you. No time like the present.

AT OUR OFFICES

We have a good collection both used and unused from which selections can be made at 50% from Scott's prices. Also many SPECIAL BARGAINS similar to these advertised. Also 7500 stamps listing 2c each and upwards at 1c each—you to do the selecting. This is to draw trade this way. We give better bargains than any firm in Boston for the same money.

OUR NEXT AUCTION SALE is in SEPTEMBER. Write us for catalogue, if we have not your name already. You can't afford to skip it.

WE WANT TO BUY GOOD OLD USED stamps, and will buy any submitted that are "right" as to condition and price.

A FEW WORDS TO ALL WHO WANT TO SELL

WE ARE PROBABLY BEST KNOWN IN THE PHILATELIC WORLD BY OUR AUCTION CATALOGUES WHICH HAVE PAID FORTNIGHTLY VISITS TO EVERY COLLECTOR ON OUR LISTS THIS LAST SEASON.

WE HAVE CONDUCTED

247 SALES

WHICH HAVE YIELDED UP OVER

$500,000.00

FROM THE POCKET BOOKS OF WELL PLEASED PATRONS.

ALL WHO WISH TO SELL

are invited to correspond with us before making definite arrangements. We believe we can offer you facilities and terms second to none, among which are in this country. This was built up in the only way it is possible to obtain such a list,—by years of time; hard work; careful attention; constant watchfulness; judicious, but not extravagant advertising; by numerous trips about the country and personal interviews with buyers; and best of all by the recommendations of friends and customers who have tried our sales for themselves and cheerfully recommended us to others. Such a list cannot be obtained at once by novices or by any announcement, however spectacular, by those who would immediately bloom in full foliage before they've even had time to sow the seed.

Our list is full grown, yet is kept constantly up to date by the addition of new names almost daily coming from all sources, many of which we cannot trace. Our list is our pride, and that it is the envy of all competitors is proved by the fact that we have refused offers of over $1000.00 for just the use of it.

2. NO MISREPRESENTATIONS.

In our experience we have known many to place their collections with those who made the highest estimate of probable results, often times with pitiable consequences. No one realizes more than market conditions warrant, and we do not even pretend to, yet we have never stated that a collection would or "ought to" bring $5000.00 when we knew, or "ought to" have known it would not bring $3000.00. We have lost several good sales by this policy, but have had the satisfaction of knowing that in but three instances out of all our 247 sales have results been under our final estimates, and then only trifling. We guarantee a perfectly square deal, and honest prophecy, whether business results or not.

3. NEAT AND ATTRACTIVE CATALOGUES.

We believe it is quite generally conceded that our catalogues are the neatest and most "appealing" that you receive. No one is apt to throw them in the waste basket without looking at them, and they don't get by without notice. Typographically they are executed by that well-known Collector-Printer—Bacon of Derby, Conn., who has never yet met defeat in his line. We write them along careful and conservative lines, just to buyer and seller alike. They are plain and explicit, yet not so plain as to make reading them a bore, or so terrifically and categorically explicit as to make a study of them seem like delving into a cyclopedia. They are a joy to the mind and not a weariness to the spirit. This means more bids for the seller and better results.

4. TWENTY YEARS' EXPERIENCE which cannot be lightly brushed aside as of no value.

5. OUR RESOURCES

for those who wish loans on their collections pending sale.

6. PROMPT SETTLEMENTS.

Generally a substantial check a week or two after a sale. The rest with full accounting always inside of thirty days when the foreign and long distance bills are paid to us.

7. RESPONSIBILITY.

Established to any one's satisfaction. We are not a corporation, and our obligations are not hedged around or evaded. The best way we can protect our interests is by so protecting our clients that they feel perfectly at ease while we are doing business for them.

8. LOWEST RATES.

Our terms are positively the lowest of any firm in good standing. On a collection which would bring about $2000.00 in a one night's sale, we should charge of the gross proceeds. This covers all expenses incurred. In the present state of civilization this is satisfactory to us and with care and attention to details will yield us a remunerative profit although it will not make riches for us. We are content to take that in the good old fashioned way, a little at a time. On casual consignments of ordinary material, to be included in "open" sales we charge 20%. These rates will be quoted for a year at least.

15 Per Ct. FIFTEEN PER CENT. 15 Per Ct.

WE BELIEVE YOU CAN REALIZE MORE for your collection through one of our sales than any other method, short of going into the business for yourself, but if you need money right away and cannot wait the outcome of a sale, we will buy outright any property which suits us both in condition and price.

Correspond with us anyway. We'll give all the information you desire in your particular case, and as fully as you want it. We can also arrange an interview within reasonable limits. We can get together anyway and do business if possible.

N. B.—Several of the record prices for this season occurred in our sales. Priced catalogue of our 241st, or any other, 50 cents each.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE STAMPS OF SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA.—A WORD IN THEIR FAVQR.

By AL. DE LA TORRE BUENO.

The ignorance regarding the political divisions of certain parts of the world, especially of the Spanish American countries, displayed by the average man is indeed appalling, but when we find that this ignorance also prevails among stamp collectors (I use the phrase "stamp collectors" advisedly, as the true philatelist is thoroughly posted in such matters), it is not alone appalling, but heart rending.

In South America there are eleven republics, each as free and independent from each other and from the outside world as are the United States; in Central America there are five republics, also free and independent, though at one time they tried the experiment of the República Mayor de Centro América (the Greater Republic of Central America), but this unification of diverse interests did not prove a success, and it was not long before the five republics were again acting absolutely independent of each other. There is, therefore, a total of sixteen independent republics, without counting the four European colonies with which this article has nothing to do, in Central and South America.

The average person classes all of South and Central America as one country, and whatever political disturbance may occur in any one of the republics is said to be in South America, thus, through ignorance, effecting a vast territory comprising nearly a score of free and sovereign nations. This same state of affairs seems to obtain among stamp collectors. It is not fair, however, that on account of the fact that some of the practices employed by a few of these countries have been most reprehensible, from a philatelic standpoint, that they should all suffer from the approbrium which should attach only to the few culprits.

About the year 1890 Mr. Seebeck, then Manager for the Hamilton Bank Note Company, of New York, entered into an agreement with certain of the Central American Republics for furnishing them postage stamps; other countries followed, till at one time or another, between the years 1890 and 1898, he had entered into similar arrangements with four countries—three in Central America and one in South America.

The arrangements which Mr. Seebeck or his agents, made with these countries were, broadly speaking, upon the following lines: Mr. Seebeck was to furnish a new issue of stamps each year free and in consideration for this service he was to receive all the remainders and besides retain the plates and enjoy the privilege, after the lapse of the year of issue and of the consequent demonetization of the stamps, of reprinting same and selling these reprints and remainders to collectors and dealers. This naturally gave these countries a philatelic black eye, as these "Seebeck" stamps, as the stamps issued under these contracts became and are still known among philatelists, were considered nothing more or less than waste paper, except such as had been sold and postally used during the year of issue.

Even uncancelled stamps bought at the post offices of these countries during the year of issue, and which can be distinguished from those printed after the regular issue had been demonetized, are looked upon askance on account of the sale of the remainders, and these countries, as a whole, are in bad odor. But why should this feeling spread and embrace the whole of South and Central America? Why?—merely on account of the lamentable lack of knowledge of their political divisions.

As stated above there are but four countries in all South and Central America—one, Ecuador, in South America and three, San Salvador, Nicaragua and Honduras, in Central America—which rightly belong to the "Seebeck" group, or in other words, but one-fourth of all the Spanish American countries, yet all suffer from the odium which should attach only to these four.

I repeat, is it fair because one-fourth of the countries have earned for themselves an unenviable philatelic reputation and that merely embracing a certain period of their issues—1890 to 1898—that all, or say the other three-fourths, should be classified with them and suffer the approbium which attaches to the "Seebeck" countries?

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

The limited demand for South and Central American stamps, which now seems to be on the increase, indicates clearly that they have all been placed under the ban, and yet we can start down the east coast of South America, beginning with Brazil and continuing with Uruguay, Paraguay and the Argentine Republic and we find that these countries are absolutely free from speculative issues or errors made to order, and that as a matter of fact they contain nothing but straightforward government issues.

Coming up the west coast we find that conditions are not quite so promising. Chile is an absolutely clean country, with the exception of the Juan Fernandez issue, the work of an unscrupulous official which miscarried. Peru has nothing to blush for philatelically. Whatever may be said about certain issues can attach no odium to the postal authorities of the country, as it was the work of an invading foe—Chile—which held the postoffices for some time. Even the counterfeits are the work of Chilians. In 1895 there appeared a provisional issue in the North of Peru the status of which is somewhat doubtful, beyond this there is no blot on the escutcheon.

Benighted Bolivia in her interior fastness has not developed sufficiently in worldly wisdom to attempt to exploit the philatelist by issuing speculative issues and unnecessary surcharges; her stamps are crude, but the issues are bona fide.

The United States of Colombia should blush for its postal department, not on account of its methods but on account of its system which allows each state to have its separate stamps, thus making it about the most prolific stamp producing country in the world and a nightmare to the collector. No reproach attaches to the Republic of Panama.

Some of the issues of Venezuela unfortunately verge very near the "Seebeck" class.

In Central America we have Guatemala and Costa Rica as two countries against which nothing can be said to their discredit.

It is an easy matter to separate the wheat from the tares in all these countries, even in the "Seebeck countries;" but if the philatelist has not the required knowledge he can buy it by purchasing all stamps which he may have a doubt about from some absolutely reliable dealer upon whose knowledge he may depend, and who will, in the case of the more rare stamps give a guarantee as to their genuineness. The difference in the cost of the stamps will be a cheap price to pay for his knowledge and for the certainty of having none but genuine stamps. Again the collector can cull these undesirable issues—the ugly ducklings of philately—and still leave many valuable and interesting philatelic treasures in all these "Seebeck" countries.

That many Central and South American stamps are desirable and hard to get is shown by the fact that the prices have gone up and that even at the advanced price one has to search far and wide for them. Forget the "Seebeck" bugaboo and get into line before the prices become much higher and while there are still a few of the desirable stamps on the market.

THREE-CENT PIECE COMING.

Clipping from M. S. KARLITSKY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Mayor Newton Baker of Cleveland has found many prominent advocates of the bill by Representative Bulkley of Ohio, providing for the coinage of a three-cent piece. Mr. Bulkley gave the letters to the senate committee on finances today, when he urged the passage of the law.

Among them is one by Andrew Carnegie endorsing the idea if the "coin is not too small." Mayor Gaynor of New York objects to calling the new money a "coin" and prefers "token." He says the "five-cent token" has done inestimable good for the country and established a small price for a number of necessities such as street car fares.

Theodore Roosevelt writes:

"That strikes me as a first-class suggestion, and I will gladly back it up."

Woodrow Wilson, governor of New Jersey, says:

"Let me snatch a moment of a crowded day to say that I take pleasure in authorizing the use of my name in connection with a memorial to the senate favoring the coinage of a 3-cent piece."

Other letters read were by Louis D. Brandies, Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago; Rudolph Blankenburg, mayor of Philadelphia; Charles Zueblin, editor of the Twentieth Century Magazine; W. S. U'Ren of Oregon; President Hadley of Yale; Richard T. Ely, Lyman Abbott, Ben B. Lindsey, Winston Churchill and Henry T. Hunt, mayor of Cincinnati.

A STUDY IN VALUATIONS.

By HUBERT LYMAN CLARK.

During a recent vacation, I had the opportunity to go over at my leisure three stamp collections and I undertook the pleasant task of pricing them by the 1911 and then by the 1912 Standard Catalog. The results proved of so much interest to the owners of the collections and to myself that it occurred to me your readers also might be interested.

The smallest collection consists of about 2500 stamps, used and unused, in three sections; United States (including some cheap revenues) and colonies; British Empire; the rest of the world. For convenience we will call the latter "Foreign." In these sections, no distinction is made between nineteenth and twentieth century stamps. The United States section catalogs by the 1912 list, about $42.00 which is an increase of 12% over its valuation by last year's list. The British section catalogs $47.30, an increase of 14% over 1911. The Foreign section catalogs $78.45, which is an increase of 17% over its 1911 value. It will be noticed that this collection is made up of cheap stamps; indeed there are only nine stamps in it cataloging a dollar or more. The most interesting point is that the United States stamps have increased in value the least, while the "Foreign" show a decidedly greater increase than the British.

The second collection consists of over five thousand stamps, cataloging well over a thousand dollars. There are many stamps catalogued at over five dollars each. Both used and unused stamps are included, but the collection is divided into two sections, nineteenth and twentieth century. There are nearly two thousand twentieth century stamps, chiefly from English speaking countries. They catalog almost $250.00 and show an increase over 1911 of 16%. The nineteenth century stamps (nearly 3300) catalog about $800, but curiously enough show an increase of only 6½%. This seems to me very odd, for the collection, while weak in French and Portuguese colonies, is otherwise fairly representative.

The third collection consists of more than 8000 stamps, cataloging over $1450. This collection consists wholly of used stamps, the owner having little interest in mint specimens. There is no separation of nineteenth from twentieth century stamps. The valuation of this collection has increased during the year some 14%.

It seems to me from my examination of these collections that three conclusions may fairly be drawn:

(1) Postage stamps are a remarkably good investment. Suppose we say the selling value of these collections is only one-fourth or one-fifth of their catalog value, the fact remains that their intrinsic value has increased 10-15%. That is much better than many far more hazardous investments.

(2) Used stamps are fully as desirable property as unused. This conclusion is confirmed by the study of separate countries in the catalog. For example, Netherlands unused have gone up about 17½%, the used about 16%; Jamaica, unused have gone up about 30%, used about 48%, if one counts unpriced used stamps at value of unused; Wurtemberg, unused have gone up 16%, but the used have gone up 50%!

(3) Twentieth century stamps seem to be increasing in value more rapidly than nineteenth. In Jamaica, the nineteenth century stamps have increased about 20%, but those of the twentieth have boomed and average over 100% higher. The stamps of New Hebrides listed in last year's catalog are now priced 129% higher! This, by the way, is the largest increase I have noted for any country. It seems to me probable that the reason for the apparent boom in twentieth century stamps, is not the greater demand for them, but the fact that the prices of the nineteenth century stamps represent more nearly the actual value of the stamp, based on definite knowledge as to its relative abundance or scarcity, while the prices of twentieth century are based on much less definite knowledge and are consequently bound to undergo violent changes.

In conclusion it may be of interest to add that many stamps, chiefly of the twentieth century, have increased several hundred per cent. in value. Thus New Hebrides No. 15 has risen 800%, while Jamaica No. 41 has risen 971% unused and 1150% used. I shall be interested to know if anyone can find a more remarkable increase than that.

EDITOR STANTON SAYS:—

It seems to us that never in the history of the A. P. S. has there been so little interest manifested as at present. But one set of officers in the field and the only apparent interest in what plunder can be got out of an official organ. This looks well for the representative American stamp society. What good is the average collector getting from the Society at the present time? We have not seen a report of the Society for months even through "exchange" courtesy. Probably many others have been likewise in the dark. One thing the forthcoming convention should do is to make MEKEEL'S WEEKLY the official organ of the Society on the same terms as formerly.,It would be a great mistake to have any other paper at any price. MEKEEL'S is the only philatelic newspaper.—Philatelic Tribune.

Edwardian Stamps of the British Empire

BY DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG

This book is Volume II of the series inaugurated by Bright & Son and known as "Bright's Philatelic Library." In the volume before us the Edwardian issues of Antigua,Bahamas,Bechuanaland Protectorate, British Central Africa, British Honduras, Canada,Cape Colony,Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus and Dominica are illustrated and described.

In addition to the bibliography there is an appendix giving the colonial color scheme, and the entire volume is one that will appeal to the philatelist who makes any attempt at a philatelic library.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

DENVER, COLO., July 31, 1912.

To the Members of the M. P. A.

I am just in receipt of the Philadelphia Stamp News from which I learn that Editor Mr. Mann has been nominated for president of the M. P. A. At this writing I have not been favored with a ballot of the M. P. A. or the Year Book, consequently have not known the state of affairs of the Society on this point, altho being Vice President of the Society. I had promised a few friends, members of the M. P. A. that I would allow my name to be used for president, providing no other candidate could be found to accept the nomination.

I feel that an injustice has been done me in this respect; as I was more than willing to drop out of sight in the M. P. A., providing, someone could be found to lead the Association on to greater victories and a greater success.

Without notice, my name has been added to the ballot for president in opposition to Mr. Mann (as I learn thru the press) and I herewith respectfully withdraw my name, (it having never been placed on the ballot with my consent, under the circumstances) in favor of Mr. Mann. I trust that the members of the M. P. A. will give Mr. Mann a unanimous vote.

H. A. DAVIS.

CHAPTER VI.

12 Cents, 1851-1860, Imperforate.

HISTORICAL.

Issue authorized, March 3, 1851.
Issued to postmasters, July 1, 1851.
Number of plates, 2 (Nos. 1-2).
Issued Perforated Feb. ——, 1857.
Number of plates, 1 (No. 1).

About the most uninteresting stamp for study found in the second issue of our postal history is that of the 12 cent, both imperforate and perforated. Black never was a thing of beauty, and when this is coupled to a stamp which possesses no plate or line varieties worthy of mention, it becomes one of those things which a collector hurries to fill up the blank space and forgets that he has it. This stamp has the disadvantage of a full rectangular engraving, and for that reason it is seldom found well centered.

The catalog quotes two varieties—perforated and imperforate—and no shades. A variety designated is the stamp bisected, used as six cents. Practically two stamps completes the issue, so why study?

To the specialist, however, a little larger sphere of study is opened up than the catalog affords. Each variety comes in three distinct shades, making six regularly recognized collectible stamps.

Then, too, it is found in the different perforations of those before mentioned, i. e., 15 and 15½. As each of these perforation varieties exists all around, and in combination horizontally and vertically, one can put 24 stamps into his collection without duplicating.

Add to this the trial printings, the reprint, the India and cardboard proofs, and a broken outerline to left, a pair, and the bisected stamp, one has made up a very respectable collection of this abominable looking "sticker."

It is said that the stamp, imperforate, exists on the watermarked paper, mentioned in connection with the 1 cent and 3 cent of the same issue.

Penmarked, black and red cancellations are about even in their commonness. A Paid or Carrier (used on parcel) cancellation is worth a considerable premium. A year-dated postmark is quite rare. I have never seen a green cancellation.

Shades in each variety are: Gray black, black, and deep heavy black.

Check list, as I collect this stamp:

12 CENT 1851-1860.
Imperforate.

Three shades.
Cancellations.
Broken outerline at left.
Pair.
Trial printings.
Proof on India paper.
Cardboard proof.

Perforated.

Shades.
Cancellations.
Perforated 15 all around.
Perforated 15½ all around.
Perforated 15 vertically, 15½ horizontally.
Perforated 15½ vertically, 15 horizontally.
Reprint—perforated 12.

24 Cent 1851-1860.

Issued, June 15, 1860.
Number of plates, 1 (No. 1).

The comparative scarcity of this and the two higher denominations of this stamp precludes any wide study. I doubt if much satisfaction could be had if one possessed a thousand to examine, so little is the variation in color or plate differences. Mr. Luff designates the shades as red lilac, lilac, gray lilac, gray, slate, blackish violet, dull red lilac. My advice to collectors is to watch the stamps offered, and if they find a shade which differs materially from those they have, to gather it in, with no attempt to classify the shades.

The stamp is said to have been issued imperforate for postal use. This is a moot question which few of my readers will care to discuss. Few will ever possess the stamp other than in proof form, imperforate, so why discuss at length whether it was or was not so used?

I am confident that the stamp was only perforated 15, but in this I may be mistaken. Have never had opportunity to measure any great number of them—all were 15. So, until proof to the contrary is forthcoming I will fondly dream that I do not need many more to round up the complete issue. Check list:

24 CENT. 1851-1860.

Shades.
Cancellations.
Reprint.
Trial printings.
Proof on India paper.
Card board proof.

30 Cent 1851-1860.

Issued August 12, 1860.
Number of plates, 1 (No. 1).

With the exception of the shades the remarks above will cover all that I can say of the 30 cent stamp, I will amend this with the statement that it exists in black printing, said to have been delivered to at least one postoffice and used postally. I have seen one copy of this stamp. Personally I should class it as a finished essay, but my say does not "go" in stamp collecting.

The shades are: yellow orange, orange, deep orange.

Use same check list as above.

90 Cent 1851-1860.

Issued August 13, 1860.
Number of plates, 1 (No. 1).

To say much about this stamp is but to repeat what I have already said of the 24 and 30 cent denominations. It comes in two shades—indigo and deep indigo, and in used condition is so rare that few will attempt to collect the different cancellations. The only respectable showing which can be made is to get an unused copy in one shade, a used in another, then add the government reprint, the trial printings, and proofs on India paper and cardboard.

A RETRACTION.

At the request of an advertiser we recently reported Benj. Weisner of N. Y. City for unsatisfactory business relations. Upon investigation we find the charge without foundation and as will be noted in our news gleanings elsewhere, the complaint has been withdrawn. We publish this retraction in justice to Mr. Weisner and regret the the undesirable publicity that has been given him.

In this connection we wish to say that hereafter we cannot undertake to publish complaints unless same have been submitted to an attorney and passed upon in such a manner as to satisfy us that every possible effort has been made to secure a settlement. The WEEKLY takes every precaution possible to protect both subscriber and advertiser, but it cannot serve as a collecting agency.

EDITORIAL.

Possible Choice—We have been given to understand that our suggestion that the discovery of gold at Sutter's mill, California, be selected for portraiture on one of the stamps of the Pacific-Panama set has been received with commendation by one of the gentlemen interested in the choice of designs and that it will be advocated as an alternate subject at least. In choosing the themes for the stamps, the application of the design to the restricted area of the stamp must be borne in mind, and an idea for illustration on the stamp that sounds well does not always look well on the stamp if put into execution. Artists in entering design contests often do not plan their creations on a postage stamp scale and so results then are dubious; in fact, competitions of the kind are known to be disappointing in many cases.

Good Deeds Will Never Die—Here is a stamp story that shows virtue in the shape of a stamp dealer receiving its own reward. A dealer with a big Saturday afternoon boy trade made it a rule to ask each of his boys on their departure, if they had kept carfare. It need not be explained that the young collector in his enthusiasm sometimes overbuys. One boy replied that he had kept a dime out of his stamp money, as he left for home, but soon after he returned to the stamp-shop and tremblingly said that he had lost the ten cents. "Here," said the dealer, "split this dime and put a nickel in each pocket," whereat the boy breathed a sigh of relief. The next Monday, the dealer had a caller in the person of the boy's father, who said that his son—the apple of his eye—had told him of the dealer's kindness and that he wanted to meet the stamp man. The father said that no one would ever lose by taking the word of the boy, who had insisted that his father pay the debt at once and give back the dime. The father did and a short time later, a box of expensive cigars with the card of the father was received by the dealer. You can never tell what the boy philatelist will develop into,—and he may have a wealthy father.

Where?—What has become of the old-fashioned collector who used to save the gummed margins around sheets of the current stamps for hinges Has he joined the o. f. c. who used to boast that he never spent any money for stamps but got them by trading?

One May See It—Our cherished correspondent, Mr. Arthur W. Line, Pasadena, California, relates the following tale that has been reported from India, by one of his collecting friends: "There is a nice little story told in connection with the issue of the new rupee coin and stamps. If you look just above the figure of value on the King George one anna stamp, you will notice a 'thing' that looks like a cross between an elephant and a pig, and which the employment of a little imagination will develop into either. Personally, I think that it resembles an elephant more than a porker but when the new rupee piece was coined some one foolishly or maliciously spread the rumor that the new coin bore the effigy of a pig and that the purpose of it was to defile the Mahometans who touched it, for, as you know, the followers of the prophet are forbidden even to think of pig. The rumor gained great ground and many of the more ignorant natives refused to handle the coin or stamps. At first, it was thought that it would be necessary to recall the issue but the example and advice set and given by the more enlightened natives did away with the necessity for such a move." The object on the stamp in question plainly is to be seen and the peculiarity is rather more striking than some of those that have been chronicled on some of the new stamp issues of the past.

Tale of Woe—A philatelic ex-publisher writes: "You certainly hit the mark with your editorial in the issue of July 27th, and if I had ever met you, I should have thought that I had told you of my experience and that you were repeating it. My idea in starting my paper was not a selfish one as I intended to use the profits from the venture in improving my collection, which was a good one for those times. My expectations were knocked flat and I was forced to sell my collection in order to obtain the money with which to pay the printer for the second (and last) number. When the subscriptions did not come that Monday morning that you tell about, I felt that some one must have purloined the letters enclosing them. I would have given up but I had heard that the subscriptions always rolled in after the second number of a new paper had appeared. They may have rolled all right but if they did it was not in my direction. Why do you not run a symposium of the experiences of philatelic ex-publishers?"

Big Doings—Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, has become a philatelic center through the well-measured activity of a number of enthusiastic collectors who are not averse to attracting attention to the philatelic charms of their city. Harrisburg has been chosen as the seat of the convention of the Southern Philatelic Association and the Metropolitan Philatelic Association, respectively. The amalgamation of the two societies will be discussed at the convention and it is hoped that favorable action will be taken as the Southern Philatelic Association no longer cultivates its sectional field but competes with the Metropolitan. Entertainment of an exalted order will be provided at the meeting; and that simon-pure philatelic humorist, L. P. Miller, whose "Stamps of Mars" created a veritable sensation in the centers of polite literature abroad is prepared at a moment's notice to transmute the unbidden tear to a pearl of joy when the deliberations of the delegates become avid and agitated. Then there is A. P. Bodmer, master of both prose and poetry, who will further soften the once tumultuous members by a poem attuned to the hour. Since Mr. Bodmer contributed the following to the Southern Philatelist, he is our favorite poet:

The years have fled with a noiseless tread,
Like day dreams away,
But still there stands like a shining light,
MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, old and gray,
And the winds of prosperity are blowing there,
For C. E. Severn's in the editorial chair.

Up Guards and at Him—B. L. T., whose column in the Chicago Tribune is quoted from coast to coast has never shown a fitting regard for philately, we are grieved to say. While he does not besmirch our beloved hobby, outright, yet he likes to give it a smack when it is not looking. When he becomes insufferable in his conduct, the editorialists of the stamp papers seek the offender's scalp. B. L. T.'s latest perpetration is as follows: "Speaking of melodious monickers, Mr. Pingpank is a bookseller in Indianapolis." When it is told that Mr. Carl Pingpank of Indianapolis for many years was a member of the Chicago Philatelic Society and consequently a philatelist of repute, B. L. T.'s stealthy attack on philately is understood. Hold! can it be that we are mistaken and that by the same token, B. L. T. has complimented philately?

STAMPS OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS.

By A. Leon Adutt.

The Cayman Islands are a British possession administratively attached to Jamaica, being 178 miles W. N. W. of Negril Point and about equal distance from Cuba. The largest is Grand Cayman, seventeen miles in length. Georgetown, the principal port, has a population of about 2,000; Bodden Town, near, about 1,000; and other smaller towns in the island number a further 1,800, there being in 1907 5,000 people in the island. The Lesser Caymans consist of Little Cayman and Cayman Brac, about sixty miles distant. The word Cayman is generally considered to have been derived from the Carib word "Caiman" meaning an "alligator," which the outline of the principal island is supposed to represent.

The islands were discovered by Columbus in 1494, and were named by him "Las Tortugas"—from the number of turtle which were seen on the shores; and to this day turtle fishing forms the staple industry, large quantities being shipped from all parts of the world, first being distributed from Jamaica. The only communication between these islands is by means of sailing vessels, which call at intervals at Georgetown on their way to and from South American ports, Jamaica, and Cuba. The first mailing arrangements with these islands were made by means of schooners plying at intervals between the ports of Kingston, Jamaica and Georgetown, Grand Cayman, in 1889.

A full and very interesting report of the dependency and the postal affairs and stamps of the Cayman Islands has recently been published in a book written by Mr. D. B. Armstrong, in collaboration with Messrs. C. B. Bostwick and A. J. Watkin, entitled "The Cayman Islands, Their Stamps and Post Office," published at 2s nett. This work must always remain a standard one for reference, and is of great interest to collector and specialist alike, and I am greatly indebted to the same for many of my notes in this paper.

Early in 1907 an inland postal system was started in Grand Cayman. This service has from time to time been extended, and for one year, from 1908 to 1909, a special monthly service of steamships was maintained, the company receiving a subsidy from the Governments of £500. Unfortunately the contract was not renewed, although owing to the rapid growth of the islands it is anticipated that in the near future the service will be resumed.

The first stamps used were those of Jamaica as follows:—

Issue 1883-87. Watermark Crown CA. Perf. 14.

1d purple and mauve.
2d green.
2½d dull purple and blue.
4d orange-brown.

Issue 1900. Llandovery Falls.

Overprinted "Official."

These stamps were current for ten years previous to the first separate postage stamp issue of the Cayman Islands, and are postmarked by various cancelling stamps. Jamaica stamps with the word "Official" printed across them were also used for administrative correspondence. Although numbers of these stamps must have been used, they are exceedingly scarce and very difficult to find; so far I have only succeeded in obtaining eight specimens, of the following values: ½d, two; 1d, two; 2d, one; and 2½d, three.

I show in my specialized collection proofs of each value of the colour trials of the first regular postage stamp issue of the Cayman Islands Queen's Head; they are printed in the accepted colours from the general colonial key-plate, and have the name and value tablets filled in by hand with water-colour paint to show the general effect. These are the only proofs of the Cayman Islands stamps that have been so far discovered.

The First Separate Issue of Postage Stamps.

Instructions were given early in 1900 to the Crown Agents for the Colonies in London for the preparation of an initial series of two values, and supplies of these were printed in England and shipped to Georgetown, being first placed on sale in September of that year. The stamps were of the face value of ½d and 1d, and printed by Messrs. De La Rue and Co., at their London works, and were of the manufacture known as typographed or surface printed.

The stamps were printed from the "General Colonial Key-plate" containing 120 impressions embodying a small portrait of her late Majesty Queen Victoria, the word Postage twice repeated; at the top and foot of this design blank tablets existed for the insertion of the name of the colony and denomination of the stamp. These two items were duly printed at a second operation from a plate known as a "duty plate," and, being composed of sixty impressions only, had to be applied twice to sheets of stamps printed from the Key-plate mentioned above.

Sheets of this issue consisted of 120 stamps arranged in two frames of sixty, side by side, each containing ten horizontal rows of six stamps, while in the four corners of the sheet the white numeral "3" appeared on a solid circle of colour, being the number of the key-plate then in use. The paper was white wove, watermarked with the Royal Crown, with the letters C A below, one complete watermark being on each separate stamp; the white margins of the sheets were watermarked also with the inscription "Crown Agents for—the Colonies," the usual De La Rue perforation of 14 being used. The number printed was as follows:—807⅔ sheets of ½d=face value of £201 18s 4d. 816 sheets 1d= face value of £408 0s 0d. 722 copies of each value being sent to the Postal Union authorities as "Specimens" to the countries of the Union. Several shades are known of both values, ranging from grey-green to dark green and from pale rose to deep carmine. It is interesting to note that the Cayman Islands were members of the Postal Union as far back as 1877.

At the end of the year 1902 the ½d stamp was obsolete, but the 1d value was in use till the following March, when on the appearance of the new King's Head stamps it was withdrawn from sale. The Crown Agents offered the following remainders of this stamp for sale in March, 1908: 279 complete sheets and 168 odd copies.

Neither this nor any issues to date of the postage stamps of these islands have been demonetized, and I have specimens of the Queen's Head issues postally used as late as December, 1910. A minor variety exists of these stamps, and subsequent issues consists of the word Islands with the letters all evenly spaced, and on a close examination it is observed with 75 per cent. at least the space between the letters S and L is greater than between the remaining letters of the word Islands—thus, IS LANDS. The variety is permanent.

Summary.

1900. Queen's Head. Watermark Crown CA. Perf. 14.

1d, ½d green (various shades).
2d, 1d carmine (shades from pale rose to deep carmine).

Second Issue (King's Head).

The stamps previously referred to were, late in the following year, supplemented by an issue of three new values, namely, 2½d, 6d, and 1s, which, owing to the death of Queen Victoria, consisted of a new type bearing a small profile of King Edward VII, the difference being that the new head was displayed against a solid background instead of a lined one; which can scarcely be considered an improvement.

These Cayman Islands stamps were actually the first to be printed from the new key-plate and bear on the margins of their sheets the plate number "1" in place of the figure "3" as in the Queen's Head issue. It is interesting, also to note that the two Queen's Head stamps of the Cayman Islands were the last printed from the old general colonial "Postage—Postage" key-plate, and these King's Head values the first from the new. The numbers printed were as follows:—2½d, blue, 13,560; 6d, brown, 5,400; 1s, orange, 3,240.

Not till September 15th, 1902, was the ½d value of the new King's Head type placed on sale, whilst the 1d value did not make its appearance until March 6th, 1903. Various shades are found in all the above values. The varieties to be found consist of the IS LANDS before mentioned, and a duty plate variety consisting of a short or damaged first down-stroke of the letter "M" of the word Cayman, thus—M. It occurs in each frame, being numbers 27 and 87 on the sheet. This variety occurs on the 2½d value only. The lines of shading on the forehead also show signs of variation, probably due to the wearing of the plate or bad inking.

I also show in my collection several experimental trials printed from the King's Head "Postage—Postage" key-plate in conjunction with ½d and 1s duty plates, and apparently intended by the printers as suggestions for the colour scheme of the bi-coloured series of 1907. Several of these consist of a very pretty combination, and it is to be regretted none were accepted. The following is a list of the colour trials shown:—½d, pale mauve; ½d, brown; ½d, brown and mauve; ½d ultramarine; ½d French grey and carmine; 1s, French grey; 1s, brown and green; 1s, orange and slate-blue.

Summary.

1901-2. King's Head. Watermark Crown CA (Single). Perf. 14.

1d carmine (shades).
2½d ultramarine (shades to deep blue).
6d brown (light and dark shades).
1s orange (pale and deep shades).

Third Issue (Multiple Watermark CA).

A supply of this issue of all values, with the exception of the 1d, reached the Cayman Islands early in March, 1905, and were immediately placed on sale The numbers in the first consignment were not considerable, for the numbers on hand at Georgetown a month later with the new multiple watermark were: —½d, 12,000; 2½d, 10,500; 6d, 1,154; 1s, 995.

By June the 6d and 1s values were entirely sold out, and a fresh supply of all values, including the new penny, was despatched from London in August, 1905, and placed on sale in the Islands on October 18th. The numbers were as follows:—½d, 12,600; 1d, 12,000; 2½d, 12,240; 6d, 1,440; 1s, 1,440. Remainders of the above were offered for sale by the Crown Agents in March, 1908, very few of the 1d value being left, as will be shown later.

Shades may be found in all denominations; also plate varieties before described, the arrangement of the sheets in both these last issues being alike.

Summary.

1905. King's Head. Watermark Multiple Crown CA. Perf. 14.

½d green, various shades.
1d carmine to rose.
2½d ultramarine, shades varying to deep blue.
6d brown, shades from pale to very deep.
1s orange, shades from pale to deep orange.

The Fourth or Bi-Coloured Issue.

Owing to new stamp duty law by which a number of new duties were imposed in respect of several instruments and documents, raised for additional revenue purposes, coming into force on November 8th, 1906, which duties ranged from 1d to two guineas, it was deemed advisable to bring into use a higher facial denomination than the 1s, so accordingly a supply of 5s stamps were ordered.

At the same time a fresh supply of 6d and 1s stamps were made, these latter being printed for the first time in two colours instead of one, and a 4d stamp in two colours being added to the new series. All of which were first placed on sale on March 13th, 1907.

For 4d and 5s values new duty plates had of course to be made. The plate variety of short lines across the King's forehead is especially noticeable on the stamps of this issue, which remained in use for about one year only, when they were superseded by the "Postage and Revenue Issue."

It is generally understood that there were five thousand only printed of the 5s value, as with the others one printing only was made. This stamp, being used to a great extent for the Provisionals, which followed later, undoubtedly is the most rare of all the Cayman stamps (excluding the Provisionals).

It is generally thought these bi-coloured stamps were issued in error, for shortly after being placed on sale instructions were received from the Governor of Jamaica that the remaining stocks of old uni-coloured stamps were to be withdrawn from circulation. This order was carried out, and in addition the whole of the remaining stock of the low value single colour King's Head stamps which were on hand were also withdrawn. This serious depletion of the stock on hand was mainly responsible for the Provisional issues that followed.

Summary.

Bi-coloured. King's Head. Watermark Multiple Crown CA. Perf. 14. Name and value in second colour. Unsurfaced paper.

4d brown and blue.
6d olive and rose.
1s violet and green.
5s salmon and emerald.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by Henry A. Kidder.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

BAVARIA.—Mr. Schachne shows us another "Fest" card having the current 5pf stamp. At left end is a large rectangle with "VIII Deutsches Saugerbundesfest Nurnberg 27-31 Juli 1912" in four lines in its upper section. The usual colored illustration covers the back side.

Post Card.

5pf green on white.

BOLIVIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us two other provisional postage stamps made by surcharging the current fiscal stamps with "Correos—1912" in two lines, thus making them available for postage. These are supplementary to the 10c provisional chronicled in No. 1118.

Provisional Adhesives.

2c green; black surcharge.
5c orange; red surcharge.

The 10c provisional chronicled in No. 1118 was issued in April, the 2c green in June and the 5c orange in May.

CYPRUS.—A. C. Roessler is officially informed that the 20pa, 4pi and 6pi stamps of the new Georgian series were placed on sale July 10 or earlier. The 5pa King Edward stamp is running short and will be the next Georgian value to appear, to be followed in three or four months by the 30pa and 1pi values.

FRENCH COLONIES.—Some time ago it was announced that the French Colonial authorities had destroyed certain remainders of the older issues of stamps of the various Colonies, which had been kept in Paris for sale to dealers. Evidently, this was not done before occasion had been taken to print a lot of provisionals, French Guinea, Martinique, New Caledonia and Reunion being thus honored. The overprint consists of large figures "05" and "10," 18 mm. tall, and placed nearly in the centre of the stamps. Some of these surcharged figures are printed in red and some in black, though we are not able to give any but those indicated in the following list, which have been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. The list is partly made up from the information given us by the above firm, and partly from a list which appeared in L'Echo de la Timbrologie, and translated by Ewen's Weekly. The overprints were very neatly printed, evidently in the home printing office in Paris. The provisionals thus far known are:

GREAT BRITAIN.—A new watermark has been provided for the stamps of Great Britain, according to Marsh's Circular, from which we reproduce the following:

"A new watermark is to be introduced for the Georgian postage stamps, consisting of a small Crown over the Royal Cypher in script G R V. The watermark is to be a multiple one, but it does not extend to the edges of the sheet, which are still to have the watermark POSTAGE. Some of the National Health Insurance stamps have already been printed and issued on this paper, so collectors who wish to see may get permission from some obliging postal official to inspect a sheet of these Insurance stamps. The watermark is not at all a distinct one, judging by the few sheets we have been permitted to inspect, and unless one knew what it was it would be no easy task to distinguish the Crown or the Cypher."

The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly, in the number dated July 20, says that the values of the Georgian stamps, 1½d and upward had been issued as the number went to press. No particulars are yet forthcoming, except that the values and colors are the same as the King Edward series.

QUEENSLAND.—Late arrivals from Mr. Schachne show very creditably. The 1d stamps are Scott's A14 and the 1½d is same except the change in value. The material is a chalk white glazed surface for the cards and a somewhat rough blue tinted paper for the letter cards. The divided face single card has the entire back covered with views but the others are blank. The three headlines for both single cards are "Post Card—Queensland—Commonwealth of Australia"; the 1x1d with four "Union Postale Universelle—Commonwealth of Australia—Queensland—Post Card with reply paid" on the first and same on the reply except the fourth line is "Reply Post Card." The 1½d double as well as the letter cards make no mention of the Commonwealth. The single letter card has the same design for the face as the last issue of the 2d but the shield on the back is smaller, it being now 26 m. high instead of 31 m. The double is different only at the top where "Letter Card" is placed above the design instead of on the upper ribbon and "With Reply" has taken its place. The perforation is now the ordinary and measures 10¼.

VENEZUELA.—Dr. Roy F. Desart also sends us information regarding the new official set from Venezuela, chronicled last week. We omitted to say in chronicling them that each stamp bears the imprint at the bottom, "Lit. y tip. del Comercio. Caracas."

PARCELS POSTS FOR CANAL ZONE.

Clipping from F. E. GREENE.

The department of Civil Administration has been authorized by the Acting Chairman and Chief Engineer to submit plans for a system of parcels posts effective between points in the Canal Zone. At this time, the Canal Zone Government, in common with that of the United States, transacts parcels post business with 53 states and provinces, including all the greater nations of the world with the exception of Russia. Until a parcels post system has been established in the United States, however, it is not probable that the postal authorities of the United States would consent to an interchange of parcels post deliveries between the United States and the Canal Zone without direct legislation. But there is nothing to prevent the establishment of a local system for interstate exchange between Canal Zone offices.—Canal Record.

"New Issues at 10% Over Face"

W. H. PECKITT'S 10% NEW ISSUE SERVICE

The great demand that has arisen of late years for the prompt and efficient supply of NEW ISSUES OF COLONIAL STAMPS, and the success of the above service, has caused me to greatly extend the arrangements originally made for the regular supply of this class of Stamp.

Taking Colonial Stamps, I have very early supplies of all New Issues as they appear, both of the Regular Sets and of most Provisionals. These are supplied, just as they come to hand, at a uniform percentage over face value of 10 per cent (1 1-5d in the 1sh).

It will be seen that this method effects a large saving to the regular subscriber, and at the same time gives the Collector a unique opportunity of participating in a fortunate importation of a Provisional or issue of a temporary character, which, if imported in the ordinary course, is put aside for him as certainly as are the usual Current Sets. I need only mention in this connection that among recent Stamps supplied at their face value, plus 10 per cent., are:— Maldives surcharged; New Hebrides, both surcharged sets; Papua, both sets of overprints, etc.; B. C. A. 6d mult.; the scarce Levant Provisionals; many scarce perforation varieties; etc., etc.; all of which show a very large increase in value.

The rate of 10 per cent, includes everything as it is received, such as any Provisionals, etc., etc., and so on.

Limitations, such as that Stamps are to be up to a certain denomination only; or extensions, such as all are to be supplied in blocks of four, etc.; can easily be put into effect, in, to take typical instances, the following manner:—

(a) All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including £5 value.
(b) All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 20sh value.
(c) All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 5s value.
(d) All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 2sh 6d value.
(e) All Colonial Stamps to be supplied in single copies up to and including 1sh value.

And so on, while any variations desired or suggested will be carefully considered; pairs or blocks can be supplied in the same manner, if required.

A small deposit is suggested, as this saves the trouble of remitting amounts when they are not large.

The Stamps accumulated are sent out on the 26th of every month, postage being charged only when the amount is small.

I shall be most pleased to give any further particulars, and for these, or indeed any information upon this subject, I beg you will address me.

Subscribers have the additional advantage of receiving post free my regular Monthly List containing Notes on New Issues, Price Lists of King's Heads, and Serial Colonial Catalogue.

STAMPS OF THE CAYMAN ISLDS.

The Provisional Issues, 1907.

Owing to a shortage of the halfpenny stamps, caused mainly by a large foreign order, which had reduced the stock to seventeen sheets (2,040 stamps), which would probably not last more than a couple of months, the Commissioner of the Cayman Islands despatched to the Governor of Jamaica forty sheets of 1d stamps with the request that they might be surcharged ½d. In reply to this communication the Colonial Secretary wrote as follows:—

"COLONIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
26*th July*, 1907.

"Copy 7223-8212/07.

"Sir:—I am directed by the Governor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 143, of the 11th ult. explaining that a large foreign order had reduced your stock of ½d stamps to seventeen sheets, and forwarding forty sheets of penny stamps with the request that they may be surcharged ½d.

"2. In reply I transmit herewith a copy of the Secretary of State's circular dispatch of the 8th August, 1893, (Lord Ripon's Memorandum to Colonial Postmasters.) on the subject of surcharge postage stamps, and to request you to be so good in future as to refuse to supply the speculative demand of dealers until you have got a new stock. Copies of the Secretary of State's circulars of 27th September, 1896, and 19th September, 1905, are also enclosed for your information and guidance.

"3. As the surcharge in this case may be regarded as necessary for the convenience of the public, the Superintendent of the Government Printing Office has been instructed to surcharge the stamps as requested; and I am to request that you will not sell any of these surcharged stamps except across the counter.

"4. In conclusion, I am to add that the Governor is not prepared, without substantial reason, to authorize a new issue of stamps, (Probably refers to subsequent "Postage and Revenue" series.) and to request you to report on this question as soon as possible. I am to say that if a fresh supply of halfpenny or other stamps is required, a requisition should be sent forward in due time to enable them to be obtained from the Crown Agents before the stock in hand is exhausted.

"I have, etc.,
"H. CLARENCE BOURNE
(Colonial Secretary).

"His Honour
"The Commissioner of The Cayman Islands,
"Grand Cayman."

As intimated in paragraph three of this letter, the forty sheets (4800 copies) of penny Cayman Islands postage stamps were duly surcharged at the Government Printing Office, Kingston, Jamaica, in black, with the legend "One Halfpenny" in two lines of long primer type—the word "One" measuring 5¼ and "Halfpenny" 13½ mm. in length.

The stamp selected to receive this overprint was the penny King's Head "Postage—Postage" type with the multiple watermark, the overprint being applied to half-sheets (panes) of sixty at a time. No important varieties of this surcharge have been discovered, which work was carried out with the utmost care. The word "Halfpenny" is to be found without the full stop after same and I have one or two blocks showing the surcharge out of alignment. This stamp was first placed on sale at Georgetown on August 30th, 1907, and was not supplied to fill wholesale orders from dealers.

The two further Provisionals which were placed on sale towards the end of November, 1907, owed their origin mainly to the irregular communication between the Islands and Jamaica, the parent Colony. Owing to the fact that some 4800 penny stamps were used for the first Provisional a big depletion of the stock resulted; consequently it was found necessary to create a temporary supply pending the arrival of the Postage and Revenue series expected from England. There being no time to obtain any from Jamaica, the Commission issued instructions on November 22nd, 1907, to the Postmistress (Miss Gwendolyn Parsons) to surcharge fifteen sheets of the current 5s stamp with the figures "1 D", thus providing 1800 Provisional penny stamps to meet the immediate demand. The work was duly executed by the Postmistress at Georgetown by means of a handstamp composed of pieces of metal type fixed in a wooden handle, which was applied separately to each stamp on the sheets, the ordinary post office ink and pad being evidently used for the purpose of obliteration, the reason the 5s value was selected being that this stamp except for fiscal purposes was in comparatively small demand and it was considered desirable that the number remaining on hand should be reduced before being re-issued as part of the new "Postage and Revenue" series, expected shortly. As may be expected from hand-stamped surcharges, many varieties are to be found, all of which are enumerated in the summary later.

HIS STAMPS.

By FRED MICHAEL.

A new king sits on England's throne. His clever artists did he command "Make my stamps as fair as those of old, that shall be praised on every hand."

But one there was who did not heed his words. Beauty smiled then turned away. 'Twas vain the artists toiled, their great king to obey.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—"I see the Spanish Marianas are coming to the front. The 6c must be a scarce one, because two or three of the Filipinos here who had a few of the other values had never heard of a 6c. I have seen two of them, only."—THEODORE SIDDALL.

—A. Koppell, 390 Wadsworth Av., N. Y. City, is giving considerable trouble to stamp dealers. The Chesapeake Stamp Co. of Baltimore is the latest to report this company.

—Leslie Hart, Pottstown, Pa., would like to know the present whereabouts of Frank Delaney, Douglasville, Pa., who has an approval selection and replies to no letters sent him.

—We learn with sincere regret that Mrs. C. F. Rothfuchs, the wife of our old-time patron, C. F. Rothfuchs, underwent a serious accident recently when she had the misfortune to break her right arm in five places at the shoulder joint. It will be a matter of months before Mrs. Rothfuchs will be able to use her arm again.

—"Of all the cheap stamps I have tried to get, the hardest is certainly Curacao, Scott's No. 69. For three years, Scott has priced this stamp either used or unused at 35 cents, but during all that time neither they nor any other of a dozen American and three foreign dealers have been able to furnish the stamp, in any condition, used or unused, good, bad or indifferent. It would certainly seem that the stamp is entitled to a 'raise'!"—WILLIAM S. CLARK.

—"We note in your paper regarding Lexington, Ky. aerial postmark. We mailed you the card in question. It was intended to carry the mail to Winchester, Ky. by aeroplane but this part of the program never came off—and the mail was never carried in an aeroplane, although it bears the aerial postmark." —J. M. STUART CO.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from F. W. Lynes (3) and C. M. Breder (2).

—Frank W. Lynes sends us a batch of four clippings. In one of them we note that the senate post office committee has presented a report providing for abolishing the present system of carrying second class mail by fast freight. This measure, however, is one that does not concern weekly publications.

—W. L. Morse, Syracuse, N. Y., enters a complaint against A. Villagran, Valparaiso, Chile. This party was previously complained against, but we are glad to say that he has not been upon our subscription list.

—W. A. Kain, St. John, N. B., is very desirous of ascertaining why Uruguay 10c violet, surcharged "Oficial," No. 323, unused, should be dropped in catalog price from $12.50 to $4.00. Mr. Kain remarks that this stamp has for a long time back been catalogued at $12.50 and he would like to know the reason why the 1912 catalog now puts it at $4.00.

—The L. L. Albright Co., Rochester, N. Y., withdraws its complaint against Benj. Weisner of N. Y. City, acknowledging full satisfaction.

—Rev. Louis Voss sends us the following clipping: "Since the first of July the old familiar Bavarian stamps are useful only for stamp collectors' albums. On letters they are no longer available. Until the jubilee year 1911 Bavaria was regarded by stamp collectors as the most conservative country in Europe. For 36 or 38 years Bavaria never changed the design of her postage stamps. This had always been recognized by collectors, many of whom had had no difficulty in securing complete sets of the stamps of that country, with the possible exception of the rare black 1kr."—Echo.

A FRENCH CURIOSITY.

Clipping from REV. LOUIS VOSS.

The Inventions Illustries reports that recently in France several sheets of the blue 25 Centimes stamps were perforated in such a manner that the perforations ran through the centre of the stamps. Upon the complaint of a financial institute to whom these sheets had been delivered, the postal authorities declared that those stamps would be accepted as valid and they have been used. There were sheets of 150 stamps each, which had been perforated in such a way that each sheet contained twenty-one, instead of twenty, vertical rows, an excess of fifteen stamps, though only the row on the extreme left contained that part of the vignette which shows the value, 25 centimes, while the row on the right did not show the value. But these stamps were also regarded as valid and letters stamped with them were carried even in the international service.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

ANOTHER IMPOSTER.

Mr. H. E. Nichols sends me a sketch of a label that has puzzled as many collectors as the bogus Sedangs described last week. The label bears a design very similar to the United States 10c and 30c stamps of 1869 and the inscriptions read "U. S.," "Army Frank," and "Official Business Only," so that the uninformed collector may be well pardoned for imagining that it is a regular official stamp. The color of the label is brown and it is perf. about 12. It is an entirely bogus issue made and marketed about the time of the Spanish-American war by Major Brewster C. Kenyon. The first mention I can find of it is in the American Journal of Philately for September 1898, viz.:—"We present herewith the illustration of a stamp used by some officers of the War Department in forwarding heavy letters and other material through the mails. There seems to be no question that the stamp was passed by some employees of the Post Office, but on the other hand there seems also to be no question that such use was without sanction by competent authority. From information supplied us it would appear that the issue of the stamp was the result of the enterprise of a stamp collector in the army, the ultimate purpose being its placing on the market for the purpose of pecuniary profit."

It will thus be seen that doubts as to the status of this precious label existed from the first and shortly afterwards it received its quietus by the publication of the following letter from the Postmaster General in the November issue of the journal already referred to:—

"Yours of the 9th inst., submitting an 'Army Frank' label has been received. In reply, I have to say that this label is not official, nor has it received the sanction of this Department. It is not good for securing the free transmission of official matter.

"The law requires that the free penalty envelopes, to be provided by the several Departments of the Government, and not after devices selected by individual officers, shall bear the name of the Department on whose business the envelopes are used, the office or bureau from which they emanate, together with the words 'Official Business', and a statement of the penalty for their misuse.

"The label submitted by you, which was designed by Major Brewster C. Kenyon, does not conform to these requirements, and even if it did, the use of it would be objectionable, as army officers should use only such penalty envelopes or labels as the War Department authorizes or provides."

VARIETIES OF THE 2c U. S. OF 1908-10.

A correspondent asks for a list of the varieties of the 2c Washington, with value in words, which has just gone out of issue. Quite a specialised collection might be made of this one stamp if all the possible varieties were obtained. It exists with two varieties of watermark—double-lined and single-lined letters,—on experimental paper, imperforate, and imperf. horizontally and vertically, the latter varieties coming from the rolls or coils of stamps prepared for use in stamp vending machines. The general collector would want the following varieties:—

Watermarked "U S P S" in double-lined letters. Perf. 12.

2c carmine.
  (a) imperforate.
  (b) bluish or experimental paper.
  (c) imperf. vertically.
  (d) " " and perf. 8½ between.
  (e) imperf. horizontally.
  (f) " " and perf. 8½ between.

Watermarked "U S P S" in single-lined letters. Perf. 12.

2c carmine.
  (a) imperforate.
  (b) imperf. vertically.
  (c) " " and perf. 8½ between.
  (d) imperf. horizontally.
  (e) " " and perf. 8½ between.

These 2c stamps were printed in sheets of 400 with guide lines running through the centre of the sheet vertically and horizontally, the printed sheets being cut along these lines into the ordinary "post office" sheets of 100. On the margins, at the ends of these lines, are diagonal lines making what are known as "arrows." In addition there are plate numbers and imprints and on certain plates—which have a star before the imprint—some of the vertical rows at the right and left of the full-sized sheet of 400 are spaced 3 mm. apart while the others are 2 mm. The specialist must, of course, have pairs showing these differences in spacing. He will also want strips or blocks showing the marginal imprint and plate number, and he will probably also want stamps showing the guide lines.

In the imperforate stamps even more varieties are possible for as these are sold uncut in the full 400 size it is now possible to obtain pairs and blocks showing the guide lines between. In fact the specialist cannot well do without the following varieties:—

Spacing 3 mm. apart.
Spacing 2 mm. apart.
Vertical guide line.
Horizontal guide line.
Crossed lines.
Top arrow.
Bottom arrow.
Right arrow.
Left arrow.
Top imprint and plate number.
Bottom imprint and plate number.
Right imprint and plate number.

All the above can be found with both varieties of watermark. Then we have the part-perf. stamps which must be collected in pairs. In addition to the varieties already enumerated those perforated through the guide lines and the two spacings will be required.

The above does not by any means exhaust the list of probable varieties for we have made no mention of shades, which taken in conjunction with the listed varieties should offer scope for the keenest collector. The different plate numbers will also have to be sought for, and if the collector has still energy left he can further amuse himself by hunting for the numerous varieties of perfs. and roulettes applied by private companies for use in different automatic machines!

THE SEAL OF THE HOP SING TONG.

By Arthur Irwin Smith.

Chinatown, with its queer sights and weird noises, lay to the left. Raymond Harvey idly turned up the lighted thoroughfare, gazing in the shop windows as he passed. Dupont Street was full of the usual throng of tourists and early evening loafers, and there was plenty of light, noise and bustle.

Swinging aside into an obscure alley, Raymond passed a small native drug-shop. "Sing Lee Fat," announced a small sign in English letters, but the rest of the front was buried in Chinese hieroglyphics. Little jars of roots and herbs were displayed in the narrow window, but most of the stock was concealed in rows of drawers along the wall. An unbroken package in the window bore a strange revenue stamp—one Raymond had never seen before, although he had long collected these queer stamps.

Entering the store, he spoke to the proprietor concerning the gaudy adhesive. "How muchee?" he queried, as he jingled some loose change in his left hand.

"No sell," was the stolid reply.

"Come off," said Raymond. "I'll give you a quarter."

"All light," was the instant response.

Raymond stepped to the rear of the store where he might take his time in detaching the stamp. He did not want to tear it, if it were possible to secure it in perfect condition.

As he passed back he noticed three men sitting around a small table talking earnestly. In the center of the table was something which instantly excited his curiosity and aroused his desire for possession. It was a small Chinese document bearing a huge golden stamp, with perforated edges. The stamp was about three inches square, and the design consisted of a gilded dragon with elaborate marginal decorations. The document, hardly as large as a sheet of fool's-cap, was of course unintelligible to Raymond.

As soon as he had succeeded in detaching the revenue stamp from the original package, Raymond made known his desire to possess the more important looking stamp.

"No sell," said the proprietor.

"Give you fifty cents," vouchsafed Raymond.

"No sell," repeated the Chinaman, a look of uneasiness coming into his eyes.

"I'll make it a dollar," continued Raymond.

"No sell," was the monotonous response, and Raymond found himself being shown the door.

Discontentedly he walked down the street. True, he had added one fine specimen to his collection, but the stamp he most desired had eluded him. The sad, shrill wail of a Chinese violin was wafted along the alley, and he shuddered as he turned a dark corner and came again into the lights of Dupont Street.

For an hour he walked back and forth along the more frequented thoroughfares, barely seeing the shops and restaurants as he passed along. An unreasonable desire to possess the stamp on the strange document became stronger and stronger. Finally he again turned through the narrow, obscure alleys, and soon he found himself gazing again through the little window into the drug-shop of Sing Lee Fat.

Without a thought as to consequences, he walked boldly inside. The three men were still talking. Sing Lee Fat looked at him blankly, evidently not wishing to recognize him.

Raymond spoke of the stamp he desired making his words more plain by signs. Sing Lee Fat refused to understand. Raymond produced a gold coin. The Chinaman's eyes gleamed, but he shook his head. The three men at the table glanced up nervously, and Raymond began to feel that they were talking of him.

The proprietor seemed anxious to be rid of him, but Raymond was determined to secure the stamp. He walked to the rear, and made a smiling attempt to communicate with the men at the table by means of pidgih English and signs. They gazed at him angrily, even threateningly.

Suddenly at a word from the eldest of the three, a slender, intelligent looking fellow of forty-five, they closed in on him and noiselessly pushed him through a narrow door at the rear into a dark passageway. Back, back, a dozen paces he was carried, then down a flight of steps. So astonished was Raymond that he attempted no resistance. As he began to realize what was happening, common sense told him that to fight or to make an outcry would be useless.

As quickly and as quietly as they had seized him in the shop above, his captors released him in the darkness of the underground passage and withdrew. A door was closed, and not even the uncanny pattering of their sandals broke the absolute stillness of the dungeon.

Raymond found himself becoming panic-stricken. Why had he been brought here? Did they mean to keep him prisoner? Would they murder him, or had they intended only to kidnap him? He traced the outline of the walls with his hands, but could find no opening. He found two matches in his pockets. He struck one, and looked all around him while it burned, getting his bearings.

The smooth, close-fitting door at the entrance offered little hope. There was a small aperture in one corner, but it seemed to be clogged with rubbish and fallen dirt from the walls. With a flicker the match expired, and the darkness seemed more unbearable than ever. Still, Raymond knew it was useless to strike the other match now; it might be of much use to him later.

He felt his way to the door, but it was as immovable as the solid wall. Then he groped his way to the little tunnel in the corner. As he stooped, it seemed as if he could feel a perceptible breath of fresh air.

It was revolting to have to crawl forward into the hole in the utter darkness, amid the dirty, ill-smelling rubbish, but that seemed his only hope. For an hour Raymond worked with his bare hands. Finally he cleared his way back some dozen feet, and came into what seemed to be another room. The connecting tunnel was so small, even after the refuse which filled it had been cleared away, that Raymond had much trouble in squirming through with his athletic body.

When he found he could again stand erect in open space, he struck the second match. The room was a small one, dusty and unclean, but another tunnel, perhaps five feet high, led away to the left.

Breathing quickly from the excitement of aroused hope, Raymond stooped and felt his way forward rapidly. For perhaps a hundred feet, he went without meeting any obstruction, but all at once he stumbled on the lower step of a stairway. Quickly recovering, without even rubbing his bruised shin, he crawled carefully to the top. He passed through an open door, and the slight sound of his feet on a plank floor was pleasant music to his ears. He groped around cautiously. The house was evidently vacant, there being no furniture or rubbish in the apartment. The front door was locked, but there was a wooden stairway ascending. Raymond decided that he must be in the rear room of a store building.

A welcome shaft of light came through an alley window into the second story. Raymond tried to raise the window, and found it came up easily. It was ten feet to the ground, but he swung down from the ledge with his hands, judging that his six-foot frame and the long reach of his arms would make the drop of little consequence. When he reached the ground he stepped quickly to the open street. The welcome lights of Dupont were just around the corner.

A friendly policeman was in the middle of the block. "Why so dusty, my friend?" he queried, as Raymond passed.

The young man smiled and told his story. He had not intended to inform the police of the affair, knowing that it would be useless. He had been done no bodily harm, and there were no witnesses.

"Take my advice, and never start anything in Chinatown," said the policeman, as he helped Raymond brush up his clothes. "What you thought was a stamp was very likely some sort of seal of one of the tongs, or secret fraternities. I understand they have been pretty thick around Sing Lee Fat's lately. They probably considered the seal as sacred, and resented your interference. They have some queer ideas, you know."

"Well," said Raymond, "if it wasn't a stamp it doesn't matter whether I get it or not. I think I can go home contented, and I am sure I will never start any trouble in Chinatown again."

PRECANCELLED PARAGRAPHS.

By JOHN A. SOLOMON.

As the famous old song goes, "let the sun shine bright in the old Kentucky home," let it shine in all homes, but in spite of "Old Sol's" torrid rays, do not lose your precancel grip. Many new varieties are constantly appearing and a lapse of interest now means a loss of these varieties, which you may have difficulty in acquiring later.

Dallas is the only city in the giant state of Texas which uses precancels while Rhode Island, the midget, has four.

The long needed Precancel catalog is out and certainly is a valuable publication for all precancel followers. It does not seem possible but the catalog actually has unearthed over five thousand distinct varieties besides other unknown issues which surely exist and with the many new issues it is not out of reason to say more than six thousand varieties will be possible before many months.

I will suggest to all collectors contributing notes to the new issue column of this paper to carefully consult the catalog before sending in their new issues as this will prevent further repetition.

Baltimore used precancelled due stamps more than ten years ago but it was not until recently that the Monumental City commenced overprinting the regular issues and now is using nearly all denominations. Denver and New Orleans are the newest of the larger cities to come into the precancel fold. There are yet several large cities which have not taken up the precancel system. Precancels have proven their worth time and again and there is little question but what the large concerns of any large city can benefit by the use of them.

Providence is again guilty of precancelling with the regular office stamp instead of the required method.

Recently many seed catalogs were mailed with stamps precancelled in this way. Upon investigation I have been informed that this is done only in emergency cases when the regular precancelling machine is in use and a rush order is demanded. It is best to keep such stamps on the original cover as it is almost impossible to prove their identity when once off the cover.

Redlands, California, issued a solitary precancel over ten years ago, but has not used any since.

Brockton, Mass., one of the recent cities to take up the precancel system, but which during the past year has flooded nearly all the principal cities and towns throughout the country with its shoe advertisements, has changed its type from a rather neat three line print to a smudgy four line effect.

Cleveland is the latest of the large cities to change its font. The new type is similar to its predecessor but having taller and thinner capitals.

Saginaw, Mich., which has been using precancels scarcely a year, is the home of over one hundred distinct varieties. I am inclined to think this sort of printing seems unnecessary but perhaps Saginaw is out for a record.

It seems that all the large crop of Xmas precancels has not yet been exhausted, for new ones are still cropping out and it is likely they will continue to do so. Even the most advanced enthusiasts are obliged to keep constantly active in order to get most of them.

The question of minor varieties has gone so far that it is making precancel collecting a complicated matter, watermarks, shades, paper varieties, broken letters, hair lines, etc., are all interesting but they have no place in a straight precancel collection. A good maxim for all precancel adherents is simplicity.

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL
Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

very similar to the Boston type. Newport, Ky., which is situated opposite Cincinnati, closely resembles the original Cincinnati issues. It is not strange then that these cities pattern each other.

Battle Creek's many sanitariums and cereal food firms have issued thousands of precancels of various denominations but it is my opinion that the five cent recently used was the first of that value ever sent out from that city.

Precancelled registry stamps are something of a novelty but several cities included them in their Christmas galaxy.

San Francisco precancels are certainly good property. The 'quake precancels never were very plentiful and at present are hardly in sight.

The Post Office Dept. has ruled that Post Offices must no longer issue mint precancels except to actual users. It will be interesting to see if this rule is strictly enforced, for it seems there is a "precancel way" around it, even if it must not be crossed.

I have received several advertisements of late bearing stamps, that appear precancelled with the office cancellation, but it is doubtful if these stamps can be classed with legitimate precancels.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

DETROIT, Aug. 10, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

In your issue July 27, under "New Issues: Hayti" you chronicle a new stamp but say you do not know who Le Conte is. No less a personage than Gen. Cincinnatus Le Conte, late president, killed Aug. 8, 1912 in the blowing up and burning of the palace. The building is shown on one of the 1906 set. They have only had one president complete his term and one who died a natural death while in office.

E. F. HEYERMAN.

WILTON, N. H., Aug. 3, 1912.

To the Editor:

Permit me thro' you, to offer an apology to the publishers of the Standard Catalogue. The statement recently made by me was incorrect and I am glad to find that the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. have at last seen the justice of listing the stamps issued by the Aguinaldo government.

A. W. DUNNING.

BOSTON, Aug. 5, 1912.

To the Editor:

Referring to your editorial in 1127 in re Mr. Luce's ½c McKay will say I am one of the "old timers" referred to and can also say that the stamp under discussion is one of a set of five license stamps used to pay a royalty on Mr. McKay's patented machine for lasting shoes. A later issue of McKay Sew. Mach. Co. (successors) of new design was used of which I have 9 varieties, also 8 others of similar design with the names of licensees printed over the face.

It was a very common practice in those days to collect royalties by means of this class of stamps as shown by more than 100 stamps that I collected about the time they were current.

RED CROSS SEALS FOR HOLIDAY SALE.

Clipping from F. W. LYNES.

Seventy-five million Red Cross seals are now being printed for the holiday sale this year. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which in co-operation with the American Red Cross will conduct the sale, makes this announcement today and states further that the outlook this year is bright for a larger sale than ever before.

New York State sold the most seals in 1911, disposing of 6,356,368; Ohio came next with 3,500,480; Wisconsin third with 2,913,144, and Illinois fourth with 2,101,632. Texas showed the greatest percentage of gain, having increased its sale from 100,000 in 1910 to over 1,250,000 in 1911. Indiana showed the second greatest gain, with an increase from 683,756 in 1910 to 1,245,545 in 1911. —Pawtucket (R. I.) Times.

A PACKET STAMP POSSIBLE.

Clipping from C. F. RICHARDS.

Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., in making a report in connection with the parcel post before the Senate committee on Post Offices and Post Roads has the following observation in the same of interest to philatelists:—

"Under this plan of consolidation of the present third and fourth class mail matter we will have but three classes instead of four as at present, with the result that the Government will know the gross receipts for each class of mail matter, providing my recommendation of establishing special packet stamps suitable only for the new third-class mail matter be adopted. Then all first-class mail matter will be paid for by use of ordinary postage stamps, the gross receipts from sale of which will be credited to first-class mail matter. All second-class mail matter will be paid for as at present, in money, and third-class mail matter be paid for by use of special packet stamps, the sale of which will be credited to the new third-class mail matter. Thus, without the expense of a single additional bookkeeper, the Government will have reliable information as to the gross receipts of each of the three classes of mail matter, which information will be of immense value in the ascertainment of the relative costs of each whenever a plan is evolved to show the relative expense for handling each class."

BRIGHT'S CATALOG OF ADHESIVES.

Many of our readers have not appreciated the offer we make of Bright's catalog of adhesives (1912 edition) for a three years' subscription to the WEEKLY. This offer is good on a new subscription or a renewal.

Bright's catalog gives a very complete list of British stamps used abroad moreover the chalky and ordinary paper in British colonials are fully catalogued.

Do one of two things:—get a new subscriber for three years or renew your own subscription for the same period. Remit $1.50. Cloth bound and a nice book.

THE PROPHETS.

By FRED MICHAEL.

Twenty years ago my philatelic ambition was to secure a Twenty-four cent Treasury to complete my set of that Department. "It's a good stamp, worth full catalogue and bound to go up," the prophets told me.

Today there is a very handsome copy in my album. It has been there a considerable time and each year I turn the leaves of the new catalogue to see if its price has advanced. Then I study the prices of some of the stamps I might have bought instead.

Today, too, there are prophets in the land. They may be right, know more than those of the past, but beware.

Edwardian Stamps of the British Empire
PART I
BY DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG

This book is Volume II of the series inaugurated by Bright & Son and known as "Bright's Philatelic Library." In the volume before us the Edwardian issues of Antigua, Bahamas, Bechuanaland Protectorate, British Central Africa, British Honduras, Canada, Cape Colony, Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus and Dominica are illustrated and described.

In addition to the bibliography there is an appendix giving the colonial color scheme, and the entire volume is one that will appeal to the philatelist who makes any attempt at a philatelic library.

ANOTHER AERIAL POSTMARK.

This time it is Fort Recovery, Ohio, and we are indebted to G. W. Scheid for a specimen of the cancellation as well as an article from the local paper giving the particulars of the aviation meet.

The aerial postmark consists of two dotted circles of large size, between which is the following inscription:—"Aviation Station No. 1—Fort Recovery, O." The date, "Aug. 6, 1912", is in the center of the postmark with two small fanciful designs above and below. It is easily the most striking aerial postmark yet seen and we are greatly obliged to Mr. Scheid for his favor.

WOMEN ON POSTAGE STAMPS.

Clipping from C. M. Breder.

Every one knows that the French postage stamps are the most beautiful in the world, mainly because beauty is the chief idea underlying their design. But evidently the desire for beauty can be carried too far, as witness the horrid story that comes from French Indo-China. The stamps supplied to this far-off dependency have been of unusually fine design, the centrepiece being portrait and full-length studies of women carefully selected for their charms. It never occurred to any one in France to ask as to the identity of these women. It was enough that they were beautiful and that their portraits upon the stamps were decorative to the highest degree. But now comes an unpleasant revelation. It seems that these women are actually not respectable, and that the French post office has been directing its best efforts to the perpetuation of faces only too well known throughout gay life in Indo-China. So the stamps have been canceled in a hurry and henceforth the authorities will confine themselves to the safe lines of natural scenery.

But there is no reason why we should not have faces of women upon our postage stamps, and it is a little surprising that women themselves have not attended to this matter. Why should we not commemorate in this way the immortal achievements of Mrs. Belmont, for example, or Carrie Nation, or any of the lesser Boadiceas who have submitted to the agonies of publicity in their zeal for the public good? There would be a certain delicate symbolism about such a change. Mrs. Belmont's head on a postage stamp would be a sort of reminder to her followers all over the world that they must stick to it if they expect to win.—The Argonaut.

EDITOR STANTON AGAIN.

"We put ourselves on record in our last issue in favor of changing back to the old plan of having reports of the Society published in Mekeel's, in other words giving back to that paper the position of official organ. We presume no such advantageous arrangement as heretofore existed could be made but something satisfactory could be arrived at. Mekeel's is a weekly stamp newspaper and as such stands the representative of philately to the world, and is pre-eminently the foremost stamp publication of today. It boomed the Society and added to its growth and strength as no other paper has ever done. It is the only paper that can do the same thing again. The eyes of Jealousy are becoming clearer sighted and she begins to see the wrong and injury already done. The harm can in time be repaired by restoring Mekeel's.

Past conventions have "bitten off more than they could chew," that is, made promises, held out inducements, never accomplished. Nothing should be promised that cannot be fulfilled. Failure in doing this has caused disgust and been a resignation promoter and the cause of lack of interest. This convention should legislate wisely as well as "have a good time." Remember you want the philatelist of the medium sized collection to join the ranks. Do something for him."—Philatelic Tribune.

"CANNED" POSTAGE STAMPS.

Clipping from F. E. Greene.

The man who has to shell out 25 cents for 24 cents worth of postage stamps, bound on a little pasteboard and paraphined booklet, to keep from having to steam his pockets at periodic intervals ought to live in England.

The English postal authorities have adopted a novel method of selling stamps, a strip at 60 being rolled within a small metal box, for which no additional charge is made.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Watch out on the towns of Lockport and Joliet in Illinois. H. Wesley Legg sends us postcards signed by different names but evidently in the same hand-writing. Approval selections are desired and a fine line of references are offered.

—Our dealer friend J. E. Handshaw writes us from London, England, where he and his family have been visiting for several weeks. They intend to spend some time in Holland, France, and Switzerland and later visit Scotland and Ireland. Mr. Handshaw does not know the date of his return. He has done some business attending an auction sale for a bit of recreation. He indicates that a London auction is a different proposition from one held in N. Y. City.

—L. H. Kjellstedt has returned from his foreign trip. Mr. Klein's return is expected the latter part of August.

—Frank W. Lynes sends us a clipping from the Mobile Register stating that the Canadian Postmaster General, Louis P. Peletier, has been in Paris conferring with local officials for the introduction of a 2c postal rate between Canada and France.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from E. B. Charman, M. S. Karlitsky (2), M. A. Lesser, C. M. Breder (2), Edw. Howard and F. W. Lynes (6).

—John F. Fortune of Fort Sill, Okla., submits for our inspection two Canal Zone post cards. Over the letter "o" in "centesimo" is a small dash and a tiny dot.

—"The list of hard to get stamps catalogued under $2 seems to have run out. I have been chasing Argentine, 16c orange, (No. 128). I answered three advs. but the other fellow is after it also. Austria Nos. 46, 69, 333, 341 and 353 do not show up on approvals. Bavaria Nos. 32, 36 and 37; Bolivia 23, 39; Cape of Good Hope 31 and Columbian Republic 143, 147 and 149 do not come my way."—S. J. Jones.

—Accompanying his A. P. S. proxy to the Managing Editor, Mr. J. H. Miller writes:—"Herewith my A. P. S. proxy. Use it. I would like to see the Weekly become the official organ again."

—A young man walked up to the stamp window of a post office sub-station, bought two five-cent stamps, and, regardless of the people behind him, carefully affixed each stamp obliquely across the upper right hand corner of an envelope.

"For heaven's sake," inquired the stamp clerk, "why must each stamp be kitty-cornered?"

"I'm taking a course in a correspondence school," answered the young man, "and that's our college yell!"

OUR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

The past four weeks have brought us in more new subscribers than any summer season we have ever experienced. We charge them up to the splendid advertising campaign that we waged during the spring months. We give these new subscribers a cordial welcome to our subscription list. Should the WEEKLY matter with its stamp collecting terms seem a little complex don't hesitate to write us and we will make clear any doubtful point. "Ask Mr. Poole" is our advice to any beginner who desires information.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

All Aboard—About a week from now, the convention will be in full swing at Springfield and those who are so fortunate as to attend will be regaled philatelically and entertained socially. An item in the issue of August 3rd on proposed legislation at the Springfield convention had no reference to the amendments that will be submitted by Mr. Nast but was directed at the statement that it would be advisable to "start something" by a sensational proposition of some kind, the idea being that by such means, the interest of those members who now seem indifferent would be excited in the concerns of the society. Mr. Nast's amendments are worthy of consideration and are not to be classed with claptrap of the kind proposed.

He Wins—Mr. C. A. Yarrington, Baltimore, Maryland, writes: "Referring to the note from Mr. Frank E. Goodwin, I wish to advise that the only extra copy of the two-cent black, 1862, proved to be of the type mentioned. The point of hair is very heavily obliterated by the lines of the background." This variety is described at some length under the head, "A Variant" in the issue of July 27th; and while Mr. Yarrington found one of the varieties in his two stamps Mr. Goodwin found but one in 260 copies.

Solid Meat—It is with much satisfaction that we publish the following comments on the three-cent, 1851-1860 issue that have been received from Dr. Carroll Chase, 1050 Park Place, Brooklyn, N. Y., who is one of the keenest students of this issue of these advanced days. It will be remembered that through his researches Dr. Chase made the reconstruction of the sheets of type I possible. His discourse follows:

"If I may do so without appearing unduly critical may I point out a few inaccuracies in Mr. Goodwin's installment on the 3c 1851-1860 issue of his 'Specialized United States.'

First, the total number of plates was not 28, but at least 29 and probably 30. Either 9 or 10 plates exist imperforate (Type I) and 20 plates (from number 9 to 28 inclusive) were of Type II for the perforated issue. The plates for the imperforate stamps were probably numbered from 1 to 8 inclusive, and there were, in all probability, either one or two plates that never had any number.

The following color cancellations may be added to those mentioned by Mr. Goodwin. Brown, magenta, reddish-purple and ultramarine. Express cancellations form another distinct class.

I am certain that the stamps cannot be divided into 'printings' as there were approximately 300,000,000 imperforate 3c stamps issued, and there must have been hundreds of printings. The first printings do not necessarily show every detail of the engraving, as some of those in the earliest shades are very heavily inked, and therefor look rather blurred. All the stamps issued during the first six months are of the shade best described as orange brown. The dark rose shades are from very late printings. As plates 2 and 3 were carefully cleaned about 1856 some of the latest printings even from the earlier plates are beautifully clear. So a clear impression does not necessarily mean an early printing.

There is no danger of anyone trying to plate the entire 28 or more plates, but all the plates from which the Type I stamps were made can be reconstructed. For example I have completed plates 1, 2 and 3, have plate 4 97% done and other plates partly finished.

Mr. Goodwin does not exaggerate when he says there are three different mis-strikes or double transfers. In reality there are over fifty. I have not been able to identify his types B. and C. The term 'shifted die' is wrong as the 'die' had nothing to do with this accident.

Regarding the so-called 'watermark.' This consists of a narrow band of lines running entirely across the sheet horizontally. This 'watermark' is never found in both stamps of a vertical pair, but frequently on horizontal pairs and strips and always showing all the way across. I have several vertical pairs, but one stamp of which is 'watermarked.' It is caused by the stitching on the felt band on which the paper pulp is carried from the vat. It certainly was never used to identify the paper. It exists on all printings and shades. This watermark is also found on the perforated stamps of this issue, and, in fact, can be found on all U. S. issues at least up to 1895. Much paper, particularly tissue paper, made to-day shows this same 'watermark.'

As Mr. Goodwin states both Types I and II have been listed part-perforate —Type I both horizontally and vertically and Type II vertically. I have been looking years for any of these errors in pairs or strips, but have never seen any even in some of the richest U. S. collections. I am a bit skeptical as to their existence. Can anyone inform me where such a pair may be seen?"

A Matter of a Month—The following letter from a Baltimore subscriber suggests a fruitful source of discussion: "Could you tell me through the columns of your valued paper, the date of issue of the 1861, United States one-cent, first and second issues. I have in my possession, an entire cover on which is a one-cent 1861, and a three-cent of the same issue. The postmark is Philadelphia, Sept. 20, 1861. The three-cent, undoubtedly, is of the second issue but I cannot tell as to the one-cent. If, however, you could tell me the date of issue of the second set, probably all points would be cleared up." Interest in the two issues of 1861 has developed since the tendency to study postmarks and cancellations of the earlier United States issues has become emphasized. The hope that springs eternal in the human breast is at flood-tide when the collector searches for premières gravures, as the first or so-called August issue of 1861 is termed. The classification of the August and September issue is a theoretical one as regards the date of use, as for instance, Mr. Luff records the three cent of the second or September type with the postmark of August 18, 1861. While the date of the August issue is not definitely known, yet there is contributory details that allow it to be placed as August 15th, 1861. The stamps were not ready on August 1st, as it was announced originally that they would be but even so, the contract with the National Bank Note Company, having expired June 10th, 1861 and a new one with the same company having been ratified, the issue must have been prepared under pressure. The stamps as at first engraved were not satisfactory and veritable "finishing touches" were added to all the denominations except the twenty-four and thirty cents. The colors, too, of the second issue were modulated and a more serviceable paper was adopted instead of the thin, hard, yellowish white wove paper of the August stamps, which with their very dark brown gum were of a very brittle kind. The department was reluctant to fill orders for stamps with the unsatisfactory productions of the first issue and so few of the August were distributed that for many years experienced philatelists regarded the occasional specimen of the rare set that they found to be essays. The unfinished appearance of the twelve-cent of the August set, for instance, gave a basis for placing the stamp under the category of essay.

United States Stamps and Their Varieties

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

So it Seems—Evidently the stamps of the August type that were finished first were those of the denominations of most popular use and the same was the case in relation to the stamps of the second or September type, as shown by the postmark of August 18, 1861, that has been mentioned. So insistent was the demand for new stamps from some of the cities that it could not be ignored and a comparatively few requisitions were filled with the August stamps but soon after the September stamps were despatched to replace the first stamps. Reverting to the one-cent mentioned by our correspondent, there is some possibility of its being an August example in view of its postmark of September 20th; but if it is, its color is indigo, and the dash that is found just above the ornament in the upper right corner in the common one-cent stamp, is missing. Then, too, the paper characteristics may afford a clue. At least, our reader has something worth keeping even if the stamp is of the September type, as September 20th, is certainly an early date for the one-cent stamp.

"Pigs is Pigs"—The reply to the following question which has been received from H. R. C. may possess some general interest: "Will you kindly tell me why the current issue of the Bermuda stamps is called the Hog Money type?" The Bermuda Islands were named from Juan Bermudez, their discoverer, in 1527; but even so, they are called Somers Islands, in some of the records of the past, in honor of Sir George Somers, an Englishman, whose shipwreck on one of the islands lead to their colonization in 1611. What is said to have been the first coin made in North America was produced in 1616 for "Sommer Islands;" and on one side of the coin a wild hog, as indigenous to the Bermudas as the "razorback" is to the south of this country, is depicted. While the artistry of the picture is crude, yet it is to be seen that a peculiarity of the hog on the coin is that a luxuriant line of bristles extends from his neck to his tail. On the reverse side of the coin is the picture of the pennanted vessel of archaic design that appears on the current stamps of Bermuda; perhaps, the illustration is one of the very boat in which Sir George Sommers was shipwrecked something over three centuries ago. The significance of "Hog Money" in connection with the stamps has now been made clear, we trust.

OUR REVIEW.

Handbook and Check List of U. S. Internal Revenue Stamps, Hydometers and Lock Seals.—By J. D. Bartlett and W. W. Norton, and bearing the imprint of the United States Revenue Society. The preface states that the manuscript of a portion of this book was awarded first honors in connection with action taken at the Chicago convention, August 1911. J. Delano Bartlett is entitled to the distinction of compiling the same. This is a most comprehensive book and will prove indispensable to any collector of the stamps indicated by its title. It is authoritative and will be accepted as the standard work of its kind. No price is stated and information in this respect can be obtained by addressing Mr. Bartlett at Springfield, Mass.

CANADIAN STAMPS IN ROLLS.

Clipping from H. Clarkson.

Word has been received by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that the Post Office Department has agreed to issue stamps in one and two cent denominations in the form of rolls as well as in sheet form. There will be five hundred in a roll and an extra charge of six cents per roll will be made to cover the cost of manufacture.

This will prove a great boom to industrial firms both as regards the saving of time and the prevention of pilfering. The action of the Department is due to repeated representations made by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The new rolls will be available about the first of September.

Chapter VII!

1 Cent, Issue of 1861-1868.

Although not as prolific in types and minor varieties as the 1 cent stamps which preceded this issue, this stamp is, nevertheless, worthy of deep study, and the specialist will have much to busy himself with before he has exhausted the field. The standard catalog gives the lowest value of the series in three shades, and laid paper, without grill and two shades each in two sizes of grills, making eight collectible stamps according to the catalog.

This of course, is not counting the August issue which is not likely to come into the hands of many of our readers, and the 1 cent grilled all over, considered by experts to be only an essay at best.

The catalog describes the difference between the August and September issues, so I will not take up time, nor patience in trying to tell collectors how to detect the two. I believe that a few of the August 1 centers ought to be found as there were about 5,000,000 of them printed before the dash was added under the tip of ornament at top of the left hand corner of the stamp.

The first stamp—without that precious dash—was issued, according to the best data possible to find, on August 14, 1861. One plate was used and the color was a deep indigo.

As the contour of the entire August issue was not pleasing, and the paper was easily destroyed, the stamps were re-touched, fixed up in various ways, and printed upon a paper which would not crack and break so easily. These have been called the September issue, and were issued sometime during that month—exact date not known. In fact, it was a good many years after this time that it was learned there were two distinct issues. What copies of the August stamps existed were believed to be only essays, and probably a good many were destroyed or thrown away, on that account.

The stamps were printed by the National Bank Note Co., New York.

The issue of ungrilled 1 cent September, was 133,542,960, less about 5,000,000 of the August issue.

The September stamp was printed from 5 plates—Nos. 9, 10, 22, 25, 27.

The common paper is white wove variety, and occasionally found on vertically laid paper. The latter is always a very deep blue, almost indigo in shade.

Several thicknesses of wove paper are found, it coming in thick, medium, thin and very thin texture.

I cannot designate the grilled stamps of this denomination (nor in fact of any of this issue) as separate issue, as told by the catalog. The same plates were used to print the same stamps in the grilled and ungrilled issues, and as there was no change, except to break the texture of the paper by use of an embossing die, I must insist that what is known as the 1867-68 issue be called nothing but the "grilled" variety of the 1861 issue.

The catalog gives the 1 cent grilled in two sizes, 11x13 and 9x13, with pale blue and deep blue shades of each. Not a very long list for the collector who sticks to his numbers, to be sure.

The issue of grilled stamps is given as being 14,354,900. But I believe that many of the stamps accounted for under the ungrilled variety were grilled making this number considerably larger.

The grill measures 12½x12 rows to 10mms.

The grilling process was begun about May 8, 1867. It was continued through the balance of the issue.

With the exception of the "grilled all over" I have never seen the 1 cent stamp with grill points up, except in case of stamps folded, in which case a part of the grill shows points down, and the balance points up.

I have a stamp of this variety with grill 11x13 placed sideways.

The following sizes of grills are known:

Grill	11x14,	showing	14x18	points.
	11x13½,	“	14x17	“
	11x13,	“	14x16	“
	11x12,	“	14x15	“
	10x13½,	“	13x17	“
	9x13½,	“	12x17	“
	9x13,	“	12x16	“
	9x12,	“	12x15	“
	9x10,	“	12x13	“

It is a noticeable fact that the larger grills are on thicker paper than the smaller ones, and the late prints are on very thin, brittle paper with much "snap" when sprung with the finger.

The stamp, without grill, was overprinted in Old English characters "Specimen". As the "Specimen" stamps were not issued for postal use the collector must use his own judgment as to collecting them. Personally, I consider them an interesting sub-variety, and as only 20,500 sets were printed they will, some day, be valuable as specialists will absorb them and ask for more.

A freak essay of this stamp was made to prevent using the stamp more than once. It was printed in pinkish red, in the same plate form as the regular September issue, and at the top had a label to be torn off by the postal official, reading:

STAMP

POSTMASTER

This essay was grilled 11x14, and not pressed out by hydraulic pressure. It measured 20x23mms., and the frame was 2½ ems wide, with the above inscription inside. These essays sell for from $3 to $5 each.

The 1 cent ungrilled and grilled varieties are found with double perforations vertical and horizontal.

The following check list is suggested:

Block of four.
Strip of three.
Horizontal and vertical pairs.
Singles, in shades, as above.
Double perforations.
Laid paper.
Proofs—India, cardboard.

A Chat With the Advertiser

Already we begin to feel the throbbing of business in preparation for the season of 1912-13, and with September the vacation season will be a remembrance. The advertiser will do well to get busy in the selection of his publicity mediums.

We have been surprised and pleased at the advertising patronage given us by our "regulars." Look this paper through and note the dealers who know no season that does not include the entire year. Moreover this patronage has not been accompanied by complaints as to the dulness of business.

This week M. Ohlman after a brief vacation season returns to the desk and his weekly advertisements will be a regular thing. Not a single complaint of any kind has ever been registered against Mr. Ohlman by any patron of the WEEKLY.

Is it not time, Mr. Dealer, for you to shy your hat into the ring?

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—C. M. Breder sends us a cover having one of the current 3c stamps which has been printed in pale violet, very nearly the color of the current 50c stamp. This cover was mailed in New York and used to carry a copy of Edison's Monthly.

Howard C. Buttermore informs us that he has seen a plate number block of six of the 3c postage due stamp with single line watermark. This block has the Bureau imprint, open star and No. 5523.

M. T. Perkins reports having found various imperfections in the current stamps, including small colored dots in the right "2" of the 2c, and a colored line across the right "2" on another stamp. A similar colored line was found on the "C" of "Cents" of the 5c value. Mr. Perkins also reports having seen a cover which had passed through the mails with a 1c Cuban stamp of the current issue in place of the United States stamp. This cover was held for postage at the office of delivery.

L. Kopf reports having found "a copy of the 1895 6c on the revenue paper, which makes another copy to be added to 12 known, as stated in the Official Check List. This copy is in good condition, lightly cancelled, and shows the whole of the R very plainly."

BAHAMAS.—The first of the King George set has come to hand, the design being the same as for the King Edward set with the exception of the substitution of the portrait of the former for that of his father. Strangely enough the new stamp is printed in the same color as the previous issue, instead of being in the color prescribed in the new color scheme. We have been shown a used copy by Hermann Focke, who reports that the new set was issued August 1, all being in the same design and colors as those of the King Edward set of 1902. The 1d value has not yet appeared, as the supply of the old stamps has not been exhausted. The values now on sale are the ½d, 2½d, 4d, 6d, 1sh, 5sh and 1.

Adhesive.

6d bistre brown.

BARBADOS.—Hermann Focke has shown us the first of the King George set from this Colony, which has adopted for its stamps a design at once handsome and distinctive. The stamp is of the usual size of the Colonial stamps, but the familiar key plates have been departed from with a charming effect. It is in fact a successful attempt to combine the King's Head with the familiar "Britannia and Sea Horses." The portrait of King George appears in an oval surmounted by a crown in the upper left corner, this part of the design occupying very nearly a quarter of the stamp. The name of the Colony appears in colorless letters across the bottom of the stamp. Just above this, in the lower left corner, is a shield with the value also in colorless letters and figures. Britannia and her horses are placed in the lower right corner, just above the name tablet, overhung with tall stalks of sugar cane. The stamp before us is printed in a single color, and it certainly presents the finest appearance of any of the King George stamps yet issued. Mr. Focke also reports having seen the ½d value in the same design.

Adhesives.

¼d brown.
½d green.

BERMUDA.—Several weeks ago we chronicled the 6d and 1sh stamps of Bermuda in the ship type, on the authority of Gibbons Monthly. We have now been shown these stamps by W. H. Peckitt.

BOLIVIA.—We are also indebted to Hermann Focke for specimens of the new provisionals chronicled in No. 1128, credit for which should have been previously given. The L. L. Albright Co., has also shown us a specimen of the 5c provisional of this series.

BRUNEI.—We have been shown the 4c and 25c values of the current set of Brunei, in the single colors, by W. H. Peckitt.

COSTA RICA.—John Nelson submits two curiosities from this country, both being surcharges on the fiscal stamps of 1910. The 10c olive gray has been surcharged "1911," and used for postage, while the 2 colonies stamp of the same issue has been surcharged "Habilitado—1911" and later "1912" has been printed at the bottom of the stamp without obliterating the previous surcharged date. This stamp has some cancellation, too indistinct to be identified.

CYPRUS.—As announced in No. 1128, the ½pi, 4pi and 6pi values of the new King George set were placed on sale before the middle of July. Specimens have now been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. The colors are the same as the previous issue.

Adhesives.

½pi green and carmine.
4pi olive green and violet.
6pi olive and green.

DENMARK.—Another of the higher values has now appeared in the figure type, like the 5 ore value chronicled in No. 1127. A specimen has been shown us by Whitfield King & Co.

Adhesive.

20 ore dark blue.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—A. C. Roessler has shown us the ½d value of the new King George set, chronicled some time since by the Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung from "Specimen" copies. The 5d, 6d and 1sh values have also been previously chronicled. Hermann Focke has also shown us a used copy of the same stamp, which was issued June 8 or earlier. The 1d, 2d and 2½d have not yet been issued as the stamps of these values in the Pandanus type have not been exhausted but will be in the near future.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Ewen's Weekly of July 27, reports that efforts to find the new stamps announced by the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly had failed.

GREECE.—Gibbons Monthly reports having seen the 3d carmine rose of the current type in imperforate condition.

KEDAH.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the full set of Kedah stamps, as described in No. 1127.

SEYCHELLES.—Whitfield King & Co., have now shown us the 15c value, chronicled some time since on the authority of a foreign contemporary.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.—W. A. Kain has shown us a freak copy of the 2d purple of 1900, which has a number of wavy lines across the face, indicating some damage to the plate from which the stamp was printed. There are a number of these lines, and the indications are that the damage to the plate extended over several stamps.

A NEW STAMP ISSUE.

Clipping from C. M. BREDER.

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 10.—The Turkish island of Nicaria (also known as Icaria), in the Aegean Sea, has proclaimed its independence of the Turkish Government. The inhabitants, who number about 13,000, seized and imprisoned all the Turkish officials.

The island of Nicaria, which has an area of about fifty square miles, is famous in mythology for the death of Icarus, whose waxen wings melted while he was flying. At the present day it is occupied almost solely by charcoal burners of Greek nationality. The principal town is Mesaria, which consists of a group of about 200 houses. The islanders have hitherto paid an annual tribute to the Pasha of Rhodes.

EARLY ISSUES OF THE U. S.

By Fred. J. Melville.

The collector who does not limit his interest in stamps to the issues of the British Empire has a most attractive field for his activities in bringing together the fine old stamps of the United States. For variety of portraiture and design, and for the general quality of engraving, these stamps stand alone, excelling the issues of any other single country. The manner of their engraving was the same process as that used for the first stamps of Great Britain and for many of our Colonies, but the Americans were not, as England was, restricted to one portrait. From the first regular Government issue of stamps in the United States, when there were but two denominations, the portraits of Franklin and Washington shared the honours of representation. At a later period other celebrities were admitted to figure on United States stamps, but history has recently repeated itself, and to-day all the lesser lights have disappeared from the miniature portrait gallery, leaving only the portraits of the two heroes who first figured on the American stamps.

As to the first issue of United States stamps, the date is approximately fixed by a record of a visit paid by the Hon. Henry Shaw, the father of Josh Billings to Mr. Cave Johnson, Postmaster-General, on Aug. 5, 1847, when he saw and purchased copies of the new stamps just received from the printer. The two stamps were the 5 cents, brown, and 10 cents, black. The former bears a three-quarter face portrait to left of Benjamin Franklin, after a painting by J. B. Longacre. Franklin's connection with the Post Office as the first Postmaster-General of the United Sates, made the use of his portrait especially appropriate and it has always been retained, generally on the lowest denomination, in each successive set of American stamps. The portrait of Washington is after the familiar Gilbert Stuart painting, the original of which is now exhibited at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Both stamps are to be numbered amongst the finest examples of stamp engraving; they were printed by Messrs. Rawdon, Wright, Hatch, and Edson, of New York. Long after they became obselete, and the plates had been destroyed, they were officially imitated, not, however, with such complete success as to present any difficulty in distinguishing the originals from the imitations.

The contract under which the 1847 issue of stamps was printed expired in 1851, and a more advantageous one was made with a Philadelphia firm, Messrs. Toppan, Carpenter, Casilear, and Co. This firm produced the stamps for the United States during the next ten years. By reason of alterations in postal rates the values at first required of the new contractors were the 1 cent, 3 and 12 cents; later, in 1855-6, the denominations 5 cents and 10 cents were reinstated in the list of stamp values; and finally, in 1860, three high values, the 24, 30, and 90 cents stamps were issued. The 24 cents was required for ½ oz. letters to Great Britain, twelve times the present cost of a 1 oz. letter. During this extension of the series of stamp values perforating was introduced by the contractors (1857), the gauge being 15. The portraits here are copies of several famous originals, but only one—the 5 cents—introduces a new personage in Thomas Jefferson, after a painting of that President by Gilbert Stuart. The 90 cents stamp has a particularly effective vignette of Washington in general's uniform, after the portrait by John Trumbull.

When the Civil War broke out in 1861 the postmasters in the disloyal States were in possession of considerable stocks of the stamps of the issue just described. To prevent these stocks being used to the detriment of the revenue the Postmaster-General had a new set prepared under a new contract, this time with the National Bank Note Company of New York. The old stamps were demonetized, those in possession of the loyal postmasters being exchanged for the new issue. The new stamps repeated the same portraits and values as before, but they were differently treated and in new frame designs. In the urgent circumstances necessitating this issue it was not surprising that the designs as first engraved were not altogether satisfactory. The stamps were issued at the earliest possible opportunity, beginning about Aug. 15, 1861, and the engravers were then already at work upon improved dies and plates from which the printings began to be issued in September.

Thus we get the two series styled the August and September issues of 1861. Their resemblance is close, but it is important that the collector should be able to distinguish. The stamps of the August issue, the "premières gravures," are very scarce; indeed, in the case of some of the denominations it is an open question whether they were ever used. In any event, the period of circulation of the August types was but a few days, and a complete set of the "premières gravures" is a possession of great price. The 10 cents is the only value at all commonly met with used, and that is catalogued at 30s, against 9d for the September issue. An unused set of the stamps of August, 1861, has fetched over £500 at auction in New York.

In spite of their rarity some of the "premières gravures" are occasionally found confused with the commoner stamps of the September set. In order to distinguish between the two series the collector should study enlarged photographs and note that, in some cases, very minute differences, the addition of a stroke or two in the September designs. In other instances, as the 3, 5, and 12 cents, the first designs present more prominent differences, as they are of irregular outline, with rounded corners, which have been filled out to a more rectangular finish in the later type. In the case of the 24 cents and 30 cents no alteration was required, but the first printings of these can be distinguished by the violet colour of the 24 cents and the pale orange of the 30 cents of the August issues. The paper on which the "premières gravures" are printed is thin, hard, and brittle, and of a yellowish-white appearance.

The odd-looking 2-cents stamp (nicknamed "Bighead"), issued in 1863 to supplement the September, 1861, series, presents a full-face portrait of Andrew Jackson, his head occupying nearly the whole area of the stamp design. In 1866 another new value was added, the 15 cents, which presented a portrait of Abraham Lincoln. These two stamps and the series to which they were added continued in use during the early period of the "grille," an American invention which was introduced to prevent the fraudulent cleaning of obliterated stamps for reuse. The effect of the grille was to emboss the paper so as to break its fibres (after the stamps were printed), so that the obliterating ink would sink well into the paper, and thus defeat the efforts of the cleaners. During this period in the United States the fear of illicit re-use of stamps seems to have alarmed the authorities more than any risks of forgery, and many curious inventions were submitted to the Government. Of these, however, the grille was the only one which had any long-sustained trial, and it was tried in a variety of forms before it was finally discarded in the seventies.—London Telegraph.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

COLLECTION ARRANGEMENT.

In a letter recently received a correspondent writes:—"Although I have had a blank loose-leaf postage stamp album for about four months I have put off arranging my stamps in it because I do not know a good way to place varieties of color, perforations, etc. If you could give me some advice I would be much obliged."

The arrangement of stamps in a blank album calls for a certain amount of taste and system, but after a little experience, accompanied by the spoiling of a few leaves, a collector soon gets the "knack" of placing his stamps so that each variety is given its logical place among the others and so that each page is "balanced."

The majority of blank albums are, nowadays, much of a size with an average space for stamps on each page of about 6½ by 9 inches. This mounting space is covered by a faint quadrillè pattern so that it is a simple matter to get one's rows of stamps perfectly straight. As a rule, from six to eight rows of stamps can be mounted on a page and about seven is the maximum number that can be placed in a row. It is advisable not to overcrowd for the effect of a whole page is spoilt if it contains too many stamps. It is better to err by allowing too much room rather than too little.

To obtain the best results the greatest neatness must be observed and a little common sense must be used in mapping out the plan suitable for each page. Neatness in mounting is of the very first importance for the most superb specimens will look commonplace if mounted in a slovenly fashion. There is no excuse for untidy work for the quadrillè at once enables the collector to mount each stamp in the proper position and also to place the stamps on any particular row and the rows themselves at regular spaces.

So many collectors using a blank album think it is their bounden duty to crowd as many stamps on a page as possible, and with that "laudable" object in view, they mount the first stamp in the upper left-hand corner, and follow the others all as close together as possible, row by row, ignoring such trifles as different issues and regardless of the most elementary ideas of symmetry. This is, of course, altogether the wrong way. Each issue must be kept entirely separate. Thus if one has two issues of stamps, one containing three varieties and the other two, these must not be placed in the same horizontal row but each must be allowed a row to itself. Furthermore, the stamps should be mounted in the centre of the page and not as near the left-hand side as possible. For the sake of illustration we will presume we have four issues to mount on one of our pages comprising seven, three, four, and eight stamps respectively. We find eight will not go in a row and seven has a rather crowded appearance so we decide to allow two rows to each of these issues. In all we, thus, have six horizontal rows and allowing a fair space between these they fill the page nicely. The 22 stamps will be arranged as follows:—

8 9 10
11 12 13 14
15 16 17 18 19
20 21 22

THE RIGHT WAY.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7
8 9 10 11 12 13 14
15 16 17 18 19 20 21

THE WRONG WAY.

For comparison we have shown how the same stamps would be placed by the economically minded collector on the "straight-row-fill-all-the-space" plan. Comment is needless.

No matter how many stamps are to be arranged in a row start mounting from the centre and be careful that the stamps are equidistant one from the other. Thus in arranging the top row of five stamps as shown above first of all No. 3 should be mounted in the exact centre of the row, then No. 2, No. 1, No. 4 and No. 5. It is a simple matter to get exactly the same space between the stamps for one has only to allow, say, 2 of the small squares of the quadrillè pattern. Another important point—see that the space between the rows is equal. Do not allow two squares between two rows, five between others, and so on.

The above plan covers an ordinary straight-forward single copy collection.

Where blocks, shades, and varieties are collected a different plan must be followed and here more difficulties present themselves. We will presume, for the sake of illustration, that we have to arrange a page of varieties of the 2c United States stamps of 1908 and have for this purpose five different shades, a pair on bluish paper, vertical and horizontal pairs of the 12 and 8½ perf. Government coils, a block of four imperforates, and two strips of three showing imprint and plate number. The best arrangement would be as follows:—

1 2 3 4 5
10 12
8-9 14-15
11 13
16 17
18 19
20-21-22 23-24-25

Nos. 1 to 5 represent the shades, Nos. 6 and 7 the pair on bluish paper, Nos. 8, 9, 14 and 15, the horizontal coils; Nos. 10, 11, 12 and 13 the vertical pairs; Nos. 16, 17, 18 and 19 the imperforate block; and Nos. 20 to 25 the plate number strips. Other varieties and combinations can be arranged on much the same plan.

SHORT REPLIES.

A. E. L. (New York)—The departmental stamps of Colombia are, I believe, only good for postage within the limits of that department or at most within the republic itself. The Colombian stamps proper are necessary for international mail.

BACK WITH US AGAIN!

After a vacation M. Ohlman, who was with us all last winter, is back in our columns and his offers will be found elsewhere in this issue.

From now on the dealers will return to their desks and September will see the stamp business in full swing. We shall issue a season opener special of the WEEKLY on September 28.

PREMIUM POINTS.

Please note the following in connection with premium offers:—

No premium is given with a renewal unless renewal be for two years or more. This rule applies to any kind of a subscription, whether it be on ten weeks or a longer period.

If your name has ever been on our mailing list you are not entitled to any premium unless your subscription is re-entered for two years.

Don't attempt to transfer your subscription to another member of the family or some friend in order to get a premium. Play fair.

A TUSCUMBIA, ALA., ENVELOPE.

We illustrate a curiosity by courtesy of Jac. Meyer and we quote from his letter which will give the desired information:—

"In going over some old letters I found a 3c red Tuscumbia envelope on buff paper (see Scott No. 138). It was covered by a 3c 1857 adhesive cancelled in black, Tuscumbia, Ala.

I took off the stamp without harming the envelope and replaced it on the envelope with a hinge, as per illustration.

It will be noted that this is a 3c envelope, while Scott's lists only the 5c variety. I thought the curiosity would be of interest to the readers of the WEEKLY."

We present the two cuts herewith:—

FIRST AERIAL MAIL ROUTE.

Philadelphia Aviator Will Fly Every Day from Ocean City to Stone Harbor.

Clipping from F. W. LYNES.

Marshall Earle Reed, the Philadelphia aviator, who made the first flight from New York to this city with a passenger, and who has recently been giving exhibitions at League Island in hydroplaning, has been appointed by the Postmaster General to conduct the first regular aeroplane mail-carrying service in the country. The service will be established Aug. 3, between Ocean City and Stone Harbor, N. J., and, if successful, will be made a permanent summer route.

Reed received his commission from the Post Office Department yesterday morning at the Navy Yard, while preparing his machine for its new career, and by noon he was ready to take up the work. The machine was mounted upon a truck to be towed to the Market street ferries behind an automobile. At the ferries the party was given an ovation by a delegation of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, under whose auspices the service will be conducted. A large crowd had congregated at the ferry, and it was with difficulty that the machine was safely loaded on the boat.

Just before the boat left the slip Reed was handed a letter from the Stone Harbor Yacht Club challenging him to race his aeroplane between Ocean City and Stone Harbor against the swiftest racing vessels of the club. Without hesitation he penned a telegram accepting the challenge.

Today (Aug. 1—Ed.) Reed will be sworn in at Ocean City as a duly authorized United States mail carrier, and will at once enter upon his new duties. Trips back and forth between the two coast towns will be made daily for one week. The distance between the two places is a trifle less than 20 miles, which Reed expects to cover in from 20 to 25 minutes. The time between the two points by train is 28 minutes.

The machine with which Reed will maintain the service is the Wright biplane in which he flew to this city from New York, and subsequently converted into a hydroplane. The machine is still equipped with pontoons, and will be operated as a hydroplane, most of the flying being done over the water.—Philadelphia Record.

CHAPTER VIII.

3 Cents, 1861-1868.

The value of specialism is found nowhere to greater extent than in the common red Three Cent Stamp of the war times. The general collector does not know what it means to study stamps, and will never know until he has taken up this issue, and in a considerable measure mastered its possibilities.

And right here I want to say that the catalog as we know it can only be taken as a make-shift until something better is provided. It has no business to list types or shades. For just the minute a collector secures types I, II and III of the 1851 one cent, the type I and II of the three cent 1857, the different types of the 5 cent brown of the same last issue, or the red brown and brown; or the pink, the lake, the scarlet, or any two colors of the rose of the three cent 1861, or even the different sizes of grills in the grilled varieties of the same issue, he begins specializing.

The general collector has no need of but one of each—the specialist acquires dozens and hundreds—each with some distinguishing feature to commend itself to a place in his album.

To go back to the three cent—issue of 1861-1868—there are but two plate varieties—the so-called August and September issues. The first is a very rare stamp (why I do not know, for many were printed and must have been used). The characteristics are well defined in the catalogs and handbooks, and need not be repeated here.

The first of the September issues to be used were the pink and bright rose. Early in 1862 the colors became variant, and Mr. Luff chronicles this stamp in pale rose, rose, rose red, deep rose red, brownish rose, deep red, carmine lake, orange red, and scarlet.

Twenty-seven plates were used for the printing of 1,772,658,870 stamps, including the August issue. The August stamps were printed from Plate 2, the later issues from Plates 11, 12, 13, 14, 19, 20, 21, 23, 24, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 52, 54, 55.

As will be seen above this stamp is very prolific in shades. It is not rare in either used or unused condition, and it is possible to get large blocks at a fair premium.

The pink—a color which many believe they have, and which but few really possess—has a peculiar tinge, with a slightly bluish cast, which, once become familiar with, is never forgotten. The lake and scarlet are hard shades to describe, and must first be seen to thereafter pass judgment upon. Many used copies are called lake, and so placed in collections, but they are only carmine-lake. I believe the true lake was never intended for postage, and for my own part I would as soon have a finished proof in both the lake and scarlet as to have the genuine stamp, so far as its postalic value is concerned.

The paper varieties are numerous. It will be found in paper ranging from very thick to very thin, and intermediate thicknesses. It comes in vertical laid paper also.

It is said to exist in a double paper variety, too.

A paper used for some of this issue, but unknown to all except the specialist, is what is known to revenue collectors as "Old" paper. They are identical in shade, texture, weight, etc., and are worthy of a place in the albums of collectors.

Double perforations, horizontal and vertical, are not rare.

Black, pen, and blue cancellations are about evenly divided as to commonness. Green cancellations are somewhat rarer. Strange as it may seem the rarest cancellation in this issue is red. It is seldom found, unless existing as a daub. Year cancellations are common; Paid cancellations rather scarce.

The stamp was printed on chemical paper—a brownish wove kind, and also on white wove paper in different colored changeable inks which, on being touched by acids would change colors completely. It was also printed in a water color ink which would disappear entirely when steps were taken to clean the stamps.

Worn plates have produced a minor

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

PORTLAND, ORE., AERIAL MAIL ROUTE.

By courtesy of BEN DELOVAGE.

We are indebted to Ben Delovage for a letter just at hand bearing a postmark indicating the making of history in aerial route cancellations. The envelope before us has this inscription in five lines:—

U. S. Aeroplane
Mail Service
THIS LETTER CARRIED BY AVIATOR WALTER EDWARDS FROM PORTLAND, OREGON TO VANCOUVER, WASH.

Over the ordinary circular postmark is the word AVIATION and beneath STATION.

From a newspaper clipping enclosed we extract the following:—

"U. S. Aeroplane Mail Service."

That is the postmark to go on every letter mailed tomorrow afternoon, (Oct. 10—Ed.) and Sunday in the special postal station at the Country Club grounds. In addition to the unique marking, which no doubt will be historic as perhaps the first of its kind ever placed on United States mail, and is certainly the first cancellation for any American mail ever carried across a state line by aeroplane, there will appear on the letters sent the following stamped statement:

"This letter carried by Aviator Walter Edwards, from Portland, Ore., to Vancouver, Wash."

With the assurance of Aviator Edwards that he will convey all letters brought to him, regardless of the number, and the fact that the cancellation stamp is sure to become historic, a rush is expected on the Country Club grounds tomorrow and Sunday afternoon. Among the letters taken will be one from Mayor Rushlight to the Mayor of Vancouver, and there probably will be a response brought back by the aeroplane carrier. Hundreds of souvenir postal cards have already been prepared for mailing by the new route.

WHAT A DAY'S MAIL BRINGS.

We can just touch upon it from a subscription standpoint only and the day in question will be Monday, August 19:—

C. L. Ek has had the honor for years of giving our mailing list the least trouble in handling his name. Today, however, C. M. Ku joins our loyal list of subscribers from a Michigan city.

Hubert Lyman Clark writes: "I was down in Connecticut last week and found two collectors who don't take MEKEEL'S. Please enter both for trial subscriptions. I hope they will become regular subscribers and will do what I can to ensure it."

Wm. A. Johnson: "Cannot do without MEKEEL'S and regret exceedingly that it is not the official journal of the A. P. S. Enclosed find $1 for two years' renewal."

Maitland Milliken: "Enclosed find $1 for two years' renewal. Also a bunch of clippings. Send a specimen copy of the WEEKLY to enclosed address. He is a beginner." Such a letter makes the editor feel good.

An A. P. S. member in Norwalk, Ct., renews his own subscription for two years and sends in two new names; one in Hong Kong and the other, Shanghai.

A. N. Murdock sends in a new name from Marion, Mass., and writes: "Will try and get you more new subscribers."

And when the work of the day has been summarized we find among the items twenty-six new subscriptions and eleven two-year renewals. It has been a hard day for the managing editor but his work is appreciated.

DEUTSCHER PHILATELISTEN TAG.

We are indebted to Eugene Klein and W. T. Wilson for official cards from the great German Philatelic gathering at Marktredwitz, Bavaria. The conference is honored as in the past with a special cancellation of matter mailed therefrom as follows: "XXIV Deutscher Philatelisten Tag—Marktredwitz."

Mr. Klein uses a regulation card with a 10pf stamp impressed upon it. The card sent by Mr. Wilson possesses more than ordinary interest in that affixed to it are two 5pf Bavarian stamps separated by one of the much noted stamp advertisements now being used on German stamps.

A NOVELTY PREMIUM.

We noted last week the appearance of a very interesting provisional from Victoria, the 2d surcharged ONE PENNY. Mr. Reid has sent us a dozen covers, each bearing two of the Victoria provisionals and a half penny West Australia. Do you want one of these covers free? Here are our offers:—

(1) With an absolutely new subscription for 6 mos.—name never before on our list, or
(2) With a two years' renewal.

If you are now on our list or ever been on our list you are not entitled to a premium except on a 2 yrs. remittance.

THE WORK OF AN EXHIBITION.

By ONE WHO KNOWS.

The Clerk of the Weather, however unkind he may be to the August holiday-maker, is probably anxious for the success of the Jubilee International Stamp Exhibition. For this August many folk instead of basking in a scorching sun at the seaside are content and glad to be at home slogging away at the arrangement of their collections for the coming contest.

The weather has a very considerable influence on matters philatelic and had the present summer been a repetition of the tropical and sustained heat of last year, I doubt me whether it would not have told its tale in fewer and less studied exhibits at the October show. As it is, however, with snow and frost in August, and rain-storms galore, one hears on all sides of the progress being made with the entries for the great show.

Not only amongst exhibitors will the effect be noticed. The organisers are finding that while most of the arrangements were completed long before the holiday season set in, their helpers are carrying on their various operations practically without any holiday break, and the amount of printed matter distributed and correspondence dealt with has placed the Exhibition on a basis of forwardness that has probably never been equalled in past exhibitions two months prior to the opening date.

All this is very gratifying to those who have thrown themselves heart and soul into this gigantic effort. I use the word gigantic advisedly, for in the earlier days of the preparations it was not easy to impress all with the enormous advance in extent to be covered in this, over the previous great exhibitions.

A few simple figures may illustrate the truly gigantic proportions of the coming venture.

Date.	Exhibition.	Area.
1905.	British.	1,564 sq. ft.
1908.	Imperial.	9,000 sq. ft.
1909.	Golden West.	2,588 sq. ft.
1912.	Jubilee International.	17,920 sq. ft.

The increase, when one considers that it is in a building centrally located, in the heart of the metropolis of the world, means not merely double the work of the Imperial Exhibition of 1908, which was carried out with such eclat on an expenditure of barely £300; it means more than double that in cost.

In duration the Exhibition will be a considerable advance on former efforts. The period during which the previous exhibitions were open were:

British,	17 hours.
Imperial,	30 hours.

The coming exhibition will be accessible to the public during nearly 70 hours.

Another interesting comparison is the time required for furnishing the hall and arranging the exhibits in the cases.

At Exeter Hall in 1905 under 20 hours were available for setting up and taking down, at Caxton Hall the workers were only able to get in at 11 p. m. on the night preceding the opening ceremony, i. e., allowing a bare sixteen hours for the fitting up. This time it will require a lively hustle to have everything ready in 71 hours from the moment the hall is cleared for action. That means day and night work.

The present writer has been associated with all the above mentioned exhibitions, and as each new effort is undertaken on these lines the marvel arises anew in one's mind that men, young men and older men gladly render not only of their cash, but what is ofttimes far more precious, their time and energy, to devote both to unaccustomed and hard work during unaccustomed and trying hours to make a successful exhibition, which shall delight its thousands of visitors. There is nothing like an exhibition for bringing out the latent forces for work and achievement in a society of earnest stamp-collectors. And no firmer friendships are ever formed than those begun in the comradeship of work and which grow apace as the work continues into the bleak chill hours of morning. There is much fellow-feeling in those early hours, when one can only keep warm by vigorous hammering, running at one's task instead of walking, swilling hot coffee to keep awake, and cheerily looking forward to the arrival of the morning gang when we shall be free to grant ourselves a short respite for grateful breakfast and the comforting bath.

Yes, I marvel that we do it, but I am glad to think that at such times the work is willing, and many who remain quiescent in a society's activities year in and year out, turn up trumps as workers when an Exhibition comes along.

Of course, the work has its rewards: it is strenuously done under pressure of time and resources, its rewards have been not less strenuous in the Exhibitions of 1905 and 1908. Long before the appointed time the sound of assembling crowds reaches to us within the precincts and tells us that our work is not going to be wasted, that people are going to come and enjoy what we have been preparing. Later, when the doors have been opened, and we find it difficult to move about as freely in the broad gangways as we did at midnight or in the sma' hours, we feel that our reward is complete if everybody comes and if everybody goes away satisfied.

Edwardian Stamps of the British Empire
BY DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG

This book is Volume II of the series inaugurated by Bright & Son and known as "Bright's Philatelic Library." In the volume before us the Edwardian issues of Antigua, Bahamas, Bechuanaland Protectorate, British Central Africa, British Honduras, Canada, Cape Colony, Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus and Dominica are illustrated and described.

In addition to the bibliography there is an appendix giving the colonial color scheme, and the entire volume is one that will appeal to the philatelist who makes any attempt at a philatelic library.

JORDAN & CO., PHILADELPHIA.

This firm recently removed its business from Garretford, Pa., to Philadelphia. Whether justly or not we cannot say, but the claim is made that removal so upset their business that correspondence had to be neglected. They could not take time even to discontinue their advertisement in the WEEKLY so we discontinued it for them. When certain subscribers wrote them two or three times about their remissness the firm coolly ignored them. Not very much is involved, only 4c possibly, but it's the principal of the thing we despise. We have their promise that the firm will make good and we will let the people know it if they do make good but we shall respectfully decline any further "Jordan & Co." advertising.

STAMPS OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS.

By A. LEON ADUTT.

The first printing of the 1d and 5s was placed on sale at the Georgetown Post Office on November 23rd, 1907, and remained in circulation till December 9th, when, owing to a sudden demand for a large number of penny stamps, principally required for legal receipt purposes, three more sheets were surcharged, making in all eighteen, and a total of 2160 stamps. By this time all ½d stamps had run very low, and a single sheet only remained for sale; consequently it became necessary to provide a further supply of ½d stamps, and another fifteen sheets of the 5s ones were used for this purpose and issued for public use on November 28th, 1907, three days after the appearance of the Provisional. The overprint, although made in the same manner, is noteworthy for the fact of there not being any fraction bar between the "1" and "2" of ½d. The total number of this Provisional being 1800, only one printing took place.

Of the several varieties the most important of all of which I have a copy, are the "double surcharge," a surcharge inverted, and an unsurcharged stamp se tenant with the surcharged copies. Up to a few months ago my copy was considered unique, but I recently discovered another in the bottom row of the right-hand sheet of a frame acquired last October from America. I knew of the existence of this frame abroad for some time, but a considerable interval elapsed before negotiations were eventually settled which resulted in it being sent to England and handed over to me, together with a frame of two sheets of the 1d and 5s. These are undoubtedly unique, and it gives me much pleasure to show them publicly for the first time to-night to the members present of the Royal Philatelic Society, London. The two frames with the 1d and 5s overprint seem to have been most carefully executed. The only variety which I have not seen before occurs in the third stamp in the second row: the "1" is shown slanting with double the space between it and "D" as compared with any other stamp on the frame. This variety was evidently caused by the metal front working loose in the rough wooden handle that was made to hold the same, and must have been immediately corrected for the stamps on either side of the variety are quite normal.

The arrival of the long looked for consignment of ½d and 1d stamps (100 sheets of each value) in the new type, on December 27th, 1907, removed for the time being the necessity for issuing any further Provisional.

SUMMARY.

Provisionals, 1907. Overprinted in black.
Watermark Multiple CA.

One Halfpenny on 1d carmine.
½d on 5s salmon and emerald-green.

Varieties.

1. Overprint inverted.
2. Double overprint.
3. Unsurcharged in pair with normal.
4. Figure "1" of ½d missing.
5. "d" of ½d missing.
6. Surcharged above and not touching the value tablet.
7. Figure "2" of ½d missing.

1d on 5s salmon and emerald-green.

Varieties.

1. Double overprint.
2. "1" of 1d missing.
3. Surcharge not touching value tablet.
4. Slanting figure 1 with wide spacing between it and the "D."

The 2½d on 4d Provisional.

The steam yacht Zenaida, with Sir Frederick Johnson and the Countess of Wilton on board, touched at Georgetown on February 12th, 1908, and offered before leaving to carry a mail to Cienfuegos, Cuba. The local authorities gladly availed themselves of the offer as in the ordinary course no mail was due till the end of the month. But owing to a large number of letters being consigned as usual to the United States, a big quantity of 2½d stamps were required. Unfortunately the stock was quite exhausted, a supply being expected by the vessel which would take off the next outward mail. It being deemed advisable to keep intact the rapidly declining stock of ½d and 1d stamps, instructions were issued for a sufficient number of 4d "Postage—Postage" stamps to be overprinted "2½d" in order to supply the public demand for this outgoing mail.

Four sheets (480 stamps) of the current 4d stamp were therefore surcharged by the Inspector of the Police, Mr. J. H. O'Sullivan, in a similar manner as before, with a metal handstamp.

Two sheets of these were actually sold over the counter and used in the ordinary course of business, but the other two sheets were bought by a local speculator. Only six of these stamps were sold to each applicant at the Post Office, but in spite of this precaution all had been sold out in two days, namely, by the 14th of the month. The metal handstamp used for the overprinting was destroyed on the same day. The figures used were as before, all the same size and no fraction-bar shown, but the type used was a little smaller fount than the previous surcharges. The principal and only variety generally known is the double impression; but I have in my collection a stamp showing the double surcharge, one of which is inverted, used on entire.

This Provisional appears to be the only one that has attracted the forger, and I have seen some dangerous ones which evidently emanate from Paris.

SUMMARY.

1908. Surcharged in black.

2½d on 4d, brown and blue.

Varieties.

1. Double overprint.
2. Double overprint, one inverted.

The 1d on 4d Provisional.

In May, 1908, the Georgetown Post Office ran quite out of the low-value stamps, and pending the arrival of a fresh supply expected about June 1st, postage for small amounts on letters had to be paid for in cash over the counter, the letters, and post cards, being marked "Postage Paid" by the Postmistress, and a number were done in this manner. I have several examples written in red and black ink, and blue chalk, and some with the initials undet of the Postmaster, then being postmarked in the ordinary way as if the stamp existed, in its usual place.

It was during this shortage that an American, requiring a number of penny stamps for receipt purposes, on being informed there were not any available, lodged a complaint, with the result that the Commissioner ordered a small quantity of 4d stamps to be overprinted 1d, and used for fiscal purposes only.

Two printings were made on May 12th and 14th of 396 stamps (three complete sheets and 36 odd copies) by the Postmistress at Georgetown, this being the only office where these stamps were sold. One complete sheet was sold to the American applicant, and the remaining 276 were nearly all sold in single copies. I have a specimen which some one has endeavoured to pass through the post, but the Postmaster, Mr. W. G. McCausland, detected it, and has written across it the words "Fiscal only" in red ink. Another copy is illustrated which has successfully passed through the post, and is undoubtedly very rare, as most stringent instructions were made to prevent this stamp being used for anything but fiscal purposes. The following is a copy of an original notice written by the Postmaster and attached to the letter mentioned above, and is now in my collection:—

"The Provisional 1d on 4d on the envelope was issued for Fiscal purposes only, and may not be used for Postage."

A REMARKABLE DAY'S MAIL.

On Monday last we received a total of no less than 26 new subscribers. This is all the more remarkable in that they were received in August right in the very heart of the so-called dull season. It goes to show that our advertising campaign is bearing fruit and our regular advertising patrons are profiting by the result.

To these new readers of the WEEKLY we give a cordial greeting. If we seem a bit technical bear in mind that we stand ready to translate o. g. and similar abbreviations into understandable English. We want to make you a satisfied subscriber.

MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Springfield's Show—As expected, the news columns of the WEEKLY afford particulars of the deliberations of the convention of the American Philatelic Society held at Springfield as by the time that this paragraph is in type, the convention will have been an accomplished fact. We shall not yield to the temptation to make any predictions as to election results or the character of the legislation but we devoutly hope that an unselfish interest in the society will be the actuating motive of the delegates. It will be a cause for regret if a larger vote is not polled by the members for officers and official journal this year than last and a greater representation by proxy is not made.

No Disguising It—This year, as last, the WEEKLY was not a candidate for official journal and any remarks on the subject need not be biased. It is the opinion of many that a majority of members of the American Philatelic Society do not subscribe for the official journal and the consequence is that the ties of those members to the society have become loosened. This condition is not cited as any reflection against the present official journal but the cold truth remains that a large proportion of the membership does not see the reports of the workings of the organization as they are made in the society's mouth-piece. Under the circumstances, it must follow that the members referred to must insensibly drift beyond the zone of the society's influence and have no intimate regard for their organization. The inertia due to this cause has permeated in some measure the whole body of members. The problem presented by the question of official journal has reached an acute stage and remedial measures must be adopted if the indifference of many members is to be overcome. We understand that the subject will be threshed out at the convention.

We Salute—In accordance with its wish not to be a candidate for official journal this year, the WEEKLY has refrained from enlarging upon the vote of the Chicago Branch One, some time ago, choosing this paper as its preference for official journal. However, the certainty that a few votes will be cast for the WEEKLY makes it incumbent upon us to express our appreciation for these complimentary votes and this we do gladly.

Hope On—In a budget of news from Australia, Mr. R. J. Hogg of Adelaide, writes: "Twelve months ago, we were promised a Commonwealth stamp and had visions of a universal issue for the six states, without variations of paper, perforations or shades but the enclosed clipping from the Advertiser looks as though the stamp printery is intent upon making the most of the remaining time. The newspaper item, dated at Melbourne, says that the new Commonwealth postage stamp, which the admiring Postmaster-General has declared "will be loved by all Australians" has become overcome by a strange lassitude and although the design was accepted four months ago and is in the possession of the stamp printer, "he is far from printing it." The reason for this delay is alleged to be due to the preparation of a new die, "on which the kangaroo grass beside the kangaroo will have disappeared and the animal will be sitting within a bare outline map of Australia." It is observed that the new die will be approved by the authorities who finally will have the stamp produced but it is predicted that the public will not be given a sight of them until early next year. This is disappointing news as in the interim, it is feared that there will be a wholesale visitation of make-shift varieties.

The First—Our correspondent illustrates the effect of the delay in circulating the Commonwealth stamp by sending a copy of the two-pence Victoria with the surcharge in red, "One Penny." The stock of two pence stamps in excess of the anticipated needs between now and the date of issue of the new stamp has been surcharged and the number of stamps thus overprinted is a large one, as because of the introduction of general penny postage, the volume of use of the stamp has largely diminished. There may be a riot of varieties from the other states.

Made in Japan—All the way from the Tokyo Puck comes a definition of a hobby, which, paradoxically is "that nothing that admits of a definition constitutes a hobby." Hear, hear! Thus encouraged, Puck continues and says that it is "wholly independent of the sense of love, gain, lust or any other promptings." Great little idea, if we could grasp it.

Birds—From Mr. Leonard Michael, New York City, we have received some particulars of the use of the "erste Deutsche Luftpost am Rhein" stamp which pays for the air carriage of postal cards, when the regulation postage is represented by the usual stamp. The special stamp on this "flug" or flying "post-karte" is of ten pfennig denomination and is of a light chocolate or brick-red color and evidently lithographed. Around the central design of a carrier-pigeon is the quotation given above, which may be translated: First German Air-Post of the Rhein. We understand that the mail service is by Zeppelin machine; and the following information has been given us: "Trips are not made regularly as yet, but when made, mail is carried for the length of the trip, to be completed by the regular mail service. For one week regular trips were made between Bad Nauheim and Frankfurt, without landing, however, at Bad Nauheim, where mail was dropped at a certain point. For a regular landing-place, it takes quite an arrangement—a large movable cradle and a shed. Also an anchor is used, the same as by a ship and the balloon swings around the anchor with the wind. The trip was made twice a day and consumed two and one-half hours and the charge was fifty dollars for the round trip. Passengers up to the number of twenty were carried and a cabin was attached to the balloon with an interior much like that of a Pullman car on a reduced scale. Of course they have restaurant service with cold meals and drinks."

Impressive—We are indebted to an English contemporary for the following very pleasant and authentic little recital. "The King has sent a package of foreign postage stamps to a young sailor named Daniel Chandler, who is bedridden at Gosport, Hampshire, through a fall while serving in the Navy. His hobby is stamp collecting. The gift was accompanied by the following letter:—'The King was grieved to hear of the sad plight of the sailor lad, and commands me to send you a packet of stamps to give him, with an expression of hope that they may be an interesting and useful addition to his collection." Collectors must unconsciously feel a gratitude which it is best not to attempt to reduce to words upon contemplating the considerate act of the king. The philatelist may imagine the transports of joy and swelling pride of the recipient upon receiving a packet of stamps from the most exalted of sources. George the fifth indeed is a royal philatelist.

Mr. Kidder described last week the New Barbados and we present here a cut of the same by courtesy of R. Louis Payne. The wonder is that so much can be crowded into so small a space and with so pleasing an effect. Two values have appeared, ¼p brown, ½p green.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:
Regular Government Issues U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps Confederate Provisionals
The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!
Remit 25c for new 6 mos. sub., not renewal, or $1 for 2 yrs. renewal.
No matter when your subscription expires we will date it ahead.
We Give No Premiums Unless:—
You are a new subscriber, and have never been on our mailing list before.
As a renewal, it be for two or more years.
Ten weeks trial subscribers must renew for 2 yrs. to win a premium.

U. S. PLATES AND DIES.

Clipping from E. S. Garard.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—The 70,000 plates, dies and rolls from which the money, stamps and securities of the United States and the national banknotes are printed, have been counted by a treasury department committee and reported intact to Secretary MacVeagh, with the exception of one die, which has been missing for eight years. The die, which disappeared in 1904, was for a revenue stamp for fermented wines. It is obsolete and could not be fraudulently used, if found. When the vault of the bureau of engraving and printing was relined several years ago, it is believed the missing die fell between the old and new lining. The examining committee this year took over 5,000 obsolete plates and dies to the Washington navy yard and destroyed them.

The above clipping is from the Chicago Daily News. We sent it to John W. Prevost asking him whether or not he recognized the die referred to. We quote from Mr. Prevost's reply:—

"I am unable to place the stamp by the description and think that the clipping is in error as to the kind of stamp for which die is missing. So far as I know, there never was a fermented wine stamp.

While wine does ferment, fermented liquors are always beers and ales, etc., not wines. I have seen nearly every thing in the fermented liquor line.

On page 37 of the U. S. R. S. Hand Book just distributed, is a list of all wine stamps known, and you will see that there is no fermented wine stamp.

This information is taken from Reports of Bureau of Engraving and Commissioner of Int. Rev. for all items which we have not seen and should be, and undoubtedly is, correct.

A die is no doubt missing, but they have not got it correct in the clipping."

M. P. A. OFFICERS, 1912-1913.

The following were elected at the Harrisburg convention:—Pres., Percy Mann., Phila., Pa.; Vice Pres., L. P. Miller, Harrisburg, Pa., Sec'y, Wm. C. Webb, Boonton, N. C.; Int'l Sec'y, Rasmus Barthson, St. Paul, Minn.; Treasurer, Victor V. Boyer, Reading, Pa.; Director, A. W. Dunning, Newton, Mass.; Director, J. M. Holt, Astoria, Ore. Official Organ, Mack Monthly Philatelist, Scranton, Pa. Twenty-five were present. Consolidation was vetoed.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF A. P. S.

Meeting Held at Springfield, Mass., Largely Attended.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 20.—While the day was not a very auspicious one from the standpoint of the weather, yet over one hundred collectors assembled at the Hotel Kimball this morning to transact the business of the annual convention of the A. P. S.

On the evening previous at the home of W. C. Stone, a social meeting resulted in an outpouring of philatelists that severely taxed the capacity of the Stone homestead, and a very enjoyable evening was passed.

The report of the committee on credentials was presented by H. E. Deats. The old board was practically reelected:—Wm. E. Ault taking the place of W. H. Barnum, who declined a reelection to the secretaryship. C. A. Nast was defeated for the directorate by Henry J. Crocker. Nast's vote was 286 and Crocker's 338. The highest vote received by any director was 439.

The vote for official journal resulted:—Phila. Stamp News, 261; Everybody's Philatelist, 123; Mekeel's Weekly, 37; scattering, 16. It is needless to add that the votes for Mekeel's Weekly were cast over our declination to stand as a candidate for the honor. The total vote cast was 437 out of a possible vote of nearly 1,400.

The proxies were reported upon as follows:—Wolsieffer, 50; Wylie, 41; Batchelder, 47; Myers, 46; Good, 14; Deats, 45; Mudge, 48; scattering, 73; total, 380. No doubt others will be reported at subsequent sessions.

In the meantime we have had time to look around and see who is present. Boston is represented by Messrs. Batchelder, Stone, Carpenter, Aldrich, Dunning, Legg, Burt and Wylie. From Chicago, Messrs. Wolsieffer, Dodd, Mudge and Schliechert; from Detroit, Gen. Coolidge, Dr. Babcock, Messrs. Heyerman and Fernald; from N. Y. City, Messrs. Luff, Rich, Mozian, Homburger, Randall and Davison, and from other points, Messrs. Cornwall and Myers of Missouri; Bescher, of Kansas; Parrish, Mann, Kissinger and Mack, of Pa.; Bruce and Chapman, of Connecticut; the Pollards, from Proctorsville, Vt.; Good and Barnum, from Ohio; Hassler, of Ky., and local celebrities too numerous to mention. We cannot name the more than one hundred present for lack of time and space.

Pres. Cornwall in a lengthy and able report covered the various phases of society work and needed legislation. We are unable to insert it here but our resumé of the work of the convention will show the disposition made of the matters brought to the attention of the convention.

The report of the secretary showed a present membership of nearly 1,400, a considerable loss over the figures reported a year ago. Secretary Barnum personally very popular in the society, was greeted with a hearty round of applause as he arose to present his address.

The morning session was given over entirely to the reports of officers and committees, an adjournment being effected at noon. In the afternoon a trip was taken to Mt. Tom and in the evening a banquet was spread at the Hotel Kimball.

Springfield, Aug. 21.—The supplementary report of the committee on credentials showed nearly 100 additional proxies as follows:—Fernald, 30; Mann, 30; Dodd, 14; Wylie, 8; scattering, 17.

Mr. Mudge of the committee appointed to arrange for the 25th anniversary celebration gave detailed reports of the work accomplished and particularly of the Stamp Exhibition and its unqualified success. The total expenses of the exhibition were $1,415.01, which amount was raised by a general subscription, a $27.76 deficit being generously subscribed by Geo. H. Worthington. The committee was given a hearty vote of thanks.

The proposition to create a special advanced class to be known as "fellows of the A. P. S." or some similar designation, was referred to a special committee to report next year.

Rickett's index, supplementing Lord Crawford's index, devoted to philatelic publications in the English language, was ordered printed in hand book form.

Mr. Myers suggested some code by which members collecting proclivities could be designated in the year book. Referred to resolutions committee and will no doubt be adopted on the morrow.

The rest of the forenoon was taken up with a discussion of the proposition to suspend the quarterly American Philatelist in favor of a frequently issued society bulletin. The By-Laws Committee will report upon the matter tomorrow and it seems that some vital change will be made in order to place the society doings before the membership. In the debate Pres. Cornwall stated that only 300 members were subscribers to the official journal.

This afternoon the society is tendered an outing with Minnechoag Lake as the objective point. The local committee is giving the convention a great time.

The remainder of the report must go over to our next issue.

A BUREAU OF INFORMATION.

Clipping from R. L. Stulz.

Frank H. Hitchcock, the Postmaster-general, tells this story concerning one of the rural cogs in the post office machine.

"That the rural post office is still a bureau of general information, in the South no less than in the North, was recently evidenced by a conversation precipitated by an old colored man, who approached the postmaster of an Alabama village and queried:

"'Any letter for me?' 'No.'

"'Any postal cahrds ' 'No.'

"'Is my paper come?' 'No.'

"'Got any almanacs?' 'No.'

"'Say, does you know anybody that wants to buy a live alligater?'"

A Chat With the Advertiser

We want to express our appreciation of the splendid support accorded the WEEKLY during the heated season. There is a reason for the patronage we have received and we charge it up to the new blood infused into our mailing list.

Elsewhere in this issue we show the wherefore of the whichness in the fact that on last Monday we received no less than twenty-six new subscribers. There is no recruiting medium in the world that can equal MEKEEL'S WEEKLY and the live dealer must realize that fact.

This week that long established and reliable dealer, F. R. Ginn of London, offers to buy stamps, and Chas. H. Stone offers a collection that he is breaking up into approval offerings.

We admit that we are not the only pebble on the beach, but we offer you a value for cash paid that cannot be equalled by any stamp paper.

FROM AUSTRALIA.

By R. J. Hogg.

Dealers and collectors of Australians are at present revelling in the issues of those small adjoining islands which find it hard to muster a few hundred white inhabitants, such as Papua, British Solomon Islands, New Hebrides, Gilbert and Ellice Islands, besides those dependent on New Zealand. Now we are promised and in the case of Victoria, we have the higher values surcharged to one penny. Truly the speculator is to have some rare opportunities and collectors of Australians big volumes at the present rate of increase.

At the present time, the stamps of the Commonwealth are printed in two centres; those of N. S. W. and Queensland, in Sydney, while Victoria, Tasmania, South Australia, West Australia and Papua are printed in Melbourne. In the latter case the result is that these stamps comprising almost every shape and size, sometimes get perforated by the wrong machine or printed on the wrong paper and varieties appear which gladden the heart of the specialist and generally return big profits to some lucky finder. A splendid opportunity exists for replacing this state of chaos, by a regular uniform issue, and whether the design is artistic or not is a small matter compared with the importance of a uniform, continuous issue which should be brought out without delay, especially as the old designs still sold in each state, are available for postage in any part of the Commonwealth.

As a result of the Philatelic Conference held in Sydney in August, 1911, the societies in Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide are at work preparing a standard unpriced catalogue of their respective states; who will do the other states is not announced.

Small Ads Column.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell or exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world.

RATE.—20c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $7.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES—Ben Delovage sends us a letter postmarked "Aviation Station," Portland Oregon, Aug. 10, 1912. Beside the postmark is a notice in rubber stamp print, reading: "U. S. Aeroplane Mail Service. This letter was carried by Aviator Walter Edwards from Portland, Oregon, to Vancouver, Wash."

ANGOLA.—James B. B. Smith reports having seen three new provisionals from Angola, the 15r green, Scott's No. 79, having been surcharged "Republica," and new values in the upper left corners. The old value is covered with a square block of black. Mr. Smith is informed that these are local surcharges.

Provisional Adhesives.

2½r on 15r gray green.
5r on 15r gray green.
10r on 15r gray green.

ARGENTINE.—Another value of the new set has appeared, unused specimens having been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. and the New England Stamp Co.

Adhesive.

3c green.

BAHAMAS.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new Bahama stamps, thus far issued, supplementing the 6d noted last week. As noted the colors are according to the old scheme, this being the first departure from the new color scheme made in printing the King George stamps.

Adhesives.

½d green.
2½d ultramarine.
4d orange.
1sh black and carmine.
5sh violet and ultramarine.
1 gray green and black.

BARBADOS.—We are indebted to R. Louis Payne for a cover with specimens of the new ¼d and ½d stamps from the Island. These are all that have yet been placed on sale. The denominations of the new set are given by the Postmaster General as ¼d, ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 6d, 1sh, 2sh and 3sh. The old 2d slate are all sold out at the post-office at Bridgetown, but of the other denominations a supply is still on hand. A. C. Roessler is informed that the rest of the set was to be placed on sale Aug. 26. We are also indebted to Gerald D. Bliss for specimens of the new stamps.

BAVARIA.—Eugene Klein sends us an official card from the German Stamp Congress, held this year at Marktredwitz, Bavaria. The card has a current 10pf Bavarian stamp on the face, with the inscription, "XXIV. Deutscher Philatelisten und 16. Bundestag Marktredwitz 1912—Offizielle Postkarte." On the reverse are the arms of Germany and Austria, and one unidentified, possibly that of the town or province, a view of the town and an old fashioned stage coach. A special postmark has been provided for the Congress, showing "XXIV Deutscher Philatelistentag —Marktredwitz" with the date in the centre.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—The King George set is beginning to appear, two values having been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co. The design is practically the same as the previous issue, except that the oval containing the portrait is smaller, giving room for a crown at the top. The portrait is carefully engraved and is one of the most satisfactory which has yet appeared, far superior in fact to that on the stamps of the mother country. It will be noted that the 6d is printed in the old colors.

Adhesives.

2½d dark ultramarine.
6d orange.

GIBRALTAR.—Several values of the new King George set have been issued the New England Stamp Co. having shown us the six lower values. Whitfield King & Co. report having received the complete set, colors and values being the same as the King Edward set.

Adhesives.

½d green.
1d scarlet.
2d gray.
2½d ultramarine.
6d lilac and mauve.
1sh black on green.

JAMAICA.—Hermann Focke has shown us the new 2d value, with portrait of King George and from the New England Stamp Co. we have received the 1sh value of the same set. Both are printed in the new colors, the design being the same as the 3d value previously reported.

Adhesives.

2d gray.
1sh black on green.

NEW ZEALAND.—The Australian Philatelist says that a few sheets of the 6d King Edward stamp were printed in the color of the 5d brown.

PORTUGAL.—Mr. Schachne shows us the first of the permanent issue of letter card with the new stamp. Precisely like the Manuel letter card of 25r except the stamp and perf.

Letter Card.

2½c dull violet on yellow buff. D D.

SURINAM.—Hermann Focke sends us specimens of the provisionals chronicled some time since, and also of the ½c value which we have not previously been able to chronicle from actual sight. The ½c value comes in two distinct shades, mauve and violet. The three lower values are printed in sheets of 50 stamps, five rows of 10 stamps, but the 12½c value comes in sheets of 100, 10 rows of 10 stamps. There are very few minor varieties, as the type of the numbers and letters employed are pretty uniform all through. There is a slight variety in the fraction on the 12½c value, the "1" being sometimes to the right, sometimes to the left, but never exactly over the centre of the fraction bar above the "2". Another slight variety is the raised "S" in "Surinam," which occurs on all values. This occurs on the lower half of each sheet. Mr. Focke's correpsondent states that some values are already sold out, and as a new supply of regular stamps had been received at Paramaribo from Holland, the use of these provisionals was to be discontinued, after disposing of the small remainders on hand.

Provisional Adhesives.

½c mauve.
½c violet.

SWITZERLAND.—R. Hartmann describes a new card just received from Switzerland, apparently issued in honor of the national holiday, Aug. 1, for the benefit of the Red Cross. The inscriptions on the face are printed in three languages, German, French and Italian, the principal lines, freely translated, reading, "Card for the National Fete," and "For the Benefit of the Red Cross." On the reverse is shown a man waving the Swiss standard, printed in colors. The stamp is the current 5c, though the card had to have extra postage. Opposite the stamp is a large Greek cross with "1912" in the centre. The date is also printed in the three languages.

VICTORIA.—Possibly what is the first of a series of surcharged stamps to use up the remainders of the stamps of the various states before the issue of the Commonwealth set has come to hand from Australia, unused specimens having been shown us by A. C. Roessler, Whitfield King & Co. and the New England Stamp Co., while we are indebted to F. W. Reid for a cover with two used specimens. The current Victoria 2d stamp, watermarked Crown A has been surcharged "One Penny" in small Gothic capitals, slightly condensed. Mr. Reid's cover is mailed from Sydney, N. S. W., and yet it bears two copies of this surcharged Victoria stamp, and a ½d stamp of Western Australia.

STAMPS OF CAYMAN ISLANDS.

SUMMARY.

Provisional. Issued for Fiscal purposes. Overprinted in black.

1d on 4d red and black on yellow.

Varieties.

1. Inverted surcharge.
2. Double surcharge.

The "Postage and Revenue" Series.

The ½d and 1d values were received considerably in advance of the others printed from the new plates inscribed "Postage and Revenue," and arrived at Georgetown on December 29th, 1907. The 2½d, 3d, 4d, 1s, 5s, and 10s were not received till three months later, and were issued to the public on March 30, 1908. The 6d value was added still later, viz. October 2nd, 1908, which completed the series.

This issue was very similar to the previous design, with the exception that the King's Head was enclosed in an octagonal frame instead of a circular one as before, the plate or control number "1" appearing on the sheet margin as before. New duty plates were used for the ½d, 1d, 3d, and 10s values; the ISLANDS variety not showing in the ½d and 1d values (all the letters being evenly spaced) proves conclusively that new duty plates were manufactured for these. The Cayman Islands were again to the fore, being one of the first of the British possessions to adopt the new colour scheme.

Six thousand of the 1s and three thousand of the 10s values were printed on a stock of the old green paper watermarked single CA. The 1s value printed on the multiple paper made its appearance about April 5th, 1909, making a considerable rise in the value of the single-watermarked 1s, black and green stamps, especially in used condition. Another scarce stamp in this series is the 4d black and red on yellow; only one printing was made of these, viz. twenty sheets, 2400 stamps. Owing to the lack of demand for this value they were withdrawn from circulation. All the stamps above the face value of 2½d are printed in doubly fugitive inks on chalk-surfaced paper. The 2½d also still shows these varieties, broken "M" variety, mentioned in the "Postage—Postage" issue, and a break in the top right-hand corner of the frame is also most noticeable in many of the stamps, which is ample evidence of the wearing of the plate.

SUMMARY.

1908. King's Head. Inscribed "Postage and Revenue." Wmk. Crown CA. Perf. 14. Name and value in second colour. Chalk-surfaced paper.

1s black and black on green.
10s green and red on green.

Design as above, but watermarked "Crown CA Mult." Chalk-surfaced paper; for values above 2½d. Name and value in second colour.

½d green (shades).
1d carmine (shades).
2½d ultramarine (shades).
3d purple on yellow (and deep yellow).
4d black and red on yellow.
6d purple on white (shades).
1s black on green.
5s green and red on yellow.

The Farthing Stamp.

The reduction of inland mail rates caused the necessity of this the latest issue, about the middle of 1908; a notice appeared in the Colonial Office Journal as follows:—

"Cayman Islands are about to issue ¼d stamps for internal postage in Grand Cayman."

There were three printings. The first supply is said to have been 600 sheets, and placed on sale June 30th, 1908, though the enormous number of orders—one dealer alone ordering 72,000 copies—made it necessary to refuse supplies to every one. For this purpose the following notice was issued and sent to applicants:—

"GEORGE TOWN POST OFFICE,
"GRAND CAYMAN, B.W.I.

"No. 27.

"Notice is hereby given that farthing stamps and farthing post cards being provided solely for internal postage in the Cayman Islands Dependency, will only be sold across the counter at a Post Office in the Cayman Islands.

"By Order,
"(Signed) G. A. PARSONS."
(Postmistress.)

This notice brought considerable ridicule on the Cayman authorities, as owing to a shortage of halfpenny stamps they were compelled to allow the farthing stamps to pay postage on the foreign mail, till at last even the whole of that stock was exhausted, and I have three letters on each of which there are twelve stamps of this value used. The first printings consisted of a red-brown ink, and all three printings were perforated 14. There are four varieties, the most important being No. 19 (1st in 4th row, left pane). A white flaw shows distinctly on the right of the Crown, obliterating some of the leaves. The second and fourth flaws are not so prominent, and consist of a white dot under the "N" of "CAYMAN." The third occurs on stamp No. 76 (4th in 3rd row, right pane), and consists of a hair line running from the top to the bottom of "A" in "POSTAGE." The stamps were evidently transferred in blocks of four. Types 1, 3, and 4 have the feet of the letters "MA" of "CAYMAN" touching, but in Type 2 they are distinctly separated.

The second issue of the farthing stamps was placed on sale November 3rd, 1908, and the printing differed from the first, this one being a medium brown colour; this was followed by a third printing early in 1909, this latter colouring being a deep black-brown.

SUMMARY

1908. Figure in Oval. Lithographed by Thos. De La Rue and Co. Watermarked Crown Multiple CA. Perf. 14.

¼d. 1st printing red-brown.
2nd printing, medium brown.
3rd printing, deep black-brown.

Varieties.

1. Feet of letters "MA" in "CAYMAN" separated.
2. Flaw in right-hand top corner.
3. White dot under "N" of "CAYMAN."
4. Hair line through the letter "A."
5. Imperforate down right side of stamp.

In these notes I have endeavoured to prove conclusively that there was a real need for all the "Provisional issues" that caused such a storm of protest, which emanated principally from those who were not successful in obtaining copies, and hope I have somewhat succeeded. One thing is however certain, many a year will elapse before another provisional issue is announced from Grand Cayman.—London Philatelist.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

REPRINTS.

In looking through his catalogue in the task of correctly placing his stamps the beginner will frequently come across notes to the effect that such and such a stamp has been reprinted or that the reprints of certain stamps may be distinguished by certain peculiarities. Reprints are impressions of obsolete stamps, printed from the same plate, block, or stone as was used in the production of the originals. Such is a strictly accurate definition of the term "reprints" but for want of a better name stamps printed from new plates made from the original dies of obsolete stamps are also termed reprints.

Reprints fall into two divisions—those made to the order of the postal or other government authorities, and those made by private individuals to whom the original plates have been sold or loaned. The former are known as "Government reprints," or "Official reprints" while the latter are called "private reprints."

As a rule reprints of official origin have some mark or other by means of which they may easily be distinguished. This generally takes the form of an overprint of the word "Reprint." In other cases they can be distinguished from originals owing to the fact that paper, color, perforation (or all three) are rarely exactly like the genuinely issued stamps. In some cases, though, the distinguishing features are of so elusive a character that only an expert who has specialised and studied those particular issues can pronounce accurately whether certain specimens are originals or reprints. The beginner will be well advised to study the footnotes in the catalogue carefully and where reprints are described as differing from originals by such indeterminate (to him) characteristics as "brighter colors," "whiter paper," "ungummed" he should purchase such varieties only from a reliable firm or after they have been "experted" by some collector in a position to give a satisfactory opinion regarding them. It may be taken for granted that official reprints were not made with the intention of deceiving collectors; but in cases where they are very like the originals and bear no mark plainly indicating their character copies are occasionally sold by unscrupulous or ignorant individuals as the genuine variety.

Private reprints have been made primarily for the benefit of the individuals owning the plates and though, in most instances, these are sold as reprints there is always the danger that at some time or other some will be offered as genuine. In fact private reprints are for many reasons much more dangerous than those issued under proper official authority. Neither, from a strictly philatelic point of view, have they the same interest to specialists as government reprints.

A class of stamps frequently referred to as reprints are correctly speaking nothing of the sort but simply imitations. These have been brought about by the fact that on one or two occasions when a Government has wanted to reprint some of its early stamps the original plate or dies could not be found, having been lost or destroyed. Fresh dies and plates have then been made and though these were skillfully copied from the original designs there are generally small points of difference that have been detected by sharp-eyed philatelists. The so-called reprints of the 1847 stamps of the United States are a case in point. Though these are clever copies of the originals as they were printed from new dies and plates they are not reprints at all but "Government imitations." Imitations made by private individuals are, of course, known by the harsher term of "counterfeit" or "forgery."

Reprints have their interest to the advanced collector but I think the beginner will act wisely in refusing them even as "space-fillers." Once a reprint gets mounted in one's collection it has a habit of staying there and consequently when the collection is sold it may, though innocently, be disposed of as genuine to the detriment of the purchaser. The only exception I would make is in the case of really rare stamps and then if the labels are plainly marked "REPRINT" they serve to fill the space allotted to a variety which would be otherwise unobtainable.

SHORT REPLIES.

W. C. M. (Brooklyn).—The stamp you refer to as having perforations on three sides only and straight edge on the fourth is one from the outside row where the large "printers" sheets are divided into the "post-office" sheets of one hundred specimens. The line you refer to is the guide line drawn on the plate to show where the cut is to be made. (2) If benzine will not show up the watermark you can only find it by holding the specimen so that the light falls on it at different angles. On some U. S. A. stamps it is almost a hopeless task to try and identify the watermark.

E. B. C. (Oregon).—I think Scott's catalogue must be in error for I have only found this surcharge in blue. I note other catalogues only give it as existing in blue.

W. W. P. (Lewiston, Cal.).—I think all the "Seebecks" which are known to have been reprinted are mentioned in Scott's catalogue. (2) The particular Norwegian stamp without stop after "Postfrim" is not catalogued so far as I am aware. The variety is of minor interest and would be worth little more than the normal. (3) I am sorry I haven't time to look up catalogue values. (4) Single copies of alleged imperforate varieties of stamps are unconvincing unless they have much larger margins than the specimen you describe. (5) This is a very trifling variety and may have been caused by the presence of a speck of dirt on the printing plate. (6) See answer to No. 4.

HOW TO KEEP UP WITH NEW ISSUES.

It has been shewn over and over again that new issue collecting on a systematic basis is by far the best means of keeping up-to-date in one's collection. Nearly every new stamp is circulated to hundreds of subscribers to the various new issue services at a trifling percentage over face. If one neglects to keep up with these new emissions regularly, it becomes a costly matter to fill the void later on. At the present time the possibilities for systematic investment in new stamps as they come out, are greater than ever. Nearly every week we chronicle new stamps first appearing in connection with the Crown Agents' Colour Scheme, but which will probably remain in use for but a short period, as they are practically bound to be superseded by new Colonial Key Plates, bearing the portrait of King George V. Regarded strictly from the investment point of view the high values are the best, as these are printed in comparatively small quantities, and they are not imported extensively, as the collectors who have the pluck to take all new stamps above 2/6 face are in the minority. That makes it all the better, financially, for the courageous ones.—Postage Stamp.

variety showing the absence of the little ball or pearl, at each corner. The stamp will be found with a dot about 1 em from this pearl, and in rarer cases two dots over the pearl at right top corner. One dot is directly diagonal from this pearl, the other almost directly under it. The single dot variety can be found with a dot at each corner, and with one, two or three missing. Quite a collection of these "fly-specks" can be gathered, if one chooses.

In 1867 a patent process was employed to prevent the cleaning of stamps. This was called a "grille" and it is too well known to require further explanation. Authorities differ as to when the grille was first used—some say May 8, others August 8, 1867. I am inclined to favor the later date.

The first grill was that covering the entire stamp. This is found with points up and points down—the latter being much the scarcest. It comes in dull rose, rose, and rose red.

The following different varieties in grilles are to be had by the specialist:

POINTS UP		POINTS DOWN
Size.	Rows pts.	Size.	Rows pts.
18x15	22x18	13x16	17x20
13x16	17x20	12x15	17x19
13x15½	17x19	12x14½	15x18
13x14½	17x18	12x14	15x17
12½x16½	16x21	12½x13½	16x16
11½x16	16x20	11x14	14x18
12½x15½	16x19	11x13½	14x17
12½x14½	16x18	11x13	14x16
12x14½	15x18	11x12	14x15
		10x13½	13x17
		10x13	13x16
		9x14	12x18
		9x13½	12x17
		9x13	12x16
		9x12	12x15
		8½x13½	11x17
		8½x13	11x16
		8½x12	11x14
		8x11	10x12

If the above will not keep a collector busy for some days, with glass and gauge I will lose my reckoning. But every one of these can be found with an ample supply of stamps and a double supply of patience.

Still another variety of grill, mentioned in no catalog or handbook, is what is known as the pin-point perforations. This comes covering the entire stamp, but unlike the common grilled-all-over the points are very irregular. They measure 12 rows to 10 mms, and the points are impressed from the back.

The pin hole grills are also found measuring 11x14, with impression made from the face of stamp. These were used, as I have a single and a pair of this variety.

I am inclined to believe that few bogus grills of this variety exist. Certain it is that with the exception of the grille covering the entire stamp the increase in receipts coming from the deception would not be sufficiently great to warrant one for making the machinery for counterfeiting the grilled stamps. If a grille-all-over is offered showing a cancellation of town other than Savannah, Ga., or little Rock, Ark., it may be set down as being probably forged, as it is well founded fact that this stamp was only issued for use in these two cities.

One variety of grill, very rare, is the grille extending the entire length of stamp. This is called the side roller grill, and was caused by not feeding the sheet true to the grilling machine. A continuous grill existed on the end of the roll, and it grasped the marginal paper of the sheet in making the grill. When the sheet was not perfectly fed the stamp extended over onto this endless grill and caused the stamps to be embossed from end to end.

The Francis patent papers and elusive ink processes were grilled all over and 11x14. It is noticeable that they were not pressed out by hydraulic pressure, as was the case with the regular issue.

Both the grilled and ungrilled stamps were issued and used in unperforated form, but care must be taken that stamps with large margins are not palmed off on unsuspecting collectors. Some of these are even offered in reputable auction sales.

If there is any doubt as to the genuineness of grills offered, submit them to an expert for examination. Better still buy from someone known to be expert and honest in his lines.

For want of space I omit the check list. One can easily make up his own from the material given above.

Just add the India and cardboard proofs, reprints and stamp marked "Specimen" and it will be fairly complete.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

BAVARIA.—Der Philatelist notes that six values of the Jubilee have been punctured "E" for use as railway stamps, superseding those of the previous issue overprinted with the same letter.

Official Stamps.
Punctured "E."

3pf brown.
5pf green.
10pf red.
20pf blue.
25pf violet brown.
50pf claret.

BOSNIA.—The London Times says that the series of stamps now current in Bosnia and Herzegovina will shortly be superseded by a new issue, adorned with the effigy of the Emperor of Austria.

Maury's Collectionneur says that the views on the three stamps recently issued are as follows: 12h, a street in Jaice; 60h, view of Konjica, near Mostar in Herzegovina; 72h, view of Visegrad, near Saraievo.

CANADA.—Jas. Lewis Howe has shown us a copy of the 2c King Edward stamp in a very pale shade of carmine, but whether it is due to the printer's error or to exposure to light we are unable to say.

DENMARK.—In regard to the new printing (in ultramarine) of the 20 ore King Frederick stamp, chronicled in No. 1106, Whitfield King & Co., write:

"Just previous to the issue of the new 20 ore stamps with numerals in centre, there was a final printing of the old 20 ore with portrait of King Frederick VIII in light blue (ultramarine). Comparison of the old and new colours shows that they are very different. Our correspondent says that he only found two postoffices where the light blue stamps could be got, and as they will be almost immediately superseded they are likely to be scarce."

Ewen's Weekly says that the 10 ore value is also to be issued in the numeral type as soon as the old stock is used up. The London Times states that "that pending the preparation of an entire new series of Danish postage stamps bearing a portrait of King Christian X, the current 5, 10 and 20 ore denominations, with the likeness of the late King Frederick, have been replaced by the same values in the numeral type, adopted in 1905-06 for the lower postal denominations."

FINLAND.—Mr. Schachne sends us two new cards which supersede the 1901 pair. They are without doubt from the same dies as the Russian 3k of 1909, except the value of the stamp.

Post Cards.

10p red on white.
10x10p red on white; T. 3.

GERMANY.—Jas. Lewis Howe supplements the note printed in No. 1096, regarding a change of color of the current 10pf stamp, by reporting the 20pf in a decidedly deeper tone than previously seen, and the 5pf in less of a grayish green.

GIBRALTAR.—Morocco Agencies.—Another value of the current British stamps has been surcharged "Morocco Agencies" and new value in centimos, according to the Berliner Briefmarken Zeitung.

Adhesive.
On stamps of Great Britain.
"5 Centimos" on ½d green; surcharge black.

INDIA.—Jaipur.—The publishers of Ewen's Weekly Stamp News have found in their stock a number of sheets of Quarter and Half Anna of Jaipur, Chariot type, which are from a different setting, which appears to include only four of the previous types. These they are calling Plate III. Those chronicled previously are from Plate II. The margins from sheets of Plate III are larger.

Plate III.

¼a bright yellow.
¼a greenish yellow.
¼a apple green.
¼a pure green (error of colour).
½a pale blue.

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

Convert Your Stamps Into Cash

My trade in stamps has grown far beyond the visible supply. Fair Dealings and Living Prices have given my sales a tremendous boom, and collectors are hungry for what I can offer.

To assist collectors in disposing of their duplicates and accumulations of stamps, and to further provide an opportunity for collectors to pick up what they want, I have decided to handle stamps on a commission basis. To this end I will accept consignments of stamps to be sold in that manner. Collectors will mark their stamps at the net selling price and forward them registered. I will send these out to my customers whom I know want the class of stamps received, and deduct the small sum of Ten Per Cent. as my Commission for handling, which includes advertising, mailing, insurance, etc.

Prompt settlements will be made monthly.

No stamps cataloguing under ten cents will be handled. All stamps must be in good to fine condition.

Clients will please bear in mind that the lower prices they name, and the finer the class the quicker they will sell out their goods.

This will afford opportunity for collectors to dispose of their duplicates and secure stamps they require for their collections.

ITEMS OF A. P. S. LEGISLATION.

It was voted:—

To Appropriate $100.00 towards the expenses of the New York Stamp Exhibition of 1913.

The motion was heartily approved of.

To petition the P. O. department to issue a stamp in connection with the Perry Memorial Centennial Celebration to be held at Cleveland next summer.

To hold the next session at Cleveland, O., or rather Put-in-Bay, known as Cleveland's famous watering place. Hotel Victory will no doubt be the headquarters.

To increase the appropriation of the secretary's office $100 because of extra work in connection with the monthly bulletin.

To sidetrack the two "progressive" amendments as being altogether too ultra.

To thank the Springfield Club and its friends for their superb hospitality.

THE J. P. S. COLLECTIONS.

Mr. H. P. Ereaut, Hon. Curator of the Forgery and the Permanent Collections of stamps formed by the Junior Philatelic Society, has presented a very satisfactory report of the progress of the collections. He also reports on the work of the Society's Expert Committee. He says:

Owing to the number of stamps submitted for judgment the Committee found it necessary to meet more frequently than hitherto, and whereas in the previous season only five Meetings were held, this last year's work has necessitated nine Meetings, as well as independent examinations and reports.

The number of stamps examined and reported upon was 739, an increase of nearly 500 on previous figures, which may be regarded as pleasing evidence of the desire of members to clear their albums of all intruders.

My Committee wish to emphasise that all sorts and conditions of "doubtfuls" are welcome for examination, not merely stamps which are clouded with suspicion as to genuineness, but also specimens which, though no doubt genuine, appear to be unusual varieties requiring explanation. A considerable number of the stamps submitted shows the diversity of stamp puzzles that collectors are often confronted with.

The stamps added to the Society's general collection during the past year number some 400, and though this figure is not so large as we had hoped for, it is considerably in excess of that for the previous season and, if only as evidence of progress, is consequently very satisfactory.

Many generous and valuable donations have been received during the season, and the support extended to us in particular from members abroad is further proof of the many staunch friends the Society has outside the Mother country as well as at home.

Many members are now busy preparing specialized collections for the forthcoming Exhibition, and we should like to express the hope that they will remember us, and when sorting out for mounting will put on one side some of their surplus duplicates for the Permanent collection. Already we have had promises in this direction from two or three members, and the completion of our collection of Sweden by the well known specialist of that country, the Baron Erik Leijonhufvud, whose kind and important gift has already been reported, prompted the suggestion I have made—a suggestion which I hope we may see responded to by specialists of other countries. Most specialists have to gather together a considerable number of the stamps of their favourite country from which to pick, and we trust that in the sorting out our collection may benefit from the overflow.

Mr. Ereaut, who is the custodian of the collection, and Honorary Secretary to the Expert Committee, may be communicated with at 37 Norland Square, Holland Park, W.

ASKED AND ANSWERED.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

A great number and variety of queries have been received by the author of "Specialized United States." Owing to pressure of official duties, writing for the press, studying stamps, etc., it is impossible to give personal replies to each correspondent, so they will be briefly answered through these columns. The writer will reply to all who have sent stamps, but for the above reason patience is asked.

E. C. S., Olympia, Wash.—Carrier stamps are found only in the early issues. They are smaller, neater and usually more legible than the regular post-office stamps. They usually bear an inscription like "U. S. Post-Paid," or the name of the city with a word which indicates that it was used locally only. Cancellations with a figure or letter in the center, or "P. O." have no significance except that the stamps were cancelled in a branch station, or main department.

E. C., Reisterstown, Md.—An article written to assist beginners in specializing in U. S. will be given in these columns shortly. Your questions, and those of many others, will then be briefly answered.

T. B., Detroit.—I believe that coils in pairs and unperforated in pairs, strips and blocks, used, will be comparatively rarer than the unused varieties.

J. L. F., Louisville.—Your stamps are not the 3 cent pink of 1861. Get a copy of the real pink, on approval, from some dealer and it will be easy to learn the color.

C. M. S., Kansas City.—Yes, the 5 cent buff, or so-called mustard shade of 1861 issue has been found grilled. See article on this denomination in these columns shortly.

A. D. F., Indianapolis.—By all means mount your stamps in blank albums. It will not matter if you never get all the stamps mentioned in my articles. You will never have any blank spaces, as is the case with printed albums, unless you, yourself, create them.

Carl Burkart, New York City, reports having a 12 cent black, issue 1851-60, perforated 15½ all around, red cancellation, with two outer lines on the left.

C. L. Drake, Chicago, reports having 24 cent 1851-60 perforated 15 vertically and 15½ horizontally.

My thanks are due to Fernald Hutchins, Dedham, Mass.; Jac. Meyer, New Orleans, Geo. W. Linn Co., Columbus, Ohio, Republic Stamp Co., Frankfort, Ky.; Hubert Lyman Clark, Cambridge, Mass., and others for the gift or loan of stamps to further the study of "Specialized U. S." Dozens of others whose offers to loan stamps were not replied to on account of pressure of work, are also thanked for their interest.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Haskin syndicate story on the A. P. S. convention is having a wide circulation. Wm. Lloyd sends us a clipping from the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

—"I'm finding it rather difficult to get any of the stamps of Penrhyn Island. Seven dealers refuse to come across. And they only catalogue about two dollars for the entire ten."—E. J. GIFFORD.

—Chas. E. Jenney writes in the Stamp Journal: "I find a great deal of dissatisfaction among members of the A. P. S. at the way the official organ matter is being handled. Those with whom I have talked are all in favor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, even if it has to be paid for."

—We are indebted to H. W. Boers for a couple of clippings but of insufficient philatelic interest to warrant our use of the same. Also four from Hugo Kuenstler of a similar character and one from Lawrence J. Heyman.

—"You certainly are keeping up the 'old reliable' in good shape. There was a stretch of ten years during which I wasn't interested but the old love is back stronger than ever, and the old paper better than ever. Keep it up."—E. J. GIFFORD.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from B. A. Webber (2), David Hurwitz, Geo. M. Schaefer (2), W. L. McAtee, Geo. A. Chandler and Geo. L. Balwin.

—W. H. Gilley and P. M. Wolsieffer of Chicago, Chester Myers of St. Louis, Frank J. Bescher of Kansas City and Harry J. Huber of Pittsburg have recently called at the WEEKLY office.

—The Prov. Journal of Aug. 19 contained a lengthy story on the A. P. S. by F. J. Haskin; clipping from B. A. Webber. Ditto the Boise News with clipping from W. F. Van Dusen.

—"Counterfeits of the lately catalogued Spanish Marianas stamps are being offered here in the Philippines. The type is well imitated but the color is not exactly right, and does not show on the back of the stamp, as it always does in the genuine. As these may soon find their way to the States, collectors should be on their guard against this new fake. All genuine copies are printed in an ink that soaks through the paper and shows on the back of the stamp, the same as on some of the Habilitados of the Philippines."—THEODORE SIDDALL.

CHAPTER IX.

5 Cent, 1861-1868.

From every point of view, artistically, financially, and from a philatelic standpoint, there is no handsomer series of postage stamps than the 5 cents of 1861 to 1868. The warm shades of brown, combined with the beautiful engraving of the stamp design, appeals to the artistic sense, while the lack of disfigurement in cancellations creates a harmony which is pleasing to the critical eye of the particular collector.

The stamp is largely lacking in plate varieties, and for that reason the specialist has little to worry him in the application of the microscope.

The absence of small ornaments in the four corners create the August issue of the stamp. The first created stamps are, however, so rare that few collectors can ever hope to possess one, and at best must content himself with either a rude illustration to teach him the characteristics of the rare desired variety, or better—if the collector can obtain it—a proof of the August stamp.

No collector ought to object to the admission of proofs in his collection. They are prints in their correct colors from the plates themselves. And while not available for postage, that is all which can be said against giving them a place alongside of true postage stamps.

It was on August 14, 1861, that the first stamp of this issue was placed on sale, so far as history can be believed. There were printed—it is believed—between 85,000 and 100,000, before the plate was changed to fill out the corners. The color is of warm orange brown, printed on very thin yellowish white paper. Plate No. 3 was used.

About August 30 the change appeared. The stamps were now printed on thin, white wove paper, and this varies from thick to very thin, and close wove to wide wove in texture. From this date to the withdrawal of the issue late in 1868 only one plate was used—No. 17. Up to the employment of the grille there were issued 8,173,120 stamps, and of these the dark brown and black brown shades predominated.

The first stamps printed from Plate No. 17 are found in shades of pale buff, deep buff, brownish yellow, deep brown yellow, mustard and olive yellow.

In June, 1862, the color of ink was changed to red brown, and in the mixing of the inks a variety of shades was established. Besides the red brown, which in itself is a handsome stamp, there are the rare chestnut, dark red brown, brick red, orange brown, yellow brown and brown.

Later, probably in April, 1863, the color was deepened, and flattened out, with the result that we have dark brown, black brown, gray brown and bistre brown.

This is a rather hard stamp to find in perfect center, but owing to its shape a stamp off center does not look as disfigured as those perfectly rectangular in design.

A variety of cancellations are found, and could be, with profit, specialized in. Red, upon brown, is always a pleasing contrast, and is not exceedingly rare. Blue cancellations are about on a par with red. Occasionally a green cancellation is found, usually upon the early buffs. Year dated cancellations seem to be exceptionally rare, and to a specialist ought to prove highly desirable. Paid cancellations are scarce, too, and when a collector is lucky enough to get one, even if not in best condition, he is a subject for congratulation.

I have one with part of a steamboat cancellation showing, and was, no doubt, issued from the postoffice in New Orleans.

An undoubted variety which has never been chronicled, rests in my collection. It is part perforated, being imperforate vertically, and the stamp on each side shows sufficiently to prove that it is a true part perforate. The stamp to left shows nearly 5 mms., and I am certain it was not made to order from the center of the sheet.

It is a noticeable fact that abnormal perforations rarely exist in this stamp. I have heard of its being double perforated, but have never seen a copy.

In common with other stamps of this issue they were grilled to prevent cleaning of the stamps by dishonest persons. It is chronicled grilled all over, with both points up and down. As no used copy has ever been found it is not likely that it was ever intended for postal use, and might well be treated as a form of essay.

The grilled stamps of this issue were also printed from Plate 17. The number of stamps printed after the grilling process was applied was 682,180. When the issue was withdrawn there were 424,100 stamps burned. I am certain that stamps printed prior to the introduction of the grille were embossed, and also that the burned stamps were not largely made up of the grilled variety. If only 260,000 grilled stamps existed after the remainders were destroyed, the grilled 5 cents would be a rarity. As it is I believe it is a much rarer stamp than the catalog price indicates.

The stamp is grilled 11x13½, with 14x17 points, shade of brown. This is an exceptionally rare stamp.

A still rarer stamp is grilled 11x13, with 14x16 points, on red brown.

The collectors of shades will be interested to know that this stamp printed in yellow brown, red brown, brown, dark brown and black brown, are grilled 9x13½, with 12x17 points.

The 9x13 grill is found only on yellow brown and black brown, it has 12x16 points.

In 1875 this entire series was reprinted for exhibition at the Philadelphia Centennial, and the reprints were offered for sale to the public. Strange to say that out of 10,000 of the 5 cents so reprinted, only 672 were sold and the balance were destroyed. New plates were made for this stamp, but from the old die, so that no characteristics are to be noted in the plate. The color is pale brown, on very hard white paper and the stamp has the carefully printed, highly finished appearance of proofs. In fact but for the character of the paper the reprint might be mistaken for a perforated proof.

The reprint is found both gummed and ungummed, although they were supposed to have only been issued without gum.

The 5 cent brown, in company with all other denominations in this series, were overprinted "Specimen" in Old English text. Of these there were 20,100 printed. I consider these collectible, and specialists should secure the full set before the advancing price puts them beyond possession.

The following check list is suggested for a specialist in moderate financial circumstances:

Unused copy.
Shades.
Cancellations as above.
Pair or strip.
Double perforation.
Proof on India paper.
Proof on card board.
Overprinted "Specimen."
Grilled. as above.

A WORD TO BEGINNERS.

A young reader discontinues his subscription and writes:—

"I cannot make head nor tail of stamp collecting. I have a collection of 2000 stamps, but I don't know even what a watermark is. I guess I'll quit."

This is not the metal of which sturdy young America is made. It does not ring true. Any boy can unravel the so-called "philatelic terms" if he will use a bit of gumption, his eyes and the WEEKLY as it appears week by week.

Scores of beginners have recently been added to our mailing list and we stand ready to make their connection with our hobby pleasureable and profitable.

Let "dig" be your motto, not "desert."

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Springfield Scores—The one Springfield on the philatelic map has rendered a most satisfactory account of its stewardship of the convention of the American Philatelic Society convention and for a second time in as many decades the philatelists of that city have most creditably discharged their duties as hosts. The attendance was large and almost equalled the record attained by Chicago last year and a discriminating member from Chicago says that it was the most sociable convention that he has ever attended and he has been to many. While rain interfered somewhat with the al fresco entertainment yet old Jupe Pluvius could not dampen the feeling of fellowship that prevailed. In fact, it was through his instrumentality that the communion of philatelic souls became closer; and it was "fair weather" under roof because philatelic fellows had "got together." What was done at Springfield in a business way? That is a story that will be discussed when all the particulars have been received.

Advertised—Philately was not a new subject to the Springfield newspapers and adequate accounts were given in the press. Some of us collectors remember how Mr. Charles B. Smith, once a member of the A. P. S. and an important individual on the staff of the famous Springfield Republican contributed timely and accurate articles on philately to his paper over twenty years ago. Mr. Smith's brilliant career was closed all too early by death and philately lost an influential friend. The papers of today did not violate the traditions of the past in this connection by indifferent work; in fact, so well was the convention covered that an account of the transactions could be pieced together from the reports as they appeared, if one could not secure them from a "correspondent on the spot." It is the belief of some of us that the value of newspaper publicity on the occasion of the annual convention cannot be unduly magnified and that it is an adjunct that must have consideration in any discussion of the benefits arising from the yearly convocation. As an object lesson of the significance of philately, the convention is unmistakable and it makes an impression on the ductile minds of the city editors. In addition to the press committee appointed by the local philatelists of the convention city, there should be named official spokesmen whose duties would be to furnish the reporters with approved information. In this way, desirable and authentic news accounts would be ensured, generally speaking.

Voted Down—Our reports of the conventions of the Metropolitan Philatelic Association and the Southern Philatelic Association at Harrisburg show that the proposal to amalgamate the two societies was decisively defeated. While it is probable that for practical purposes the union of the two societies is to be preferred yet it is easy to understand how the sentiment of many members of the old Southern association made them follow the dictates of their hearts. The Metropolitan is the logical successor of the Philatelic Sons of America as the organization for the junior philatelists and the convention tidings of the Harrisburg meeting remind us somewhat of the youthful activities of nearly twenty years ago, when the name of Philatelic Sons of America was one to conjure with. However, looking through the haze of the past, we cannot admit that any convention of to-day matches the interest and enthusiasm that centered upon those memorable gatherings of the old P. S. of A. Let there be many local and sectional societies but two national organizations, one for the adult and one for the younger philatelist, meet all requirements.

Old and New Hawaii—Speaking of near-finds, one of our readers made a trip recently to the old home of one of the early Hawaiian missionaries and he was permitted to search among the family archives which included many letters from the islands,—but sad to relate, someone had entered the sacred precincts, armed with trusty shears, before he gained the portal. Yawning holes showed where the stamps had reposed on the envelopes and we shall allow imagination to supply the rest. Still, the quest was not entirely bootless and the finding of several good covers was some compensation for the disappointment; one of the envelopes showed a thirteen-cent red, on which traces of a twelve-cent U. S., 1861, that had been pasted on the stamp, appeared; a five-cent blue, Hawaii, 1855 type had been scissored off the envelope, next to the thirteen-cent. While Hawaii has the stage, let us hearken unto the words of an esteemed dealer who has gone for the second time to the land of the Kanakas for his vacation: "How can any one who once has felt the magic touch of Hawaiian atmosphere fail to follow on—unresisting—when in sight of the noble Pacific. And so after a delightful trip to the Golden Gate—once more we fall victim to that lure, and seek to pass through to the Paradise beyond; for though the warm air of California brings repose—the soft, yet virile air of Hawaii is aggressively restful." This beats any steamboat folder or medical advertising that we have ever read.

Open To Suspicion—One of the standard questions that is asked by correspondents is regarding the standing and value of imperforate and part perforated United States stamps of the earlier issues that ordinarily come perforated. When the specimens are submitted, they have undeniably large margins, as a rule, and in some instances the supposed imperforates have margins so extended on three of the four sides that parts of three of the adjoining stamps are shown. When these specimens are not catalogued as imperforate, an "imperforate" with convincing margins, even on four sides would not be accepted by the conservative authorities as proving original imperforation; they must have the evidence presented by a pair before they will recognize the variety. When the catalogue calls for an imperforate as a variety of a perforated stamp, then the big margins will have their weight and the experienced philatelist will hesitate to say that the stamp will not pass as an imperforate even though he may be dubious about its validity as an imperforate. The same remarks apply to part perforates except the part perforate must pass even a more rigid test. We have often told how a part perforate stamp at sides showing parts of two stamps next to it may be manufactured through the accidental aid of the abnormal cutting down the blank margin between the two panes of one hundred stamps each on the sheet of the early United States. The values of single imperforates and part perforated stamps that are listed but not priced is not a fixed one; some times the stamps sell very low at auction but that is because of the element of doubt that is inseparable from a single stamp, —if the stamp was in pair it would bring many times more than twice what the single copy realizes.

ANNUAL CONVENTION U. S. R. S.

By W. W. NORTON, Sec.

The Sixth Annual Convention of the United States Revenue Society was held at Hotel Kimball, Springfield, Mass., Wednesday afternoon, August 21st, 1912, with sixteen members present. John W. Prevost, president, presiding.

Reports from Officers and Committees were presented, showing that the United States Revenue Society is fulfilling the purpose for which it was organized.

The Secretary reported a membership of 126, being a slight loss during the past year, caused by members losing interest in stamps, or in the revenue lines of collecting.

An excellent report was presented by the Literature Committee which was read by W. C. Stone, and referred to the "Hand Book and Check List of United States Internal Revenue Stamps, Hydrometers and Lock Seals" just issued by the Society as follows:—"The Society is to be congratulated on having proved its right to existence. No other Philatelic organization of double its membership is doing as much for its members and for the hobby generally. Besides our Annual Year books this is the second separate work produced in the space of five years."

FINAL SESSION OF THE A. P. S.

After a two years' trial of the "American Philatelist" as a literary quarterly the American Philatelic Society has decided to discontinue the same and issue in its stead a monthly news bulletin to be sent every member.

The closing day of the convention at Springfield was taken up with a consideration of the matter of publication of the American Philatelist. The society has been greatly crippled by the loss of a regular and frequent means of communication with its membership. The quarterly has not filled the bill. Editor Howes did his part of the work but there was a screw loose at the printing office in Columbus.

A strong sentiment existed in favor of making a radical change and the new secretary, Mr. Ault, is clothed with the editorial toga of a monthly American Philatelist, to take the form of a news bulletin. The publication will be begun at once and we figure it out that Mr. Ault will have his hands full.

This action upon the part of the A. P. S. bears out the position taken by the managing editor of the WEEKLY at the conventions held at Denver and Columbus. Practically alone in our contention we strenuously maintained that the society should not enter the newspaper publishing field. We pointed out the difficulties and the expense and asserted that second class rates could not be secured providing advertising matter was accepted. Certain prominent members of the society admitted that our argument was logical and had they supported our position instead of yielding to a popular clamor we should have been spared the humiliation of our present failure. In the light of the caricature, misrepresentation and ingratitude to which we were subjected we shall be pardoned the penning of these few words.

Now we are to have a monthly bulletin of news to be sent every member. It will be a step in the right direction, but there are two vital weaknesses in the plan. The dues are to be increased from $1.20 to $1.80 and each member must pay 60c per year for this monthly publication. Again, the plan does not give the society any publicity and this the society needs if it is to fill its proper place in American philately.

Even as we were charged with self-interest at Denver and Columbus so shall we again be so accused in certain quarters when we suggest that if the American Philatelic Society is to grow and prosper it must needs have the benefit of the great recruiting power back of our publication. If Editor Ault can fit into the very hard position he is called upon to fill and measure up to its needs we shall be the first to do him honor.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

PONTIAC, MICH., Aug. 22.

TO THE EDITOR:—

I was quite interested in the article entitled "A Study in Valuation," as I was just about completing a recataloging of the stamps in the U. S. section of my collection.

Of the stamps issued prior to the 1910 issue, and priced in both Scott's 1911 and 1912 catalogues, I have 299 varieties and minor varieties. These stamps are postage only—and special deliveries—no dues, officials, cut squares nor revenues being included. Of the 299 stamps, I find 36 unused have made a total net gain in catalogue of $3.04, whilst 40 used stamps have made a corresponding gain of $5.17, a total net gain, for 76 stamps, of $8.21. The whole 299 had a total catalogue value by the 1911 catalogue, of $78.22, and by the 1912 catalogue of $86.43—not a bad showing, as these stamps do not include any great rarities, there being only 19 cataloging $1.00 or over. The highest priced one is the 10c 1847, then follow the 30c 1867 (9x13 grill), 90c 1861, etc. The bulk of my collection, however, is made up of British Colonials:—440 used and 1130 unused, and when I have these all catalogued, shall probably have some quite interesting figures to submit. A casual look through the catalogue shows substantial advances in many of the unused shilling stamps. As I count 66 unused shilling stamps amongst my Colonials, this is encouraging.

My little collection of Chile is also looking up. Had collected this country by Gibbons, and am pleased to note that Scott now recognizes all the issues of the best South American country.

LEXINGTON, VA., Aug. 19, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Apropos of the Tuscumbia envelope feature by you in your issue of August 17, several queries occur to me. How did there come to be a Tuscumbia 3 cent envelope? I do not know that the 3 cent rate was ever used in the C. S. A. To be sure there is a 3 cent Marion, Va., mentioned in the catalog, but is not its status as an issue intended for prepayment of postage doubtful?

Was a red postmark ever used at Tuscumbia? The envelope is addressed to New Orleans. A 3 cent stamp would have paid the postage to New Orleans before the war or after the war, but during the war it would have required 5 cents. The postmark on the U. S. stamp is May 20; if this were 1861, as presumable, a U. S. stamp would have hardly passed muster, certainly not in Alabama, but a Tuscumbia stamped envelope (provisonal) would, if for 5 cents. Would a 3 cent stamp of 1857 issue have passed after the war? Had not this issue been demonetized for the very purpose of preventing the use of any stocks on hand in the South?

If it is O. K. it is of more than passing interest.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 22.

TO THE EDITOR:—

I have a suggestion I would like to see some reliable packet dealer follow.

A young collector of my acquaintance decided to purchase a large variety packet as a "starter." He wanted 3000 varieties, priced (let us say) at $35.00, but found he could not afford that much. There was no 2500 variety packet, so he paid about $10.00 for 2000 varieties. Later on he was in a position to pay the difference in price of say $25.00, thus adding 1000 varieties to his collection, but was unable to obtain a packet of 1000 varieties which would contain the stamps in the 3000 variety packet which were not in the 2000 variety packet.

Probably other collectors have had this experience, and I would suggest as a remedy a series of non-duplicating packets, priced approximately as follows:

Packet No. 1	500	varieties,	$0.75
2	500	"	1.25
3	500	"	3.00
4	500	"	5.00
5	500	"	10.00
6	500	"	15.00
A total of	3000	varieties,	$35.00

A reduction might be given on two or more packets purchased at the same time, but the reduction should not be too large. Rather, the prices on each packet should be as low as possible. The list might be increased to 5000 or 10,000 varieties if desired. One large concern divides a variety packet of 5000 into units selling, if I remember rightly, at $4.00 each, but I think my plan would appeal to a larger number. If a boy could be given a Christmas or birthday gift of 500, then later 500 more, it would give him a start he would appreciate. Then he could add later without duplication.

I am not advocating the purchase of packets rather than buying from approval sheets, but I feel that I am stating a "crying need."

TO THE EDITOR:

I notice your communication from William S. Clark as to the scarcity of Curacoa No. 69. This value was listed by Scott years before it was issued. Like some of the Dutch Indies postage due, my old album, 1894 edition, had spaces for numbers 166 to 171, although they were not issued until 1909. If Mr. Clark will try some Holland dealer he can get a copy at about 25% above face. It's priced high enough in Scott's, considering its face value.

A Chat With the Advertiser

Chas. A. Jenkins of the Cleveland Leader furnishes us with our text this week. Have you read his letter? Anyway it will not hurt you to read it again:—

"MEKEEL'S WEEKLY must be quite a good advertising medium. I sent an order recently to B. L. Drew and Co. and my remittance was returned with the statement that I was the ninth to be too late for the item desired."

We will allow that Mr. Drew may have offered a bargain, but even so, Mr. Jenkins is one of the nine who read the advertisement and then answered it. It is a fine tribute to the WEEKLY and its mailing list.

William L. Aldrich & Co. inaugurate their season's advertising with an announcement on this page. This firm broke into the game last year and has made good. A great find by the Aldrich Co. will no doubt be exploited in an early issue. It is a corker.

Arthur Abbott begins this week with a modest advertisement, but "ta l oaks, etc." Mr. Abbott is well known in the Hub and will no doubt prove his ability as a stamp merchant.

By the way, Sept. 7 will see a general awakening. We feel it in our bones that there will be things doing and you Mr. Dealer should step lively. Have copy reach us Saturday for the next week's paper.

We have a coin dealer patron who frequently uses the WEEKLY, Mr. Mehl of Ft. Worth, Texas. He is with us this week. Write him and let him know the WEEKLY is his best advertising friend.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

We have received from W. R. Ricketts the second instalment of the "Philatelic Literature Bibliography Index." The work before us ranges from "American Philatelic Society" to "Auction Prices of Philatelic Literature." The fact that twenty pages have already been printed is an indication of the comprehensiveness of the work.

SCOTT'S 1906 AND 1909 PHILIPPINES.

By THEO. SIDDALL.

I see Scott's 1912 catalogue has got the 1906 and 1909 issues mixed. No. 241, 2c yellow green, belongs to the 1909 set, as does also 242, 4c carmine lake, and 245-a, 10c blue. The "a" varieties of 241 and 242 are the main 1906 varieties. The correct cataloguing would be:

1906 2c dark green,
4c vermilion red (or carmine, if they prefer to call it carmine),
10c dark blue.
1909-10 2c yellow green,
4c carmine lake.
10c light blue.

I am leaving out of consideration the 6 and 8c. The 6c of 1909 is so slightly different from the 1906 that it isn't worth bothering with and the 8c cannot be distinguished from the 1906 stamp.

J. P. S. INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

The only change in the Scheme of Competition since the publication of the Prospectus on August 1, concerns Class K, in which the scope of Section 1 has been broadened to include collections of entires or cut-squares of any country except Great Britain. No provision was made in the original scheme for such collections of other than European states. The revised scheme for this class is as follows:

CLASS K—POSTAL STATIONERY.

(Exhibits in this class may be shown as "entires" or "cut-squares.")

Section 1.—Collections of impressed postal stationery (postcards, wrappers, envelopes, etc.) of any country (except Great Britain) or of any group of colonies of a country.

Section 2.—General collections of impressed postal stationery.

The awards remain as announced, though it will be at the discretion of the judges to increase these in the event of the alteration to Section 1, considerably increasing the number of competing exhibits.

The following comparative figures have been drawn up to show the enormous advance in space to be occupied by the "Jubilee International" over the former successful shows conducted by the Juniors. The figures concern floor space, and not the area of the glass frames.

Date.	Exhibition.	Area.
1905.	British.	1,664 sq. ft.
1908.	Imperial.	9,000 sq. ft.
1909.	Golden West.	2,588 sq. ft.
1912.	Jubilee International.	17,920 sq. ft.

The approximate area available for exhibits entered in competition for the various awards is 12,000 sq. ft., which amount will probably be fully taken up. At present, applications for space are being received in considerable numbers, and the requirements vary from a minimum 10 ft. to 400 sq. ft. per entry.

The planning of the Exhibition has been carried out with a view to enabling every visitor to see the show in comfort. The gangways are all wide and short, and the central intersecting cross roads are ten feet wide. The visitor who sets out to walk from the first exhibit to the last, without a visit to the Club Room, will, when finished, have covered a distance of three quarters of a mile. So it will be seen that with a bountiful provision of space for visitors and with so much to see it should be well worth every visitor's while to pay several visits to the Exhibition.

The greatest interest is being taken in the Exhibition abroad, and the international element is expected to be strong both in the competition and in the concourse of visitors. John Wulff, the Vice-President of the Sveriges Filatelist-Forenings, Stockholm, hopes to be present, and Nils Strandell B. A., the Editor of the Nordisk Filatelistisk Tidskrift is also expected. Albert Coyette of the Societe Francais de Timbrologie Paris, and Baron A. de Reuterskiold of Lausanne, are among those whose attendance is probable.

Exhibits are already entered or promised from Germany, and the United States in good numbers. It is expected that the number of entries from America will greatly exceed those at any previous international exhibition in Europe. A collection has been entered already from a philatelist in Bangkok, Siam.

AUSTRALIAN WATERMARKS.

By A. F. Basset Hall.

1.—The Double-Line Numerals.

New South Wales—There were three distinct supplies of paper manufactured:—(a) For the 1d, 2d, and 3d Laureated. This was made in 2-sheet moulds, of 300 watermarks each, and the paper was cut into six sheets, each containing 50 watermarks, in five horizontal rows of 10. This paper was not used for any other type of stamps. The example of the 3d with watermark 2, was evidently the result of a mistake on the part of the printer, and this stamp must be regarded as an "error."

(b) For the Large Square series, in 2-sheet moulds, each containing 400 figures, and cut into four sheets containing 100 watermarks in 10 horizontal rows of 10.

(c) For the Diadem series, in 2-sheet moulds, each containing 480 figures, cut into four sheets of 120 watermarks, in 10 horizontal rows of 12.

The (b) paper was used principally for the corresponding values of the Large Square series, but 5, 8, and 12 paper was used for separate printings of the 6d and the 8 paper was used for a large printing of the 1sh. The 5 paper was also used for the 2d Diadem, and the 2d De La Rue; while the 6 paper was used for some printings of the Registered stamp, and the 3d Diadem.

The (c) paper with watermark 2 was used for early printings of the 2d De La Rue.

Besides these intentional printings on paper not originally intended for the denominations in question, there were the accidental printings or "errors" of watermark, the 2d Diadem on paper watermarked 1 and 8, and the 3d Diadem on paper watermarked 2. It is not quite accurate to describe as "errors" certain of the stamps printed on paper with watermarks which do not correspond with the face values. The 2d Diadem, wmk. 5, the 3d Diadem, wmk. 6, the 2d De La Rue, wmk. 5, the 6d and 1sh, Large Square, wmk. 8, and the 6d of the same series, wmks. 5 and 12, were all intentionally so printed in large quantities, owing to a temporary exhaustion of the paper appropriate to the denomination printed.

The variations in the watermarks of paper (c) were, according to Mr. M. P. Castle:—

1 from 3-4 mm. in width, and from 14-15 mm. in height.

2 from 8-10 mm. in width, and from 14-15 mm. in height.

3 from 9-10 mm. in width, and from 13-15 mm. in height.

The shapes, that is, the slope of the top stroke of the 1, the curve of the tail of the 2, and the relative sizes of the upper and lower halves of the 3, varied in a marked degree. So much so, in fact, that "plating" of these watermarks should be an achievement within the bounds of practical philately! I present the suggestion to the intelligent band of young philatelists who are now looking for an outlet for their youthful energies, and await further developments. Think of the fascinating possibilities in the idea! While it is impossible to "plate" the 5d stamp, owing to the fact that each of the 100 impressions is identical, the watermarks in a sheet might be "plated," and having arranged these in their proper sequence, the stamps themselves must necessarily be also in the order in which they were on the plate when printed. But how about the 400 figures in the "mould"? It may be assumed that all of these were separately constructed by hand, and therefore show slight variations. This gives the earnest student an unparalleled field for research, and by the time he has examined, compared, identified, and established each type, and placed it in its proper position, he will be—fit for a lunatic asylum!

The double-line figures for the Tasmanian stamps were made in moulds consisting of single sheets, each containing 240 figures in 20 horizontal rows of 12, being of the same size as the steel plates from which the stamps were printed. Marked variations in dimensions are found in these watermarks also. Only one error is known—the 1d wmk. 2.

Victoria.—The paper used for the stamps of this State, bearing double-line watermarks, was borrowed from Tasmania.

2.—The Single-Line Numerals.

I have no data as to the size of the moulds for the paper manufactured by De La Rue & Co., with single-line watermarks. As used in the printing the sheets of paper contained 120 figures in two panes of 60. The variations in shape and size are very slight. This paper was of two makes, that for New South Wales (also used for Tasmania), and that for Victoria. As remarked above, in relation to the double-line watermarks found in conjunction with stamps of a denomination not corresponding with the figure, the 1d of Tasmania on paper watermarked 10 or 4, cannot be considered as "errors," they being the only printings made for issue at the time. The same remarks may safely be applied to the Victorian Laureated Heads, which, though at first printed on paper with watermarks corresponding with the values, were so frequently intentionally printed on paper originally intended for other values that "errors" is a less appropriate term than "varieties."

3.—The Types of Crown N S. W.

In referring to Type II., Large Crown, Dr. Weightman says ("Australian Philatelist," vol. 1, 1895, p. 82):—"In some stamps the upper arch of this watermark appears round instead of angular, and the lines from the circle to the centre of the base are parallel, instead of converging; these differences are probably due to accidental alterations of the wires in the Dandy Roll."

It seems possible that the variations referred to were really those constituting the intermediate type of watermark, numbered 33 on Mr. Walter A. Hull's plate of illustrations. This type appears to properly belong to paper manufactured for the 3d and 5d steel plates, but Mr. W. A. Hull has shown me a specimen of the Centennial 8d bearing this watermark, and also one of the 3d on paper with watermark Large Crown.

There are very many more points upon which further remarks might be made as to our Australian watermarks but for the present I will content myself with the foregoing notes.—Australian Philatelist.

1902 LEEWARD IDS. PROVISIONALS.

As is frequently the case with provisional stamps, of a surcharged nature, there are numerous minor varieties of this issue, of which only one is deemed worthy of catalogue rank.

The issue consisted of three stamps, 1d on 4d, 1d on 6d, and 1d on 7d, but it is with the first two that we principally will deal, as there are no varieties of any interest to be found on the sheets of the 1d on 7d, which is overprinted in quite a different type to the others.

The surcharge on the 1d on 4d, and the 1d on 6d, was set up in panes of sixty, made up of ten horizontal rows of six.

The 1d on 6d may be found with white on brown gum, the former being the scarcer variety of the two. I believe the stamps with white gum were the first to be surcharged, as all the sheets with brown gum that I have seen have shown various broken letters, which may be found perfect on some of the stamps with white gum.

A most interesting variety is the small "n," which is very marked and occurs on every sheet; I have seen one copy of the 1d on 4d in which this letter had failed to print at all. The following are the most conspicuous regular varieties, starting from the top row of the sheet and from the left hand side:—

Top row, tall "O" in "One," 1st stamp.
2nd " none.
3rd " dot in "P" of "Penny," 5th stamp.
4th " none.
5th " tall "O," 3rd and 5th stamps.
6th " none.
7th " tall "O," 4th stamp.
8th " broken "e" in Penny, 6th stamp.
9th " small "n" in "Penny," 1st stamp.
10th " broken "e" in "One," 1st stamp.

All the above varieties are constant on the sheets of both the 1d on 4d and 1d on 6d. A variety may sometimes be met with when the bar through the old value has failed to print.

With regard to the 1d on 7d; this stamp exists also with white and with brown gum, but is scarcer in the former state. There are no conspicuous varieties in the overprint, the only thing worthy of note being that the bottom two rows shew the surcharge somewhat out of alignment, the letters being, in practically every case, very unevenly placed.

These stamps form a very interesting page in one's collection, the varieties I have mentioned being quite constant. —West End Philatelist.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

REMAINDERS.

A term the beginner will frequently meet with is "remainders" as applied to certain stamps and it is surprising how many advanced collectors have only the haziest notion as to what these really are. Some confuse them with reprints, and others look upon them as a particularly obnoxious class of stamps. They are obviously not reprints, and where they are remainders of stamps issued for legitimate postal purposes, they can hardly be termed obnoxious. It may be unreasonable, but there is no gainsaying the fact that a stigma attaches to the name "remainders" in the eyes of most collectors. Remainders are the balance of an issue of stamps left on a Government's hands after that issue has been superseded by a new one. These may be destroyed—a course which generally commends itself to philatelists—they may be offered for sale by private or public treaty in one or more lots, or, as in the case of the "Seebecks", they may revert to the printers in accordance with the contract under which they were supplied. Of late years the general tendency has been to offer remainders for sale and the practice is one that, much as we may deplore it, has commended itself to even important and wealthy Governments.

Remainders are either sold unused or marked in some way so that they cannot be used for postal purposes.

When it is decided to sell them unused the issue is generally demonetised so that the labels have no further postal value. Sometimes they are sold at their facial value or more, but as a rule they realise much less.

The great objection most philatelists have against remainders is their tendency to unsettle market values and it is certainly the reverse of pleasant to find one can buy a set for, say, a tenth of their facial value after one has purchased a precisely similar set, while the stamps were current for face value plus a certain percentage. This, however, only happens when the parcel of remainders is a very large one. If the quantity is moderate the lowering of values is only temporary and once they become absorbed prices soon return to their old level.

On the other hand remainders have certain advantages. The very fact that they make a certain set plentiful and cheap makes that set obtainable by a large number of collectors who would otherwise have had to go without. Then in the case of old stock that has been retained for years before the remainders are sold it frequently happens that sheets and large blocks probably proving or disproving important philatelic theories are obtainable.

Some remainders have been marked or obliterated in so distinctive a manner that they stand in a class by themselves for they are neither used nor unused and their character is plain to everyone. For instance remainders of the 1863-77 stamps of Mauritius were overprinted with the word "CANCELLED" and these are worth very much less than used or unused specimens. The one most frequently met with, the ½d on 10d rose of 1877 is obtainable for 2c whereas unused it is catalogued at 60c and used at 75c. Other remainders that may at once be distinguished are those of Spain overprinted with three or four thick bars or punched with a small hole, those of Hamburg which are without gum, and those of St. Helena cancelled with a diamond shaped mark in violet.

SHORT REPLIES.

F. E. E. L. (Marion, Ind.)—The questions you ask could all be readily answered by reference to a catalogue. I do not think I ought to take up space in answering queries of this sort as I feel very strongly that every collector should possess a catalogue if he is going to take any sort of active interest in the pastime. You should certainly not think of specialising until you have a more advanced collection. It is the postmark proving these stamps were used in the Cayman Islands that gives them their enhanced value—the ones used in Jamaica are very common.

F. A. B. (Leominster, Mass.)—"Late Fee" is an extra charge in addition to the ordinary postage by means of which one may send a letter by a certain mail after the general posting box has been closed. This fee varies and may be as little as 1c for late letters handed in within 15 minutes of the clearing of the ordinary mail or as much as 12c as was the case in Victoria in the old days. Some countries issue special stamps for the collection of this fee—the Republic of Colombia for instance—but in most places ordinary postage stamps are used and their special use is only indicated by the cancellation as with those you describe. (2). There is no law against illustrating United States in other countries. (3). $5 postage stamps were merely used on heavy packages but owing to the general reduction in postal rates all over the world there is nowadays little use for any value above $1. (4). The lowest priced stamps with inverted centers I can call to mind at the moment are those comprised in the 1902 issue of the Dominican Republic all of which are catalogued at $1.50 each. (5). Tête-bêche applies to a pair so your block of four Grenada stamps consists of two tête-bêche pairs. (6). Any stamps perforated by single line machines are likely to vary considerably in size and such varieties have no philatelic interest whatsoever.

I. B. (Listowel, Canada)—I fear there is no printed album that would come up to your stringent requirements for even the best of them cannot be "permanent" after the lapse of a few years. The only really permanent albums are blank albums.

V. A. W. (Albany, N. Y.)—The Nicaraguan variety you mention is not uncommon and most of the series are well known with inverted overprint although they have not yet found their way into the catalogue.

CHAS. J. BARTON AND THE BANDANNA.

The Boston Herald is responsible for the following interview with our philatelic friend, Charles J. Barton, of Melrose, Mass. Mr. Barton attended the national convention at Baltimore and answers well the description of a Democratic spell-binder. The clipping follows:

"Bandanna a new emblem? Pooh, we had those 24 years ago!" says ex-Mayor Charles J. Barton, of Melrose, who styles himself a "Grover Cleveland and 'Billy' Russell Democrat."

"The idea of that man Roosevelt claiming the bandanna as the emblem of the Progressives. It's just like everything else that he claims—belonged to some one else first. I don't believe he's got an idea that Bill Bryan didn't have 10 years ago, but as to bandannas—"

And here "Charlie" Barton produced two large red bandanna handkerchiefs from his pocket. "We had those back in the 1888 campaign, when Cleveland and Thurman were the Democratic candidates. Everybody who was out for the Democratic party carried one of those in his pocket. I guess the custom must have originated way back in the woods somewhere, where your old-fashioned "Yank" never thinks of carrying a white handkerchief, but mops his brow with a red or a blue one."

"I'd pretty near forgotten all about them till I saw that the bandanna was the emblem of the new party. Then I remembered it was an old story, and I thought I'd just dig these old bandannas out to convince some of my Roosevelt friends who are from Missouri."

"Well, do you think T. R.'s going to get away with it?" was asked.

"Don't you know," Mr. Barton answered, "that there's nothing to it but Wilson? All the old Democrats who have been like lost sheep for the past 10 or 15 years are just going to jump at the chance to vote for a man like Wilson. And all the Progressives are going to vote for him, too. If you had been down at Baltimore and looked at the men who were behind Wilson and the men who weren't! Why, every man who looked like a boss or looked as if he ever had been a boss or would like to be a boss some day was against Wilson. And for him were the finest looking, clean-cut bunch of young hustlers you ever laid eyes on.

"There's nothing to it but Wilson, and if the election were today he'd sweep the country. Taft would carry only three states."

"Which are those?" was asked.

"Vermont, Rhode Island and Utah, and I'm not sure that he'd carry Vermont."

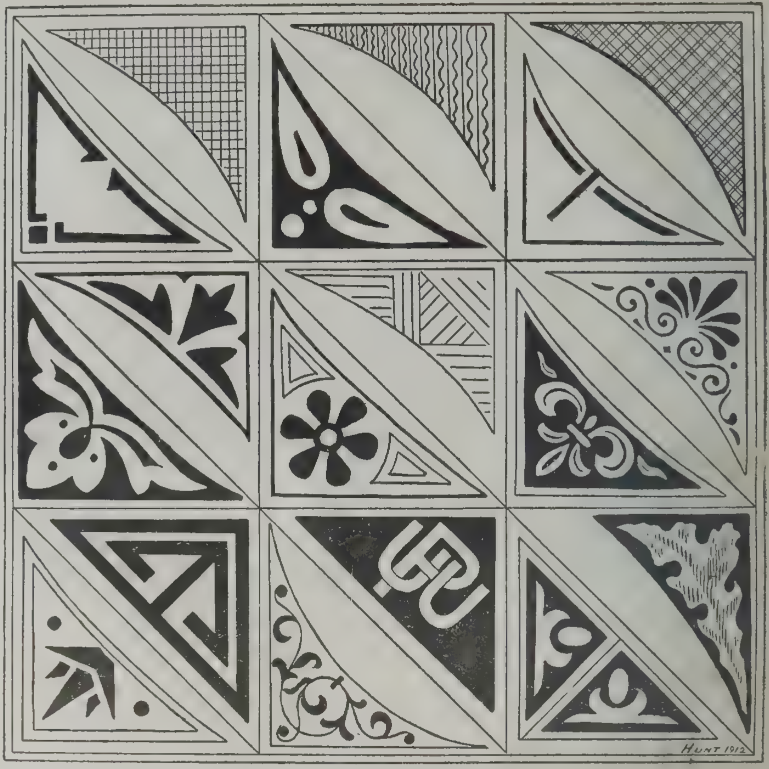
"Charlie" Barton has been a staunch Democrat all his life and has been active in the party for over 25 years.

BRIGHT'S CATALOG OF ADHESIVES.

Many of our readers have not appreciated the offer we make of Bright's catalog of adhesives (1912 edition) for a three years' subscription to the WEEKLY. This offer is good on a new subscription or a renewal.

Bright's catalog gives a very complete list of British stamps used abroad moreover the chalky and ordinary paper in British colonials are fully catalogued.

Do one of two things:—get a new subscriber for three years or renew your own subscription for the same period. Remit $1.50. Cloth bound and a nice book.



A STUDY OF TRIANGLES.

Here is a corner in triangles and if you are able to place them all you will have done well. There are eighteen designs and all but number 18 are illustrated in Scott's catalog. No. 18 is taken from a 50c U. S. stamp.

All solutions must be received by Sept. 30 and partial solutions may be entered and in fact are urged if complete answers are not secured. Get busy at once.

Five prizes will be offered to the five best entries and more may be offered should it be deemed wise to do so.

A NEW AND NOVEL METHOD FOR MOUNTING AND PROTECTING STAMPS.

By G. A. HUNT.

I desire to offer some suggestions for an ideal album that everyone can make who has a reasonable amount of patience, artistic ability and access to a good letter press. No inking or ruling is required excepting the title at top of each page. Even this can be done away with by using gummed stickers for sale by nearly all stamp dealers, with the printed titles of countries.

The first consideration is paper. I've yet to see a printed album or a blank album that has a grade or quality of paper really suitable for mounting stamps upon. Those made in this country are bad enough and the foreign ones are worse.

"Whatman's" hand made paper can be bought at any dealer in artists' supplies and a sheet 22x30 inches only costs 8c. This will cut into 8 pages (7½x11). Whatman's comes in various grades of thickness and finish but I have found that the (H. P.) hot pressed is best, medium weight. This paper is not very readily torn; is pure white and if it becomes soiled can be easily cleaned. It will stand lots of rough usage without becoming creased or wrinkled and for making stamp albums, can't be equalled.

The worst feature of most albums, even when interleaved is that many stamps rub, this being especially true of aniline printed specimens, and chalky surfaced paper varieties. To overcome this we must have our stamp die sunk into the paper. This sounds rather difficult and yet nothing is more simple, the main thing required being patience and a few pounds of thin sheet brass, the same as used for making brass lamp shades. Buy a pound 14 inches wide and 26 inches long and cut it up into quares and oblongs of various sizes. For an illustration take the U. S. stamps 1861 to 1888. Cut several pieces of brass into squares one by one and a quarter inches, and rub these on a piece of crocus cloth till they are smooth and shiny. With a small box full of these brass squares we will make a page for the album.

Place a sheet of Whatman's paper in a pan or dish of clean water for a few seconds; remove and lay flat on a blotter; now arrange on the page the brass squares or rectangles just as if they were postage stamps. After the page is properly arranged place the whole in the letter press having two or three thicknesses of blotting paper under the page with one thickness on top. Screw the press down hard. When dry or nearly so, remove the paper from the press and a page 7½x11 will be found covered with die sunk spaces of the proper size to receive the stamps. The pressure has forced the brass forms into the damp paper and when dry they readily fall out leaving die sunk impressions ready to receive their philatelic bed fellows. Make pages for foreign stamps in the same way using different pieces of brass to conform to the size of the stamps that are to go in their places. These brass forms can be used over and over again but care should be taken to have them large enough to allow for the perforations on perforated stamps.

From 75 to 80 pages make a handy volume and are bound up as follows:—Paste on the under side left hand edge of each page a strip of white linen cloth one and one-half inches wide allowing one-half inch to lap over onto the page. Have this strip run the entire length of the page from top to bottom. Pages can be left thus or to give a more finished effect paste a strip of white paper one-half inch wide over the cloth that projects on the back of each page. Dennison gummed paper that comes in rolls is just the thing for this. The album is now complete all but the cover. Covers can be made in a variety of ways, in bristol board, cloth or leather, or they can be taken to a bindery and bound for a small sum. The one inch linen stubs projecting into the binding permit the album to lie perfectly flat when open. An album made per these directions is the ideal thing for mounting and protecting one's valuable treasures and is very inexpensive all things considered.

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

PANAMA EXHIBITION STAMP.

(The following clipping has been sent us by several subscribers. It is interesting, and especially so since it states that this 2c stamp is the only one that will be issued to commemorate the opening of the Canal. Mr. Kidder in our "Chronicle of New Issues" has indicated that other values may be expected, and the course of events will be awaited with interest.—Ed.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—The design for the new two cent stamp to be issued in commemoration of the opening of the Panama Canal and to be known as the "Panama-Pacific Exposition special issue" was to-day approved by Mr. Hitchcock, the Postmaster General.

The shape of the new stamp is oblong, its dimensions being about an inch in width, by one and one-quarter inches in length. In the middle is an engraving representing the Gatun Locks of the Panama Canal, showing a steamship leaving the southern lock, and another vessel being raised in the northern one. In the middle distance is a group of palm trees and in the background rise the hills of the Isthmus.

The two cent denomination is the only one that will be issued in commemoration of the exposition. The exact tint of the stamp has not yet been determined. Under the international agreement of the Universal Postal Union it must be some shade of red.

We notice that this Philadelphia firm is advertising in other papers. They have given us lots of trouble and we have no further desire for their patronage. A word of this nature should be sufficient.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK STAMPS.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

About the end of June, 1910, the United States Senate passed a bill authorizing the Postmaster-General to open Savings Banks in connection with certain post offices with the object of encouraging the small depositor. In Great Britain the Post Office Savings Bank is an old established institution which has attained a very high degree of prosperity and has almost a monopoly of actual "savings" business. The United States Government in inaugurating its venture on the same lines had somewhat different conditions to contend with and was, apparently, not altogether sanguine as to its immediate success. In every sizable town in the States private banks were already in operation and the new government institution had to meet the competition of these and also offered a lower rate of interest on deposits. There are, however, numerous individuals who will readily entrust their savings to a Government Bank, feeling their money is safer than with any private concern no matter how good its standing, so that the success of this new Post Office Department was never really in doubt.

On Jan. 3rd, 1911, depositaries were opened in connection with 48 post offices—one in each of the States and territories that were then prepared for statehood. These were experimental depositaries and at the end of the first month's business the total deposits were over $60,000. Three months later other offices were opened at the rate of nearly a thousand per month so that at the end of the first year of its operations the Postal Banks numbered more than 6,000 and held deposits amounting to over twelve million dollars. At the present time there are more than 10,000 depositaries with deposits exceeding $25,000,000. The success of the venture can, therefore, only be described as phenomenal.

All of which, the long-suffering "gentle reader," may remark, is very entertaining but where does the philatelic interest come in? Patience, my friends, the equally long-suffering philatelic scribe must write some sort of an introduction as a string on which to thread his philatelic pearls.

Section 2 of the bill before mentioned authorised the Postmaster-General to prepare and issue special stamps to be used for franking all official mail in connection with postal savings matters and this is the item of most interest to stamp collectors for these stamps are, of course, a regular official issue of the same status as the Departmentals issued in such generous profusion in 1873.

Section 6 of the same bill provided for the issue of special 10c stamps and a special 10c card. Deposits of a less amount than $1 not being accepted the savings of smaller sums is effected by these stamps and cards. These are not postage stamps in any sense of the term but they appear to be fairly generally collected as a side line and they certainly have an interest as "stamps" issued in connection with a branch of a highly important government department.

The first stamp issued for official use under the authorisation previously quoted bears the facial value of 2c. In size it is the same as the ordinary postage stamps, the principal features of the design being the inscriptions which rest on a finely engraved background of scroll work. At the top is "U. S. POSTAL SAVINGS," in the centre in two lines "OFFICIAL MAIL," and at the base "TWO CENTS." In addition the numeral "2" is shown in both of the lower angles. These stamps were manufactured by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and are as excellently produced as all the other work of that busy Government department. The first supply, totalling 2,082,000 was printed about October, 1910, all being on the paper watermarked "U S P S" in double-lined capitals. They were printed in sheets of 400 and the plates were numbered consecutively with the regular series. According to the Philatelic Gazette the first plates were numbered 5500, 5501, 5502, and 5503. Being printed in black the stamps have a very handsome appearance. The exact date upon which they were first used does not appear to have been published but as the first depositaries were opened in January, 1911, and no doubt considerable correspondence had taken place between these offices and Washington for some time beforehand they were probably in use as early as November, 1910.

It was soon discovered that higher denominations than 2c would be required for franking the heavy packages containing the necessary books, deposit cards, etc., and it was at first proposed to utilize the then current 50c and $1 postage stamps and the $2 and $5 remainders of 1902 by overprinting these with the words "Postal Savings Official Mail." This project was abandoned but in February, 1911, three new values made their appearance—10c, red; 50c, green; and $1, blue. The 10c was printed in sheets of 400 on the new paper watermarked "U S P S" in single-lined capitals while the two high values were printed in sheets of 200 on the paper with the old watermark. How many of the 10c were printed I do not know but of the 50c there were 600,000 and of the $1 564,000 up to the end of 1911. As it is said the Bureau still has plenty of the old watermarked paper for the 200 plates on hand no change is yet likely in the two highest values of the series.

About the end of March, 1911, a 1c value was added to the set it being found that an appreciable amount of mail matter required only 1c postage. This stamp was printed in dark violet on the new paper and in the same design as the other values. Since then the 2c has appeared with the single-lined watermark, this variety being chronicled in May, 1911. This completes the adhesives issued to date in connection with the Postal Savings Official Mail.

In addition to the adhesive stamps special stamped envelopes were issued for official use in connection with the Postal Savings Banks. Concurrently with the issue of the 2c adhesive a 2c envelope made its appearance. This is upright oval in shape like the ordinary envelope stamps, but it is not embossed. The inscription is similar to that on the adhesive stamps and is arranged in the same order the only difference being that the words "TWO" and "CENTS" are separated by a large numeral "2." The stamp is in carmine with the inscriptions uncolored. About the end of March, 1911, a 1c envelope of the same design was issued this being printed in green.

Although not philatelic varieties we cannot conclude this short article without brief mention of the special cards and stamps issued for the use of depositors. The deposit cards are about the same size as an ordinary post-card and have an engraved border across the top of which is "United States Postal Savings Banks" followed by concise instructions as to its use. The card is ruled into ten spaces, the first of which is filled with a replica of the adhesive labels and represents the initial deposit of 10c with which the card is purchased. The other nine spaces when filled with the 10c adhesive labels make a total of $1 which is then accepted as a deposit. The cards are printed in sheets of eighteen but these are cut up before being shipped to the various depositories. The Philatelic Gazette informs us that the plates from which they are printed are numbered in with the ordinary series the first plate used being 5579. The "stamps," with which the remaining nine spaces on the cards have to be filled are somewhat like the official stamps. At the top is "U. S. POSTAL SAVINGS," in the centre is "10" in large numerals, and at the base is "CENTS." At first these cards and labels were printed in orange but later supplies were printed in blue.—Hobbyist.

THE "LONG" STAMPS OF SO. AUSTRALIA.

By W. BUCKLAND EDWARDS, B. Sc.

The postal affairs of the Australian States are still more or less in a state of chaos, awaiting the millennium—the issue of a uniform Federal or Commonwealth series. It may reasonably be supposed that such a series will eventually appear; meanwhile, the frequent changes in the stamps now in use, mainly due to different perforating machines, have resulted in a large number of varieties, which will—as the late Mr. E. J. Nankivell was never tired of pointing out—mean many blank spaces in the albums of future collectors. Many philatelists consider the old issues alone to be worthy of specialism and study, and they certainly have the best field for their labours, if their pockets are long enough to stand the strain; but so much has already been done in this direction, that humbler philatelists like myself must be content with the study of more recent and more easily acquired issues. Having already dealt with the pictorials of New Zealand, I have taken up the "long" stamps of South Australia, in the hope that they would yield equally interesting results. This, however, has not been the case, since the remarkable varieties of paper, to say nothing of gum, used for New Zealand stamps, have been a specialty of that go-ahead, but philatelically tiresome, country. Such results as I have achieved are now put before my readers.

The "long" stamps were, properly speaking, first introduced in 1887 for the values above 2s. The design consists of the Conventional Queen's Head in a circle placed within an oval containing the words "SOUTH AUSTRALIA." Straight labels appear above and below this oval, the top one with the words "POSTAGE & REVENUE," the bottom one with the words of value. The stamps measure 39x22½ mm., and the watermark Crown SA (close) consequently appears twice (normally) in each. With these particular stamps we have nothing to do at present, but the type was adopted for more extended use in 1902, being used for all the values from 3d upward with the exception of the 5d, and the resulting issues form the subject of this article.

According to the Editor of The Philatelic Journal of Great Britain (vide No. 228 for December, 1909) the old plate was used with the words "POSTAGE & REVENUE" taken out, and a duty-plate for each value was made for the single word "POSTAGE" at the top and the value at the bottom. He explains the variation in the length of the words of value by the fact that more than one such plate was made for all values but the four highest, but the variations are so numerous in minute details, that the explanation cannot be accepted as satisfactory; moreover, they appear on the same sheet. A note may be found in Gibbons Catalogue (page 257) to the effect that all the values show variations due to the fact that the words of value are type-set, and this seems to be correct. More than one setting was, however, made for some of the values, and if duty-plates were prepared by electrotypy from type set up in the usual way, more than one duty-plate was consequently used for such values, but the minor differences are explained by the method of setting up the type. That this was not done with exactness is shown by the fact that any given position of the word "POSTAGE" is not necessarily followed by that of the value-words, the top word may slant upwards or downwards, while the value may be straight; one may be raised or dropped while the other retains its proper position, and measurement of the distance between the words frequently shows a variation of nearly 1 mm. The filling of the labels was of course done at a second operation, with the result that the outer frame of the stamp may be touched or partly covered by the words; thus Ewen's Weekly Stamp News for January 10, 1903, mentions the receipt of a sheet of 9d with the word "POSTAGE" covering the outer frame, and "NINE PENCE" at the top of its label. Sheets thus badly printed were not as a rule issued to the public, but used for official correspondence; the well-known and rare error "EIGNT" for "EIGHT" was, however, not at first noticed, and a few got out in the usual way. As soon as attention was drawn to its existence the error was taken out of all sheets issued and put on one side for ultimate destruction. It occurred on the ninth stamp in the second row, all the "long" stamps being printed on half-sheets of the usual paper in 6 rows of 10, there being thus 120 watermarks to 60 stamps. It would be interesting to know if the second setting of the 8d value was due to the existence of this error, and the desire to avoid issuing mutilated sheets.

The word "POSTAGE" was at first in thin fancy capitals, and, as already stated, printed at a second operation. There was evidently no real reason for this, and in 1904 the word was placed on the plate in larger, thicker type, which proved much more effective, and avoided the bad results so frequently obtained before. This change of type conveniently divides the "long" stamps into two groups. The lettering at foot has always been in thin block capitals, but slight differences in the actual type have been noted in the case of one value (the 2sh 6d), and I am not sure that some of the later stamps do not show some variation in the size of the type used; this point will be discussed further on. The method of setting up the type gives rise to variations in the length of the words of value, unequal "spacing," and shifting of single letters; the method of printing causes the misplaced inscriptions, and the difference of shade which may frequently be noticed between the inscriptions and the rest of the stamp. Most of the resulting varieties are of quite minor importance even to the specialist, but they exist, and offer a field for research to those who like to study the most minute features of their stamps. I do not pretend to do more in this article than indicate the lines on which they may proceed, and can only mention such varieties as I myself possess, or have seen in other collections, or noted in the various publications from time to time.

The watermark, Crown S A, appears in all the "thin Postage" issues, and the change of type was made while this watermark was still in use; but in 1906 the Crown A paper was introduced, and nearly all the values now have this watermark. The "large Postage" group is therefore divided into two subgroups, or sections, by the watermark. Further division is brought about by the varieties of perforation, which are numerous and troublesome, but I am glad to say that the recently listed compounds have no actual existence, and though several observers have notified such compounds during the last few years, I am able to show that a little more care would have prevented them from error; in fact, it was the confusion of perforations caused by these would-be discoverers that led me to study the matter, and incidentally to write this paper.

The old machine, gauging 11½, was first used in 1902, and provides the only uniform set. This perforation can be detected at once by the somewhat ragged appearance of the holes and sharply pointed teeth. The old 12½ machine was also used for the 3d value and with the 11½ machine for several other values, producing compounds which exist in variety. As they were single-line machines, stamps can be found with one gauge on one side only, and the other gauge on the remaining three sides, and of course the perforation is sometimes 11½x12½, sometimes 12½x11½. Early in 1904 a new machine gauging 12 was brought into use, but as the plate alteration to "large Postage" was made the same year, only four values of the first type were so perforated, the rest being of the second type, but the complete set exists perf. 12 in one or another of the two types. Either this machine or another new one introduced later has some of the pins set irregularly, producing a gauge of 11½ to 13, and this has caused all the trouble referred to above. Whilst the majority of the stamps issued at this period gauge exactly 12, all values can be found with 11½, 12½ or 13 for one-third or half the length of the side, and a collector who happened to apply his perforation gauge to this part of a stamp would naturally jump to the conclusion that he had discovered a new compound. Thus amongst others the 4d was listed 12x12½, the 9d 12½x12 and 12x11½, the 8d and 1s 12x11½, the latter said to be comb-machine perforation, which is, of course, only available for the small-sized stamp, ½d to 2½d and 5d values.

I do not think that even an extreme specialist would take all these irregularly perforated stamps, since the list would be multiplied by four, but he might take three examples as I have done to show that such things exist; mine are the 9d perf. 12x12x13, the 2s 6d perf. 12x12x12½, and the 10s perf. 12x12x11½.

Some readers may suggest that these varieties arise from sheets incompletely perforated by the 12 machine and finished by another. The answer is that the two perforations are always in true alignment, and that there are far too many of such varieties to be explained by faulty workmanship; moreover the gauge 13 is not accounted for by the machines in use. I have, however, seen the 4d "thin Postage" perf. 12 with 11½ or 12½, or both, but I forget which. The stamps now in use are perforated by the Melbourne machine gauging 12½ and making small holes, but I have not yet seen the 10d, 10s, and £1 values, though the last has been recorded some time. This perforation is somewhat rough, quite different from the clean-cut 12. Only two features, paper and gum, now remain for general discussion, and may be dismissed in few words. The paper with Crown A watermark is thicker and more opaque than that with Crown SA watermark, and the Crown A is difficult to see. The gum is now quite white, whereas it has a yellowish tinge with the Cr. SA stamps, but the opacity of the paper may have something to do with this appearance. At any rate, no minor varieties arise from differences in either paper or gum.—Gibbons Monthly Journal.

NEW BRITISH 2d KING GEORGE.

MY DEAR EDITOR:

Everything is going so well for the J. I. Stamp Exhibition that you really must stretch a point and come over to it. We'll give you a right good time.

Am using on this letter our new 2d King George stamp issued today. It is an improvement in design on the ½d and 1d but the colour does not do it justice.

The work of the Exhibition is enormous. Things are simply booming and we are now well assured of a great success. The Stamp Factory will be an extraordinary exhibit; as you will see from enclosed details.

FRED J. MELVILLE.

(This is an early word in connection with the new 2d stamp. It comes in a brown orange color and is withal a pretty stamp. We shall publish next week the story of the "Stamp Factory" as sent by Mr. Melville.—ED.)

A FEAST OF GOOD THINGS.

Again and again we are reminded by our friends of the regard in which they hold the WEEKLY. To them there is no other paper that takes its place and we have many loyal subscribers who write: "We need no other paper while we have the WEEKLY!"

Our issue last week was a typical newsy number. Mr. Goodwin's article on "Specialized United States" and Mr. Poole's "Remainders" furnished philatelic food for advanced collector as well as beginner. Mr. Severn's editorials were bright and breezy; our A. P. S. news up-to-the-minute and general news matter well sustained. There was nothing to fall asleep over.

If you want the WEEKLY to be bigger, brighter and better show your copy to a friend and forward his subscription.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Approved—The newspapers have been giving due publicity to the announcement from Washington that Postmaster-General Hitchcock has approved the new two-cent Panama-Pacific commemorative stamp. The following description of the specimen will whet the anticipations of collectors. It is about an inch wide and an inch and a quarter long; and shows an engraving of the Gatun Locks of the Panama Canal, with a steamship leaving the northern lock and a second vessel being raised in the southern lock. In the center of the background is a group of "fronded palms" and in extreme distance are the characteristic hills of the isthmus. Being aware of the keenness of the promoters of the Panama-Pacific publicity, we hazard the opinion that the public will be kept informed as to the progress that is made in the preparation of the set.

All Right—In the Collectors' Monthly of Oakland, California, a welcome contemporary that improves with age, we find the editorial: "We are glad to see that MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS advocates objects of historical interest for the proposed Panama-Pacific commemorative issue, but we should like to correct the statement 'the discovery of gold at Sutter's in 1848 be included in the ideas that receive consideration.' Gold was discovered at Coloma and not at Sutter's. Sutter was the name of the man who hired James Marshall, the discoverer of gold in California, to build a saw-mill at Coloma, on the American River, about fifty miles from where Sutter was located, which is known as Sutter's Fort, being in the vicinity of what is now the city of Sacramento. It was in the mill-race of this saw-mill that gold was first found; and as the discovery of gold was what caused the rapid growth of the west, so by all means include 'Sutter's Mill at Coloma' as one of the subjects for the Panama-Pacific commemorative stamps." These additional details are of interest but "Sutter's" was used by us for Sutter's Mill-Race, where gold was first discovered in California; and when the paragraph was written a striking old picture of the place was before us which tended to emphasize our idea of the propriety of using the theme for exploitation on one of the stamps.

Gone and Done It—From the report of the Committee on By-Laws at the convention of the American Philatelic Society at Springfield which was duly adopted, the legislative proceedings of the body are to be gathered. The perennial problem of publication of an official journal, wholly the enterprise of the society, has been solved theoretically by the decision embodied in Section 1 of Article IX, Official Journal, which reads: "The American Philatelist shall be the Official Journal and shall be published as often as once a month, and more frequently if the Board of Directors shall so determine. It shall be edited by the Editor and approved by the President for publication." It is the consensus of opinion that the editorship of the journal is to be invested in the secretary during the current year and that officer is to receive as remuneration for his editorial services the sum of one hundred dollars. If it is deemed advisable in due course of time to publish the journal semi-monthly the necessary action will be taken. The Quarterly is discontinued as a partial defrayment of the added expenses entailed by a monthly publication and the fund available for the journal is augmented by the increase of the annual dues from one dollar and twenty cents to one dollar and eighty cents. By this means, sixty cents is segregated from each membership as a publishing fund for the American Philatelist. The additional five cents a month to the dues will be amply recompensed by the receipt of a publication of standing; and if the series of the American Philatelist under way approaches in excellence of the American Philatelist of the old days, utmost satisfaction must prevail on the part of the members. Other changes were made in the By-Laws to harmonize them to the new order.

Well Enough—We admire the radical action of the convention in so valiantly meeting the emergency that confronted it. Had the members yielded to the temptation of compromise measures, the day of reckoning merely would have been deferred. In fact, to have temporized further would have incurred the probability of grave danger to the welfare of the society. It was shown incontrovertibly that the progress of the society could be sustained only by the receipt regularly of the official journal by the members; and by its transaction, the society effectually enforces this requirement. The present official journal which was elected to succeed itself finds itself dispossessed of its prerogative but the action of the Springfield convention was foreshadowed last year at Chicago when it was voted that the action of the convention could nullify any vote on official journal when the society proposed the publication of its own paper. Now that the hopes of years of many of the members have been harvested it becomes incumbent particularly on the part of those who long have looked forward to the day of a re-born American Philatelist to support it by deeds as well as words.

Genuine—Mr. W. R. Harrison, Pontiac, Michigan, writes: "I am enclosing you herewith a curiosity in the shape of a two-cent 1869, used as a revenue stamp on a promissory note, canceled with the date, 'Jul. 27.' This was given me by a relative a few days ago, having been found amongst some old papers." Here is an instance of the provisional use of a postage stamp for revenue purposes and the document is interesting in this phase to a specialist.

Shoe Labels—Mr. Edwin R. Slater of New Haven has supplemented Mr. Morse's remarks on the subject of the Gordon McKay labels; and he has reproduced the design of the second issue of the pasters. Mr. Slater says that as a clerk in a shoe store, forty-five years ago, Gordon McKay had patented a machine for sewing on the soles of shoes. The serial number denoted the royalty or charge on each pair and the label was stuck on the soles of the shoes.

Bear in Mind—Australia has adopted a schedule of duties on advertising matter sent to that country, similar to that in force in several other of the British colonies. One of the provisions for the payment of duty is "At the Commonwealth Office, London, where adhesive stamps will be issued for attachment to the postal matter to indicate that duty has been paid." If payment is not made according to one of the methods prescribed, the duty will be "collected from the addressee by surcharge by the Postal Department (for the customs)."

SCENIC STAMPS WANTED.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 31.—In an address on "See America First." delivered before the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, Louis Hill, chairman of the Great Northern Railway board of directors, suggested that Uncle Sam ought to erase the faces of some of our illustrious dead from postage stamps and print thereupon the famous scenic spots of the country as the United States Government's contribution in the "See America First" campaign, for which the great railways of the country now are spending millions of dollars annually.

"It's a pity Uncle Sam could not have his observatory telescope adjusted so he would recognize the necessity of contributing to a 'See America First' campaign fund. Even little Switzerland does, and she continues to get away with the alluring fallacy that 'the best fishing is always on the other side of the lake'.

"Uncle Sam has Alps of his own right up in Glacier Park. I'd like to see Congress wake up to the patriotic necessity of advertising the scenic beauties and natural wonders scattered throughout our domain."

PARCELS POST, EFFECTIVE JAN. 1, 1913

The new law will render necessary a set of stamps as indicated in the interview with Mr. Hitchcock. A dozen values ranging from 1c to $1.00 are promised.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Announcement has been made by Postmaster-General Hitchcock that the Postoffice Department would be in readiness on January 1, 1913, to put into general operation the recently organized parcels system. The postal express business, which must be organized within four months, will extend over more than a million miles of rural delivery and star routes and will cover in its ramifications all systems of transportation of parcels now utilized by private express companies.

"First of all," Mr. Hitchcock said, "must be prepared a classification of the articles that can be accepted for transportation by parcels post. The law admits to the mails practically all kinds of merchandise that can be transported safely, including products of the farm and garden, as well as factory products, provided such articles do not weigh more than 11 pounds nor exceed 72 inches in combined length and girth. The mode of packing will be prescribed.

The present equipment of the mail service is not adapted to the carriage of such merchandise and therefore new equipment must be provided. It is likely we shall employ extensively hampers similar to those used in foreign countries in handling parcels post mail. The style, size and material of such hampers must be determined and advertisements issued for their purchase.

"The law provides that postage on all parcels shall be prepaid by affixing distinctive stamps. This will necessitate the designating and printing of at least a dozen denominations of special stamps, ranging in value from 1 cent to $1. Provision for the collection on delivery of the price of a parcel must be made. Regulations governing this phase of the system already are being prepared.

"The law provides indemnification for lost or damaged articles, and since many of the articles to be carried will be fragile or perishable the question of indemnity is one for careful regulation."

It is realized by Mr. Hitchcock that it is important at the outset to provide for sufficient additional equipment and transportation facilities to avoid any possible clogging of the usual mail channels. This involves one of the most serious problems confronting the postal officials as a result of the taking over of so large a volume of additional mail.

CHAPTER X.

10 Cents, Issue of 1861-1868.

This stamp, when collected in all of its varieties and shades, cancellations and adjuncts, makes another handsome lot of pages, unsurpassed by any unless it be the 5 cents of this same issue. And on account of the comparative commonness of almost everything needed to complete the collection it need not be an expensive luxury to make up a very complete and pleasing gathering of these pretty pieces of green-printed paper.

Unlike all others of this issue the August variety can be had by a great many collectors. In fact, few real stamp collectors are too poor to afford a copy of this beautiful premiere gravure.

The August was printed in a deep, velvety shade of green, upon very thin yellowish white paper, and is easily ruined through bending or breaking—so brittle is the paper's texture. Directly above the inscription at the top—the label which curves in a perfect circle over the portrait there is no line of color such as exists in the commoner variety.

This stamp was largely used upon mail between New York and Havana, by an importing concern, and a large majority of them are cancelled in red. Black cancellations over the August issue are comparatively rare.

Just why the change which marks the difference between the August and September issues was made in the plate I am not able to determine. Suffice to say that the change was effected, and a single curved line of dark color, bending over the face of Washington, decreases the value of a stamp more than 100 fold.

Probably some 500,000 of these stamps-without-the-line were printed during the less than a month while other plates were being made. This was sufficient to make it the lowest priced of the Premieres, however.

The addition of the line, and a shading of the stars above created Plate 15, known as the September issue. The number of the August plate was 4, by the way.

The first shade of the September issue was dark green, and it is noticeable that some stamps are found in the exact shade of the August type. In September, 1863, the stamp appeared in pale yellow green, yellow green, and dark yellow green. In December, 1863, a dash of blue was added, and the stamp took on a bluish green hue.

A variety with different pose of a lock of hair is said to exist. I have not been able to distinguish it, as yet.

Up to the time the grilles were applied to this issue there were printed 27,459,840 stamps. As there is no record of any being burned this will account for their cheapness and their general use all over the country explains the great variety of cancellations found.

As before mentioned, these stamps were printed from plate 15. But the demand was so great that another plate—No. 26—was constructed, and two plates were used.

The stamp is found unperforated all around—a superb copy of which I have—and imperforate vertically, as well.

On or about August 8, 1867, the grille, or embossed, variety was born.

If I was minded to follow the catalogs I should, of course, bring all of the ungrilled denominations together first, and then those containing the grilles. But I cannot bring myself to feel that the application of an embossing process creates an issue, much as I dislike to run contrary to the traditions of the cataloguers and the book-writers. One might as well say that the re-cutting of the upper and lower outer lines in the 1 cent, 1851, or removing the outerline in the 3 cent perforated variety of the same issue created issues. For that reason I class the grilles only as varieties. If anyone disagree to my logic, I'll not quarrel, or argue the question. It's differences of opinion which makes horse-racing.

The grilled varieties were made from sheets printed upon plates 15 and 26. The number of stamps issued during the application of the grille were 5,289,380. But there is hardly a doubt but some of those sheets printed before August 8, 1867, passed between the grille rollers, thus increasing this number materially.

Although the catalog chronicles but two sizes of grilles, there were at least six distinct measurements. There is an 11x13½, with 14x17 points, in dark green and blue green. 11x13, with points counting 14x16, comes in dark green. 11x12, with 14x15 points, is in blue green, 10x13, with 13x16 points, is in dark green. 9x13½, with 12x17 points, is in blue green and yellow green, while the 9x13, points 12x16, is common only in blue green.

If specialists will take the pains to measure and count their grilles they will be surprised to see what a variety they can build up with but a few stamps to start with.

The same remarks about reprints I made of the 5 cents, in the last chapter, will apply to this stamp as well. Practically the same number of reprints were sold to the public, and it is a truly rare article.

It is one of the series overprinted "Specimen" and what I said last week need not be repeated here.

The specialist need not expend many dollars to build up a nice collection in this stamp, as only the reprint is prohibitive. A suggested check list is:

August type.
September type—unused.
  Pair or strip.
  Shades, as above.
  Cancellations as usual.
  Proof on India paper.
  Proof on card board.
Grilled type—unused.
  Pair or strip.
  Shades, as above.
  Cancellations.
  Double perforations.

A Chat With the Advertiser

Bright & Son open their advertising campaign this week and will be found regularly on page four. This firm has established a good trade on this side of the Atlantic and appreciates the worth of the WEEKLY.

Messrs. Albright & Co. with us last spring are now re-established and will have a regular advertisement week by week.

We welcome to our columns an old patron whose offers will be found of more than ordinary interest. We refer to the Home Stamp Co. This firm has a reputation for low prices and small dealers especially will find some attractive wholesale offers in their price lists.

At the A. P. S. convention the managing editor had a talk with Dr. Homburger on the advertising proposition and the Dr. is not at all backward in saying that there is nothing to it but MEKEEL'S WEEKLY so far as returns, actual returns are concerned. He has tried them all.

We plan a season opener special number for Sept. 28 and it will breathe the spirit of optimism that will make everyone feel good.

Better get busy Mr. Dealer!

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, 17 Addison St., Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

UNITED STATES.—Considerable progress has been made in the designs of the new series says the Philatelic Gazette. The designs for the 1c and 5c have been accepted by Postmaster General Hitchcock, the 5c bears his signature "Approved July 16." The 2c is now practically settled though it has not yet received the final O. K. of the Post Office Department. The design for the 10c did not make such rapid progress as considerable difficulty was experienced in obtaining acceptable photographs of any of the subjects under consideration. Mr. I. E. Bennett, who represents the San Francisco interests in Washington, has finally succeeded in discovering a beautiful picture representing The Discovery of San Francisco Bay, which will quite likely be adopted very shortly. It is an oil painting by Charles F. Mathews, representing Spanish forces accompanied by a priest and Indians in the foreground.

In the distance is a view of San Francisco Bay. The group indicates the discovery by a missionary. The 2c design is very handsome. It shows the locks of Gatun Dam. Through the left one a merchant vessel is passing while the right passage is free. Both locks are open giving a picturesque view with a sky line. At first the vessel represented was a war ship, but this was recently changed and an "S" was added to the word "Lock."

The inscriptions at the top are as follows: 1c and 2c "Panama Canal," without date; for the 5c and 10c "San Francisco 1915." In addition all have "U. S. Postage" at top. Another design for the 10c has also been submitted but will probably not be accepted. It represents an allegorical figure holding up a torch with a view of the extreme southern point of South America. Though only two designs are as yet officially settled, it is practically assured that the four denominations representing the set will be as follows:

1c green (Balboa).
2c carmine (Gatun Locks).
5c blue (Golden Gate).
10c — (San Francisco Bay).

The San Francisco commissioners recently petitioned the post office authorities for a very large-sized stamp, to be two inches high and submitted designs, but a stamp of that size is very impractical and would not be popular, besides the production would be too expensive. It is quite probable that the new series will be placed on sale early in 1913, in order to advertise the great Exposition two years in advance.

Wells Royce Bliss sends us a copy of the new officially sealed stamp, rouletted 6½.

BARBADOS.—Wells Royce Bliss reports having received a letter from Barbados with a 2½d stamp of the design recently illustrated and described. The color is still ultramarine, though of a darker shade than the previous issue.

Adhesive.

2½d ultramarine.

BULGARIA.—A very handsome set of stamps has been issued by the Bulgarian Postoffice Department to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the accession of King Ferdinand, specimens of the three values having been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. The stamps are of large size, 26x32 mm., the design being the same for all denominations. A fine portrait of King Ferdinand occupies a large circle in the centre, the only criticism possible being that the King's head comes too near the top of the opening. The portrait is surrounded by a broad band, having Slavonic inscriptions, with insignia at the top and at the right and left, the whole surmounted by a crown. The armorial bearings of the King are placed at the right and left of the crown, in shields running across the top of the stamp. The values appear in the lower corners, in large circular tablets in colorless characters. Between these tablets are placed the dates, "1887-1912," in colored lined figures on a colorless background. The stamps are printed in a single color on white unwatermarked paper and perforated 12½. The quantities issued were 200,000 of the 5 stotinki, 150,000 of the 10s and 100,000 of the 25s. This is not a permanent issue, Whitfield King & Co. being informed that they were to be on sale only until Sept. 1, unless previously exhausted, and considering the small number issued, this probably happened early.

Commemorative Adhesives.

5s olive.
10s claret.
25s slate blue.

These stamps have also been shown us by W. T. Wilson, who adds:—"I also have post cards of 5 and 10s, identical design and colors as the adhesives but on the reverse is a rich Gothic design, covering nearly the entire back, showing the King fully robed on his throne."

COLOMBIA.—Frank C. Davis has shown us a lot of covers from Colombia, the stamps being the small numeral issue of 1904-08, but with various curious postmarks. Among them are "Jardin," "Envigado," "Ebenco," "San Andres," "Paraiso" and "Penol," all preceded by "C. D." and a dash. Most of these are postmarked with a large oval stamp, reading "Agencia Postal Nacional—Rep. de Colombia—Barranquilla", and the date. Another cover has five 1c stamps, hand stamped "Libre.—Contratacion." in very large letters, this cover being also stamped with the Barranquilla postmark. Another cover has two of the 2c numeral stamps of the latest issue, and a third copy cut diagonally and half used as 1c.

CYPRUS.—Another value has appeared in the King George set, a specimen having been shown us by Whitfield King & Co.

Adhesive.

30pa lilac and green.

DENMARK.—As noted last week, the 10 ore value has been issued in the numeral type, specimens having been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. and Whitfield King & Co. The color is very bright, and not at all like the previous issue.

Adhesive.

10 ore rose carmine.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—Frank C. Davis sends us a cover franked with the 10c provisional of 1905, Scott's No. 152, showing that these stamps are still good for postage, as the postmark is dated "Jul. 26, 1912."

ECUADOR.—Frank C. Davis has shown us a cover from Ecuador which was franked with the 2c revenue stamps of the familiar type, dated "1911-1912," each stamp being penmarked, "Calceta" as large as the size of the stamp will allow, the writing being placed diagonally reading down. Another cover has the same penmarked surcharge upon a 10c "Timbre Patriotico" stamp. The design is the same as the regular revenue issue, except that the date is omitted at the top and "Timbre Fiscal" at the bottom is replaced by the words quoted above, while the stamp is printed in two colors. There are no postmarks on either of these covers.

GERMANY.—John F. Wilmott reports having received an aviation stamp from Germany, though whether it is official or a private issue is not clear. It is used on international mail in addition to the regular stamp and is cancelled with the regular cancelling stamp. The value is 10 pfenniges, and the color brick red. The design shows an eagle flying above the clouds. Further information is desired regarding this stamp and its use.

GIBRALTAR.—We have the following from Whitfield King and Co. regarding the issue of the new King George stamps:

"We observe that in giving you information of the issue of King George stamps for Gibraltar, nothing was said of the circumstances under which they were issued, which are as follow. The new stamps were received in the Colony on July 16, or perhaps a few days earlier, strict secrecy being observed concerning them, in fact, we had a consignment of the Edwardian stamps sent from the Gibraltar post office on July 16, and although we had asked when the King George stamps would be issued our question was not answered.

"When the post office was closed on July 16 the officials remained behind and the whole stock of the Edwardian stamps on hand was counted and packed up, the officials leaving at one o'clock the next morning. At 9 a. m., on the 17th instant, the King George stamps were put on sale at the post office, the entire stock of the Edwardian stamps was taken to the Colonial Treasurer's office and there burnt.

"Before the stamps were destroyed our correspondent at Gibraltar went to the Colonial Treasurer's office and wished to purchase £1000 of the Edwardian stamps, and although they were not yet destroyed, but were actually in the office at the time, the officials refused to let him have any. No one but the Government officials concerned knew of the arrival of the new stamps in the Colony, nor was the slightest previous notice given that the old stamps were to be withdrawn and destroyed."

PERU.—Frank C. Davis has shown us a cover from Rucara, Peru, franked with a 5c and 10c postage due stamps of 1909, this apparently satisfying the post-office officials.

PORTUGAL.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us further values of the new stamps, completing the series. We find that the advance announcement of the series had the colors of the 50c and 1e stamps reversed.

Adhesives.

15c magenta.
50c orange on salmon.
1e green on blue.

Mr. Schachne has shown us a revised card of the new issue. The headline is sufficiently shortened to give space for the arms at upper left.

Post Card.

1c green on buff; divided face.

PORTUGUESE INDIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us some more provisionals from this Colony, the arrangement being the same as Scott's No. 260, the stamps being divided into two halves by vertical perforations, and the new value printed in the upper part of the left half and in the lower part of the right half. The provisional 6 reis stamps appear both with and without the surcharge "Republica."

Provisional Adhesives.

On issue of 1902-03.
"6 Reis" on 9r gray lilac.
Surcharged "Republica."
"1 Real" on 1 real gray.
"6 Reis" on 9r gray lilac.

SWEDEN.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1 ore black on paper watermarked wavy lines. The 2 and 4 ore stamps of the regular postage set have been previously chronicled on this paper with this watermark.

TURKEY.—Wm. F. Palmer reports having found Scott's No. 86, which has the final "E" of "Piastre," changed to an "F," in used condition.

MR. KLEIN AT MARKTREDWITZ.

Auxiliary Report of the Counterfeit Detector of the A. P. S.

I had the pleasure of attending the Philatelistentag of the German and Austrian Stamp Societies. This is an Institution similar to our Convention, which also takes place each year, and to which the various German Societies, and their corresponding Societies send delegates.

The Philatelistentag this year took place in Marktredwitz with an attendance of 160.

Coupon books entitling visitors to all attractions, dinner, excursions, etc., were sold for fifteen marks. The town was gaily decorated with flags and a Triumphant Arch, showing in large pictures of rarities, like the Moldavian 81 paras, and Mauritius P. O., etc.

The chief "business" was the passing, after a lengthy and heated discussion, of the Resolution offered by Mr. Heger of Vienna.

The Resolution is as follows:—

Rules for the Valuations of Cancellations.

(A.) Genuinely postally used are all postage stamps, which were used in the places intended for them during their currency and cancelled by the Authorities with genuine, unaltered postmarks then in use.

Remark: (No. 1) Postage stamps, which are cancelled with pen and ink marks and other cancellations ordered by the Authorities, are considered equally valuable, (for instance, Lubeck, 1st issue, German Empire, 2 marks 1875-84, Columbia early issues and Afghanistan).

(No. 2) Postage stamps with Telegraphic, Railway, or other fiscal cancellations, may be looked upon by postage stamp collectors as less valuable space-fillers.

(B.) With forged cancellations, and therefore, entirely valueless are:

(a) Postage stamps, cancelled during their currency by postmarks with deliberately changed dates (for instance, German Mariannas, 1st issue) or were cancelled in places outside of their intended use, (for instance, Liechtenstein).

(b) Postage stamps, which were cancelled after they were withdrawn from use. Such cancelling stamps may be as follows:—

(1) Postal cancellations, which show either an earlier or later date than the time of their being current (for instance, Servia 1904 with postmark 1903, or Iceland 1873 issue cancelled 1875-76.

(2) Postal cancellations, in which the date has been set back in order to produce the appearance of correct dates, (for instance certain remainders of Montenegro 1907 and Luxemburg 1879-82).

(3) Postal cancellations, which were produced by the Authorities for the purpose of cancelling the stamps (for instance St. Helena) or cancelling marks, which were again brought into use for the purpose of cancelling stamps in entire sheets, (for instance, Labuan bar cancellations, especially beginning with 1894).

It does not make any difference whether the post-office or the purchaser applies the cancelling stamps furnished by the Post Office.

(c) Postage stamps, which were cancelled by unauthorized cancelling stamps, during or after their being current.

The above resolution was called for by the great demand for cancelled stamps on the Continent, especially in Germany.

EUGENE KLEIN.

EDITOR SCOTT ON NEW ISSUES.

(Metropolitan Philatelist.)

At last the stamps of King George are coming out in a fairly constant stream and we advise collectors to keep ahead of the tide. To secure all immediately as they are issued is not a very costly undertaking but once let them accumulate the amount may be more than can be easily handled. The collector then begins to pick out and select with the usual result of buying the wrong ones first while the neglected issues are rapidly advancing in price. Expert dealers cannot guess which ones will soon become rare so there is small chance of the average collector being able to turn the trick. The only safe way is to buy every stamp issued of any series you may decide on collecting. We do not mean to say that every collector must purchase every British colonial stamp as issued regardless of face value, but if they decide on taking every stamp issued up to one shilling or five shillings or higher, take all without playing favorites. As a matter of fact, we advise the purchase of the higher values in preference to the low ones. A five shilling stamp is likely to be a better investment than the same amount of low values. The stream of Portuguese Colonials has now stopped and the early investors have good reason to congratulate themselves on their foresight and good luck, but the end is not yet and we expect to see much higher prices in the not distant future.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

FAKES AND COUNTERFEITS.

Philately, in common with every other collecting hobby, has received the unwelcome attention of the faker and counterfeiter but there is one great consolation and that is the fact that the majority of fakes and forgeries are fairly easy to detect, while there has never yet, even among the "dangerous" counterfeits, been one so cleverly executed as to deceive the experts on the stamps of the country imitated. The beginner has little concern with either fakes or counterfeits for the majority of stamps which have been imitated are expensive varieties such as the beginner is hardly likely to purchase. But as our "guide" would hardly be complete without some reference to the subject we append the following notes.

Fakes and counterfeits are not synonymous terms, so far as philately is concerned at any rate, and they must not be confused one with the other. A fake is a genuine stamp which has been tampered with in some way so as to turn it from a common variety to one of greater value. For instance a stamp changed chemically from one color to a rarer one, a forged surcharge applied to a genuine stamp, a stamp from which the perforations have been removed so that it can masquerade as an imperforate variety, or one on which the gauge of the perforations has been altered, are all fakes.

A counterfeit, on the other hand, is an out-and-out imitation of some stamp or other, and is manufactured either with the intention of defrauding the postal authorities or of deceiving collectors.

We are inclined to think that faked stamps present the most danger to philatelists. But as it is always the expensive varieties that are faked, the inexperienced collector can safeguard himself by purchasing his stamps only from reliable dealers whose guarantee is worth having. It is the height of folly to buy a rare stamp, when offered by a stranger at a small fraction of its real value, unless one is very positive as to its genuineness, just because it is cheap. The chances are it will turn out to be a very poor "bargain."

Counterfeits manufactured with the idea of defrauding the revenue are generally fairly harmless so far as stamp collectors are concerned. Indeed most specialists collect these varieties as interesting curiosities and it is strange to note the crude imitations that have successfully deceived postal employes. Some of the 2c United States stamps of 1890 were counterfeited but they are such poor productions one can only marvel at any one having been taken in by them. The number of frauds made purely to deceive the postal authorities is small and, curiously enough, many of these are scarcer and command higher prices than the originals. Some of these frauds have lain hidden for years after the stamps counterfeited were out of issue and would probably never have been known but for the studies of the specialist.

At the present time it is generally the stamp-collector who forms the prey of the counterfeiter. Unfortunately in several countries the laws are sufficiently lax to allow of the counterfeiter carrying on his nefarious trade without hindrance so long as his "facsimiles," as he generally terms them, are not intended to defraud the revenue. In the early days of philately forgeries were much more common than they are now. Indeed many forgeries were bought by collectors as such just to fill the spaces in the albums and this fact accounts for the large proportion of forgeries found in most really old collections. Then, of course, knowledge in stamp matters was not very widely distributed so that the distribution of counterfeits was a fairly simple matter. Nowadays owing to the numerous handbooks, catalogues, and magazines the philatelist is well protected with knowledge and unless a counterfeit is exceptionally well executed it will hardly deceive even the tyro. It therefore does not pay to imitate common stamps, so the counterfeiter directs his attention to the rarer varieties. To produce varieties cleverly enough to have the slightest chance of gulling collectors he has to be a man of considerable skill and as the processes he employs are frequently expensive it is very questionable if the game is worth the candle. He may copy the design of a stamp almost exactly and then he has to imitate watermark, paper, and perforation and, as we pointed out in our notes on Reprints, if Government departments with all the resources they can command cannot imitate a stamp sufficiently closely to pass the eagle-eyed scrutiny of the trained philatelist, the chances of a private individual being successful are even more remote.

Taken as a whole then, fakes and counterfeits, do not present a very serious danger even to inexperienced collectors, so long as they take the precaution of dealing only with reliable concerns.

SHORT REPLIES.

W. A. M. (San Francisco).—I regret I know nothing about the telegraph stamps you mention.

A. W. (Sunderland, Neb.).—Your New Zealand stamp watermarked with small star is probably one from the bottom row of a sheet in which the watermark was so displaced that in this instance the letters "N Z" failed to show.

THE BEST WAY TO CLEAN STAMPS.

By REV. E. D. PRICE.

Judging from statements made from time to time in the leading Stamp Journals few collectors appear to know how stamps should be cleaned. In one magazine the boiling of stamps for half-an-hour is recommended. Having a few spare copies available (but no Harrison prints, unfortunately), I determined to try the "boiling" method. The general results were as follows:—

(1) It is the quickest way of cleaning stamps that I have ever tried. The size of the saucepan is the only limit as to the number one can speedily clean. A good sized vessel will hold thousands at a time.

(2) I found a 15 minutes boil quite sufficient; 5 to 10 minutes will generally be found ample.

(3) The line-engraved stamps, such as Great Britain 1d red, Q. 1858, German 10pf red of 1880, U. States 2 C. 1853, were actually improved in appearance.

(4) All traces of gums, original or otherwise, had quite disappeared.

(5) A large number of the stamps were absolutely discoloured. Some had turned almost white, as if "greyed" by age, in fact had become changelings.

(6) Chalk surfaced stamps deposited their chalk at the bottom of the water and most of their colour too.

In one magazine now before me an expert recommends us to lay our precious stamps, except fugitive colour ones, "face upwards in water."

It is a good thing that stamps as a rule can swim. But the difficulty of hooking them out of the bath without wetting their faces is by no means to be despised. Occasionally, alas, a stamp or two of mine was found drowned as a result of this "bath" treatment. Of course, should the stamp have become caked with mud in the course of its travels and is warranted not to lose colour, the swimming bath plan is to be recommended.

About 40% of the ordinary schoolboy stamps require cleaning. We all have to do it or have it done for us. Now here is the correct scientific method, one warranted not to damage the most delicate stamps. Procure a pair of photographic developing dishes, those made of papier máché, or celluloid are excellent for the purpose and those with broad bottoms and shallow are the most suitable. Two are needed. Place in each dish a piece of clean white blotting paper of good quality cut to fit the dish. These pieces will have to be renewed after a time. Coloured blotting paper occassionally discolours the stamp, as also will an ink stain. Sufficient water should be poured into one of the dishes to thoroughly saturate the blotting paper and to show on the surface. The stamp to be cleaned is laid on this face upwards. Should the stamps be on very thick paper or card board more water will have to be added. After quite a short time all adhesive paper can quite easily be removed. The stamp should then be placed in the drying dish and allowed to dry slowly. If dried too rapidly they will curl up, but this can be prevented by lightly laying on top of the stamps to be dried, while still damp, an extra piece of blotting paper. Stamps that are greasy should now be brushed with benzine.

When removing extraneous paper from a stamp, recollect that damp paper tears more easily than dry.—From the Philatelic Journal of India.

COLLECTING BLOCKS OF FOUR.

Editor Scott in Metropolitan Philatelist.

The current drift of modern collecting is towards blocks of four or larger pieces where such can be procured. This might have been foretold years ago by the average amateur but like many indications they are seen by all and acted upon by the few. Every time a block is broken the remainders are so much rarer and singles commoner. The history of all pursuits is for the experts to make the game more difficult. The old style fishermen tried to get the fish by netting, shooting, clubbing, or any other old way to get the fish out of the water. The modern fisher strives to catch the largest fish with the thinnest possible rod and the longer it takes to land his prey the prouder he is of his achievement. The old time amateur collected stamps, begged them if possible and took what he could get, a perfect specimen lightly cancelled was his delight but half a stamp was better than none of that variety and found a place in his album. Later used stamps gave way to unused specimens and not being satisfied with the face of the stamp being perfect the gum on the back also had to be in the same condition. Now we strive for blocks, certainly an ideal mode of collecting; of course it costs four times as much as the old style, but we believe it has come to stay. It must not be expected that there will be an immediate and large profit in buying blocks because others are doing the same thing, but such a collection in the course of ten years will appreciate in value. Again, the lowest values in this condition will be plentiful for many years to come but high values of nearly all uncurrent stamps are even now hard to find and are bound to rapidly increase in value. Take some easy country and try it, or rather make up your mind to fill the set. You will have to pay pretty high for some common stamps in this state and do some tall hunting to find them, but remember, if you have difficulty in securing the blocks now when you are willing to pay liberally for them how much more difficult it will be for those who come along a few years later. It will be cheaper for him to buy your set at your price.

U. S. LORE.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

I have recently found a 3 cent rose, issue of 1867, grilled 14x17, points up, in same color of the 13x16.

I have also just obtained a 3 cent grille covering entire stamp, which shows a part of postmark reading "Ind." I have traced this stamp to Rockport, Indiana, and as it is without question a genuine and authentic grille the former belief that the grilled-all-over stamp was only used in Little Rock, Ark., and Savannah, Ga., is erroneous.

Can any reader furnish substantial proof that these stamps were used in other places as well?

Warren D. Brown, New York, reports having found the 24, 30 and 90 cents, 1851-1860 issue, perforated 15x15½, according to his measurements. The writer will verify this, as Mr. Brown has kindly offered to loan the stamps for that purpose.

Ralph Eilers, St. Louis, hands me a book leaf of 1 cent current issue, with numerals, which shows a line of color running from top to bottom of the three right hand stamps, beginning at the top of the plate and continuing down through each of the left numerals of each stamp. This line crosses the space between the stamps, as well as the white margin at bottom of the pane. Each leaf in a full book procured by Mr. Eilers showed this line, proving that it was not caused by some mishandling of the sheet in printing. Unfortunately the book did not contain plate numbers. Has any reader found this stamp so printed? Does it exist other than in book leaves?

THE MODEL STAMP FACTORY.

A NOVEL IDEA TO BE FEATURED AT THE JUBILEE INTERNATIONAL PHILATELIC EXHIBITION.

The arrangements for this novel feature of the Exhibition are now completed. As the promoters anticipated, the complete scheme of this interesting side-show will enable visitors to study the processes involved in stamp-manufacture on a scale unprecedented at philatelic exhibitions.

The display naturally divides itself up into four important sections:

1. Paper-Making by Hand. As the visitor enters the Factory the first exhibit on the right will be the practical manufacture of hand-made paper. Visitors will there see the hand-mould dipped by the vatman or "dipper" into vats of semi-liquid pulp and turned and handed to the "coucher" as a sheet of pulpy paper to be dried and pressed between felts. So completely practical will this exhibition be that philatelists will be so instructed as to be capable of doing it themselves. In fact, so far as possible visitors will be given opportunities of making a sheet of hand-made paper for themselves, suitably watermarked, as souvenirs of their visit to the Jubilee International Stamp Exhibition.

2. Paper-Making by Machinery. A full-size paper-making machine is an enormous affair, but the Executive have secured an exhibit of a most elaborate working model, the parts of which are all to scale, and which will actually produce many miles of paper in continuous rolls throughout the week of the Exhibition. The machine is so conveniently compact that visitors can walk all round it, and have a perfect view of the whole process. Starting at the "wet" end they will see the pulp in the vat where it is kept in motion by an "agitator," and lifted into a strainer before it is evenly flowed on to the endless band of wire gauze which is constantly moving towards the dry end of the machine. At the sides of the moving gauze and moving with it part of the distance, are the deckles, or boundary straps which decide the width of the paper roll. Then the gradually forming paper passes under the dandy roll which impresses the watermark. A special dandy roll with the watermark of the Junior Philatelic Society will be used on this occasion. Then the paper passes under and over a group of eight gas-heated drying cylinders, and we doubt not the privilege will be eagerly sought by visitors of possessing strips of the completed paper as it comes off the machine. The machine is being erected at a convenient low level so that its operations, from first to last, shall be completely open for inspection and careful study. At intervals short explanatory lecturettes will be given, and skilled operators will be constantly in attendance to explain the working of the paper-making machine to visitors.

This most interesting and important display is being arranged by Messrs. T. J. Marshall & Co., of Campbell Works, Stoke Newington, the firm which has a world-wide reputation for the construction of dandy-rolls, the first dandy-roll having been invented many years ago by the founder of the firm. This firm also supplies most of the dandy-rolls required for the watermarked stamp-paper used by the British & Colonial and many foreign governments.

On the walls around the paper-making display will be exhibits of various moulds, dandy-rolls etc., for making all varieties of paper, extraordinary watermark designs, and items of rare and curious interest relating to the manufacture of paper.

3. Stamp-Printing. The philatelic public has had several opportunities of seeing in a small way the process of recess-plate printing for postage stamps. But never have collectors had the privilege of seeing the work of typographical stamp-printing as carried on at the several establishments under contract with the British Government, or at Somerset House itself. So the Executive Committee have concentrated their attention on this important section of stamp-printing for their practical display. Here at one of the stamp-presses installed and operated by the celebrated stamp-printing firm of Waterlow Brothers & Layton, Limited, of Birchin Lane &

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

LEON V. CASS, DALTON, PA.

Broken Wharf, London, visitors will see manufactured before their interested gaze the model stamp, the design of which has been obtained by open competition amongst the artists of the world. Except for the difference (and it is hoped improvement) of the design, the plate will resemble those used for printing the English postage stamps. It will be of 240 set divided in two panes of 120. The size and the arrangement of the narrow gutters for the perforation will be identical with those of the English stamps. But with the improved design, with a good ink, and with the skilled printing for which Messrs. Waterlow Brothers are renowned, the sheets which will be printed in full view of visitors to the Stamp Exhibition will, it is expected represent the best class of typographical stamp-printing ever produced in this or any other country.

Messrs. Waterlow Brothers are also arranging to show many items of curious and rare interest relating to stamp-manufacture, and as during their firm's long record they have produced stamps by lithography, recess-plate printing, and typography, their display is certain to be of the greatest interest to every stamp-collector.

4. Perforating the Stamps. Now, having seen paper made and the stamps printed visitors will next see how the stamps have to be perforated; to cope with the output from Messrs. Waterlow's press, two perforating machines are being installed by Messrs. Grover & Co., of the Britannia Engineering Works, Wharf Road, N. The larger of the two machines is exactly the same as is in use at the Somerset House, Hayes and Broken Wharf stamp-factories, and it will be provided with a "George V" punch box perforating 15x14 in a comb corresponding to the long way of the sheet of 240 stamps.

The public has never seen our stamp-perforating, and the opportunity for seeing this process alone should be of inestimable value to all students of philately, as well as to representatives of other governments concerned in the production of stamps. A few particulars of the machine may be of interest to show the importance of this exhibit.

The machine was designed for the British Government and its Contractors, for the perforation of Postage and Insurance stamps and Customs Duty Labels, &c., and a number of the machines have been supplied and are giving every satisfaction to the users.

The machine is necessarily of very massive construction, as the work is of such a nature that little or no allowance for error is tolerable, owing to the narrow limits of the British Stamp margins. It will perforate gummed and water-marked paper seven Sheets at a time and at the rate of about 2,000 Sheets per hour, this speed being the limit of the average operator's capacity. The machine as shown at the Exhibition perforates Sheets of a maximum width of 24 inches and with a maximum of about 1,000 Pins in the "Comb."

The length of the Sheet or Roll to be perforated is unlimited. There are no Racks to limit the work, and adjustment in the running direction of the Paper is under control by means of a micrometer device, which is adjustable at will during the working of the Machine.

The Pinning arrangement is "Universal" within the limits of 24 inches by 24 inches; the Pinning carriage is brought automatically against its Registering Stops at either end of its stroke under the control of the Operator, this mechanical delivery conducing to the accuracy of the work.

As a Stamp-Perforating Machine this large one which is to be used at the Exhibition, has no equal for accuracy of work and speed of output, a moderate average output being half a million stamps per hour.

The machine requires a power of 2 B. H. P. and weighs 32 cwts. Its dimensions over all are length 7 ft., width 5 ft. 6 ins., height 4 ft. 10 ins.

A smaller machine will also be exhibited in operation.

It will be seen from the foregoing description of the arrangements for the Model Stamp Factory that the Executive Committee of the Jubilee International Stamp Exhibition have prepared and completed a really wonderful working display of stamp-printing on a scale never before attempted. As a course of pleasant and practical instruction in the art of paper-making and the mechanical processes of stamp production the display should prove of the highest value to philatelic students, and it is in harmony with the constantly maintained objects of the Junior Philatelic Society that the Exhibition shall be of the greatest possible educational value, both to the stamp-collectors and to the public.

Lest there be any misapprehension on the subject we may add that every visitor may see this wonderful display without charge; there are no side-shows of the Exhibition to be paid for. Every visitor will be the guest of the Junior Philatelic Society, and if disposed to be generous may concentrate his generosity by supporting the members of the stamp-trade, who by taking stall spaces at the Exhibition have contributed largely to the cost of the elaborate arrangements.

In addition to the Model Stamp Factory there will be exhibits extending over three-quarters of a mile, of interesting and valuable stamp collections sent in by collectors in Great Britain, the United States, and many European and other foreign countries and colonies.

Admission cards may be had free, on application to the Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. F. Johnson, 44 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

DEATH OF CHAS. PRINTZLAU.

(A Baltimore subscriber sends us the following clipping from a local paper giving an account of the death of Chas. Printzlau of that city. Mr. Printzlau is better known to the dealers than the collecting fraternity.—Ed.)

While he lived, Charles Printzlau, a proof-reader, who boarded at 1407 North Central avenue, tried to be "a good fellow." He saved a woman from drowning and became paralyzed for life as a result. He gave liberally to his lodge, helped the poor, ate heartily, laughed loudly and grew to weigh 360 pounds.

So when he felt that death was coming upon him he wanted not only his name but his reputation to survive him. He wrote a will which directed those who are to distribute his estate to erect a monument at his grave upon which is to be graven the epitaph "He Was a Good Fellow."

And then, to merit further the inscription, he gave most of his money to several lodges of the Odd Fellows and $1,000 to Miss Carrie H. Contee, of 1741 West Lexington street, who, he says in his will, is "a hard-working girl, the only support of her parents and three minor children."

Printzlau made this will January 30 of last year when he thought his death was near. He died August 27 of paralysis, which had possessed him for nearly 12 years.

BANQUET INSTEAD OF MOURNING.

He did not want anyone to mourn his death. He bequeathed $130 to Washington Lodge of the Odd Fellows for a banquet to be held some time this year in his memory, and he left $2,000 to Martha Washington Rebekah Lodge and suggested that the income from this be used each year for an entertainment on March 22.

CAME TO BALTIMORE 8 YEARS AGO.

He came to Baltimore about eight years ago and two years later went to board with Patrolman William C. West at the Central avenue address. He had three interests in his life—one was a stamp collection which he valued above all things else, his lodge and Miss Contee, his co-worker. Being crippled and compelled to spend most of his time sitting, he grew large and weighed at his death about 360 pounds. But he made life interesting for himself by collecting stamps. He had begun years ago and had obtained stamps from every country. There were, perhaps, 15,000 of them in his collection and he kept them in an iron safe in his room on Central avenue.

VALUED STAMPS AT $15,000.

The $2,000 to his lodge, the $130 for the banquet and the $1,000 to Miss Contee form his principal bequests.

There is some doubt as to whether Mr. Printzlau had as much money as he gave in bequests. Mr. Printzlau often said that his stamp collection was worth $15,000 and it may be that Printzlau depended upon the sale of his collection to meet the bequests.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Harry A. Smith of the Herbert A. Fox Stamp Co., Oswego, N. Y., was a recent caller at the office. Mr. Smith was in Boston attending the postal clerks' convention. He speaks highly of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium and promises that the Fox Co. shall be represented in our columns this winter.

—Our Season-Opener Special of Sept. 28 will be the first of a series of special numbers that we intend to issue during the fall and winter.

—E. L. Cone, Farmington, Ill., a WEEKLY subscriber of many years standing called at the office the past week.

—We are indebted to H. McConnell of Walloon Lake, Mich., for a big batch of clippings from various old philatelic publications. Such interest in the WEEKLY upon the part of our subscribers is greatly appreciated.

—Fred Michael & Bro., Chicago, have a fine attraction booked in the sale of the collection at auction of the late Frederick L. Fake, the father of Judge Fake of the Municipal Court, Chicago. The catalogue is a large one and accomodates nearly 1,500 lots; and three folios of illustrations loan greater effect to it. The sale will be held September 27th and 28th, at 8 P. M., in the room of the Chicago Numismatic Society, Masonic Temple; and it will be a fine introductory to the schedule of monthly auction sales of stamps and coins that Fred Michael & Brother have in prospect.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Geo. H. Scharr, R. L. Stultz (3), M. A. Lesser, R. T. Hammett, Jr., John Terry, M. Henry and L. Lazarus.

—We are indebted to L. T. Brodstone for a clipping from the Kansas City Star giving the particulars of one of Mr. Brodstone's finds and his great success in the publication of the West. Mr. Brodstone attended the M. P. A. convention but was unable to get on to Springfield because of a temorary illness.

—B. Max Mehl, Fort Worth, Texas, sends us a 36-page price list of coins and paper money in ancient and modern, United States and foreign. To anyone collecting coins or coming in contact with chance specimens this book will prove a valuable reference list.

DEATH OF FRANK BESCHER.

Mr. Severn in our editorial columns writes of the death of Frank Bescher. It is indeed a sudden blow especially to those who met him at Springfield, so cheery and apparently so strong in health. From Mr. Severn's letter under date of Sept. 5 we quote:

"Yesterday afternoon, suddenly and almost without warning, Frank Bescher of Kansas City, Mo., died at the Hotel LaSalle. Iver Johnson was with him at the time and two doctors and a nurse who were hurriedly called could do nothing for Bescher. The coroner's inquest was held to-day and the body will be shipped to Kansas City to-night, according to plans. An acute attack of indigestion, perhaps induced in great measure by the severe heat of the past week was the direct cause of death. Two brothers-in-law of Frank are here and will take the body home. The death was a sad one, away from home as it was and just after the conventions (he had attended the coin convention at Rochester, as well) and his mother and sisters will feel it keenly. The stamp boys here have been doing everything possible to soften the blow."

A letter received from P. M. Wolsieffer refers to the sad event as follows:

"It is my painful duty to notify you that Frank J. Bescher of Kansas City passed away Wednesday afternoon at the Hotel LaSalle in this city.

He succumbed to heat prostration owing to the extreme humidity prevailing at the time, while he was on his way with Iver Johnson to the stock yards. While waiting for an elevated train, he began to feel dizzy and Mr. Johnson immediately hurried him back to the hotel, where shortly after he was taken with convulsions and passed away at 2 o'clock notwithstanding the efforts of two physicians, nurses, etc.

His relatives were telegraphed for, and the remains will be taken back to Kansas City."

Mr. Bescher is well known to hundreds of our readers, not only through attendance at the A. P. S. Conventions but by correspondence and his public spirited interest in all that pertains to the good of philately. He will indeed be greatly missed.

As we go to press we receive a letter from H. F. Kohr with the following additional word concerning Mr. Bescher's funeral and his business and family interests:—

"Mr. Bescher's funeral was held Saturday, Sept. 7 from the Catholic Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Mr. Bescher had probably the largest and finest collection of stamps in Kansas City. He made a specialty of unused stamps and instead of buying through dealers, as is the custom, he always bought them direct from the country of issue. His collection contained many rarities and practically complete issues of many countries.

His collection of early Swiss stamps was especially valuable and while his collection of United States issues lacked many rarities, it was rich in shades and minor varieties and represented a considerable investment.

Mr. Bescher was 42 years old and was born in Kansas City. Before entering the produce business he was employed in the composing room of the Kansas City Times For a number of years he has been operating as the Bescher & Baker Produce Company, 420 Walnut Street.

Mr. Bescher was unmarried. He is survived by a mother, Mrs. Barbara Kemp; five sisters—Mrs. Anna Baker, Mrs. Frances Harrington, Miss Antonette Bescher, Mrs. Samuel Moorhead and Miss Grace Bescher—and one brother, Fred Bescher, all of Kansas City.

CHAPTER X.

Twelve Cents, Issue of 1861-1868.

Philately seems to have had some uninteresting stamps thrust upon it to remind its devotees that they must study other things than beauty of color, or variety of plates, perforations, or shades. The 12 cent black, issue of 1861-1868, is one of those stamps that a majority of collectors grab quick to fill the vacant place in the album, and then forget that they can go further and add more, and still more, until they have a well filled page.

The collector's bible (the standard catalog) gives three stamps to complete the issue—not including the round-cornered, unfinished, August type. One shade in the September, and two sizes of grilles in the later variety, together with a high-priced re-issue, make up the complement.

The August type is one of very pronounced difference from the one which followed a month later. The historian declares that something like 160,000 of these were printed. Where, oh where, have they disappeared

The August type was printed from plate number 5. It is on that thin, brittle, yellowish white paper, in a shade of gray black. At least so say those who have been fortunate enough to view a copy.

The latter part of September, 1861, the 12 cent stamp, with corners filled out in the way a skilful tailor would make a square shouldered man out of one who was sloped above the elbows. The first printing was in full black. A little later the ink thinned and produced shades of gray black and gray.

The paper also underwent some changes and it is found on thick paper, thin and very thin. The later paper is always, so far as I have seen them, printed in grayish black.

Of these there were printed 7,166,070, including the 160,000 August type. The September stamps were printed from plate 16.

In common with all other denominations, the 12 cent was grilled. The first grille was chronicled in April, 1868, but probably a good many were put on sale before that time. The catalog gives two varieties to collect—sizes 11x13 and 9x13. In connection with this I want to criticise the cataloguer. If the collector is not a specialist he has no interest in two sizes of grilles. If he has outgrown the idea of a general collector, and has studied specializing, then he needs more than these two sizes of grilles to complete his varieties. For when a collector has gathered between the covers of his album two sizes of grilles, he has begun to be a specialist. He needs to go further, and round out his numbers.

Mr. Luff gives the following sizes:

Size.	Points.
11x14	14x18
11x13	14x16
9x14	12x18
9x13½	12x17
9x13	12x16

To which I wish to add another size, which reposes safely in my own collection, that of 10x14, with 13x18 points.

During the life of the grilling process there were 3,585,600 stamps printed. But like other denominations it is reasonably certain that some of those which were printed prior to April, 1868, were put through the rollers.

There is no record of any of this denomination being destroyed, and it is probable that all of the 10,000,000 and more were issued to the postoffices.

The Government's display at the Philadelphia Centennial caused this stamp to be "re-issued" and some were sold to the public. But that number was so few, and so great a number were destroyed, that they are quite rare. The re-issue was not, of course, grilled.

The different size grilles come in the different shades noted above, and also on medium and thin paper.

Red and blue cancellations are found, and occasionally one marked "Paid." Green cancellations are rare. Owing to the stamp being black cleaners have used it extensively to remove penmarks. By looking through the stamp at the light the mark left by the pen can usually be seen.

The stamp, overprinted "Specimen" should be collected. Also proofs on India paper and cardboard. Both of these, "Specimen" and proofs, seem destined to be rare and sought after in the very near future.

A check list can be made up from the information contained above.

A FEW PARCELS POST IDEAS.

By H. F. KOHR.

A new and interesting field for the specialist will be opened with the new issue of parcels post stamps when the law goes into effect January 1. The issues of stamps especially for parcels post use have been few enough up to the present, and the stamps are so cheap, as a rule, that a complete collection will be neither costly nor difficult to obtain. As in the case of the United States parcels post service, where separate issues are provided for by law, the stamps are distinctive in shape and design, and in the case of the French colonies, for instance, rather attractive.

Belgium has made several issues of postal packet stamps, and while they are cheap, lightly cancelled copies are rather uncommon. It usually happens in the United States that stamps affixed to parcels are very heavily cancelled so that undoubtedly, despite the probable plentiness of the stamps in a few months, lightly cancelled copies will bring comparatively good prices, especially in the higher values.

Still another slant for the specialist will be opened up by the new parcels post issue and that will be the special collection of precancelled parcels post stamps. The big mail order houses, especially, will use quantities of these stamps.

Undoubtedly the highest value in the forthcoming parcels post series will be the $1.32 value, which will carry the maximum weight for the maximum distance (11 pounds more than 1,800 miles). The next lowest value probably will be the $1.11 which will carry 11 pounds more than 1,400 miles and less than 1,800 miles.

The present and the previous issues of United States stamps have much to be desired from an artistic standpoint, except in the simplicity of the design of the 1909 series. With the opportunity afforded by the parcels post series, the writer hopes for one, that the postmaster general will adopt Mr. Louis Hill's suggestion and put a little scenery on them.

A friend of the writer suggests that, since the government has twice given the patent medicine makers the privilege of advertising themselves on revenue stamps, the Post Office Department might well give the big mail order houses the privilege of issuing private parcels post stamps. That ought to meet with favor from the specialists.

If the Post Office Department doesn't issue a scenic set, the writer would like to see what might be called a "transportation" set—a postboy, rural carrier, stage coach, wagon train, freight or express train, a steamship, a Mississippi packet, an automobile and a trolley car.

I haven't seen it mentioned yet that the Post Office Department has issued orders that postage due stamps must be cancelled with the regular cancelling stamp, consequently, many fewer fine cancelled copies. All I have seen since the new order, were almost annihilated by a black smudge cancellation.

EDITORIAL.

A Cartoon—We are pleased to see that the incomparable Briggs, cartoonist on the Chicago Tribune again brings stamp collecting into his picture series, "The Days of Real Sport." This time the theme is: "A Hot Sunday Afternoon. (About 4.30.)" Little sister is reading an Elsie book; papa is prone on the grass under the tree in the back yard, dozing away under the cover of a newspaper sheet, with baby toddling about him, unnoticed. Mother is trying to read but one of the two boys, who have looked at their Sunday-school papers and who are restless, even if hot, and pester her with questions, asks: "Ma, kin I go over to Skinny Malloy's house —he wants to show me his stamp collection, kin I?"

An Aside—In the report of a case in London, wherein a young man charged with approval sheet fraud was before the bar, the following opinion appears as having been voiced by the prosecuting counsel: "One cannot help feeling that the witnesses have themselves invited prisoner to commit these frauds by the careless way they have sent stamps to a person who simply asked for them. In the ordinary course of trade at the present day, one does not get credit unless inquiries are made. I myself could not, but perhaps the prisoner is more imposing than I. If people do this kind of thing they have themselves more or less to thank for the results." As rather cool, the complaining witnesses who were bilked must have regarded the foregoing statement, which is all the more effective as having come from the prosecutor, as we understand it. Yet the words should be pondered and we know human nature well enough to suspect that a successful prosecution of a stamp fraud case is likely only when it is shown that the prisoner achieved the stamps, so to say, and did not have them thrust upon him. A little inquiry before sending the stamps might avoid a lot of annoyance afterwards.

Died—On the afternoon of September 4th, Frank J. Bescher of Kansas City, Missouri, died suddenly at the Hotel La-Salle, Chicago. Mr. Bescher, after having attended the stamp convention at Springfield and that of the numismatists at Rochester, New York, arrived in Chicago on August 30th, in company with P. M. Wolsieffer, who accompanied Mr. Bescher all the way from Springfield, Mass. The weather was excessively hot and Mr. Bescher decided to rest in his comfortable quarters in Chicago before proceeding to St. Louis, the next objective point in his itinerary. Despite the abnormal heat, the days passed pleasantly for Mr. Bescher, who had many friends and business acquaintances in Chicago. On the evening preceding his death, Mr. Bescher was the guest of Mr. Wolsieffer at his suburban home; and there, Mr. Bescher spoke of a passing indisposition, as he deemed it, that he attributed to the continued heat. On the fourth of September, after a light breakfast, Mr. Bescher started in company with Iver R. Johnson for the Stock Yards. When at the station of the elevated road whose train it was anticipated would afford a cool ride, comparatively, Mr. Johnson noticed that Mr. Bescher looked distressed and consequently, he suggested that the trip be abandoned. Mr. Bescher nodded his acquiescence and the two rode the short distance back to the hotel. When Mr. Bescher's room was gained, Mr. Johnson removed Mr. Bescher's outer garments, with some assistance from Mr. Bescher, and otherwise ministered to his comfort. Temporarily, Mr. Bescher was relieved and was seated in a chair when a convulsion came. Calling in passing assistance, Mr. Johnson immediately secured the services of the house physician. The doctor detected the grave turn the case had taken and worked ceaselessly over the patient who seemed to revive after a time. Without warning a second convulsion became manifest; and a second physician and also a nurse were brought in. Emergency treatment was resorted to but the response of the patient was weak and despite all effort and the best attention from the hotel management that placed all its resources at the disposal of Mr. Bescher, he passed away at about 1.30 P. M. While conscious for some time before his death, Mr. Bescher uttered no word, even though he appreciated the devotion of his faithful friend. The sad news of Mr. Bescher's death was soon known to Mr. Bescher's stamp associates in Chicago; and they constituted themselves as a lodge of sorrow.

Details—On September fifth, the coroner's inquest on the body of Mr. Bescher was held and it was attended by Mr. Bescher's stamp and coin friends, some of whom had just fraternized with him at the recent conventions. The causes of the death were intestinal complication and heat prostration. Two brothers-in-law from Kansas City were present, and the necessary legal formalities having been complied with, the body was transported to Kansas City for burial. A wreath of immortelles was a tribute from Chicago friends and a floral offering was ordered for delivery at Kansas City.

Personal—Mr. Bescher who was about forty-two years of age was one of the earliest members of the American Philatelic Society; and through his attendance at many of the conventions had a personal acquaintance with a large number of members. He was the leader in Kansas City philately and so early as 1889 was one of the organizers of the Kansas City Stamp Club; four or five years later, a new society in which Mr. Bescher was an officer was called the Philatelic Society of Kansas City and it became a Branch of the American Philatelic Society. At the time of his death, Mr. Bescher was president of the present local organization at Kansas City, easily the most progressive society than ever before represented the city. Mr. Bescher was just rounding out his thirtieth year as a collector, and while he was a general collector with about eighteen thousand varieties, he had a penchant for United States and stamps on the original covers. He invested heavily in unused Columbians at the time of their issue and the 1847 issue, five and ten-cent were great favorites with him; and needless to say, he had accumulated a brave number of them. His horde of sheets of some of the earlier British colonials as well as a host of other striking stamps are evidence of Mr. Bescher's enjoyment of stamp possession. He was truly a stamp lover and seldom allowed a specimen to leave him through sale although so generous was Mr. Bescher, he sometimes made presents of stamps to beginners and personal friends. Mr. Bescher was large-hearted and a cheery companion who stood forth as one who looked upon stamp collectors pleasantly as well as stamps, themselves. His friends are to be found almost everywhere, his travels having extended to Hawaii, for instance, and their deep grief is proof of their esteem and affection for Mr. Bescher. Mr. Bescher was a commission merchant and since 1890 has conducted his business successfully. He was unmarried, but to his mother and sisters, we extend our condolences. A radiant philatelic light has been quenched.

THEFT OF MONTENEGRINS.

(The following clipping received the past week from a Western subscriber seems to be of sufficient interest to warrant reprinting the same. We do not recall having recorded the particulars of the alleged theft.—Ed.)

RED LODGE, MONT., Sept. 3.—Wanted for the alleged theft two years ago of $80,000 worth of postage stamps from the postoffice at Cettinje, Montenegro, two Montenegrins were taken into custody at Bear Creek today by a deputy from the sheriff's office. The men arrested are brothers and have been going under the name of Popvitch. Their correct name is said to be Yaboutchanine.

From the correspondence, transmitted from the American legation at Athens to the American secretary of state, and forwarded to the local county authorities through Governor Norris, it appears that the suspected men, following the robbery of the postoffice, made their way to the United States and joined a large colony of Montenegrin coal miners at Bear Creek, where it is alleged they had agents engaged in disposing of the stamps. They conducted a store at Bear Creek until a few months ago.

A search of the cabin occupied by the suspected men revealed, it is said, a number of stamps of the "jubilee" series, corresponding to the stolen stamps. The men were taken before a justice of the peace and their bonds fixed at $40,000, which they were unable to furnish. They will be held to await actions by the Montenegrin government..

COMMUNICATIONS.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

PRAIRIE DU SAC, WIS., Sept. 5, '12.

TO THE EDITOR:—

While visiting the State Museum at Madison recently, I came across a "Post Office Room," a nice light room which has been entirely set aside for stamps, proofs, envelopes and clippings concerning U. S. Post Offices. Here I found among many things, cardboard proofs of all the department stamps, 1873 issue, complete, postage due 1879, regular issues from 1847 to 1888, all complete; strips of 5 and 10 of Scott's 207, 211a, etc. (Confed. States). Also the complete set of "specimen" envelopes; and many original covers. While inquiring of Mr. Brown, Chief of Museum, he told me that if he could get enough collectors interested, he would be very much pleased to give a stamp exhibit for several days. Anyone interested can doubtless obtain information from Chas. E. Brown, Chief of Museum, State Historical Society, Madison, Wis.

LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

PHILA., PA., Sept. 6, 1912.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Please publish a warning against our collector friends putting their stamp books into cedar chests for storage.

About a year ago I put some of my books in a cedar chest and the odor of the wood seemed to create some sort of combination with the ink of the stamps. The browns, oranges and red lakes were most affected. The whole face of the stamp in some cases got gummy and seemed to raise up the ink. The action was no respecter of age as it affected my 5c U. S. 1847 the same as the 2c Alaska-Yukon. I soaked the Alaskas to see if water would help but it did not. I will now try benzine, turpentine, alcohol, ether and see what will restore the stamps.

Fortunately it was not my best books that was stored but just some odds and ends. Of course, I should have wrapped each book in oiled silk or rubber sheeting.

The Alaska-Yukon's were sold as a 5c combination in a nickel in the slot vender at Seattle and constitute a very interesting provisional 5c combination. They were in numbered jackets. I have some more that were not gummed.

BROCKPORT, N. Y., PRECANCELS.

By S. M. SCHOEMANN.

Recognizing the rapid increase of precancel collectors in the past twelve months and being desirous of helping those who desire a little more light than that diffused by the recent check list, I have prepared this advanced list of Brockport, N. Y. There are, perhaps, other varieties, but the following list is taken from my collection. I have a number of other varieties consisting of different shaped commas, but as it is a difficult matter to describe them, they are omitted.

Type I. Five horizontal hair lines about 3½ mm. apart.

Type II. Five vertical or horizontal lines about ½ mm. wide and 3½ mm. apart.

Type III. Brockport—N Y in two lines. Horizontal inscription between heavy lines.

Type IV. Brockport, N Y in one line. Horizontal inscription in very small letters between thin lines.

Type V. Same as Type IV except a period after N. and Y.

Type VI. Brockport—New York. In two lines. Horizontal inscription between lines.

Type I. 1c 1890 horizontal.
2c 1890 horizontal.
Type II. 1c 1898 horizontal.

SUPPLEMENT.

Type III. 1c normal, spaced 16¼.
Type IV. 1c normal, spaced 12; T & N, spaced 2 mm.

Some "enterprising" owner of a printing press has attempted to "fake" certain Brockport issues. The work is so poorly executed as hardly to dupe the most ignorant tyro.

I will give herewith a description and list of those I have. They are a poor imitation of Type III. Instead of solid lines at top and bottom, they have two lines, like the Philadelphia, Pa., issues. The lines are ½ mm. wide and ½ mm. apart. The spacing between lower top line and upper bottom line is 15½ mm. In the genuine there is neither comma nor periods, but in the fakes, there is a comma after Brockport and periods after N. and Y.

The list follows:— 1895, 1c and 5c normal and 1c inverted; 1898, 1c normal and inverted, 2c normal and inverted, 2c normal, orange red; 1902, 4c normal and inverted, 10c normal and inverted; 1903, 2c normal and inverted.

A Chat With the Advertiser

You are interested possibly in the talk going the rounds as to what papers A. P. S. members really subscribe to. The official organ claims in the vicinity of four hundred A. P. S. subscribers, while the "Stamp Journal's" claim is "as many as MEKEEL'S". We have between one thousand and eleven hundred A. P. S. subscribers, and with this statement we will let the advertiser draw his own conclusions.

Note Mr. Peckitt's venture into the realm of new issues. His advertisement this week will prove of special interest. The firm of Champion & Co. will in the future be known under the firm name of Theodore Champion.

Attention is called to the entrance of three advertisers who have not been with us recently. B. Elmer of 345a Washington St, Boston, Powell of Storm Lake, Iowa, and the Japanese firm of Kobayagawa are with us again for another season.

The busy season is on, albums are being opened, and there is every evidence of a year of activity.

Better write us Mr. Dealer.

Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed, stamped envelope. We cannot give applicants the addresses of our correspondents. Correspondence regarding precancelled stamps must be sent to FRANK B. ELDREDGE, Attleboro, Mass., when due credit will be given in this department.

AUSTRALIA.—A new card is shown us by Mr. Morse of same size, material and stamp as noted in No. 1094, but the reverse is covered with a local view.

Also another without view and of same size, material and stamp, but the headline design is that in use so long for South Australia, only changing "So. Australia" to "Australia" and substituting the local arms for the English.

Post Cards.

1d carmine on white; divided face, view on back.

BELGIUM.—Another value in the new set, with portrait of King Albert has been shown us by the New England Stamp Co., the design being the same as the other values recently chronicled.

Adhesive.

35c pale brown.

BOLIVIA.—Frank C. Davis has shown us a cover from Bolivia, mailed at Tomave, in May, and franked with a stamp we have not been able to place. The value is five centavos, and the design a standing figure of justice, with a naked sword in the right hand, the point resting at the feet, and the left hand holding aloft the balances. At the left is arranged the fasces, surmounted by an eagle. Corinthian pillars at the sides support an arched tablet which bears the inscription, "Republica de Bolivia," the figures of value appearing in the upper corners, superimposed directly upon the lined background. The figures of value appear again in square tablets in the lower corners, with "Cinco Centavos" in two lines between. The stamp appears to have been engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Co., being in that company's style, familiar in South American stamp work.

Adhesive.

5c dark brown.

BULGARIA.—We are indebted to A. W. Dunning for specimens of the Commemorative set chronicled last week.

CHINA.—A new local surcharge has turned up, according to a correspondent of Ewen's Weekly, who in turn draws his information from a correspondent in Shanghai. This new overprint was struck on the seven lower values of the Imperial stamps, the work being done locally for the postal authorities at Hwang-do, a town about three miles from Hwang-tu. The overprints were made in two colors, red and black, the latter being of which are extremely rare, as they were only done in very small quantities, said to be not more than five per cent. of the total issue. The quantities printed are reported to have been as follows, including both colors of surcharge: ½c, 1570; 1c, 1570; 2c, 1520; 3c, 1725; 4c, 1510; 5c, 1200; 7c, 320. Information regarding the nature of the surcharge is lacking, excepting that it consisted of four large Chinese characters, printed diagonally in red or black. Presumably the characters were the same as those used in the official surcharge, chronicled some time ago.

GAMBIA.—Ewen's Weekly states that the Georgian stamps, which were to have been issued in the Colony Sept. 1, have a new value, 1½d, printed in olive and green.

GIBRALTAR.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us four of the higher values of the King George set, the lower values of which were chronicled in No. 1130. W. H. Peckitt has also shown us the complete set. All are in the colors of the previous set and are printed on chalky multiple paper.

Adhesives.

2sh violet and blue on blue.
4sh black and red.
8sh violet and green.
1 violet and black on red.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The New England Stamp Co. and W. H. Peckitt have shown us the new 2d value, with portrait of King George, which was issued in London about the 20th of August. Strangely enough the Home Postoffice authorities have themselves been the first to depart from the universal color scheme imposed on the Colonies, the new stamp being in orange, somewhat lighter in shade than the current 4d Edwardian stamp. This indicates a change also in the color of the 4d value. The design is a tremendous improvement over the ½d and 1d values, the portrait being that in use on the latest issues of Colonial stamps, a profile view with the King's face turned to the left. The wreath, with the crown coming to the top frame line, and bows of the ribbon with which it is tied fill the upper corners. The wreath is conventional, with laurel at the left and oak at the right. The ribbon is continued down the sides and at the bottom below the portrait is formed into a bow, on which is printed the words, "Postage" and "Revenue." Octagon shields in the corners below the portrait oval contain the figures of value, while the value in words is printed on a tablet running across the bottom of the stamp. This value is printed on the watermarked paper, showing a very small crown above large script letters, "G R", arranged in multiple form, very close together vertically, and horizontally so as to show one vertical row of the watermark emblems on each vertical row of stamps. The perforation is 14½x14. There is really very little to criticize in this stamp, except that the perforating is not yet up to the De La Rue standard.

Adhesive.

2d orange.

MOZAMBIQUE CO.—Mr. Morse has received the 20r card (Senf No. 16) with local overprint "Republica" over the stamp but reading oblique downward. The type is smaller than the previously noted overprints being only 19 mm. long instead of 24 mm.

Post Card.

20r gray-lilac and bright green on buff.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—A. C. Roessler has shown us an unused block of six stamps of the 15c value in the current Royal Family set, in imperforate condition, but we are not informed as to the reason for the issue, nor the conditions under which they were received from Newfoundland.

PAPUA.—We have received from W. H. Peckitt the 1sh value of the current set in a single color, printed on paper watermarked Crown A sideways.

Adhesive.

1sh yellow.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 1c King Edward stamp in a new shade, deep blue green.

Johore.—W. H. Peckitt has shown us the 1c, 5c and 25c values on chalky paper, watermarked multiple flower or quatrefoil.

TIBET.—A Glasgow paper is informed that Tibet is shortly to be provided with a distinctive postage stamp issue in place of the overprinted Chinese stamps, recently withdrawn from sale. The necessary dies, etc., are said to have been manufactured in India, and the stamps will be brought into use on the return of the Dalai Lama to Lahassa.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—"Apparently the supply of the one centavo Peru present issue (Scott's No. 177) has become exhausted. I have just received a parcel from a private source on which part of the postage was prepaid with a five centavos regular issue and two one centavo official stamps of the present issue (Scott's No. 371). This same condition obtained in 1897 when the one centavo official (Scott's No. 367) was used to prepay the postage on ordinary mail matter, the one centavo postage (Scott's No. 141) having become exhausted."—Al de la Torre Bueno.

POSTAGE STAMPS OF THE NEW HEBRIDES CONDOMINIUM.

By D. B. Armstrong.

The islands of the New Hebrides group, some thirty in number, lie to the North-East of the French colony of New Caledonia, in the Western Pacific, 1700 miles from Sydney, N.S.W., between latitude 12-20 South, and longitude 165-167 East. They extend from North-West to South-East for 700 miles in a long continuous chain, the principal islands being Efate or Sandwich Island, Espiritu du Santo, Mallicolo, Aurora, Pentecost, Ambrym, Epi, Tanna, and Erromango. They are of volcanic origin and are densely wooded, the soil being rich and fertile. Their climate is moist and tropical, and unhealthly for Europeans, and the rainfall is heavy.

The total area of the group amounts to about 5,000 square miles, and the native population, composed of both Melanesians and Polynesians, to 100,000; ten of the islands being uninhabited. The European community, made up of traders, officials and missionaries, numbers between six and seven hundred persons, two-thirds being of French origin. Most of the indigenous products of the Southern Seas are cultivated and exported in large quantities, including copra, bananas, tobacco, coffee, cocoa, timber, sugar, india-rubber, sandalwood and tortoiseshell, the value of the total exports during 1904 being £43,000, and of the imports £54,777.

Port Vila, or Franceville, on the Southern shore of the island of Efate, is the principal settlement, whilst Port Sandwich, or Mallicolo, is the next in importance. There are a number of other stations and settlements, but with the exception of the two named none is of any considerable size.

The islands are in regular communication with Sydney, New South Wales, and Noumea, New Caledonia, by French and British steamship lines plying between Port Villa and those ports.

The political history of the islands has been a somewhat chequered one. They were discovered on April 30th, 1606, by a young Spanish officer, named Pedro Hernandez de Quiros, whilst on an expedition to find the fabled Land of Ophir. Touching at the island of Espiritu du Santo, he believed that he had reached his journey's end, and attempted to form a settlement there, but owing to the mutinous attitude of his troops this proved abortive, and he was compelled to return to Lima without having attained his object.

Rather more than 100 years later the group was re-discovered by Admiral Philip Carteret, of the British Navy, who was surveying in the district in his vessel the "Swallow." By him the island of Mallicolo was re-named Sandwich Island. He was closely followed in 1768 by the intrepid French explorer de Bougainville, who gave his name to the strait which separates the islands of Espiritu du Santo and Mallicolo. Subsequently they were visited and thoroughly explored by the "Australian Columbus," Captain Cook, from whom they received the title New Hebrides, after the Hebrides Islands off the Scottish Coast.

The earliest settlers appear to have come from Australia in the 'sixties or 'seventies of the last century, and to-day it is claimed in Australia that since the group forms a geographical appendage of their continent, it is the natural inheritance of the Australian people. France, however, early cast covetous eyes upon these fertile islands, and as far back as 1875 the Governor of New Caledonia attempted to induce the British settlers on Tanna and Efate to accept the protection of the tricolour; but without success.

This action led to an exchange of notes between Downing Street and the Quai d'Orsai, resulting in an international agreement, which was signed on February, 1878, declaring that the New Hebrides (including the Banks and Torres Islands) were neutral ground. In Australia the French designs on the New Hebrides continued to be regarded with suspicion, and H. M. Government was repeatedly urged to declare a British Protectorate over the group; this, however, they did not see their way to do.

A native rising, in which some settlers were murdered, occurring in 1886, was made an excuse for the dispatch of a French military force to the Islands, which step was taken by the Governor of New Caledonia without the knowledge of the home authorities. In England and Australia this action gave rise to the strongest resentment, being regarded as a further attempt at annexation. Representations were made to Paris on the subject and eventually a fresh Treaty was drafted and signed by both Powers on October 24th, 1887, setting forth in a series of five clauses the basis of the future administration of the Islands. It provided for the appointment of a joint Commission of British and French naval officers on the Pacific station, which was entrusted with the preservation of law and order in the group, and the protection of the life and property of the settlers. Both nations were to enjoy equal rights and privileges. It was further agreed that on the ratification of this Treaty the French troops should be withdrawn from the islands of Mallicolo and Efate. The Convention came into effect on January 26th, 1888, the Commission being duly appointed and its sphere of activity clearly defined. The necessary steps were at once to be taken to suppress any danger threatening the lives or property of the settlers that might arise, but no officer of either Power was to take action upon his own responsibility except in circumstances of the greatest urgency. Military assistance would be afforded at the unanimous request of the Commission, but the troops were not to remain in the Islands longer than their services were actually required for the preservation of the peace.

The Commission was also given full power to settle any disputes as to land titles and differences between settlers and the native inhabitants.

The very elastic powers conferred upon this Commission did not meet with the approval of the settlers, and on August 9th, 1889, the inhabitants of Port Vila proclaimed an independent republic. This coup d'etat gave rise to considerable consternation, both in London and Paris, and Great Britain replied to the colonists' action by sending a Consul to Port Vila. The presence of this official was, however, objected to by the French Government as a violation of the Convention of 1888, and accordingly, after many delays, the British Consul was withdrawn in February 1890, and normal conditions were restored. A Pacific Order in Council of March 15th, 1893, settled the status quo of the British subjects resident in the New Hebrides and other islands of the Western Pacific, and a similar document, emanating from the French Foreign Office, appeared under date of February 26th, 1901. Some years previous the Governor of the Fiji had been appointed British High Commissioner for the Western Pacific, and by the Gallic Ordinance of 1900 the Governor of New Caledonia was given similar control over the French interests in the South Seas. In 1902 British and French Residents were appointed to the New Hebrides.

The somewhat unsatisfactory arrangements made under the Convention of 1888 continued in force until the year 1904, when a further interchange of views took place between London and Paris, culminating in a new Treaty signed on October 20th, 1906, by which the Islands (inclusive of the Banks and Torres group) were created a permanent Condominium, under the joint control of Great Britain and France, wherein the subjects of both nations were entitled to equal rights and privileges. This Treaty provided for the appointment of French and British Resident Commissioners, who were to co-operate in organising the Islands' government. Article V. of the Convention stated that—

Public Services undertaken in Common.

(1) The following public services shall be undertaken in common, police, posts and telegraphs, public works, ports and harbours, buoys and lighthouses, public health, finance.

(2) These public services shall be organized and directed by the High Commissioners and their Delegates conjointly.

(3) Special postage stamps shall be issued for the New Hebrides, in conformity with the International Postal Convention.

(4) English and French money and bank notes, authorized by either Power, shall be legal tender in the group.

The seat of administration was to be established at Port Vila, where the Commissioners of both Powers were to reside. For the maintenance of law and order a detachment of International Constabulary was to be raised, composed half of British and half of French subjects. Justice was to be administered by a tribunal composed of three judges, one appointed by each of the signatories, and a third, to act as arbitrator, who was to be nominated by the King of Spain. The sale of arms, ammunition and intoxicating liquor to the natives was expressly forbidden.

From accounts, the Condominium does not appear to be working as well as might be desired. French interests predominate in the group, and French capital and French labour practically control the Islands' trade. The British and French Commissioners do not seem to be able to work harmoniously together, and the position of the British residents is said to be most unsatisfactory.

In Australia there is considerable agitation for the definite transfer of the control of the group to one or other of the two nations. The New Hebrides question is therefore far from settled, and the ultimate fate of the Islands is still on the knees of the gods.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BERTRAM W. H. POOLE, Box 231, Altadena, Calif.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE BEGINNERS' GUIDE.

Bogus Stamps.

I frequently get letters from readers asking me to identify stamps they cannot find illustrated or described in Scott's catalogue. Generally these are German locals but sometimes they are "bogus" stamps such as the Sedang and U. S. "Army Frank" labels described in previous issues. Bogus stamps are frauds, pure and simple, issued solely with the idea of deceiving stamp collectors. They may be (1) imitations of some genuine stamp printed in a color, or with a value and inscription, that never had any official existence, or (2) they may be labels purporting to be legitimate postage stamps of some mythical country or of some small state that has never had a bona-fide issue. The majority of these frauds evidently had but a limited circulation though the Sedangs must have been fairly well distributed, judging by the frequency with which they turn up in collections made about twenty years ago.

In 1894 stamp collectors received with a good deal of surprise and distrust a new issue of stamps for the "Principality of Trinidad." The labels showed a view of an island with a pleasure yacht in the foreground, and they were inscribed "Timbre-Poste et Fiscal Principalité de Trinidad." These were issued by an adventurer posing as Prince James I of Trinidad, though his real name was the more prosaic one of Harden Hinckley. He annexed, in his own mind at any rate, the little island of Trinidad situated 50 miles from the coast of Brazil and kindly supplied it with postage stamps. Unfortunately for him, however, as the island is but a barren uninhabited rock, his scheme to swindle philatelists failed utterly.

Another fictitious set was issued for Clipperton Island in 1895. This small island off the Californian coast belongs, of course, to Uncle Sam and as this fact was soon known these "stamps" also failed to find a sympathetic market.

But of all the would-be stamp issuers certain enterprising individuals associated with the so-called "Republic of Counani" are the most persistent. Certainly, but for periodical attempts to foist stamps on the market, the name of Counani would be unknown and. as it is, careful search reveals no mention of it in any ordinary work of reference. It is said that this miniature republic is hidden away between Brazil and French Guiana and has been claimed by both France and Brazil. In 1893 attempts were made in Europe to find a sale for an alleged new issue of Counanian stamps and the individuals responsible for the creations stated that other stamps had been issued and used by Counani since 1887. Collectors and dealers were very skeptical so the issue did not take place. Nothing daunted, however, another attempt was made to float the stamps in 1900 but this was equally unsuccessful. Then the gentleman who styled himself the "Secretaire aux Postes et Communications" of this mysterious state decided to lie low for a while. In October, 1904, he favored most of the leading dealers in England, France, and Germany with an imposing looking document signed by "Cte. Ch. de Douhet de Manderand" stating that the postal service of Counani had been entirely reorganised and a regular service instituted to Europe via French Guiana. The proposed stamps were to consist of five values for postage, five for official use, and one for fiscal purposes. At the same time certain dealers were "favored" with a circular letter from a Mr. H. G. Tichener couched in the following terms:—

"In virtue of a contract I have made with the Government of the Free State of Counani, the exclusive right for the sale of postage stamps and fiscal stamps of this state has been reserved to me, apart from the postoffices. A new series will be issued very shortly, and I shall be glad to know whether you are likely to become a purchaser of Counani stamps; and, in such case, will you kindly let me know the approximate number you could dispose of so that I may make my arrangements accordingly?

"If necessary, I should be willing to grant you the exclusive privilege for this country upon satisfactory terms; but, in any event, I shall be able to supply you with new Counani stamps at 10% discount from face value.

"There will be 100,000 copies of each value issued."

But still the philatelic public remained coldly unresponsive and Mr. Tichener's "arrangements" must have been upset for the labels never came on the market.

Now, eight years later, another attempt is to be made to foist these precious labels on stamp collectors if a paragraph in the Stampster is correct. This contemporary, quoting from a Spanish journal, states that according to the "consul of the republic" the "use of stamps is compulsory." The set consists of five values all of similar design. This consists of a large star on a shield enclosed by a laurel wreath. The values are in centimes and franc and the only inscription is "Counani Postes." If I remember rightly these must be the old friends of 1904 and it will be interesting to watch whether Spain will accept what England, France, and Germany have already rejected.

SHORT REPLIES.

R. A. C. (Oak Lane, Pa.).—I am sorry I cannot recall having seen any description of the designs of the last issue of Greek stamps. Perhaps some reader can oblige with this information.

J. F. W. (Townsend, Mass.).—You are mistaken in thinking the peso of Guatemala is equal in value to the dollar of the U. S. A. The peso varies in value from time to time and at the present moment I believe it is not worth more than 20c U. S. (2) Cape of Good Hope is the correct name for this British colony.

J. J. G. (Buffalo, N. Y.).—The "thunderbolts" on the Russian stamps are small dart or arrow shaped marks drawn across the posthorns at the base of the Arms, in a diagonal direction.

A CURIOUS COMBINATION.

By Frank E. Goodwin.

Away back in the late winter of 1862 there were troublesome times in Kentucky. The Blue Grass State was the buffer between the forces of the warring North and South, and mail facilities were of the worst. Kentucky's good citizens wrote letters only as often as necessity compelled, and there was not always assurance that the letters would soon reach their intended destination, if in fact, they ever did find security in the hands of the persons to whom they were addressed.

Postmasters found it difficult to secure supplies of postage stamps from Washington. It was often the case that postmasters would be compelled to borrow or buy stamps from neighboring officials, until their own supplies could reach them from the postoffice department in the capital city.

In the latter part of February, 1862, the postmaster at Frankfort, Kentucky, found himself very short of one cent stamps, and with no three centers. His order for stamps mailed to Washington several weeks before had not been filled and the gentleman in charge of the mails of Frankfort—a Mr. Gardner I understand his name was—was put to his wits' ends to supply the even meager demand at that time for stamps. There were then no "Two Cent Jacksons" which could be used in combination with the one centers, and six cent stamps had not come into being. To give each patron of the postoffice three stamps of the denomination of one cent for each letter mailed would soon exhaust the supply of available stamps in the Frankfort postoffice.

It was a critical condition in the affairs of the postoffice at Frankfort, and no doubt the postmaster and his aid were sorely puzzled what to do to be on the safe side until the belated supply of stamps arrived from Washington. When that would be there were no means of knowing, or even guessing.

Finally a scheme was hit upon—a scheme that was not just according to the rules of the postal department, but one which the postmaster believed he would suffer no evil consequences from, if he was called upon to explain.

There was a supply of two cent Bank Check revenue stamps in the postoffice, and one of these, together with a regular one cent postage stamp, would prove that the mailer of a letter had paid the necessary three cents postage on each letter written. So it happened that a two cent Bank Check revenue was used for postage, and copies of this combination are occasionally found in the correspondence which went out of Frankfort on the dates between February 22 and 18, 1863.

While perhaps of no great philatelic value these combinations have considerable interest, and I am certain that as they formed a sort of provisional issue they might be with propriety given a place in the collection of a specialist. This is especially true, inasmuch as the stamps designed for use for revenue only, were used postally as a matter of necessity, and not by way of experiment or accident.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE UNITED STATES AEROPLANE MAIL.

By ARTHUR T. BROWNE, Boston Philatelic Society, No. 543.

(The writer would like to secure specimens of all future aeroplane cancellations. They may be sent to him in care of Mekeel's Weekly.)

Although the honor of having the first aeroplane cancellation belongs to Great Britain and German philatelists are delighted with the honor of having the first aeroplane stamp, yet the development of the aeroplane mail has been rapid in this country. At many meets, held all over the country, from New York to California, mail has been carried by the bird-men and as a result, many aeroplane cancellations have appeared. To assemble these aeroplane cancellations is no small stunt. The writer has tried it and knows whereof he speaks. Yet to the collector of cancellations, the result is worth the effort, for these cancellations are very interesting.

In an article on "Aerial Postmarks" which I wrote for this paper March 9, 1912, eight aeroplane cancellations were mentioned. Since then many others have appeared. At present, there are twenty-three aeroplane cancellations to be looked for.

The facts about the aviation meets, the aviators and the aeroplane cancellations are as follows:

No. 1—Garden City Estates, N. Y.

The first United States aeroplane cancellation was used at the International Aviation Meet, which was held on the Nassau Boulevard, Long Island, N. Y., Sept. 23 to October 1, 1911. This cancellation was the result of the interest taken by Postmaster General Hitchcock in the success of the First British Flying Mail, he arranging with the promoters of the above mentioned meet for the carrying of mail. The first aviator to carry mail was Earl F. Ovington, who won the great Boston-Nashua-Worcester-Providence-Boston race at the Squantum Aviation Field, Labor Day, 1911. Mail was carried from the special postoffice on the field to the regular postoffice at Mineola, N. Y. Some eighteen or twenty letter boxes were placed about the field and the mail was collected by a regular carrier attached to the Brooklyn postoffice.

On the second day of the meet, 6,165 cards, 781 letters and 85 papers were carried by aviator Ovington. The count of mail carried the first day was unfortunately lost.

The letters and postal cards were cancelled in black ink. The postmark was circular in shape. At the top, were the words "Aeroplane Station No. 1." In the center, was the date. At the bottom, were the words "Garden City Estates, N. Y." The cancellation consisted of four wide, black lines, one-eighth of an inch in thickness. At the left of the postmark, in large letters, was stamped "Aerial Special Despatch."

No. 2—St. Louis, Mo.

Three days later, the second aeroplane cancellation made its appearance. It came from St. Louis, Mo., from an aviation meet held at Kinloch Field and Fairground Park, October 4 to October 9, 1911. Aviator Walter Brookins, flying a Wright Biplane, carried mail for a distance of twelve miles, the greatest distance that mail had ever been carried in this country. So great was the demand for aeroplane cancellations by the St. Louis collectors that Brookins' flights were soon restricted to the length of the field in order that he might keep up with the mail collections. On his first flight, Brookins carried 6,000 pieces of mail matter. Stations were established at each end of the field and mail was collected every forty-five minutes.

The letters and postal cards were cancelled in black ink. The postmark was circular in shape. At the top were the words "Aeroplane Station No. 1." In the center was the date. At the bottom, were the words "St. Louis, Mo. Aviation Field." The cancellation consisted of four wide, black lines, one-eighth of an inch in thickness.

Experimental Flight.

On October 8, at St. Louis, Mo., aviator Hugh Robinson, in a hydro-aeroplane made a spectacular flight on the Mississippi river starting from the river five times and alighting six times. He carried mail from Missouri into Illinois.

COLLECTIONS ON APPROVAL

Here is something mighty good for the busy man. We have divided Scott's International Albums into 10 volumes and mounted in them a collection consisting of mostly medium priced stamps which will catalog about $5000. The net price is marked under each stamp and you can compare them with your Scott album page for page and see at a glance what you need. While value of book will vary, they are approximately as follows. Book can be sent to those ready to spend at least $10 at a time. Special 10% discount on purchases of $25 or more. Goods priced in most cases at about half list though hundreds in each book are marked less than half.

This was an experimental trip and no aeroplane cancellations have made an appearance as having been used on this trip.

No. 3—Rochester, N. Y.

On October 21, 1911, at Rochester, N. Y., the third aeroplane cancellation came to light when aviator Lincoln Beachey, probably the most daring aviator in the game today, gave an exhibition flight and carried mail at Crittenden Park. This park is used as a race track. Beachey made two flights, and as the meet lasted but one day, naturally the Rochester "aero" cancellation is a hard one to get hold of.

The postmark was circular in shape. At the top were the words "Aeroplane Station No. 1." In the center was the date, "Oct. 21 1911." At the bottom were the words "Rochester, N. Y." The cancellation consisted of four long, wide lines, about two inches in length and one-eighth of an inch in thickness. The cancellation lines in the first two aeroplane cancellations were one inch in length. In the center of the cancellation were the words "Crittenden Park Station." Beachey carried mail from the park, which is just outside of the Rochester city limits, to a point within the city, about a mile from the starting point. Here the mail was carried by automobiles to the main postoffice where it was distributed.

No. 4—Fort Smith, Ark.

The fourth aeroplane cancellation came from Fort Smith, Arkansas and was in use but one day, November 6, 1911. This is another "hard-to-get" "aero". Aviators Lincoln Beachey and Beckwith Havens gave a demonstration in a hydro-aeroplane starting from the aviation field, outside of the town, to the main postoffice, in the town, a distance of about five miles. This aeroplane cancellation was much different from the others. The letters and postal cards were cancelled with six heavy horizontal lines. At the left of the cancellation in five horizontal lines, were the words "Aeroplane Mail Service, League Park Station, Fort Smith, Ark., November 6, 1911."

No. 5—Savannah, Ga.
